Friends Slate '64-'65 Changes, Performers

The Friends of the College will undergo several changes for the 1964-65 season, according to Henry Bowers, administrative director for the series.

Bowers cited the following plans:

All programs will be held on two or three nights instead of one or two nights, in order to relieve the traffic congestion and seating difficulties.

The membership drive scheduled officially for March 8-12 hopes to increase the membership from this year's total of approximately 11,400 to 17,000.

A $30,000 sound system is being installed this spring in the Reynolds Coliseum, where all the programs are held, to improve acoustics.

Students may be required to pick up tickets for the programs instead of using their registration cards.

E. N. Richards, Raleigh businessman and civic leader, is heading the membership drive. The group has already received a request from as far away as Sweden. The request was made by Gerald K. Elkan, a State bacteriologist who plans to return to the university next fall. Bowers listed the following programs for the coming season:

The London Symphony, October 10, 11

The Japan Philharmonic with Isaac Stern, October 22, 23

Greek Rush This Week

From today through Sunday—those are the rushing times of the Spring Rush for rushees.

In other words, if you want to join a fraternity, now is the time. The Interfraternity Council has suggested the following hours for visiting of the fraternity houses: from 3:00 to 5:00 and from 7:00 to 11:00 in the evening both today and tomorrow, from 1:00 to 12:00 in the evening on Friday, from 11:00 in the morning to midnight on Saturday, and from 2:00 to 8:00 in the evening on Sunday.

These hours, however, are not exclusive visiting times.

Rushees may pick up bids next Tuesday from dinner-time to five in Room 211, Peele Hall. Rushees may accept or reject bids at this time, or they may do this at a later date in Room 204, Peele Hall.

Bynum To Give Address At SG Meeting

Anyone wondering what Student Government has done this year may find out Thursday night.

SG president John Bynum has announced that he will deliver a "State of the Student Government" address at the regular meeting Thursday night at 7 p.m. Bynum stated that any student wishing to may attend the session.

According to Bynum, the address will evaluate the programs and actions of Student Government so far this year. The speech will also include opinions about the name change and diplomas.

Student Government meets every other Thursday night in the Student Union.

Campus Chest Totals Out

Totals collected by the Campus Chest Drive have been announced.

According to Ron Bowers, Campus Chest chairman, the committee was satisfied with the over-all total of 1870.64 dollars.

Campus organizations contributed 233.92 dollars and fraternities gave 409.06 dollars. From coliseum solicitation, 71.84 was collected. Dormitories contributed 1125.82 dollars.

Bowers mentioned that the drive was "hindered by negative action by our sponsoring organization."

Theater Group In Chapel Thursday

Ann Morgan

The Bishop's Company, a repertory theater group from California, is scheduled to return to State this week to present George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan" and Phyllis Bakar's "Occupied Territory."

The Bishop's Company stars this year Jon Terry and Ann Morgan who are featured in seven plays designed with the chance of the church in mind.

The single performance here will be presented in the Danforth Chapel in the King Religious Center Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The New York City Ballet, November 10, 11, 12

Robert Merrill—Richard Tucker, December 8, 9

Coro do Brasil, January 10, 11, 12, 1965

Artur Rubinstein, February 1, 2, 1965

The Berlin Philharmonic, February 15, 16, 1965

END OF THE ROAD

Maybe he's sleeping, but the chances are this unidentified student is crying over the loss of that beloved institution, registration, to the soulless product of computers and automation, preregistration. According to the latest estimates, preregistration will be here next fall and the State student has run the gauntlet for the last time. (Photo by McCallister)

Bynum Writes On SEC

An Open Letter

TO THE STUDENT BODY:

As President of the Student Government, I would like to urge each student here at North Carolina State to take full advantage of our newly organized service, The Summer Employment Commission. The deadline for the applications to be turned in to the Erdahl-Cloyd Union is February 29th.

I am pleased with the Commission's work and know that we all will gain from its efforts. I urge each student to pick up an application, complete the required information, and return it to the Erdahl-Cloyd Union Main Desk.

One of the main benefits of the Summer Employment Service is that it gives both industry and student a chance to get to know each other before making a final commitment upon graduation. Your chances of success with a company can be greatly enhanced if you use your summers wisely.

The job standards are high

Seniors

Seniors may order graduation announcements from the Student Supply Store until March 1. Announcements will cost $.15 each and be delivered May 1. Students must pay for the announcements when they are ordered.

Thousand Students Sign Slater Petition

By Ernie McCrary
A petition calling for the termination of Slater Foods Service's contract with State has been signed by more than 1,000 students.

The petition, drawn up recently by a group of about a dozen students, claims, among other things, that Slater changes prices at its own discretion, only slightly varies its menus, that the quality and quantity of food served has steadily decreased, that service is "ridiculously slow," eating utensils are dirty, and that only a small part of Slater's large profit is returned to the University.

The conclusion is made that "there is rising discontent with the service now provided, therefore, we the undersigned request that the administration of North Carolina State of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh terminate the contract of Slater Food Service."

The signatures were secured in the Coliseum during registration last Friday. A spokesman for the group of friends which wrote the petition emphasized that the signatures were unsolicited and no campaign for signers was made.

According to the spokesman, he considers the number of signers as representative of a very large percentage of Slater's customers and thinks the protests merit careful consideration by administration and Slater officials.

The speaker, who requested that his name not be used, says that he intends to present the petition and signatures at the next meeting of the Cafeteria Advisory Committee.

Union President Alan Eckard Resigns

Dave Stuart has been named president of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union, according to Henry Bowers, director of the Union.

Stuart replaces Alan Eckard who resigned from the position at the beginning of the spring semester.

