SG May Give Pres Veto

By Grant Blair

Presidents of the Student Government may have veto power if a bill pending before the legislature is passed Thursday night.

The measure would give the SG president the power to veto any bill passed, providing the president did not enter into the debate concerning the bill, according to Bill Howle, chairman of the Rules Committee.

The veto power must be exercised within 48 hours, Howle stated. The veto may also be overridden by a two-thirds majority at the next Student Government meeting.

"The measure will be a real asset to Student Government," Howle added. He cited a result of the measure as being more reliance upon the committee chairmen by the president. He also emphasized that freshman and sophomore senators would be encouraged to speak more freely in legislature.

By drawing a decisive line between the executive department, Howle pointed out, veto power will discourage the SG president from taking the chair to speak against any measure pending in SG, since this would mean the president would give up the right to veto. Howle stated that he felt this would encourage debate among the lower-class senators, who would be reluctant to speak against the president.

Also, Howle pointed out that immediate veto of the measure would give any senator who opposed the veto two weeks to prepare an argument.

Howle emphasized that the student body is also expected to be more aware of bills next year with the posting of all measures passed by Student Government in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union.

There will be a space at the bottom of all future bills for the president to sign, Howle stated, if the measure is passed.

The measure is scheduled to be introduced Thursday night by Senator Ellis Whitt.

Kidd Hosts Greeks On Hill

This year Greek Week featured a banquet Thursday night, a field day Friday, a picnic on Kidd Brewer's hill Saturday, and the Four Preps in the Rose Garden last night.

Awards were presented Thursday night at the Interfraternity Council's annual banquet. Kanapolis attorney Bedford W. Black, a past grand president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, was principal speaker.

FarmHouse fraternity received the IFC brotherhood scholastic award, while Kappa Alpha received the highest pledge award. The pledge award this year was named the Gerald H. Gardner award in honor of the late attendance counselor in the division of Student Affairs at NCS. Gardner was killed in an automobile accident March 26.

The E. L. Cloyd award for the outstanding contribution to the NCS fraternity system went to Dave Phillips, program director for the Erdahl-Cloyd Union.

The IFC field day was held Friday afternoon at Fraternity Row. The Saturday afternoon outdoor program, held at Kidd Brewer's Hill, featured the Ike and Tina Turner Revue. The festivities were closed Sunday afternoon with a concert by the Four Preps in the Rose Gardens.

Committee Rules On Anti-Slater Petition

Editor's note: The following letter was received by Ron Bowers and Gene Eagles from the Cafeteria Advisory Committee. Bowers and Eagles presented the petition to the committee. On behalf of the entire group of students who drew it up.

Since the petition really belongs to the 1,000 students who signed it, Bowers and Eagles asked that the answer be reprinted in full, and that the students who signed the petition be thanked for their support.

To Mr. Ronald J. Bowers and Mr. Eugene O. Eagles Jr.:
Gentlemen:

As indicated to you by the Cafeteria Advisory Committee following your presentation of the petition concerning the food service on campus, our committee has examined the situation in its many aspects. We have, individually and collectively, examined each item in the petition and at our meeting on April 10 developed this reply. We are outlining below, point for point, the items enumerated in your petition.

1. Whereas, Slater Food Service has a monopoly of all food served on campus—A monopoly does not exist regarding food service on our campus. Although three facilities are under the management of the Slater Food Service, there are six snack bars offering food service under the management of the Students Supply Store. The student is able to exercise where he may eat either on campus or off campus. Many off campus eating facilities are available.

2. Whereas, It fluctuates prices at its own discretion—It may be true that current cafeteria management could fluctuate prices at its discretion; however, the committee finds that this right has not been exercised and that the price schedules have been constant except for one item.

3. Whereas, The variation of menus is very slight—Menu variation is generally the problem of all food services. When approximately four meat items, six vegetable items, eight to ten salads and several dessert choices are presented at each meal, there is a considerable variation for the purchaser to make his selection. The committee finds the variation offered quite reasonable to the student and staff.

