Agriculture School Sports New Handle

A name was changed without incident Friday.

The School of Agriculture and Life Sciences will become the new name of the School of Agriculture officially February 1, 1964.

"Resulting from 18 months of study this name will better describe what this school has to offer," said the Dean H. Brooks James.

The present School of Agriculture includes the Institute of Biological Sciences, which has received a $2 million grant, the largest ever awarded to such an institute by the federal government, for mathematical genetics. Also, such biological subjects as fisheries, botany, bacteriology, wildlife, entomology, (insect study), and horticulture are taught under the auspices of this school.

"The simultaneous development of biology and agriculture resulted from Ag's dependence upon the life sciences," stated

Dr. James. "Therefore, the progress of the two are inseparable."

Dr. James stated that the development of the biological sciences is beneficial to the University as well as the Ag School since this development would afford more opportunity for all State students to gain a better understanding of this basic science.

Three Ag Departments Now Have New Heads

The appointment of three department heads for the School of Agriculture was approved by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees Friday.

Dr. Glenn Ray Noggle, former head of the Department of Botany of the University of Florida, replaces Dr. Herbert Temple Scofield who is on leave in Peru as head of the Department of Botany and Bacteriology.

The new head of the Department of Genetics is Dr. Thurston Jefferson Mann, former professor of the Department of Crop Science at State. Dr. Mann replaces Dr. Carey H. Bostian, who was acting head of the Department of Genetics.

Replacing Dr. J. W. Fitts, who is resigning to become the Coordinator of the Soil testing agency which N. C. State is conducting in Latin America, Dr. Ralph Joseph McCracken has been promoted to head of the Department of Soil Science.

A native of Ohio, Dr. Noggle received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois and has published several articles on botanical chemistry. His appointment will become effective on July 1, 1964.

Dr. Mann, born in Lake Land, North Carolina, received his M.S. from State in 1947 and his Ph.D. from Cornell in 1950. He was appointed to the faculty of the Department of Crop Science in 1951.

After receiving his Ph.D. from Iowa State University in 1956, Dr. McCracken, who was born in Guantanamo, Cuba, became a member of State's faculty. He became a full professor in 1962.

Both Dr. Mann's and Dr. McCracken's appointments are effective immediately.

State Students Lead Campus Campaign For Preyer

By Cora Kemp

Campaigning for democratic gubernatorial candidate L. Richardson Preyer has hit campus.

Preyer supporters are offering free transportation to a campaign kick-off rally January 25 in Greensboro, according to Walter Richardson and Martha McLaughlin, student co-ordinators for the campaign on campus.

The rally will be emceed by George Gobel, a television comedian. Folk singers and other entertainers will be included on the program, Richardson said. The rally will be held from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. with free food included.

Richardson said all persons interested in the trip should contact him at TE 2-4273 or Miss McLaughlin at TE 4-9475 by January 19.

The state students will be traveling by bus with students from Peace, St. Mary's, and Meredith Colleges. The buses will form a caravan, stopping at Carolina and Duke on the way to Greensboro.

Richardson said he and Miss McLaughlin were contacted last week by Dick Ellis, a student at Chapel Hill who is the statewide student coordinator, to aid in the campaign. Dr. Abraham Holtzman, professor of political science here, had recommended the two students for the position, according to Richardson.

Alumni Ask For Name And Trustee Changes

By Grant Blair

Two new names and a reappointed Board of Trustees have been proposed by the N. C. State Alumni Association.

One proposal of the two released by the Association's board of directors Saturday asks that N. C. State's name be changed to North Carolina State University and that the Consolidated University be changed to The Consolidated Universities of North Carolina. The report states that the present name, North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh is "an inappropriate name for a distinguished university, and we believe it is unmatched as to length and awkwardness in American higher educational institutions."

The proposal adds that "confusion would be removed if the University of North Carolina, which is popularly known as the 'Consolidated' or 'Greater' University was designated as 'The Consolidated Universities of North Carolina.'" The report goes on to suggest the University at Greensboro retain its present name or be renamed and that future institutions, when added to the Consolidated Universities, be renamed according to the wishes of alumni and other friends.

