Watauga Hall Will Be Home For Fall Coeds

By Joan French

Watauga Hall will probably be the most popular dormitory on the State campus this fall. The administration has confirmed plans to renovate the building for occupancy by about 90 girls by next September.

The dormitory, which now houses 108 men, will be remodeled with an "eye to the girls." The plans include an apartment for a women's counselor and a reception area.

The administration stated that this dormitory will be expressly designed to house all non-local, single undergraduate coeds.

Approval for a 300 unit women's dormitory has been passed by the last legislature. The college is now working on plans for the building, so that construction can get underway as soon as the financial affairs are arranged. N. B. Watts, director of Student Housing, estimates that it will be at least three years before the structure will be completed.

"Fisheye's View"

The beginning of State's "second-half-slump" in last Thursday's game against Dook is graphically illustrated by this unique photo made by Hugh Cashion with a "Fisheye Lens." Pete Auksel made the shot but State lost by a score of 49-75.

St. Pat To Be Honored

The Engineers of N. C. State will be active again this spring as they have their annual St. Patrick's Dance.

The St. Patrick's Dance will be held March 14 at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union. Music will be by Russ Carlton upstairs and The Tassels downstairs.

The Engineers honor St. Patrick as their Patron Saint, since by driving the snakes from Ireland, he invented the first "wormdrive." Bids will be available in the departmental offices.

No "Commies" In State Schools, Says Sanford

Governor Sanford stated Saturday that there are no Communists on university campuses. Sanford, speaking to a state meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, cited an FBI report showing that state-supported schools are free of "reds." Although the revealed report was obviously aimed at supporters of the Speaker Ban law, Sanford made no mention of the law in his talk.

"The FBI recently reported to me that there is not one single communist or communist sympathizer on any faculty," the Governor declared, "nor a communist sympathizer in any student body, of any State-supported university or college in North Carolina."

Sanford praised the State's Junior Chamber of Commerce for not bowing to "fear and hysteria" in its advocacy of democracy over communism.

"Our system is based on human dignity, freedom, the worth of the individual, all enduring attributes which will stand the bright light of any examination and any comparison," he said.

Sanford was unavailable for comment last night about the details or methods used in preparing the report.

Chancellor Caldwell found the results of the report, "Gratifying, but not surprising. It is what I would have confidently believed myself."

NCS Gets $500 From Wear-Ever

State has been presented a $500 unrestricted grant from the Wear-Ever Aluminum Company as a result of a citation awarded to Ted Julius Hardison, a 1963 graduate of State.

Wear-Ever honors its ten leading student salesmen and their respective schools each year. The salesmen receive a $500 award and a trophy for their achievements. Each school receives an award similar to State's.

Hardison led in sales for the company for sales in 1963 among more than 1,200 students working for the company. He is presently a full-time employee of Wear-Ever, working as a Wake County dealer.

Hardison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hardison of Edenton, was presented the awards, as was Chancellor Caldwell, by W. P. Cranford of Raleigh, district sales manager for Wear-Ever.

Student super-salesman Ted Hardison, Class of '63, shows Chancellor Caldwell notification that State will receive a $500 grant as a result of Hardison's work.

Preyer Students Swing Into Action At ACC Tourney

Students for Preyer got off to a strong start here during the ACC tourney when local girls gave spectators poop on Preyer.

A campus chairman for the N. C. State "Students for Preyer" will be appointed soon according to John Bynum. Bynum, who is the Student Body President, has been appointed State-wide chairman of the "Students for Preyer."

Three district directors will be appointed to help Bynum and other co-chairmen Charles Shaffer of UNCCH and Kitty Bernhardt of Wake Forest. The three directors will supervise the East, the Piedmont, and the West respectively. Colleges and schools in these areas will have campus chairmen to aid in the Students for Preyer campaign.

Bynum said last night that Judge Preyer has much support among the college students in North Carolina.

Martha McLaughlin, State coed, exchanges words with an unidentified spectator at the ACC playoffs. She was among a number of coeds distributing literature pushing Preyer for Governor.