4. Whereas, The quality of food has steadily decreased—The quality of the food has not decreased as the purchase quality specifications have remained the same throughout the school year; however, we have noted the presentation of food has improved over the last four month period. Perhaps the terms quality and presentation have been used interchangeably.

5. Whereas, The portions have steadily decreased—In examining the complaint of decreased portion size, we would like to point out that the same size serving spoon is used in all cafeterias of nearby colleges. Many of the meat items are pre-weighed to yield uniform servings. Where new personnel have been hired to be on the serving lines, they have been given a training program on how to serve successive customers uniformly. Most of the meat items are portion controlled to four ounce servings as is true at other institutions. Items such as

Student Leaders To Consider Honor Code

Approximately 25 student leaders have been invited by the Honor Study Commission to discuss the Honor Code Wednesday night.

This group will attempt to evaluate the data from the commission's campus wide survey of faculty and student opinions of the Honor Code. The survey was completed last month.

These students, who are members of various organizations including Student Government and honorary and professional societies, will make recommendations to the commission concerning the study.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in 142 Harrelson Hall. It will be open to all students.

The commission will present the students with 10 specific questions:

1. Should we continue to have a campus-wide honor system or try something else?
2. If not a campus-wide system, should we have a code of ethics and leave the enforcement up to school groups or departments?
3. Should the pledge that each student signs upon entering the university be continued?
4. Should the pledges for quizzes and exams be continued?
5. Should first offenders be handled by faculty members?

Officers Elected To Fill Dormitory Posts

All but a few of next year's dormitory officials were decided in last week's elections.

The election, held in the respective dormitories last Thursday, decided all but three positions. Those three remain for a run-off tomorrow.

Presidents of their respective dormitories for the 1964-65 school year are as follows: William R. Cartwright, Alexander; Robert L. Boisky, Bagwell; James A. Leinster, Becton; Daniel G. Golden, Berry; Stephen E. McCauley, Gold; Robert Hege III, Owen; Terry E. Wilson, Syme; James T. Amos, Tucker; Harvey E. Hudgins, Turlington; Lafayette Thompson, Welch; and, in a run-off, Charles J. Duckworth and Phillip W. Atkins, Bragaw.

Winners of the position of vice-president in their dormitories were Claude L. Rackley, Bagwell; Robert H. Wilkinson, Becton; Nicholas R. McKinley, Berry; Walton W. Roberts, Bragaw; Edwin Niven III, Gold; H. Julian Smith, Owen; William H. Cambell, Syme; John L. Woolard, Tucker; Jerry C. Cranford, Turlington; George R. Gwinn, Welch; and, in a run-off, George W. Walters and Charles B. Jones, Alexander.

Hail, Keramos

The State chapter of the national professional ceramic engineering fraternity Keramos are to be congratulated for their excellent representation in Chicago last week.

It isn't often that a small and relatively little-known group suddenly appears in the national spotlight. But when such a group is suddenly named the outstanding chapter in the nation, it is time to give these people the recognition they deserve.

The organization received its recognition for two major projects, both of which aim at enlightening young people. One project was the sponsorship of an Explorer Scout group and the other was a study of student enrollment that has been useful in introducing North Carolina high school students to ceramic engineering.

It appears that this is one organization at least on the campus that has been busy all year long.

Honor System: What Do You Think

Those who failed to take advantage of the opportunity to express their opinions on the Honor Code during the winter months will be given another chance Wednesday night.

The problem is this: Is the present Honor Code effective and if not, what can be done to make it effective?

So far, no definite conclusions have been reached, but on Wednesday night, the Honor Study Commission's investigation will be drawing to a close. There is little time left for individual opinions to be heard, but if they are brought up Wednesday, the commission will use them in its final evaluation of the honor system.

