Frosh Elections Set For October

Future campus leaders will have an opportunity to emerge within the next month.

The registration books for freshman elections will open October 7 and remain open until the 14th, it was announced by the Student Government Elections Committee. The books will be located at the Student Union Main Desk.

The committee also announced that following the closing of books, there will be a required meeting of all candidates October 15 so that election rules may be explained.

Elections are scheduled for October 24, and run-offs will take place October 31, it was announced.

Firemen Flock To False Fire

A Raleigh fire truck made a futile trip to the Sigma Nu house early last night.

Firemen were sent out to investigate a call which said there was smoke in the house, Chief John W. Godwin of the local fire department said.

The fraternity's water heater apparently overheated causing smoke, Godwin said, but there was no fire and no obvious damage was caused.

The incident occurred around 5:30 p.m. The house is located at 1620 Hillsboro St.

Soil Professor Attends Meeting In Europe

Dr. William V. Bartholomew, professor of soil science at State, attended a meeting last week on isotopes and soil organic matter studies in Braunschweig, Germany. He is still in Europe, visiting, among other places, Rome, London, and Amsterdam, and conferring with other scientists.

Dr. Bartholomew, one of the few Americans invited, presented three research papers at the meeting, which was sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

SG Will Investigate Wages, Council Voice

By Curtiss Moore

In its first meeting of the year, the SG Legislature passed two pieces of legislation, one dealing with Raleigh City Council representation and the other with investigation of student wages on the campus.

In addition, senators were sworn in and membership of committees was announced.

In the first legislative move of the season, Glenn Chappell, (Jr., AG), chairman of the Campus Welfare Committee introduced a bill mandating the Campus Welfare Committee to "make a thorough study of student employment on campus with specific reference to a) increase in salary and b) better working conditions, and to report these findings to the Student Legislature in one month."

After a swift passage of the wage bill, James Smith of the Promotions Committee, introduced a bill mandating that the SG vice president look into the feasibility of "having a representative voice in the City Council of the City of Raleigh." This, too, passed with little opposition.

After the new senators took the oath of office the committee chairmen were announced. They are as follows: Academic Affairs, John Atkins; Budgetary and Finance, Herb Goldston; Campus Welfare, Glenn Chappell; Elections, Ron Stinner; Investigations, Beckton James; Promotions, John Carr; and Rules, Bill Howle.

Beckton James was elected to the SU Board of Directors while Ron Smith gained the post of SG representative to the Board of Review. John Carr and Morris Evans were appointed parliamentarian and sergeant at arms, respectively by SG Vice President Lynn Spruill.

Crafty Students Preregister For Craft Shop Courses

Crafty is the word for those students who preregister for Student Union Craft Shop Courses.

Craft Shop instruction is offered on Wednesday night. Preregistration for the courses involves calling or coming by the Shop as soon as possible.

According to Carol Johnson, Craft Shop director, "The Craft Shop is an opportunity for the student to express his individuality; it offers him the chance to use his leisure time on an individual basis."

The shop is officially open at 2 p.m. September 23. Ceramic classes begin on opening day, but beginning photo, electronic, and sketching classes begin October 2.

The darkroom is not yet complete, but photo classes will begin regardless. Power tools for woodworking will not be available until after Thanksgiving, Mrs. Johnson said.

The Craft Shop is located in the west side lower level of the Frank Thompson building; parking space may be found on Doak Field.

Explosion Coming? Just The Population

Say, do you feel an explosion coming on It's just the population.

At least, that's the topic of the lecture at the first Apollo Club meeting this year.

The program, to be presented by Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, inc., will include birth control and the population explosion.

The YMCA sponsored Apollo Club will meet in the Student Union ballroom at 5:45 p.m. on the following dates: September 25, October 9, October 23, November 13, and December 10.

Dr. Guttmacher is on the faculty at three of America's leading schools, a diplomat in obstetrics and gynecology, and has written many scientific and popular books on contraception, artificial insemination, pregnancy, twinning, and other related subjects.

The only cost to Apollo members is $6 for five meals.

Space Course Taught

A layman's guide to Space Exploration and a course concerning estate planning and taxation are two non-credit courses offered by State's Evening College.