Stuart was serving as vice president of the Union before assuming his new position. Bowers said according to the Union constitution the vice president automatically becomes president when the position is vacated during the year. The vice presidency will remain open, he said.

A junior from Winston-Salem, Stuart is also president of the New Arts, Inc., a member of the Union Board of Directors, a member of the Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity, and on the NSA Committee. He is majoring in applied math.

NASA Grant Given State

North Carolina State has been given a space sciences training grant estimated at $140,000 by NASA.

Dr. Walter J. Peterson, dean of the Graduate School, made the announcement. Dr. Peterson said the funds will go toward the training of 10 more graduate students for doctoral degrees in space-related sciences. This will bring the total number of students in the program to 20 by fall.

The training programs are in the Schools of Engineering, Physical Sciences and Applied Mathematics, and the Institute of Biological Sciences in the School of Agriculture. The graduate students will receive basic stipends of $2,400 annually and dependent allowances of up to $1,000 each.

The remainder of the grant provides for the institution's research and teaching costs for the students.

Class Rings On Sale

Class rings are now available to juniors having a minimum scholastic average of 2.0 and 75 hours.

The rings are being sold from February 3 to February 7 in the lobby outside the snack bar of the Union, according to Mike Scofield, chairman of the Ring Committee. Scofield said further that Josten Inc. of Owatonna, Minnesota, was awarded the 1963 contract. The 1964 contract was awarded to the Balfour Company. Josten Inc. will again handle the sales in 1965.

New features Scofield attributes to this year's ring are a bold bezel letter treatment with North Carolina 1889 in a more dramatic and readable form and an extra ribbon below the Coat-of-Arms to include the inscription, U.N.C. Raleigh. Students can also have any encrusting in the stone for fraternities and other organizations Scofield said.

Girls rings have a thin band with a large red cut or smooth stone.

Ring prices range from approximately 42 dollars to about 52 dollars. At the time that the order is placed, a five dollar deposit is required.

The ring delivery is set for the second week in April.

Find Out For Yourself

Editor's Note:

In keeping with the general tone of this issue, the editorial board of The Technician has made today's editorial column open to Interfraternity Council President Jack Watson for the following guest editorial.

The question in your mind may be whether or not to rush our fraternities.

The answer in my mind is an emphatic "yes", with certain qualifications.

In the first place, you should know what you are looking for. If you seek a fun-loving, hell-raising existence with no demands made upon your initiative, intelligence, and personality, stop rushing at this point—you will not find such an environment in our fraternity system. For one thing it is way out of vogue, and for another it does not make good sense at this institution.

Fraternities have changed a great deal in the last fifteen years. Today fraternities must offer the college man something far more than weekend parties. We must offer him the opportunity and encouragement to make the most of himself.

Our fraternities embody programs and activities which many men on campus are yet to hear of. It is not unusual for a chapter to have at least fifteen standing committees ranging from scholarship and public relations to social and athletics. By the same token it is not unusual for every man in any particular chapter to have a defined responsibility in his house.

Witness what this implies:

Keeping in mind that our student body is only eleven per cent fraternity men, they account for 75 per cent of our class honoraries, 95 per cent of them compete in intramural athletics as compared to 40 per cent of those in the dormitories, they comprise the nuclei of the Technician and Agromeck staffs, and make up a large part of our student government. They also co-sponsor New Arts, Inc., set social trends with Fall and Spring Greeks, participate in numerous combo and record parties, beach trips, and football weekends, remain consistently above the all-men's average, and in the end find themselves embroiled in everything else worthwhile that is going on here.

Well, maybe you will be looking for the above activities and qualities. If so, then you should want to rush. And if you are willing to put forth a proportional effort to obtain these benefits, then we want you to rush. For if you are the type of man who cherishes the best possible environment in which to develop himself to the fullest, you belong in a fraternity where you will find a brotherhood of men who are seeking this common atmosphere.

Forget everything else you have heard about fraternities. Starting this week, find out for yourself why we think the fraternity way is the best way.

—JW

A Legitimate Grievance

The student petition circulated during registration period was more than just a protest. It pointed out a grave error on the part of Slater Food Service.

With one notable exception, (a complaint that Slater was not paying the college enough for rent) the grievances listed were exactly the same things students protested about at the beginning of last semester.

Last semester, the Slater management assured this paper and the students that these errors would be corrected.

In the light of this petition, it can only be concluded that they have not been corrected.

An Analysis Beckett's 'Godot' Comes To State

(Editor's Note: Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot was produced at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union Monday night by the Southeastern Baptist Seminary in co-operation with the Union's drama workshop. We feel that the play requires not the usual review but an analysis of what the play is about, and we have asked Dr. Max Halperen of the English Department to write such an analysis.)

By Max Halperen

From just about every point of view, Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot is one of the most controversial plays of the century. To many who saw the play when it first appeared, it was obviously a hoax—a clever hoax, a well-presented hoax, but a hoax nevertheless. Since that time critic after critic has attempted to prove that it is not a hoax, without coming to any agreement about what it is.

One problem is that very little happens in the play—almost nothing—for the play happens to be about nothingness. To Beckett, the universe has no god, no goal, no purpose, no meaning. Man waits for the end and tries to put in the time as best he can. Another, a second problem, is that the play doesn't attempt to be realistic. The play has to be approached as though it were a poem. The characters and their actions are smiles and metaphors, not intended to be taken literally. It's as though, Beckett seems to be saying, time consisted of a pair of tramps waiting for a goal they don't understand. It's as though, he seems to be adding, man's mind were a slave who had deliberately put a rope around his neck and accepted a number of burdens so that he might not face up to the horror of his situation—which is, that the universe has no goal, no purpose.