The second proposal asks that the Board of Trustees be divided into separate sections with a section for each unit of the Consolidated University. Each unit would elect four members of the 12-member Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

The report also asks that the present method of selection to the board by the Legislature be kept and that the eight-year staggered terms which are in effect be kept, but that a member, having served his term, not be eligible for reappointment for at least two years. If other institutions are added to the university system, the proposal adds, a section of the board would represent the school.

In a joint statement which was released today, Charles H. Reynolds of Spindale, chairman of the association, and M. Edmund Aycock of Raleigh, president of the association, entered a protest against the "monolithic structure of names" given to the college by the 1963 General Assembly. They stated that copies of the proposals had been mailed to all State alumni.

Ralph T. Scott of Haw River, former chairman of the State Alumni Association was quoted Saturday as saying he "didn't think the public would stand for the proposal." If it happened, Scott added, it would be the "beginning of the end for North Carolina's Consolidated University."

Reynolds stated yesterday that the proposal made by the association has "no intention of trying to deconsolidate at all. We simply want to rename and reorganize the top structure."

"We've gotten along well with the legislature," added Reynolds, "but when you get down to certain things, there aren't a majority of people on the board interested in N. C. State. With

Banquet

The Publications Board, IDC, Student Government and the Erdahl-Cloyd Union have agreed to hold a joint banquet this spring.

The groups have formerly held separate banquets.

Plans were made Thursday by a steering committee representing each organization to contact Luther Hodges, United States Secretary of Commerce and former North Carolina governor, to speak at the banquet.

Among the others considered as speaker were R. Sargeant Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, and Pierre Salinger, press secretary of the White House.

No specific date has been set for the banquet.

Applications Ready For Student Summer Jobs

Semester break is traditionally the time for students to begin trying to land that summer job.

The Summer Job Commission, a new Student Government agency, has announced that it is ready to begin its program designed to help students obtain summer jobs in industry.

Commission Chairman Chip Andrews told The Technician today that application blanks for the service are ready and waiting for students to fill out at the Student Union Main Desk. Andrews emphasized the importance of filling out these forms completely and returning them to the Main Desk by February 15. Forms have also been distributed to the fraternity houses, he said.

Andrews indicated that 12-page brochures describing the University and its eight schools as well as the purpose of the Summer Job Commission have been mailed to more than 500 selected firms in North Carolina.

According to Andrews, the applications will be processed as soon as they are received and will be filed by school, curriculum, and grade point average. He indicated that the commission will consider students for both technical and non-technical jobs, but students with higher GPA's and more activities will get top consideration for the technical jobs.

Present plans include the setting up of interviews with firms both at the University and in some cases at firm locations. Most of these interviews will be set up for the Easter holidays, Andrews said.

The new commission was set up this year by an appropriation from the Student government treasury. "A service charge of $10 will be charged to those students actually receiving jobs through the commission in order to replenish the commission fund and make the activity self-sustaining," Andrews said.

About 10 members of the Sigma Kappa sorority are serving as secretaries to the commission.

Same Old Tail - New Twists

The North Carolina State Alumni Association disturbed the surface calm in the Consolidated University pond this weekend with the release of the two proposals outlined in today's lead story.

It is true, as suggested by the Alumni Association, that the recent hassle concerning the renaming and redefining of the Consolidated University branches served only to effect a compromise that has proved odious to all concerned.

The latest fanning of the coals of the NCSU bonfire at this point in the political game can only be seen as an attempt to inject the controversy into the gubernatorial race.

It is fairly certain that the alumni will not get NCSU out of the General Assembly in 1965. Another encounter of the name-change battle in that body would most assuredly feature another UNCR counterattack by officials of the Consolidated University who can not be expected to change their convictions from year to year or from governor to governor. The result would probably be a return to the present confusion with an even larger split between the opposing camps.

