Commission Studies Honor Code System

By Phil Gietzen

The Honor Code Commission met Tuesday night to discuss further steps in examining the present academic honor code.

The commission, under the guidance of Gerald Hawkins, assistant director of Student Activities, met in the Union to discuss reports from the several schools here. The reports, along with replies to questionnaires, form an informative report on the opinions now existing among faculty and students.

The commission is dealing with academic violations such as cheating. Under present conditions students are required in some courses to sign a pledge that they have not given or received help on the quiz.

If students are reported for cheating they may be cited to report before the Honor Code Board. Under the present system students convicted by the board may be expelled or placed on probation.

Members of the Honor Code Board are elected in campus-wide elections from the student body. No administrative or faculty members are on the board. The decision of the all-student board is binding and final.

The commission, through a campus-wide survey and departmental meetings, has found that in many instances students who are reported for cheating are dealt with by the professor. It has been determined by the commission that often students do not report cheating to the Honor Board or to professors.

The commission feels that apathy exists due to students' lack of knowledge of the Honor Code Board functions. It also feels that lack of information about who is on the board, how they are chosen, and the mem-

BSU Student Chosen For 'LISTEN'

Carroll Parker, a State student, has been chosen to participate in the Baptist Student Union's LISTEN project.

The project, aimed at Korea, is similar to the Peace Corps operations.

"As far as I can tell, I was the only student who applied who had an agricultural background and qualifications. I believe that this was a big factor in my favor," Carroll said.

Parker, along with seven other students, will go to Korea in June and stay until August 23.

The trip involves a basic principle of LISTEN which stands for "Love Intalls Sacrifice Toward Every Need," according to Parker who is also the 1964-1965 president of the BSU.

Ten Teams Throng To Student Stuff

By Cora Kemp

The Technician's "Stuff-A-Car" Contest last night was a smash—or a mash, depending upon your point of view.

The winner of the contest will not be decided until tomorrow night, however.

Ten teams entered the contest, but only six were stuffed into the car due to darkness. The remaining four groups were to be stuffed this afternoon.

When the contest came to a close about 7:30 p.m., two teams were tied for first place. Both the Sigma Kappa sorority and a team from Alexander and Turlington Dorms managed to get 30 students in the car.

Teams from Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, the "Ford Busters," and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity all got 28 in the car. The "Midgets" had a total of 18.

The remaining teams to try their skill today were "The Winners," a team from Bagwell and Bragaw Dorms, the "Welch Car-Stuffers," and the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

An anxious crowd of some 700 or more students flocked to the Erdahl-Cloyd Union about 6 p.m. Due to the rainy weather, the car had been moved into the Union ballroom, but after the first stuffing, and weather permitting, the contest was moved outside to the Union parking lot where it was originally scheduled to be held.

The teams had students stuffed in every possible corner of the car's interior. Students were hanging out all over the place.

When one group got ready to close the doors, someone buried in the mass of bodies yelled, "Take a deep breath," and the doors closed.

A couple of students who were already in the car caused their groups to unload hurriedly when they complained of having run out of air to breathe.

One student, who was one of the last ones in his group to get in, said he had to get out because he had claustrophobia.

The winning team will receive free passes to the Ford CAR-avan of Music Show at the Coliseum Friday at 8 p.m.

Sanders Ford Motors, who loaned The Technician the car used for the stuffing, will give the car, or what's left of it, to the group leader of the winning team. The car is a well-used two-door 1954 Ford.

Judges for the contest last night were Bill Edwards, Social Studies professor, and Bill Sonner, swimming instructor in the Department of Physical Education.

GOP's Fail To Reply To Invitation

If nobody wants to talk, how can you have a debate?

This is the question Henry Bowers, director of the Union, is asking himself.

Of the three invitations Bowers sent to Republican gubernatorial candidates, only one replied.

Donald Badgley of Greensboro wrote to Bowers to say that he did not approve of a meeting on Sunday, according to Raleigh Times writer Joyce Williams.

Badgley suggested some other day of the week.