The stage is almost bare except for a tree, which is dead in Act I, and which has sprouted four or five leaves in Act II. Most of the play is taken up with the conversation of two tramps, Vladimir and Estragon. We know nothing about them—nothing about their backgrounds, their families, their friends—all of those aspects of man we usually have to be told about in a realistic play.

We know only that they're waiting for Godot. And we're not even certain of that. As they talk we learn that they don't really know who Godot is. Or why they're waiting. Or that they're waiting at the right place or the right time. Nevertheless, they wait. They discuss the Gospel story of the two thieves crucified with Christ, but conclude that nothing can be concluded from it. They discuss putting in the time by hanging themselves, but decide against it. They eat carrots. They attempt to make conversation. At the end of each act a child arrives, a messenger from Godot, to announce that Godot will not come that day. Where-

There is only one real event in each act—the arrival of Pozzo, who is driving ahead of him a character named Lucky by means of a rope passed around Lucky's neck. Pozzo carries a whip. Lucky is overburdened with baggage. Vladimir and Es-

LUCKY, ESTRAGON, VLADIMIR, POZZO
... in Waiting for Godot

tragon are, of course, quite astonished at this apparition. They discuss it between themselves. They express pity first for Lucky, then for Pozzo. At one point Lucky is made to put down his burden, whereupon he launches into a fantastically confused speech until the others stifle him. Then Pozzo and Lucky leave. When we see them in the second act, Pozzo is blind and Lucky is dumb. Again there is some discussion of this situation, again Pozzo and Lucky leave, again Vladimir and Estragon remain waiting for Godot, again the messenger comes announcing that Godot will not come. And the play ends.

Now what is all this about? As I have suggested, it's about nothingness. Most of the action of the play is petty and foolish, for man and life are petty and foolish. The play opens with Estragon's words "Nothing to be done," a sentence repeated often in the first act. Estragon has been struggling and struggling—to pull off his boots. Vladimir arrives: "I'm beginning to come round to that opinion. I've tried to put it from me, saying, Vladimir be reasonable, you haven't yet tried everything. And I resumed the struggle." But Vladimir, of course, has not been struggling at all. Most of the comments made by Beckett's characters about their own situation are equally overblown, melodramatic, and trite. For if man is foolish, his remarks about himself are more than foolish.

A good deal of the "action" seems to be an elaborate parody of man's usual ways of filling in the time while waiting for the end: Estragon and Vladimir make conversation; they tell incomplete jokes; periodically, they embrace each other; they play games. There is some suggestion that Vladimir and Estragon may be a parody of the life cycle—the cycle reduced to foolishness and pettiness. If so, Estragon would represent—clownishly—night and winter, all the darker aspects of life. He spends each night in a ditch and is beaten each night by persons identified only as "they." Vladimir would represent re-losing heart now, that's what I say. We should have thought of it a million years ago, in the nineties."

The waiting in both acts is interrupted by the arrival and then departure of Pozzo and Lucky. Together, they seem to represent man's mind, or simply man, attempting to avoid the terrible truth. The significant point is that Lucky wants to be burdened. He does gladly and with alacrity what Pozzo demands of him. But despite his self-imposed burden Lucky has not managed to avoid at least a glimpse of the truth.

Who is Pozzo? He is any burden the mind accepts. He suggests the body. He suggests society. In a number of places he suggests man's idea of god created as a self-imposed restraint. Twice Vladimir and Estragon confuse him with Godot. Well, he is not Godot. But in a comic opera way he is made to suggest the god of the old testament. He speaks of the land as his. He demands to be heard, calls for silence before he will speak, though what he says has no importance.

Godot does not come. Vladimir and Estragon wait, as we all are waiting.

But in the last analysis, these differences don't amount to much:

Estragon: Funny, the more you eat, the worse it gets.

Vladimir: With me it's just the opposite.

Estragon: In other words?

Vladimir: I get used to the muck as I go along.

Estragon: Is that the opposite?

There is no hope. Nothing will change. At the end of each act a boy arrives who announces that Godot will not come that day. We learn that the boy has a brother who is beaten, just as Estragon is. It seems likely that these brothers represent new cycles of birth and death; they become tomorrow's Estragons and Vladimirs, who will, in their turn, wait.

But who is Godot? If he knew, Beckett told one critic, he would have identified him in the play. Certainly Vladimir and Estragon don't know. They don't even know whether they're waiting in the right place or at the right time.

He's simply whoever or whatever this absurd creation—man and the universe—is waiting for. Is he god? If so, he is clearly a god of whom nothing is known. The horror, the absurdity, of man's situation is that nothing comes, neither the end nor anything else. Trying to cheer himself up, Vladimir insists: "What's the good of

Fraternity Rush Beginning Tonight

Editor's Note:

The articles on the following pages were written and submitted by individual fraternities through an arrangement with the Interfraternity Council. The Technician is making this space available to State social fraternities at a small cost to cover printing charges. The Technician has made certain necessary stylistic changes, but the article content is primarily as submitted by the houses.

Alpha Gamma Rho

Have you made a decision today? If not, you are about to make one which will have a tremendous bearing on your college education—whether or not to be a fraternity man.