The Earth, near planets, and the sun will be a few of the topics covered in the space course. The course will have many visual aids, such as films on outer space, the universe, the solar system, the atom, and the sun.

The course in estate planning will cover state and federal tax laws regarding estates. There will also be lectures on planning an estate—large or small.

The courses begin Monday night.

Deadline Near For Free Financial Aid

The deadline is drawing near for many graduate students who would like some free financial assistance next year.

L. B. Rogers, Director of Counseling here, announces November 1 as the deadline for applications for the 1963-1964 Fulbright Scholarship Awards and other government study grants. A number of grants are available covering travel or expenses and fees or both, for students planning graduate work in any one of over fifty foreign countries, he said.

American citizens, with strong academic records, who are interested may contact Rogers at 205 Peele Hall and plan to attend the informal meeting in 211 Peele Hall at 7:30 p.m. September 26.

Books?

Library Lost 1,100

By Dwight Minkler

The D. H. Hill Library has lost over 1,100 books within the past three years.

Donald S. Keener, head of the Circulation Department, pulled out his ruler and measured eleven inches of cards which represented lost books. "So that's about 1,100," since each inch is a hundred cards, said Keener.

Lost books fall into two major categories—books that are more than four weeks overdue and books that are never released from the library but are missing. "About 50 per cent of the lost books have never been checked out. I suppose that someone just walks off with them," Keener guessed.

In replacing a stolen or a permanently lost book, the cost for the actual book is from five to seven dollars. However, Keener, added, the processing cost of replacing a book is from five to ten dollars. This is something the "student doesn't usually realize," Keener explained.

More books are stolen and mutilated in the fields of art and design, sex and hygiene than in other fields, Keener said. He also pointed out that the design library in Brooks Hall has excessive problems with mutilated books.

Mutilation is a primary problem in the reserve room of the main library. Keener explained, however, that instead of cutting pages out of the book, "a student could walk about thirty feet from the reserve room and have them copied for ten cents a page." This is what the photocopy service is for, he explained. Keener followed in a happy tone, however, that State is "not out of the ordinary" with its "lost" book problems.

Wolves Lose Job

By Larry Edwards

Have you ever heard a twenty-watt wolf whistle?

Several boys in one of the dorms have one in operation. Even though the amplifier is on one of the upper floors of the dorm, the whistle can be heard in nearby parking lot.

With this much volume the girls always look, sometimes they wave, sometimes they don't, so the boys say.

They also have several quaint sayings which can't be printed.

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher

First Bad Fruits Of A Bad Law

BIOLOGY: The science of life; the branch that deals with living organisms.

The "gag law" passed by the General Assembly last session has placed its first ugly mark on the reputation of the University of North Carolina.

Because of the "gag law," a distinguished biologist will not come to the Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro campuses of the Consolidated University to talk about the world of living organisms.

The General Assembly's aim in passing the "gag law" ostensibly was to prevent this state's youth from being "taken in" by illusion-spinning Reds who are supposedly too smart for them. Not trusting the university's dedicated administrators, the legislators slapped a new law atop an old one to weave a thicker mesh of academic barbed wire around the colleges.

The first victims are the students themselves, particularly those biology majors who were to have heard from Dr. John Burton Haldane.

Dr. Haldane won't come because he got an "inquiry" from the University. The University sent the "inquiry" because of the "gag law" and a small line in International Who's Who which says that Dr. Haldane, from 1940 to 1949, was on the editorial board of the "Daily Worker," a Communist paper, in Britain.

In the first five of those years the United States and Russia were allies. Relations between us hardened only afterwards.

What Dr. Haldane's political beliefs are now we have no idea. Whatever they are, communism has no more to do with biology than Taoism or capitalism have to do with it, and Dr. Haldane is an eminent biologist.

His work has been honored by two of the great universities in the free world (Oxford and Edinburgh), and he is a member of the historic Royal Academy in England. He served on an awards committee which not long ago paid homage to Pope John XXIII and the conservative American historian, Samuel Eliot Morrison.

When the "gag law" passed, we predicted that the legislature had "damaged North Carolina schools' chances of even obtaining the services of many distinguished lecturers who would reject invitations in the knowledge that they were to be subjected to the kind of 'loyalty' check that could, because of misinformation or innuendo, do them personal harm."