Student Government Candidates Outline Platforms

John Atkins-SG President

John Atkins, candidate for Student Government president, is running on a platform to build a strong pep program and to set up a closer relationship between the SG and the students.

Speaking about the pep program, Atkins said, "The weakness of our present pep program cannot alone be pinned on the cheerleaders, but the weakness is with us and the lack of an organized program."

He pointed out that "we can as students and as a student government bring our conceived stadium to a nearer reality." Atkins continued, "the chancellor and other men of our state are working on this matter but they need the support and backing of all of us as students at this institution."

Atkins said, in regard to the SG's working relations, "The Student Government's strongest power is only that of recommendation, but do not underestimate this power if the Student Government has the support and backing of the students."

If elected to the presidency, Atkins said Student Government will have the interest of the students at heart. He said he would investigate the present semester schedule and compare it to a schedule that would allow students to complete their first semester's work before Christmas holidays.

JIM MILLER

Jim Miller-SG Treasurer

Jim Miller, Student Government treasurer candidate, has announced plans to continue to favor a budget similar to the ones presented in previous years.

Miller said, "In such a budget, I would make proposals which would best benefit the students at State and the University as a whole."

"For instance, appropriations would be made for organizations which show a potential of benefiting their members as state students and also as organizations that can broadcast the name of North Carolina State in the other regions of the country as well as North Carolina."

Miller added that he feels the treasurer should be a qualified and experienced member of the legislature in order to assist the president and other Student Government officers.

"Having had two years experience in the legislature serving on the Campus Welfare Committee, the Elections Committee, and currently as chairman of the Promotions Committee, I feel I have the necessary experience to carry on a vital role in Student Government," Miller said.

TERRY LOWDER

JOHN ATKINS

Terry Lowder-VP

Student Government vice presidential candidate Terry Lowder has proposed an eight-point plan of progress for the campus.

Lowder's plan calls for changes in Student Government, improvement of the Slater Food Service, the establishment of a Student Discount Service, and equal rights in Raleigh for all State students.

Lowder wants to reorganize Student Government "by removing unnecessary commissions and consolidating responsibilities of the more vital ones and seeking representation based on housing areas."

He hopes to legislate "necessary and appropriate calendar changes" and also to seek certain academic advancements including coordination of departmental quizzes, possible alteration of the grading system, and curriculum and course surveys.

In regard to the food service, Lowder would like to improve the present system in terms of prices and the quality of food and service. If necessary, he said, he would be willing to take steps toward a competitive food service.

Lowder is the University's National Student Association coordinator and a senator in the SG. He is a member of the Consolidated University Student Council and served as vice president of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union last year.

Becalmed

Governor Sanford engaged in a practice Saturday commonly known as "letting the wind out of one's sails."

By revealing the contents of a FBI study, he let the wind out of the sails of backers of the speaker ban law.

The 1963 Legislature is now in a position of having passed a law to ban communists from speaking on campuses where there are no communists. The law was passed to curb the rising tide of communism on campus, but there was evidently no tide to curb.

The only real effect the law can have now is to keep known communists from coming on campus and speaking. Communists from Poland, from Yugoslavia, from Russia will be unable to speak on this campus—and disperse the knowledge they have gained as eminent scientists or scholars.

Of course, the FBI report has one drawback. After all, there may be a sneaky communist cell on one of the campuses who simply lied when asked if they were communists.

This is the great advantage in the gag law. A sneaky communist may lie to the FBI, but he would never lie to a school official and say he was not a communist.

Would he?

Better Constitutions

The Erdahl-Cloyd Union director's decision to spend a little more time on a constitution is applauded as a wise one, but with reservations.

There was the feeling on the part of this paper that one of the reasons the appointment of a special committee to spend the remainder of this spring and summer creating a new constitution passed so easily was the memory of last year's long arguments and discussion about a new constitution—which only proved fruitless as two more were produced.

This is not a condemnation, for we must admit to a feeling of relief on our part, also.

