

FOC Wants SAR; Can't Hear Oboes

Reliable sources indicated this morning that the Friends of the College, Inc. is planning to purchase the Seaboard Airline Railway for an undisclosed sum. When questioned by The Technician, the source revealed that he had learned of the surprise transaction from an unnamed member of the Coliseum workforce who deciphered a scribbled note which had been discarded in a military department file drawer.

Sam Jones, a member of the FOC board of directors, said this morning that he knew nothing of the deal, but was aware of increasing dissatisfaction among the "Friends" caused by the frequency with which passing trains have been interrupting the FOC concert programs held in Reynolds Coliseum, which is adjacent to the Seaboard main line tracks.

"We have repeatedly encouraged the railroad to discontinue their usage of the tracks through the university during oboe and pianissimo woodwind passages, but our protestations in the name of the fine arts have been ignored. I am not surprised that the Friends would seek to buy the railroad and thus rectify the nuisance," Jones said.

A spokesman from the railroad confirmed the existence of a multitude of complaints from Raleigh concertgoers, but declined to comment on the offer to buy the railroad.

Democratic speakers have been banned from campus.

Student Government, meeting in its regular session, yielded to conservative pressure last night, and passed a bill banning Democrats from orating on campus.

Debate waxed hot, heavy, and boringly on the bill. Introduced by Willard G. Helms, a representative from the School of Political Science, the bill specified that "speakers who are registered Democrats may not use state property to spread . . . their subversive beliefs . . . nor attempt to influence the clean-minded students at NCS." The bill exempted students and folk-singers.

Helms spoke to the bill, stating "It has been obvious for some time that the Democratic party has been attempting to brainwash the students at this fine institution of the unmentionable name. Already, our student government president has been corrupted by this madness, lending his name and position to the Democratic Party in an attempt to influence the students to register as Democrats in the forthcoming election."

Helms estimated that over 65% of the State student body were Democrats, and he estimated that very nearly 100% of the faculty were Democrats. Helms would not state whether he felt this was due to the liberalizing influence of the campus or to political pressure being brought to bear on the faculty.

Speaking against the bill "Little Johnny" Barnum, SG president said, "Now, I don't want to make the Republicans mad, or anything, but I can't feel this could really be a very good bill. On the other hand, perhaps a modification of the bill, so that it simply banned all speakers from campus would make the bill more workable." Stating that he had a Preyer commitment Barnum limited his answering speech to two hours, ending the debate with a stirring appeal for free silver, saying "you shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." Barnum then strode from the room with tears in his eyes, upsetting sleeping students in his path.

Sipping coffee stolen from the Union snack bar after it had been closed down, Helms defeated an attempt by Mervin Pruill, chief parliamentarian, to declare the bill nolo contendere under a habeas corpus motion. Helms challenged Pruill to look the motion up in Robert's Rules of Order. Pruill found that the motion required a 100% vote by the body. The vote failed when Pruill voted "nay" by mistake.

The vote was called, and the motion carried after Helms brandishing a sawed-off shotgun, urged everyone to "remember that God, your country, and your mother are all counting on you to do the 100% American thing and end this takeover by a pro-communistic group."

Gubernatorial candidates for the Democratic primary were unavailable for comment, although one of I. Beverly Puddle's press agents felt that the bill "was a very good bill, and it's very nice to see students taking an interest in politics. However, we should amend this bill, or something."

Laws Of Economics Cited As Basis Of New Grade System

The Faculty and Administration have joined forces and have unanimously passed a bill calling for a slight change in the present grading system.

The grading system as it stands now, the faculty feels, does not present enough of a challenge to the student's intellectual abilities.

Spokesman for the faculty, a noted professor of French, described the new program as follows: "The system is really very simple. At the beginning of each grading period, the student deposits ten dollars with his professor. Then, at the end of the semester, some of the deposit is returned in proportion to the grade he receives for the course. For example, if the student receives an A, none of his deposit is returned, two dollars are returned for a B, four for a C, six for a D, and nine for an F. The professor always has to keep some, you know! "The graduated scale with larger rebates corresponding to the lower grades insures that the students receiving those grades will have a sufficient amount of money for a humongous binge with which to console themselves. Of course, if the student deposits only eight dollars, he can hardly expect an "A" and so on down the scale."

All members of the faculty voiced strong support for the proposed system. A professor in the Engineering School stated, "This new plan will not completely remedy the lack of initiative on the students part, but it will provide a monetary compensation for the poverty stricken professors who are now at State."