Evidently the alumni intend to try their luck with a new assembly and a new governor. It is hoped that both will take action in line with what they believe to be in the best interests of the state and the Consolidated University as a whole, and not just what might be best or most desirable for North Carolina State alone.

The second proposal, a reapportionment of the Board of Trustees to provide equal representation from all campuses, is an idea which has long been looked upon with some favor by N. C. State and Greensboro alumni.

There are still, however, some points which need to be clarified. The proposal appears to be, in essence, a way to divide a house and hopefully to still make it stand. If one-third of the trustees concern themselves with only one institution, as the plan suggests, then the other two-thirds will, in effect, be taking any recommendations the third makes at face value—they will not be in a position to form an intelligent opinion for themselves. The other campuses will be none of their business.

If, in fact, a dispute were to arise between two of the groups of trustees, the resulting attempts to woo the third segment would result in politicking where politicking should not occur. Certainly, there is no reason why disputes should not occur with increasing frequency as the groups become more interested with their particular institution as a unit without considering the Consolidated University as a whole.

Regardless of the ultimate outcome, and it may take some time to finally settle this question, the Alumni must realize that they do not own and manage this institution all by themselves, but that quite a few other citizens of the state also have a considerable stake in this university—even some Carolina taxpayers.

Certainly the alumni are within their rights in making these proposals, and they would be poor alumni indeed should they fail to continue their protest if they believe in their cause.

So again, the alumni have run the North Carolina State University banner up the political flagpole. It will be interesting to see if any of the gubernatorial candidates salute it.

Reports Say Smoking's Bad - Students Say It's Fun

By Bill Fishburne

Unless a smoker had previously intended to quit smoking, the recent government's report on smoking will not cause any student action.

This is the conclusion made from a survey of 50 students here on campus. The 23 non-smokers interviewed did not intend to start. The twenty-seven who smoked did not intend to quit. The report said smoking can be a health hazard.

Seven students had not heard of the Advisory Committee's report. Four of these students were smokers. Only 16 of the 27 who smoked said they believed the report. The other seven did not accept the report as proof of anything, much less that they were endangering their lives by smoking.

No smoker interviewed attributed smoking to habit. All said either that it was nerves or simply that it was fun.

The report of the committee says smoking is a "psychological and social habit."

Richard Usanis, graduate student in genetics said that, in his opinion, smoking does not cause cancer anymore than does air pollution. Cancer, he said, is as much hereditary as anything else. He said, "I have quite a background in statistics; I have little faith in them." The report is based on statistics.

Theda Bundy, design coed, was asked why she was not going to quit smoking. "Well, anyone can quit smoking. It takes a man to face lung cancer."

The report says the only way to successfully break away from smoking is to make a personal decision not to smoke. Without the person's will to quit, warnings do no good, it said.

Miss Bundy believes there should be federal controls on smoking, in the form of age limits that are enforced. "Most kids," she said, "smoke because it is forbidden, yet they see their parents and other adults they respect and admire smoking. The difference comes from the home. It isn't what they are taught, but what they are surrounded by that makes kids smoke or not smoke." The science council report agrees with this.

Only three of the smokers thought the government should exercise control over the consumption of tobacco. One student said the government should exercise control when it becomes necessary. What will make it necessary? "If it is proven harmful," the student replied.

You'll wonder where the cancer went . . .

Letters To The Editors

Paper Too Late

To the Editors:

Recently I had a discussion with our Student Government president, John Bynum. The main topic was the student government. We agreed that often the reason for little anticipation in meetings by those who are not officers or otherwise directly connected, is the lack of announcing such meetings sufficiently.

I returned to my room after supper tonight around 6:30 to find The Technician being delivered. I picked up my copy and retired to my room to read it. About 6:45 I read the article asking for anyone with criticisms concerning elections to please go to the meeting at 7 that evening. It seems I'd have a better chance of escaping an attack by the Russians than getting to a student government meeting.

The program will run nightly from 6 p.m. until 1 a.m. through January 23, the last night of exams.

Pack Loses Fourth Drops To Sixth

State's hopes for a moderately successful basketball season suffered a setback Saturday night from a 51-44 loss to South Carolina.