But it should be the duty of the new Union President to keep this feeling from pervading the appointed constitutional committee.

The purpose of this committee should be to create a constitution that adequately reflects the structure of a Union that has, quite frankly, changed during the last few years. They should be charged by the new president to consider all suggestions and use every source available in formulating a new constitution.

One suggestion along this line would be to request material on constitutional forms from the NSA representative.

The Union's constitution, if it is well written, should be a strong constitution—Strong enough to endure for a number of years.

Letter To Editors

Poster Plan Pushed

To the Editors:

As one of the thousand or so graduate students on campus, may I offer a couple of suggestions:

Suggestion 1: That the candidates be allowed, encouraged, or forced to make their own posters, and that these posters be poster size. At Rice, for example, the election posters are mounted on sticks which are driven into the ground at a central place on the campus, similar to the sidewalk area between the College Union and Harrelson Hall here at State. The posters are colorful, interesting, and reflect the candidate's personality (which, let's face it, is the major factor in a campus election) as well as any platform. It is true, the area is affectionately known as the "Cardboard Jungle," but no one would think of removing or defacing such a poster, and in direct contrast to the objectionable feeling of a hundred names and faces plastered on your dorm or the Student Supply Store, here at State, one cannot help but have a smile on his face as he walks through the clever "Cardboard Jungle."

Suggestion 2: That the cement that is not going to be used for the roof that the kiosk doesn't have, be taken and spread over the unpaved sidewalks leading from Harrelson. Such an action may not win the acclaim of the Art World, but it would certainly be appreciated by the average student!

Paper Goofs, Band Concert Is Tonight

The article in the February 27th issue of The Technician concerning the band concert was incorrect.

The concert will be given tonight at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum.

Repertoire for the concert will contain the following: "La Clemenza di Tito, Overture," by Mozart; "L'Arlesienne Suite, Fa rando," by Bizet; Rimsky-Korsakov's "Introduction and Wedding March" from the Golden Cockerel; the Finale from Shostakovich "Symphony No. 5"; Jenkins' "American Overture for Band"; "A Symphonic Prelude" by Reed; and the "Concerto for French Horn" by Gliere featuring Steve Seawright as soloist and the Vivaldi "Concerto in C Major" with Benjamin Sloan and Robert Johnson featured in a trumpet duo.

The Band and Glee Club will combine their talents in the finale for the presentation of the "Testament of Freedom" which will be dedicated to the memory of John F. Kennedy.

Debates Set This Week

If debates are your idea of fun, then be in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union Ballroom Wednesday at 8 p.m.

WKNC is sponsoring for the second year Student Government Elections Debates. This year the debates will be broadcast live from the Union Ballroom. The broadcast will allow members of the audience to question the candidates on their respective platforms. The offices of president, vice-president, and treasurer of Student Government will be involved in the debates, according to George Heedon, manager of WKNC.

'Taming of Shrew'

The National Players of Washington, D. C., will present Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union March 21.

The play will be held in the Union Ballroom, and there will be an admission charge of 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults.

Curtain time is 8 p.m.

HENRY TURLINGTON—
IFC Treasurer

We have all worked many problems in our life in the hopes of finding a solution. At the time of election, we are faced with the problem of electing the right man for the offices that are open. The particular office concerning us here is treasurer of IFC.

Like all problems, there is a statement: the candidate must have new ideas and he must be able and ready to continue the process of past good ideas.

Now that we know what is given, we solve for the answer, and to do this we plug the formula: Henry Turlington. This gives us the answer we need.

Henry Turlington is in favor of a stronger IFC, an old idea, but a good one. If elected, he plans to keep the houses up to date on the IFC budget—how long have we been waiting for that answer?

Last, but not least, he plans to initiate new ideas on scholarship. Boy, do we need that answer! Now this problem wasn't so hard after all, was it? Just remember the formula, Henry Turlington.

RICHARD C. PASCHALL JR.—
HCB

In the coming weeks, the present Honor Code Board will make known the information gained in the many conferences conducted by the Honor Code Board and the Honor Study Commission. At the same time, the HCB and the Honor Study Commission will recommend to the administration and to the Student Government revisions in the present Honor Code, as recommended by students and the faculty.