In the technical atmosphere of N. C. State, students tend to lose their identity in the general rat race that is observed on university campuses. We are not opposed to higher education because this is our main objective at State. However, we do feel that a large portion of our education is obtained outside the classroom. Book learning is only part of the educational process. Now you will probably ask, "What benefits do fraternities have to offer me?" We would list the following: Induces cooperative living, encourages scholarship, broadens outside interests, increases social poise, develops personality, offers advice and council, promotes mutual understanding, furnishes a college home, provides business training, and teaches parliamentary practice. The above assets will be a valuable aid to the college man after graduation. Chancellor Caldwell stated at our dinner-lecture series that it is indeed a privilege to be a member of a small group where brotherhood exists.

usually find another brother in the house who can give him help. Our social activities during the year are many and varied, including formals, combo parties and record parties. The social life of a fraternity is very essential and we think we have a good program. Our outside interests are enriched by a lecture series we have initiated. Once a month during our dinner hour, a prominent person in the area comes to speak to us. We also have two of our alumni in the area with us for dinner every week. Another important matter in belonging to a fraternity is the cost involved. Alpha Gamma Rho compares favorably with the dormitory system in cost. We welcome you in our house at any time. Come and enjoy a meal with us and bring any questions which might arise.

By now we have reached the

FarmHouse

As the name FarmHouse implies, we are a fraternity with an agrarian background. Most of our brothers are from rural backgrounds and are majoring in some field of agricultural or related science, but one will find many other kinds of people here; truly in FarmHouse there is the gamut of personalities.

Among agricultural curricula one will find others such as engineering, the physical sciences and even liberal arts.

When one becomes acquainted with the fraternity and the brothers it soon becomes apparent that FarmHouse believes in letting the individual run his own life; letting him do the things he wants to do, believe the way he desires and above all receive no criticism from others because of it. And it is as a result of this that we are individuals — individuals, yet closely bound in a feeling of brotherhood.

FarmHouse was first founded at the University of Missouri in 1905 from a YMCA Bible class. Because of difficulties in getting started it has been a slow-growing fraternity with 18 chapters across the country. Having its origins in a Bible class, the fraternity requires of its brothers a belief in God.

Another thing we believe that makes FarmHouse unique is our policy on drinking. There is no drinking allowed at our parties or in the house. This has necessarily given rise to the general consensus that FarmHouse consists of the "farm boys who don't drink." This is an attitude we wish to dismiss. If someone wishes to drink he does it outside of the house and no one looks down upon him. This all goes back to our feeling and belief in individualism.

This article is directed mainly to attract rushees, so in it we have tried to present FarmHouse as it is, not covering up parts and over-emphasizing others, thus creating a false impression. Since rushees make pledges and pledges make brothers we want you to know what we are and what we stand for even before you become pledges. We, the brothers of FarmHouse, extend a fraternal hand to anyone who would like to drop by to pay us a visit.

Kappa Alpha

To understand and appreciate the benefits of fraternity membership, the rushee must have a working knowledge and understanding of the fundamentals of the organization as well as a knowledge of the origin and purposes of the fraternity system as a whole.

The fraternity is not a social club, and if a candidate joins because he thinks it is a social club, he is an enemy both to the idealistic aims of his fraternity as well as to his own proper objective. It is essentially a "brotherhood"—of congeniality based on character and there must not be any other conception to that fact. It creates a union of men who enjoy fellowship and service in a common cause.

The fraternity encourages the acquisition of good habits and the practical demonstration of those habits in the lives of its members. It implants unselfishness in thought and act. It promotes loyalty to individual, to organization, and to university. The fraternity above all encourages good scholarship among its members. It wants its members to be good students and graduate with honors.

what they can give than with what they can get, and yet the prospective pledge has every right to ask about the contribution which a fraternity is prepared to make to him. Kappa Alpha offers six.

First: Membership in a well organized, well governed, financially sound homogeneous national society.

Second: Intimate association with young men of the highest type.

Third: Wholesome social life.

Fourth: The inestimable privilege of being a brother of distinguished men.

Fifth: Participation in a noble heritage of tradition. Kappa Alpha Order was founded on December 21, 1865 at Washington College, now Washington and Lee University. The president of the college was General Robert Edward Lee, and no greater man ever walked this hemisphere. While he was not a member of the Order, it was born and developed under his watchful eye, and his gracious and knightly life is enshrined forever in his customs.

Sixth: The initiatory observances. Kappa Alpha has no truck with "Hell Week" and no other college fraternity; it is a way of life, a philosophy of living. Its influence cannot be weighed or measured; but, for its members, there is nothing more substantial, nothing more real than the vows they have taken, the precepts which have become part of their very souls, the strong bonds of brotherhood which have been among their dearest and most cherished blessings.

We encourage our pledges to conduct themselves as gentlemen, take part in worthy college activities and labor with diligence to maintain their scholarship. One hundred percent of this year's pledge class made their average and became eligible for initiation.

The fraternity member who prostitutes his fraternity for whatever measure of selfish return he can obtain from social contacts, from living in a chapter house, and from wearing a fraternity pin, gets no real value from his membership.

What kind of a fraternity member are you going to be?

Kappa Sigma

There are a number of effective advertising methods which the fraternity system can use in its so-called propaganda effort. We could borrow from the nonsense of modern advertising men for example. We could offer the urgent boast of military schools, that is, fraternities build men. We could alter Uncle Sam's plea, complete with a three-dimensional finger directing the ultimatum, fraternities need you.

Perhaps, however, it would be better to use the simple approach.

The Kappa Sigs at State consider themselves quite fortunate to be right in the midst of the new fraternity development on this campus. In order to meet the increased challenge which fraternity-living will present in the future, many of the houses have conducted leadership seminars. Under the guidance of and with the full approval of school officials, we have instigated what we feel to be a new, dynamic approach to fraternity living.

This is not to say that the traditional assets of increased social life and increased leadership have been ignored. We are proud of our social record and we point with extreme pride to the fact that the presidents of the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes are Kappa Sigs.