The problem, however, is not limited to students. The faculty is just as involved as the students, and perhaps more so, since they have a greater opportunity to actually see who is cheating in the class than anyone else.

The problem is a joint one, since cheating is the major issue in judging an honor system. Just how cheating can be avoided or wiped out, is still another problem. But once a student cheats, what next?

The meeting Wednesday night concerns a major issue involving all students. Both students and faculty have a chance to have their say. But unlike other campus issues, such as senior exam exemptions and coed rules, when the showdown comes, the students will be making the decisions.

How Decent Can You Get?

We agree with Mr. Everett. Mr. McNulty's recent letter objecting to some of The Technician's pictures as being "less than decent" does need explanation.

Out of curiosity, one of our staff members called on Mr. McNulty last week. According to the staff member, the objection concerned a picture titled "I Dreamed I Was A . . ." in the April 16 issue of The Technician. It was a picture of an art work on exhibit in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union being viewed by a girl. McNulty added, however, that this was only an example of other "less than decent" pictures we have run in the past.

We're sorry, but we just can't please everybody.

COAT 'N TIE,
FOR SOUP 'N FISH
To The Editor:

I was very interested to read about the recent complaint concerning the way State students dress while dining at Slater's, especially since I usually dress rather casually. But with all due respects, I can't bring myself to put a coat and tie on when I know I am on my way to a Slater "special."

I would like to see the way people dress vary in direct proportion to the quality of food, since this would be a great incentive to both Slater and students. It would mean that decent food would be eaten in decent attire, which would satisfy both the Cafeteria Advisory Committee and ulcerated students. Of course, at the moment, students should be entitled to be unshaven, half-naked, and bug-ridden, but surely this is just the chance Slater has been waiting for.

DECENCY?

To The Editor:

The comment by Owen McNulty, Jr. that some of the pictures appearing in The Technician are less than decent made me think he gets a different Technician than the one distributed to the student body.

I can't figure what the hell he is referring to. Would someone please explain?

Cafeteria Committee Answers

fish sticks are four to a serving and in one case where three fish sticks per serving was called to the management's attention, the item was corrected immediately.

6. Whereas, The service is ridiculously slow—The serving lines here at N. C. State were observed to be shorter than at other universities visited. It is felt that rush hour or peak periods are handled quite well. If food service is pushed to too rapid a pace, you can be led into poor food service and sometimes disastrous consequences.

7. Whereas, Eating utensils are continuously dirty—Dirty utensils have been observed and sighted at sometime or another in nearly every establishment operated. We feel that the necessary corrective measures for clean and sanitary utensils have been instituted and that a better than average sanitation exists in our cafeterias. We would like to cite recent North Carolina Health Department report where Leazar Hall Cafeteria received a grade of 92.5% and New Cafeteria a grade of 93.5% which are excellent reports for large volume eating establishments. Should one on occasion find a dirty utensil, we suggest you lay it aside and get a clean one. The dishwasher in the College Union has been rebuilt and a new one was installed in Leazar Cafeteria during December, 1963.

8. Whereas, A very small percentage of the large profit is being returned to the University—The Committee finds that Slater is not making a profit. Also, an analysis of operations indicates the college will not lose money under the contractual arrangements existing unless there are unforeseen major breakdowns, which seems most unlikely.

9. Whereas, There is rising discontent with the service now provided—The Cafeteria Advisory Committee has carefully looked into the item of rising discontent. The committee through intensive interview fails to find any basis for this complaint among those persons currently patronizing the cafeterias.

An excellent spirit of cooperation exists among all parties involved in the management and operation of campus food service. Our comparisons of boarding plan at six colleges and universities in this geographic area show that N. C. State is in a most favorable position in its ability to offer the students nutritious food at prices slightly lower and in one case significantly more reasonable than in these other institutions.

There is plenty of competition in the Raleigh area for food service, and we find that the current cafeteria management is able to do a solid job of food service at reasonable prices.