The other two Republican candidates, Robert Gavin and Charles Strong, had not replied as of last night, Bowers said.

Although Bowers is still interested in the proposed debate, he said that time is running short.

Democratic gubernatorial candidates met last Sunday in the Union at the invitation of the Westminster Fellowships from State, Duke, and Carolina. About 900 people attended the Democratic debate.

Lowder Sets NSA Week

The week of April 13 through April 17 has been designated as National Student Association Week by Terry Lowder, NSA Coordinator.

NSA Week is a preliminary to the Carolinas-Virginia NSA Regional Convention which will be held April 17 through 18 at East Carolina College. Next week will be used to give the State delegates, who will be attending the regional conclave, a chance to describe the NSA program to the student body and to sound out student opinion on national issues.

An NSA booth will be established at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union during NSA week. The booth will be manned by two of the newly-elected NSA delegates between the hours of 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. from April 13 to April 16.

According to Terry Lowder, "The booth will be operated to provide the students with general information on NSA through the delegates and through brochures and pamphlets which will be available. We encourage the students to visit the booth to obtain this information and to present their views to the delegates."

NSA serves as an element of expression of student opinion from campuses across the nation. Such issues as politics, civil rights, and other matters of interest to students are considered at NSA conventions.

Sophomores Required To Take Exam

All state sophomores this year will be required to take a series of tests known as the Comprehensive College Examination.

The tests will be administered to the students in equal alphabetical groups May 5 and 6. Exact times for the tests have not yet been established, but they will probably last from 9 to 12:30 in the mornings, and from 2 until 4:30 in the afternoons, according to J. J. Stewart, dean of Student Affairs.

The tests are part of a study being made by a special committee of the faculty senate, Stewart explained. The purpose of the committee is to "consider the current method of evaluating the academic progress of students".

The committee will consider how the results of the exam will be used in the future. Results of the exam will be placed on each student's record, and they will be made available to the student upon request.

Lists of when each student will take the tests will be placed on departmental bulletin boards in the near future.

State Gets New Graduate Extension Program

The new Graduate Institute of Extension Education has been established at State to improve North Carolina's extension education program.

Development of graduate training is one function of this institute. Also, the institute will promote and coordinate research in extension education, improve coordination between State and the various adult education programs in North Carolina, and administer the funds for research and training.

A board of directors consisting of the dean of the Graduate School, and the Deans of the Schools of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Education, Liberal Arts, and Home Economics at Greensboro has been established to administer the institute.

Dean H. Brooks James of the School of Agriculture has been selected chairman of this Board, and Dr. E. D. Boone, assistant-director of Ag Extension has been selected as director and secretary. The advisory committee consists of the faculty of the Department of Extension Personnel Development and two faculty members from the School of Home Economics in Greensboro.

This board will meet at least once a semester.

Faculty Members Are Citizens

One of the controversies which has grown out of the integration activities in this and other universities throughout the nation concerns the "proper" role of university faculty members in the settlement of such problems.

In the light of this recent examination of the rights of faculty members as citizens in the total community, it might be well to restate the official University policy concerning academic freedom. The following is an excerpt from the University Code adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated University:

"Academic freedom is the right of a faculty member to be responsibly engaged in efforts to discover, speak, and teach the truth. It is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage full freedom, within the law, of inquiry, discourse, teaching, research, and publication and to protect any member of the academic staff against influences, from within or without the University, which would restrict him in the exercise of these freedoms in his area of scholarly interest.

"The University recognizes that in his role as citizen, as to matters outside the area of his scholarly interest the faculty member has the right to enjoy the same freedoms as other citizens, without institutional censorship or discipline, though he should avoid abuse of these freedoms . . ."