This is precisely what happened. Scratch one series of lectures on an important branch of learning. And put one ugly smear for all to see on the lamp of higher education in North Carolina.

—The Charlotte Observer

Prophecy, We Hope

If the legislation enacted in the Student Government's first session is any standard of what this year may bring, then we look forward to this year with keen anticipation.

Both bills passed call for investigation into areas in which research is needed. We expect to see this research bear fruit very soon in appropriate legislation.

This could be a very fruitful year for Student Government. The talent and the administrative heads to use this talent are present for the first time in years. It would be a shame not to use it.

We don't expect to be happy with everything Student Government does this year. In fact, we're keenly anticipating areas of agreement and disagreement.

And so long as Student Government remains a do-something body, as opposed to a do-nothing group, we intend to give it all the respect due an equal adversary.

Writing Engineers Needed, States Publication Editor

By Dick Paschall

"The need for engineers to know how to write is increasing more and more," stated John Buchanan, editor of The Southern Engineer.

Buchanan said, "Top men in large companies have only reports by their companies' engineers with which to judge the progress and worth of their employees. Job promotions can and do depend on knowing how to write."

Editor Buchanan made it clear that The Southern Engineer is the student outlet for the engineering school. He encouraged students in all phases of engineering to begin writing articles on personal projects, club and class experiments, and theoretical discussions.

"Writing engineering reports on engineering topics is an aid to any student engineer's future job opportunities," he stressed.

The official publication of the University's engineering school, The Southern Engineer, goes to press this week in preparation for distribution sometime in October.

An award-winning feature of the magazine, "Outstanding State Graduate," will continue this year.

Bob Casanova, this year's business manager, will also edit a book review section, tried for the first time.

According to Casanova, finances have just about taken care of themselves. In the past three years, the publication's budget has decreased from $8,500 to this year's figure of $6,400. Casanova acknowledged that the decrease in expenditures is the result of strict financial management.

Each engineering student pays approximately one dollar toward the cost of his four issues of the Southern Engineer. Advertising accounts for almost 50 per cent of the total budget.

A member of the Engineering College Magazine Association, The Southern Engineer has received praise from ECMA critics. The critics' review of the March 1963 issue stated that "of our Southern magazine members your magazine is near the top and it is one of our very best throughout the country."

Other than Buchanan and Casanova, other officials of the magazine are managing editor, Jim Rudisill; news editor, John Edwards; and Lou Rainey, cover designer.

Letter To Editor

Gag Law Upheld

To the Editors:

You can stand on a soap box and shout that "academic freedom" is being violated and men are gagged from making contributions in the field of science, but I question your logic.

It is obvious you fail to grasp the true meaning of the Communist speaker ban bill. This bill "gags" no one. It simply states that a Communist cannot dispense propaganda with the taxpayers footing the bill. It in no way limits the discussion of communism in the classroom, and any speaker can rent the Cow Palace or Memorial Auditorium and talk to his heart's content, but the taxpayers of North Carolina will not be forced to contribute to his space.

The bill will be repealed if, and only if, the taxpayers of North Carolina decide to directly subsidize Communists. I hope I never see this day.

Gilmore Runs

Tom Gilmore runs again. Gilmore, Class of 1959, recently announced his plans to run for President of the Young Democrats Clubs of North Carolina, according to news sources.

President of the Class of 1959 and treasurer and president of the State YDC while a student, Gilmore is presently the youngest member ever appointed to the North Carolina State Board of Agriculture, the source announced. He is also a member of the School of Agriculture's Advisory Council.

Art Appreciation Offered Through LA School

Can you find a meaning in a spilled bottle of ketchup?

Those who wish to be more perceptive in the meanings conveyed by art now have a chance to learn in the new art appreciation course being offered by the School of Liberal Arts, according to Joseph Cox, instructor for the course.

The course, Art 200, is being offered only in the fall semester. It is designed for students who have had very little art appreciation. It relates the art of the past with the art of the present, Cox said.

Cox continued to say the course will cover all activities of the artist such as automobile design and home use. It will, in this way, give the student more taste and help him to make esthetic judgements, he said.

Cox mentioned the class is scheduled for field trips to the Art Museum, the Student Union art exhibits, automobile displays, and other places to let the student study the problems of design so that he might buy intelligently.