The scholastic standards, all of the high standards of fraternities have been upheld. All of this lies in the past; however, it is more the new with which we are concerned. A new financial system, a new pledge training program, and more economic billing are among the new programs which have accompanied our move into Fraternity Row.

As for Kappa Sigma in specific, we stand on our high social, athletic, and scholastic record. We have been fortunate in being one of the first houses to move into the Row. We feel that we are in an excellent position to present to you the old and the new of fraternity-living at State. We offer, then, in conjunction with the IFC, an offer to all who are interested to visit Fraternity Row.

The Kappa Sigs will welcome you at the Kappa Sigma House, Number 1, Fraternity Row.

Delta Sigma Phi

The Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity has planned two smokers for tonight and Thursday night of Rush Week. At these smokers, guests will have the opportunity to become acquainted with the brothers and the various aspects of fraternity life at the Delta Sig house.

Our members strive to be outstanding in every field of endeavor. You will find that Delta Sigs have taken part in every phase of campus activity, ranging from intramurals to varsity athletics, from publications to politics, wherever their interests lie—and beneath it all is the warm binding spirit that has made Delta Sigma Phi a great fraternity on the American campus.

We are fortunate to have as our house a former resort hotel.

These values and benefits of fraternity life are an important part of the philosophy of Kappa Alpha Order. Kappa Alpha has the conviction that men always ought to be more concerned with chapter is permitted or wants to punish its pledges. Our degrees are orders of knighthood and are serious, impressive, and beautiful.

Kappa Alpha is not just an-

Delta Sigma Phi has always enjoyed a full social calendar which ranges from the atmospheric formal dances in the winter to the more vigorous parties in the spring. The Sailors Ball, our annual beach weekend being held at the Litchfield Inn this year, adds spice to our spring social calendar, which is centered around theme and combo parties in our renowned Hut and on the adjoining patio.

This week end the Scepters and the Collegiates will provide entertainment for the brothers and their guests. Our entire brotherhood extends a cordial invitation to you, our fellow students, to visit us this week. Please feel free to drop in anytime or call us (TE 2-9102) if you need transportation.

... Lambda Chi Alpha ...

"Wonder why I didn't get a bid from Lambda Chi?"

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was the first in the line of the great southern fraternities. The principles which those gentlemen of the University of Alabama sought to create as a bond between them in 1856 now serve to link SAE's everywhere today. The more than 118,000 initiates have put Sigma Alpha Epsilon into a stellar position in the Greek world.

represented in intercollegiate athletics. Our swimming team is co-captained by All-American Bill McGinty and Dan Derby. Pledge Glen Sasser turned in a first-string performance in the 1963 football season. Veteran ace pole vaulter Bill Peabody is returning to State this semester. Again this year, an SAE is editor of the yearbook, The Agromeck. Brothers of N. C.

This honor has not been attained merely by numbers, but through the quality of leadership which SAE has always had. The fraternity actively seeks to maintain this level of leadership ability by nurturing it in each of her neophytes.

The purpose of SAE is to instill in its members the true meaning of brotherhood; to develop morally and socially the college man. The fulfillment of such ambitions requires the cooperative zeal and intent of all members. SAE has always expected this to be present in every initiate.

Along with scholastic challenge, college life brings the opportunity for development of one's leadership capabilities and extracurricular interests. In any field of activity at North Carolina State—athletics, publications, student government—you will find an SAE.

SAE is more than honorably

Alpha do important jobs as section editors for this book, which is one of the major N. C. State publications.

In student government SAE is well represented by Herb Goldston as Student Government treasurer, Ralph Bowman and Ferman Wardell in the Senate, James Rutledge and Jack Poisson on Campus Code Board, and Mike Scofield on the Honor Code Board.

SAE's are also prominent in the honorary and scholastic societies: Golden Chain, Thirty and Three, Phi Kappa Phi, Delta Kappa Phi, and Phi Eta Sigma.

SAE is a social fraternity and strives to provide for every social need of its members. This program is given support by the officers and individual members. The house strives to make the most of every opportunity to increase the effectiveness of each event of the social calendar.

Winston is a little old, and he hasn't the foggiest notion of becoming a Lambda Chi at N. C. State. This means that he doesn't have the chance that you do.

Lambda Chi at State strives to develop the well-rounded man, whom we feel should be an individual with the ability to move in both sophisticated and casual circles. Scholarship is a primary consideration for this man, who recognizes the need to develop a social adeptness to complement the academic proficiency assured him by North Carolina State.

Last semester's diversified social calendar included eight cabin-combo parties, supplementing the usual week-end parties at the house. A banquet, hayrides, and theme parties provided a variety of social opportunities which afforded a more than adequate quantity and quality of activities to satisfy even the most socially outgoing.

We'll be living at 222 Hillcrest Road a little longer before we move to the row. Why don't you drop by or give us a ring for a ride? Think you're going to like us!

In consolidating the purpose of these articles, we would like to tell you some things about Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. During the past year, our fraternity has participated in many campus activities including an excellent record in intramural activities. We are looking forward to the future semesters both socially and scholastically as being the best for our fraternity. Our immediate plans include moving into our new $100,000 house in the very near future and an excellent social calendar for the spring semester.

Our Pi Kappa Alpha Chapter here at N. C. State is characterized by a close-knit group of brothers bound together by a unique brotherhood, but still retaining their individuality. Our pledges are carefully selected for their appearance, scholarship, and moral character.

We are looking forward to this coming Spring Rush Week, and we are also looking forward to having you visit us during rush from Wednesday to Sunday and to join us in our rush week activities. We have a party planned at the house Friday night and a combo-cabin party

Saturday night. We would cordially like to invite you to join with us during Rush Week. As we are interested in you, we hope you will become interested in us.