STEAM PIPES

By Phil Gietzen

There has been this year a great awakening among students regarding the campus honor code. The system as it stands has been, as it should always be, under examination with respect to its effectiveness, its need and its validity. With the help of the administration a student commission has done a considerable amount of ground work by producing a report from the faculty, various student groups, and individual schools. In almost every case the faculty refused to assume any responsibility for cheating among their students. Some departments even refused to assume any responsibility.

On the whole, it is amazing to find members of the faculty making statements such as "A search for a system is probably hopeless" . . . "I will not report nor accuse a student for a violation of classroom ethics to any board or committee" . . . "Most students appear to be interested only in themselves and not any system. Professors believe this problem goes deeper than just college tradition. It goes back to this trend of moral decay that is active in our society."

The Physics Department had this to say: "The majority of the non-physics majors have great contempt for the department because of requirements for basic physics in most curricula. Most honor code problems exist with the non-physics majors in this department."

While from the department of Experimental Statistics comes this statement: ". . . honor is based on moral and ethical issues which have already been resolved at this stage of life. [We] do not feel you can teach or change standards in college. However, the system should protect, as much as possible, those who do have high standards. Cheating goes back to the old problem of pressure in relation to grades and the grade point average."

The report issued by the commission on the campus code states that the majority of the code violations occur among freshmen and sophomores in fields of non-major study. We may safely assume, in light of what we already know that this means students in large classes of mathematics, physics, chemistry, and probably ROTC have the highest rate of violations.

It seems reasonable to say then, that violations of the honor code are merely the effect of a much more serious problem. The problem is one which the faculty realizes yet refuses to investigate. It is a problem which the administration has not come to grips with. The problem is not without solution. It is merely one which calls for the elimination of some of the faculty as egg-heads whose total responsibility lies in cramming a student full of meaningless data and pushing him on down the assembly line of education.

Making adjustments in the honor code system may stop some of the cheating, but it will not solve the problem. The problem lies in the system of education. Some professors are so busy taking care of Number One that true-false, fill in the blank, and multiple choice quizzes are the answer to more free time. Large classes of programmed learning under poor supervision coupled with ridiculous "memory" examinations simply invite students to find adequate means to meet the demands.

Education is a thought process, not a group of meaningless equations, formulas, names, dates, and words. Until some members of the faculty are willing to give up a part of their social life in order to do the job that they are paid to do, adjusting the honor code will do little to remedy the real problem. In this age of moral decay, it is easier just to pass the buck on down to the student, charging him with all sorts of meaningless responsibilities regarding his honor and ethics. Some members of the faculty much prefer it to actually applying themselves to a little creative education.

It's ridiculous to go on thinking that students will swallow this sort of Reasoning while some professor is out for a coffee break with the secretary.

Wolfpack Suffers Two One-Run Loses

State's Wolfpack dropped from fourth to seventh place in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings as a result of action over the weekend. The drop came from losses to Virginia and Maryland in a two day trip north.

The Pack now has a 2-4 conference record and a 6-10 overall mark. Both of the week end losses were by one run, 2-1 to Virginia, and 3-2 to Maryland. All three of State's runs came on home runs, two by Vic Sorrell and one by Warren Cutts.

The Virginia game scoring was done entirely on home runs. The first homer came in the Cavalier half of the first and put the home team ahead, 1-0. Vic Sorrell tied the score at 1-1 with a mighty blast in the fifth inning. The winning run followed in the sixth for Virginia. In Saturday's game with Maryland, solo home runs by Sorrell and Cutts put the Pack ahead 2-1 after seven and one half innings. In the bottom of the eighth however, the home team loaded the bases with one out. A grounder was hit to Sorrell at shortstop for a possible double play but a base runner hit Sorrell, allowing two runs to score—the tying and winning runs for the Maryland team. An argument between the State coaches and the umpires failed to change the situation and Maryland won, 3-2.