The case for university autonomy and faculty freedom was well-stated before the Board of Trustees last year by Mr. Victor Bryant when he said:

"University trustees in the last analysis are, and must continue to be, the ones who finally pass on the general policies of the University. It must also be recognized that one of the primary obligations of a Trustee is to provide a congenial atmosphere in which a competent University faculty can live and do its best work . . . As important as faculty salaries may be, I believe I know the faculty members of the University's three branches well enough to say that with them there is perhaps something else just as important, if not more so. It is the right of a faculty member as a responsible person to search for, speak, and teach the truth without undue interference. If we are to recruit and retain faculty members of high caliber, we can guarantee them no less. The campuses of this University must remain hospitable to real scholars who are free to search for the truth where it may be found, without being circumscribed in their area of search, and once having found it, to speak and teach it with neither fear nor apology.

This then is the official policy of our University concerning the rights of our faculty members both in and out of the classroom. The policy is both realistic and just, and being so, it should be protected by students and faculty alike.

The Letters Column Sports A New Name CONTENTION

To The Editor:
KENNEDY LETTERS
Our generation has experienced few shocks, and none have we shared more intensely and none has moved us as deeply as the death of President Kennedy. All Americans were stunned and grieved by his untimely passing, but perhaps youth felt the blow more than all the rest. He was a man who shared his youth and ideals with young people and awakened within us the challenge to find a purpose and to carry out our responsibility to ourselves and to our country.

We believe that the personal letters college students wrote to friends, sweethearts, parents and others who were close to them during those days in November would indicate their true feelings and vividly describe the effect of John F. Kennedy's death upon our generation. In addition to providing a tribute to President Kennedy, these letters would serve not only as a valuable asset to historians, but would clearly depict for the future the emotional and psychological impact of the tragedy upon the thoughts of America's young people.

Because we feel that these letters are important, we as individuals are collecting them for deposit in the JFK Memorial Library and have been assured by officials at the National Archives that the letters will be stored in Washington until the library is completed.

As we are college students with a limited budget, our only appeal is to students through college newspapers, and we need your support and cooperation to make this project a success. If you have saved any of the letters you received which commented upon the effects of the events in Dallas, and if you are interested in donating them to the library, please send them to:

Letters
Box 756
Blacksburg, Virginia 24080

If possible we would like to have the original envelope showing the postmark and date. Upon receipt of the letters, we will assemble them and forward them in a body to the National Archives in Washington, D. C.

It should be remembered that these letters will be made available for examination by competent and interested persons at the library, and thus, any personal matter may be deleted or the letter may be recopied omitting these parts. We will attempt to acknowledge all letters which are received.

We feel that if we are able to obtain an adequate number of these letters representing a fair cross-section of the U. S. college population, then our generation will be enabled to make a real and unique contribution to history, helping to paint a clearer picture of our times.

Sincerely yours,

STEAM PIPES

By Bill Fishburne

Currently there is a debate stirring concerning collegiate athletics.

Should players be given scholarships only for their athletic ability, or should the teams be filled by the members of the student body on a non-scholarship basis?

On one hand it is claimed the athletic scholarship allows a school to acquire better athletes, therefore producing better teams and putting the school's name before the public in a good light. This will supposedly encourage the alumni to contribute to the school, providing better facilities for the campus at large. Furthermore, it is argued, a school should be well rounded, excelling at both scholarship and athletics.

The other argument claims a school should encourage the scholar-athlete. By not giving athletic scholarships the academic level of the school will not be compromised, and the average student is encouraged to participate in varsity sports. By this means the whole student body becomes involved in the athletic program, for they can participate in a sport for enjoyment of the sport, without competing with the "paid" athlete.

State is currently on both systems. The tennis team has no scholarships; none are desired. The football team has several; more are desired. The tennis team loses, and the football team wins. This does not prove the superiority of a system, but instead that the conference schools in general give athletic scholarships to athletes in all sports.

Because a team which wins is termed a successful team, a team which loses is regarded as an unsuccessful team.

This column maintains it is not the team record that makes a good team, but rather, it is the attitude and maturity of the players. Who will attempt to judge the influence of a coach or a player on a team member? Who can judge the value of a player to team spirit, Winning is an object of all games, or sports, but it is not or should not be the only goal. A player or coach is born with talent, and may develop skill. A skilled player cannot develop talent beyond that with which he was born. He can develop maturity of judgment to implement his skill. Judgment acquired in a sport is not limited to the playing field. No one can isolate a part of his life from other parts. The ability to think while moving, for example, will overlap into every area of a person's life.