The loss was the Pack's fourth of the season, all in Atlantic Coast Conference competition. This puts the Wolfpack in a deadlock with Virginia for the cellar spot in the league. The game was State's ninth, marking the mid-point of the 1963-64 season.

It took five minutes before either team could score in the contest. The Gamecocks took their 2-0 lead and held it throughout the first half for a 22-16 intermission advantage. Both teams played a "slowdown" type of basketball which accounts for the low score.

South Carolina increased their lead to eight points after five minutes of the second half with one field goal for a 24-16 score. The Pack then made its bid for victory with a burst of 16 points while holding the Birds to five points. At this point, State led at 32-29. The State rally ended with five minutes in the game when the score was 41-41. The Pack went scoreless for the next four minutes to give the Gamecocks the ball game.

Senior Pete Auksel led the Wolfpack with 12 points, followed by Mattocks with 11 and Lakin with 10. The State freshmen and varsity teams will travel to Chapel Hill Wednesday night to meet the Tar Heels.

Tankers Win Fourth Over Clemson, 55-34

State's swimming team won its fourth meet of the season Saturday afternoon with a 55-34 victory over Clemson. The Pack won the ACC swimming championship last year and has suffered only one defeat this season, the loss being to Maryland.

The Wolfpack won first place in ten of the eleven events with Bill McGinty and Howard winning two events and sophomore sensation Pat Gavaghan setting a Clemson pool record in the 200 yard butterfly event. Gavaghan set the conference record in this event twice this season.

The State winners were: 440 medley relay—Paoletti, Derby, Gavaghan, and Heyman; 220 freestyle—Loomis; 50 freestyle—McGinty; 200 individual medley—Howard; 200 butterfly—Gavaghan; 100 freestyle—McGinty; 200 backstroke—Paoletti; 500 freestyle—Howard; 200 breaststroke—Derby; 400 freestyle relay—Loomis, Huck, Heyman, and Paoletti.

Clemson was confined to a single first place in the meet, which came in the diving competition.

Bowling Finalist Meet For Crown

The fourth intramural championship will be decided when the top two bowling teams in the dormitory and fraternity leagues meet tonight.

of this year's play-off. PKP had an 882 second game to come from behind and defeat the Sig Eps by a 53 pin count. Theta Chi built up a 1654-1586 lead in the first two games to hold off the PKT's 846-790 rally in the third game by a total 12 pin count.

Bagwell had a 903 first game and rode to a 2512-2423 victory over Syme while Bragaw North #1 rolled by Berry, 2361-2230.

Reynolds added that each section of the board would be appointed according to their interest in the respective institution which they represent, but that the entire board would act as a unit in making changes.

When asked if there was any chance that the issue might be injected into the governor's race, Reynolds replied, "I just wouldn't know." According to Reynolds, the association has not been in contact with alumni of the University at Greensboro.

Consolidated University President Friday, when contacted, stated, that Edmund Aycock had discussed the proposals with him, and that while the Board of Trustees was unable to consider the proposal during last Friday's meeting, a meeting was scheduled with the board March 18.

John Lauritzen wanted further knowledge

He's finding it at Western Electric

When the University of Nevada awarded John Lauritzen his B.S.E.E. in 1961, it was only the first big step in the learning program he envisions for himself. This led him to Western Electric. For WE agrees that ever-increasing knowledge is essential to the development of its engineers—and is helping John in furthering his education.

John attended one of Western Electric's three Graduate Engineering Training Centers and graduated with honors. Now, through the Company-paid Tuition Refund Plan, John is working toward his Master's in Industrial Management at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He is currently a planning engineer developing test equipment for the Bell System's revolutionary electronic telephone switching system.

If you set the highest standards for yourself, both educationally and professionally, we should talk. Western Electric's vast communications job as manufacturing unit of the Bell System provides many opportunities for fast-moving careers for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, as well as for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. Get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. Or write: Western Electric Company, Room 6405, 222 Broadway, New York 38, N. Y.