On Tuesday, April 28, the Pack will open a three game home stand. The contests, all under the lights are with: Carolina, April 28; Virginia, May 1; and Maryland, May 2. All night contests will begin at 8:00.

Lou Pucillo Regrets Leaving Athletics

Freshman basketball coach Lou Pucillo announced last week the details of his resignation from the coaching staff.

He will be employed by the Brown-Forman Distillers Corporation as a regional representative in the Piedmont and Eastern North Carolina.

Pucillo expressed regret at leaving athletics, but said the business offer was "just too advantageous to turn down." He will continue living in Raleigh.

Pucillo's basketball playing days ended at State in 1959 when he was named All-American, and won the Atlantic Coast Conference honors of Player of the Year and Athlete of the Year. This was his third year on the State coaching staff.

Honor Code Board To Rule On Write-In

Write-in voting to elect a candidate to the Honor and Campus Code Boards may not be constitutionally legal at State.

William Fletcher, who was elected sophomore representative to the Campus Code Board by write-in was not approved by the Judicial Candidate Approval Board before his election.

The Judicial Candidate Approval Board approves each board candidate before he may run for election.

According to John Bynum, SG president, Fletcher received write-in votes on the first ballot, and was placed on the second ballot. He was elected.

Bynum stated that the matter of the constitutionality was brought to him because a student appearing before the Honor Code Board next year might use Fletcher's eligibility as an excuse for appeal.

Bynum stated that he had asked Mike Scofield, chairman of the Honor Code Board to convene the board and rule on the constitutionality.

Students For Gavin Raise Funds

"Students for Gavin," a new political organization on the N. C. State campus, has raised over $150 to buy political stickers.

According to Willard Preussel, a member of the group, 2,000 bumper stickers of two types have been purchased—"vote Gavin" stickers and "Register Republican" stickers.

About 60 percent of the $150 comprised gifts from members of the group; the other 40 percent was in loans, Preussel revealed.

Charles Williams, treasurer of the organization, received a letter from Robert Gavin, Republican candidate for governor, in which Gavin wrote, "You have done a splendid job, and I hope I can visit with you in the near future and talk with you and the members of your committee."

"Progress with Preyer"—this is the theme for the N. C. State Students for Preyer, organized two weeks ago on campus.

This group met Saturday, April 18 with the state wide Students for Preyer Rally at the Carolina Hotel downtown. John Bynum, statewide co-chairman for Students for Preyer, commented on the meeting: "The Rally was a great success in the organization of our forces in the state. It showed us the enthusiasm of the students for a man that will lead North Carolina in future development."

THE TROUBLE WITH SPORTS SHIRTS IS WHEN YOU WEAR AN ORDINARY TIE WITH ONE YOU LOOK LIKE A GANGSTER

HOWEVER there are times that are a little too dressy for an unadorned throat (as when you're wearing a blazer), and for these the Ascot is finding increasing favor. Women apparently find them madly attractive, and men like their go-to-hell feel once they get around to wearing them. The trick seems to be in tying them; actually, there is nothing to it. All you do is slip the Ascot around your neck, inside the collar, and loop one end over the other below your adam's apple; and loop it twice so it won't slip down your chest after awhile. ★ It just so happens that, foreseeing this demand, we have gone into the Ascot game. You will find a nice selection at your Eagle Ascot store, which is the same store where you buy Eagle Shirts. ★ Not to change the subject, but this magnificent short-sleeve sports shirt at about $9.00 which we have portrayed here is an exclusive Eagle pattern in two-ply cotton oxford, and comes in blue, green, or burgundy stripes alternating with skinnier black ones on an Eagle's Cream ground. ★ We also have a magnificent matching check; let's see if we can describe it: it's something as though we ran transverse stripes in the same colors across this pattern. No, that's a terrible description, you'd better go take a look for yourself. If you don't know where that would be, drop a line to Miss Afflerbach and she'll write right back with the news.