Pi Kappa Phi

Spring rush at Pi Kappa Phi this year promises to be one of the big occasions of the year. We are planning to move to Fraternity Row in the next few weeks so this may be the last big party in the old house. Rush as it is now planned will

We at Pi Kappa Phi have had a great many rushees through the house all semester, but our rush list is by no means filled. If anybody has not been by to see us, this week would be an ideal occasion. The address is 7 Enterprise Street, and transportation

Phi Kappa Tau

IF YOU WANT TO FINISH COLLEGE

A recent government survey showed:

"... Fraternity or sorority membership is clearly associated with persistence to graduate. Institutions which had no recognized fraternities or sororities had a significantly lower graduation rate than did institutions in which an opportunity for some type of fraternity or sorority membership was available. This is a statement of finding not a statement of casual relationship..."

IF YOU WANT A GOOD SCHOLASTIC RECORD

Phi Kappa Tau offers an extensive scholarship program which features study halls, poop files and personal tutoring. Chi Chapter can boast of having brothers in such honorary societies as Phi Eta Sigma, Eta Kappa Nu, Pi Tau Sigma, Tau Beta Pi, and Sigma Tau Sigma.

IF YOU LIKE TO DATE

Phi Kappa Tau has a well rounded social calendar which enables the brotherhood to meet girls from Peace, Saint Mary's, Rex, and Meredith. During the school year we have juke box, combo, and theme parties, and, of course, the annual fall and spring formals.

IF YOU LIKE SPORTS

Phi Tau has run up an impressive list of intramural wins this fall. In football we posted a 5-2 record; in bowling a 26-2 record; in basketball a 4-0 record; and in volleyball, a championship. We, also, have our share of varsity athletes in tennis, wrestling, and basketball.

IF YOU WANT A LIFE-TIME MEMBERSHIP

Perhaps the greatest advantage Phi Kappa Tau can offer you is a life-time membership in a fraternal brotherhood. This means that a fraternity brother has the opportunity to enjoy continued active membership many years after he has left college, of course, retaining the fraternal bonds that developed and grew while he was in school.

THEN PHI KAPPA TAU WANTS YOU!!

The Phi Kappa Taus obviously go in for costume parties and fraternity intramurals in a big way. The gentlemen below represent their fraternity champion softballers.

begin tonight with a smoker after the basketball game, and there will be refreshments for everyone in attendance. Thursday night there will be a smoker from 8 to 11 o'clock in the evening. This will be a stag party with movies of last year's social life being shown.

Starting Friday, the big parties begin with a party at Dean's Cabin with the Dynamics providing the music. On Saturday afternoon there will be a cocktail party and a combo that night at the house.

can be furnished by calling TE4-0435.

When we speak of the big social events of this spring's rush, or brag about our new house, we're talking about some of the small material factors in the life of a fraternity. Pi Kappa Phi is a family of men living in Brotherhood. Although an abstract word, Brotherhood can be felt the minute one walks through Pi Kappa Phi. So this spring we are inviting everybody to come by and see our brand of Brotherhood.

Theta Chi

National attention will be focused on Delta Rho Chapter of Theta Chi Saturday afternoon at 3:30 as an attempt is made to set a new world record for impelling a piano through an eight-inch hole. The record stands at five minutes and fifty-eight seconds, and all the world awaits the results.

Everyone is invited to attend this NPCA (National Piano Cramming Association) sanctioned bustin'. Immediately following this exciting event, rushees will be invited to carry the process through a four-inch hole. They will be given the opportunity to set a new national record for the four-inch hole, also NPCA sanctioned.

This is just one of the many activities to which the men of Theta Chi are inviting all students at N. C. State. Lunch will be served on Thursday, and smokers will be conducted so that all students may drop in and meet the brothers. On Friday night the annual Theta Chi Shipwreck Party will be held. Dress will be as though you were just wrecked on a desert island, and the house will be decorated accordingly.

As mentioned before, the Piano-Bustin' will take place Saturday afternoon, and on Saturday night Buddy Skipper's Band will entertain at the Theta Chi House at 8 p.m. Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. a jazz concert will be held with The Golden Winds providing the music.

It would be impossible to explain Theta Chi Fraternity in a newspaper article. Therefore, we would like to urge everyone to stop by the house sometime this week and see for themselves the friendship shared by the brothers of Theta Chi and truly realize the merits of a fraternity of which all of us are very proud.

Delta Rho Chapter of Theta Chi is located at 1508 Hillsboro Street, across from the Velvet Cloak Inn.

Sigma Alpha Mu

Sigma Alpha Mu, better known on campus as "the Sammy house" prides itself in being modern, progressive, and liberal-minded in its ideas and actions. Now located at 304 East Park Drive, we are counting the days when we move to our new home on Fraternity Row. Our new house is furnished with all new, and extremely different furniture and kitchen equipment. It risks three stories and is completely air-conditioned.

Ben Anderson, our chef, adviser, and devoted brother has been our best friend for the past eighteen years. Our two houseboys work full time to provide us with all the comforts of home. Our newest addition, our housemother, Mrs. Katherine Ward, is understanding, motherly, as well as being young and vivacious. Sigma Omega Chapter is very proud of its staff who we feel is the very best.

We stress three major areas of fraternity and college life: academic achievement, athletic activity, and social recreation. To help ourselves academically we have organized study halls, individual tutors in all subjects, and an unprecedented and comprehensive concentration of elaborate past miscellaneous academic examinations (poop). Last semester we ranked third highest scholastically. Athletically we pride ourselves in our handball record (18 out of the last 21 intramural championships), our policy of never forfeiting an event, and the fact that everyone participates. Our social year consists of combo parties, lake, cabin, and juke box parties. The highlights of the year include two Greek week-ends, parents week-end, alumni week-end, and our spring beach party.