As a junior class HCB representative, I have been close to the situation and have had a hand in the discussions of the present Honor Code and what should be done about it. I sincerely hope that the rising seniors will reaffirm their faith in my intentions, honesty, and judgment by reelecting me to the Honor Code Board for the next year. I promise to do all I can to insure the students of a fair and enforceable Honor System.

King Bostrom—SG Treasurer

ADELE JONES—Jr. Class
Treasurer, WCCB

As candidate for the office of treasurer of the Junior Class, I promise only to strive to handle carefully the monetary affairs of the class.

As candidate for the Women's Campus Code Board, I promise to try to represent the wishes of all the students in my class in making rules for future coeds. If elected, I do not promise to reform Student Government, Slater, etc., but only to do my best.

JIM GODDARD—
Engineering Senator

The main reason for my running for this office is the feeling that we, the student body, have been poorly informed about events, supposedly occurring for our benefit. If elected I will work toward the goal of a well-informed student body. I call you, the rising sophomore engineers, for support in attaining this goal for the benefit of the entire student body. I want to thank you for any or all of your support. But please vote, no matter who you vote for.

ACC Tournament Was No Surprise

By Martin White

This year's Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament was no surprise to anyone who follows collegiate basketball in this area. The point spread between winners and losers in the seven game tourney averaged 20 points, the highest ever.

Probably the most exciting 40 minutes in the three days of cage play were the first halves of the Duke-State game and the Duke-Carolina contest. Even though the play in a slow-down game is not the most thrilling, the very thought of a possible upset over Duke was enough to quicken the pulse of the capacity crowds that witnessed the games.

The Wolfpack's control game held the Devils to a 24-18 half-time lead, which was stretched to 13 points with 6:45 remaining in the game, 51-38. The next six minutes and 10 seconds saw the Pack scoreless from the floor and with only two points at the line. During the same period, Duke had poured in 20 points for a 71-40 lead. Carolina's fate was much the same after a 20-20 intermission deadlock.

Probably the most interesting statistic, besides the final score, in both games was rebounding. Both State and Carolina controlled the boards against the towering Devils. A more than equalizing factor in the two contests was State's losing the ball 20 times on errors and Carolina 19. Duke averaged six per game in this department.

Everyone knows of Duke's power on offense, but its precision-like defense deserves much of the credit in winning the 1964 ACC crown.

Next season should see more of a balance between the "Big Four" teams, with the four out-of-state teams finding the road through North Carolina a bit more dangerous.

Assistant coach Press Maravich, head coach Everett Case, and freshman coach Lou Pucillo (right to left) watch the closing minutes of the State-Duke contest with little enthusiasm and heavy hearts.

Perhaps looking forward to the 64-65 season could be of some consolation, when a 100 per cent more experienced squad will be available, with new talent from this year's freshman team for good measure.

Bob Brawley Is ACC 'Outstanding Wrestler'

Robert Brawley, sophomore civil engineering major from Mooresville, is about to make a pin on his way to the ACC crown in the 167 lb. class. Brawley was also awarded the trophy as the ACC's outstanding wrestler.

Maryland captured first place in seven of ten weight classes this weekend to win its 11th ACC Wrestling Championship. The Terps totaled 102 points while Carolina was second with 47. Close behind in a tie for third were Virginia and State with 45 points each. Duke had 28 pts. to round out the scoring.

Robert Brawley won the only first place for the Pack in the 167 lb. championship. Taking second place for State were: David Jones in the 115 lb. class, Jim Sawhill in the 177 lb. class, and Bill Wyland in the 191 lb. class.

Brawley added another honor to the State team with the meet's outstanding wrestler award. This honor was first given in 1957, and had been won by Maryland matmen every year prior to 1964.

Since the ACC Wrestling tournament was started in 1955, there have been 106 titles in the 10 weight divisions and outstanding award title. Of these, Maryland has taken all but 23.