The course is not now required for a B.A. degree, Cox stated.

Cox is on loan to the School of Liberal Arts from the Design School.

Pack Plasters Maryland 36-14 In ACC Opener

By Martin White
Prior to Saturday's ACC openers, pre-season ratings had placed the Pack anywhere and everywhere in the standings from a "possible contender" for the ACC title to just an "also ran" and second division team. If the Wolfpack proved nothing else Saturday at Maryland, they did show that they are a definite contender for the 1963

Carolina Drops Wolflets 21-7 In Shrine Contest

State's freshman grid team dropped their opening game of the 1963 season, 21-7, to the baby Tar Heels in the annual Shrine Bowl contest here Saturday night.

The Wolflets scored first in the contest after tackle Staton Strother of Durham recovered a Tar Heel fumble on the visitors' 20 yard line. State's first period score came on an eight yard pass from quarterback Jim Donnan to Bill Gentry in the end zone. Harold Deters put the Pack ahead 7-0 with the extra point. Six minutes later, Carolina tied the score after a 66 yard drive.

Anyone watching the 36-14 triumph would have a hard time recognizing the Pack as being the same team that in 1962 lost four contest by a touchdown or less due to costly mistakes by unseasoned players.

The Pack's veteran backfield worked together with the precision of a clock, gaining 246 yards on the ground and 94 by air. Fullback Pete Falzarano was the workhorse of the day with 88 yards in 14 carries, for better than six yards a try. Halfbacks Tony Kozarsky and Joe Scarpati combined for 104 yards of 24 carries. Quarterback

Jim Rossi kept the ball eight times for 31 yards and completed eight of ten passes for 94 yards. The first team backfield averaged better than five yards per carry for 223 total yardage. The second team backfield of QB Ron Skosnik, HB Mike Clark and Jimmy Guin, and FB Dave Houtz proved to be able replacements for the starters. Gus Andrews, a sophomore from Tarboro, displayed invaluable talent by placing four extra point attempts neatly through the uprights.

State's big line deserves much credit for their part in the vic-

State threatened early in the third period by driving to the Tar Heel 13 yard line. At this point however, Carolina's Tom Lampman intercepted a Donnan pass and raced 93 yards to put his team ahead. Carolina scored again in the final period on passes of 26 and 28 yards.

The Wolflets travel to the University of South Carolina on October 4, their next home game is November 2 with Wake Forest.

tory. Wherever the backfield went with the ball, the line had already been there, opening holes to give the runners plenty of room. Much praise was given to ends Bob Montgomery, Bill Hall, Bob Faircloth, and Ray Barlow for their offensive blocking.

State's first score came after 3:30 had been played in the first period. Guard Bennett Williams recovered a Maryland fumble on the home team's 19 yard line to set up the score. Three plays later, Koszarsky made the last six yards for the score.

Mike Clark climaxed a 56 yard drive for the second score of the game, charging in from the three yard line. In the second period, Jim Rossi raced 11 yards for State's third score. Rossi then hit Guin for two points and a 22-0 lead. Maryland finally reached pay dirt with six minutes remaining in the first half.

The Pack took the second half kickoff and started a 69 yard drive that netted them their fourth score of the game. Captain Joe Scarpati ended the drive with a six yard run into the end zone.

In the final quarter, Maryland climaxed a 63 yard drive by scoring their second touchdown of the afternoon. State took the following kickoff and went 50 yards in 10 plays for the final tally of the game. Rossi connected with Faircloth for the score and Andrews kicked his fourth extra point of the day.

This Saturday, the Pack will travel to Hattiesburg, Miss. to play Southern Mississippi in a night contest. State's first home game will be October 26 with Dook.

Swim Star Joins Corps

State swimming star Harold Senter is training for the Peace Corps.

Senter, a sophomore in the School of Design, left Saturday to begin training at the University of Hawaii. He will become a member of the Corps if he is successful in the program and will probably work in Thailand.

Senter has achieved recognition as one of the stars of State's nationally ranked varsity swimming team. He was a member of the relay team that set a world record in a meet in Greensboro last year. He also swam in the NCAA meet last March here.

Senter, a Raleigh resident, plans to resume his college work in architecture upon returning from the Corps.