Sigma Alpha Mu builds men by stressing leadership, and participation in all aspects of fraternity life. Everyone, in Sigma Omega Chapter is an essential part of our organization, working to improve himself and the chapter. Our organizational structure is based on efficiency and achieves maximum results in all operational aspects.

Sigma Chi

To the college man interested in becoming a member of a fraternity, Greek life presents a number of impressions; brotherhood, fellowship, social and extracurricular life, and other aspects. Fraternity life is all that. Sigma Chi, however, not only stresses these values, but many more.

Sigma Chi stands today with more than a century of history behind it. From its inception in 1855 at Miami University, it has Moreover, participation in all fields has been a characteristic of Delta Epsilon. Building Homecoming floats has come to be one of the favorites, and the chapter has won or placed in this competition eleven times.

Perhaps the Fraternity's biggest link with the general public is the famous song, "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi". The present Sweetheart of Delta Epsilon, Miss Nancy Evans, has represented the chapter in a most noteworthy manner, being named "Miss Consolidated University" at the State-Carolina game.

Students stand to gain much by joining a good social fraternity. The benefits will of course be both tangible and intangible and will go a long way toward making your college life a much more rewarding one. You are invited to inspect Sigma Chi for what it may offer you. We look forward to seeing you in Spring Rush.

progressed steadily to its present position as a virtual giant in the Greek world. Sigma Chi initiates now number well over one hundred thousand and the Fraternity boasts one hundred and thirty-nine undergraduate chapters.

The alumni of Sigma Chi constitute one of its greatest assets. Thirty-five percent (the highest percentage of any fraternity) of the Sigma Chi initiates have become active alumni and are well-represented by one hundred and twenty-four alumni chapters.

Sigma Chi has been present on the N. C. State campus since the spring of 1943 at which time the Sigma Chi Fraternity granted a charter to the local fraternity Chi Sigma. As did the national Fraternity, Delta Epsilon at N. C. State steadily grew in stature as a top notch social fraternity. Of all its accomplishments in its twenty years at State, perhaps one of the most remarkable was its establishment as a genuine dynasty in the field of intramural athletics. In the thirteen year span of 1950-1963, Sigma Chi has won the grand intramural trophy ten times, a feat that will be hard indeed to duplicate.

Sigma Pi

opportunity to participate, but is never encouraged to do so at the expense of his school work.

When a man becomes a pledge at Sigma Pi, he begins a semester-long period of pledge training designed to make him an integral part of the fraternity's membership. He learns of Sigma Pi's history and ideals through studying the pledge manual with his fellow pledges under the leadership of the pledge master. He is required to do weekly pledge duties, and is encouraged to participate in social, athletic, and other fraternity activities. To assist him, he is assigned a big brother.

During this rush week we encourage students to visit several fraternities and will especially welcome them to Sigma Pi. Each night this week a program has been set up which will help show rushees what Sigma Pi is like.

Friday and Saturday nights are the big party nights. The combo party Saturday night begins at 8:30. Bring your own date, or if you wish, we can get you a date for either or both nights.

The Sigma Pi house is at 2513 Clark Avenue next to the Methodist Church.

Sigma Kappa

The Sigma Kappa Sorority, the only sorority on campus, will begin its Spring Rush February 12. The sorority will send invitations for its two parties planned for February 12 and February 16.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

What is Sigma Phi Epsilon? Sigma Phi Epsilon is a national fraternity with over 65,000 lifetime members. Sigma Phi Epsilon was established here in 1905 to become the fifth social fraternity on campus.

Fraternities are often categorized as "social," "athletic," "scholastic," and the like. Sigma Phi Epsilon is none of these specifically, but all of them combined in its approach to participation in worthwhile activities. When the call goes out for men to serve in extracurricular activities, Sig Eps are in the thick of things.

Sigma Phi Epsilon offers opportunities for brotherhood and personal development which are unsurpassed in the fraternity world. Sig Eps like to win. This is shown by the fraternity's athletic and scholastic records. Sigma Phi Epsilon has held the Intramural Fraternity Athletic Trophy for the last two years. In addition, Sigma Phi Epsilon makes every effort to promote high scholastic attainment, not only in individual members, but in the chapter as a whole.

The very foundation of Sigma Phi Epsilon is Brotherhood. The size and complexity of an institution such as N. C. State or any other present day university gives rise to the need for the close ties of a fraternity, perhaps more now than ever before. Sigma Phi Epsilon fills this need.

Sigma Phi Epsilon urges you to compare its achievements with those of any other chapter. Naturally, we can't guarantee success as a part of Sig Ep membership; but we can assure you that as our brother you will have the opportunity to train for the leadership which is essential to success.

Sigma Nu

Rush is a small part of fraternity life. Through the year Sigma Nu remains active in campus and civic events such as athletics, Friends of the College, and food drives during Greek Week, as well as an active social calendar to relieve the pressures of college life. Sigma Nu ranked first on campus in scholarship during spring semester of last year and second for the school year. Scholarship is important with Sigma Nu.

Each fraternity is different. Sigma Nu, by tradition and performance, is unique! We feel we have a great deal to offer students as individuals. We hope we will have an opportunity to meet you during the week.

Sigma Nu, the oldest social fraternity on campus would like to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to visit its temporary house at 1709 Hillsboro during this spring rush. We will be moving into our new house on Fraternity Row this semester.

The men of Sigma Nu have planned for truly professional entertainment to highlight our rush week; however, we have not forgotten that the purpose of rush is to provide an opportunity for the college man to acquaint himself with fraternities and their ideals.