Maturity is, or should be, the object of a collegiate sport. When maturity in judgment, action, and speech is reached, manhood is achieved.

Then the sport has served a useful purpose.

Bearded Angle From Yorkshire Pauses at State

"I have been traveling four years this month and have spent a little over $300 during this time."

Toni Orford is a handsome 28 year old Englishman who spent the night in Raleigh on his way through to New York in his first trip to the United States.

The bearded traveler is a color printer in Yorkshire when not on the road. "I first went to New Zealand as a steel worker to earn the money to make my journey. I then left for north Africa, Europe and Australia. From there I went to the South Pacific."

Toni was particularly fascinated with the people of Tahiti. "Actually there are some very civilized places, but on the back of some of the islands the people have never seen white men. They were particularly fascinated with my beard, cigarettes, and candy bars. The hospitality is terrific. The custom is to move out of the house you occupy and let your guest have it when someone comes to see you."

Toni is the kind of person you can talk with for hours on end. For instance, his South American travels range from Xinga, Paraguay (possibly the hottest and driest place on earth, where it hasn't rained in over seven years) to journeys on a flat boat down the Amazon River.

"I shall return to England by summer after I have visited New York, Canada, the west coast, and Mexico," he said. "People have asked me why I have not spent any more money than I have. Well, I guess I realized I only had $500, and I must be gone a long time."

'BEAT STATE' ADS

To The Editor:
I was quite shocked as I read the April 2 issue of The Technician. In the General Electric advertisement on page 4, "Beat State" appeared twice! I realize that advertising is necessary for the paper, but couldn't that ad have appeared "Beat Chapel Hill College"? I feel certain that all of the State students were shocked to see this in our paper, and I am sure that they are ashamed that the editors of our fine paper were so lax in proof-reading the advertisements. I certainly hope that the infamous "Yellow Sheet" known as The Daily Tar Heel does not notice this, as you, the editors, as well as our entire student body, would lose much "face". I trust that this will not happen again.

SAM Win Twentieth Handball Crown, Bragaw North No. 2 Wins Dorm Crown

Sigma Alpha Mu pulled out a "close one" last night to defeat Phi Kappa Tau 2-1 in the finals of the intramural handball tournament. It is the eighth year in a row that the SAM team has won the crown and the twentieth championship in the sport over a period of 22 years for the team.

Phi Kappa Tau came from the loser's bracket with one defeat and downed the Sigma Alpha Mu team 2-1 in the first game of the play-off. The contest gave the SAM's a 4-1 record and the PKT's were 6-1, forcing another match for the championship.

In action before the holidays, Bragaw North #2 won the dormitory handball title by downing Bragaw North #1. The #2 team finished the season with a perfect 5-0 record.

Bob Lebenson of SAM defeated Higgins of PKT in the number one singles match to remain undefeated in three years of play. The PKT doubles team of Emmons and Turlington downed Youngman and Cooper to tie the match 1-1 going into the number two singles bout. Jeffries of PKT won the first game of the set but lost to Mike Wise of SAM in the second game to tie the set at 1-1. The third and match deciding game between Wise and Bob Harrison of PKT was nip and tuck all the way with Wise finally winning 22-20. The game was tied six times after an 18-18 tie.

Honor Code Studied

bers' ability to judge fellow students causes much apathy.

The commission study shows that cheating appears more frequently among freshman and sophomore classes in departments outside the student's academic major school.

Members of the faculty have also come under fire because of their attitude toward cheating.

The commission listed some causes of cheating as seating arrangement, poor teaching and lack of respect among students for the instructors as well as professors' lack of respect for the students, large classes, and true-false, multiple choice, and fill-in-the-blank exams.

It was generally agreed by members of the commission that a program of more extensive orientation is necessary to inform students regarding their responsibility and the duties of the honor board.

A meeting will be called in the near future to discuss further plans, according to the commission.