Along these lines we have arranged for a banquet on Friday night featuring several members of State's football coaching staff to be followed by an informal gathering at the house. On Saturday night Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will entertain the rushees, brothers, and dates at the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

The brothers of TKE have been working hard on the "big move" to the new house on Fraternity Row. Fortunately, the pledges have "volunteered" a few hours of assistance to the cause during Help Week which is now in progress. We would now like to extend to all students an invitation to visit our new house during Rush Week starting today.

In the midst of much revelry and after much delay and many headaches, the new house was finally completed and occupied at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, February 1. It is quite an improvement on the old place on Clark Avenue. Forty men are now able to sleep and study in two and four-man rooms. In addition, we have kitchen and dining facilities capable of feeding sixty men at once.

The house itself is however but a small part of fraternity life. Social life is, of course, a very important part of the fraternity man's collegiate years. Here, at Tau Kappa Epsilon, we have a full calendar of events. Besides the weekly parties and periodic combos, there are several large events which highlight the social calendar such as the Christmas Party, Founder's Day, Spring and Fall Greeks, and the Red Carnation Ball.

Pledging can be one of the most important and rewarding experiences a man can undertake. Pledge training at Tau Kappa Epsilon lasts about one semester, during which time the pledge becomes familiar with the operations, aspirations, principles, and ideals of the chapter and national fraternity. Each pledge is further assigned a "Big Brother" whose job is to help the pledge become acclimated to fraternity life. Upon successful completion of pledge training, the candidate is eligible for initiation as a frater in the bond.

Spring Rush at Tau Kappa Epsilon will be quite informal and open to any interested student. The brothers and pledges of Tau Kappa Epsilon; our housemother, Mrs. Margaret Lewis; and our adviser, Mr. Howard Petrea will be happy to have you visit with us during Rush Week. Entertainment will be provided Friday and Saturday nights. Hours have been suggested by the Interfraternity Council for visitation. These hours are by no means binding, however, and we at Tau Kappa Epsilon will welcome you at any reasonable hour. Need a ride? Phone 834-3128 between 5:00 and 9:00 p.m. today and Thursday.

EXCITING THINGS HAPPEN AT FORD MOTOR COMPANY!

Good news
for aficionados of medium-cubed V-8's who prefer to remain shiftless!

Four-on-the-floor is fine but not everyone's cup of tea. If you're an automatic devotee, we think you'll be cheered by what Ford Motor Company transmission engineers have designed in the way of exciting goodies to go with our new hotter V-8 mills in the medium-displacement class.

It's a spanking new 3-speed automatic drive that adds more hustle without extra muscle in Comet, Fairlane and Ford models for '64. Among its many virtues: less avoirdupois . . . fewer parts . . . smoother take-offs . . . up to 35% more go in Low . . . extra braking in downhill work . . . whisper-quiet in Neutral . . . quarterback-style passing performance!

The men at Ford who design such intricacies as transmissions are not just walking slide rules or talking computers. They're men who get excited about cars and the fun of driving them. They enjoy meeting challenges like "Design a new automatic drive with 4-speed stick-shift performance built right in." Frankly, they are among the most avid car buffs around and it shows in their work!

Pack Evens Record, Meet Duke Tonight

Since the last issue of The Technician, the Wolfpack has lost two of three contests, dropped to last place in the Atlantic Coast Conference, and lost the services of its leading scorer and rebounder. With all this behind them, the Pack meets Duke tonight at 8:15 in the coliseum.

On January 15, State lost to Carolina, 79-71, in a contest that went down to the wire. Three days later, the Pack broke a four game losing streak by defeating Maryland in a come-from-behind, 66-65 contest. The victory preserved State's five game home winning streak. Since the break, Virginia pushed the Pack into last place by a 50-48, last second victory. The result of this three week period is a 6-6 overall record and a 2-6 conference mark. The loss to the Italian Nationals and the 79-57 win over Camp LeJeune do not count in the standings.

Although last in the standings, the Wolfpack leads the conference in shooting percentage—field goal and free throw. Through games of Monday, January 20, State had a .473 field goal accuracy and a .748 free throw mark. Duke is second with .471 from the floor and .748 from the line. State also is the best defensive team, holding its opponents to 66.3 points per contest. On the offensive side, the Pack is seventh with 66.5 points per game and sixth with 36.1 rebounds per game.

Coach Everett Case is expected to go with 6-5 soph. Larry Worsley to replace Larry Lakins. Worsley will play forward with Ray Hodgdon and Auksel will move to the pivot. Tommy Mattocks and Billy Moffitt will be at the guards.

Prior to the varsity contest, the freshman team will meet the Duke frosh. The Blue Imps have defeated the Wolflets twice this season.

It looks as though Pete Auksel is being congratulated on his rebounding skill by a Maryland player during the Pack's 66-65 victory before the semester break.

Due to Lakins' untimely ineligibility, Auksel will be expected to shoulder most of the scoring and rebounding for the Pack.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: JACK SMITH

In part of Southern Bell's Anderson, South Carolina District, the man who has the say about engineering matters is Jack Smith.

Jack (B.S.C.E., 1960) is in charge of engineering for a group of telephone exchanges serving 6500 telephones. He engineers outside plant additions (last year, $130,000 worth) and makes long-range plans for his exchanges.

On a typical job, Jack, as a member of the engineering team, planned the recentering of the Belton telephone exchange. Then he had the responsibility of carrying through his plans to a successful cutover. Jack prepared for his new job by working under another Southern Bell engineer. But, because Jack learned fast, this apprenticeship lasted only a few months before he took over his own area.

Jack Smith, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.