The bill calls for the plan to become effective within thirty-four years.

Classes To Give This . . .

All Class Gift Salvaged From Mass Disapproval

The classes of '64, '65, and '66 have been saved!

The School of Design, although shattered by the recent defeat of the all-class kiosk, refused to go down without a fight. After heated debate, the design students selected one of their most outstanding and talented young geniuses to submit a plan in lieu of the kicked-out kiosk.

The aspiring young architect, Mellon Flapp, having been informed of this great honor bestowed on him, stated humbly and with great dignity, "Even though I am the greatest, I didn't suspect that my plan would be selected."

The magnificent structure, to be known as the "Lunar Light" will soar sixty feet over the campus. The two transparent concrete towers terminate in three luminous, multi-colored white lights. The bouncing five-hundred-pound designer stated, "The three lights reaching for the sky will signify the character of the students of the three classes as they are striving to make a better life for themselves and their fellow man."

The N. C. State PP, bursting with excitement over the proposed project, stated that they were ready to begin construction immediately.

The only stipulation made by that department was that the material to be used for construction be changed to brick.

Commencement Date Set, Then Re-Set

The university administration announced today that commencement exercises, originally scheduled for Saturday, May 30, and rescheduled for May 29, has been changed again.

The new date of the gala coming out party has been set at Monday, May 32.

The extra days were provided as a courtesy for the supporters of candidate I. Beverly Puddle who may need the time to sober up after the primary which is to be held on the date originally reserved for commencement.

Belles Require Pedigreed Males

All university students who wish to be eligible to date students at Saint Mary's College after April 1 must report to the main reception parlor at four o'clock this afternoon to be registered.

Officials at the young ladies' school made the announcement today that henceforth the Belles will be more selective in the type of young men they date whether they like it or not.

The announcement stated that all males desiring dates at the institution must submit data concerning their family and past academic background to the trustees for approval.

The strengthening of the in loco parentis policy was apparently precipitated by a survey released over the Easter holidays which showed that men were spending less on St. Mary's girls than on those attending other schools in the area.

Liberal Policy Adopted For New Coed Dorm

Peele Hall has released the rules for coeds living in the reconverted Watauga Hall next year.

Men are allowed in the dormitory rooms only at night. During the day, they must wait in the reception room where they will be entertained by the housemother.

The girls must be in the dorm by four a.m. during week nights, but they need not report in on week-ends.

Quiet hours in the dorm will be maintained from 4 to 6 a.m. Alcoholic beverages may not be consumed during these hours.

All personal pets must be registered at Peele Hall within 24 hours of their admittance. The animals will be fed and cared for by the housemother.

Any firearms carried into the dorm must be un concealed. They may be cleaned by any ROTC cadet. For an appointment to get firearms cleaned, coeds should enter military headquarters in a military manner, salute, and state name and business when addressed.

All coeds will be required to live in the dorm.

Cadets Get New Regalia For Azalea

David Pill, the leader of the Marching Cadets, announced today that the Cadets will change from winter dress to summer uniforms effective immediately.

This year the cadets will alter the traditional summer uniform to include Argyle socks, kilts with white belting, and matching Boy Scout hats with baby blue pom-poms.

"A number of the cadets have complained because of knobby knees," said Pill, "but if the boys will march fast no one will be able to tell."

Pill in closing added that one of the highlights of the year for the Marching Cadets is their annual march to Wilmington, North Carolina. This coming weekend the Cadets will leave Raleigh late in the afternoon and march all the way to the Azalea Festival.

Ban The Democrats - All The Way

So the Student Government has banned Democratic speakers from campus. This can only lead to trouble.

While we wholeheartedly support any bill which will protect the students of this university from underhanded motives to corrupt America's youth...

We feel that the bill should have included a statement to the effect that any son or daughter of said Democrat, regardless of which party he chooses to support when he becomes of age...

Just stop for a moment and consider the effect that such students could have on their classmates. Suppose, for example, that a son of a Democrat was assigned to a dorm room with a Communist.

The consequences could be drastic.

This Democratic product, even though he does not profess to be a Democrat himself, surely has the marks of his parents' political ideals impressed upon his mind.

And the worst of all evils would be inevitable. He might even try to date some of this institutions coeds.

Quite frankly, we can not condone any such behavior. We would be forced to advocate the suspension of both this young lady and this son of a Democrat.

We expect the Student Government to acknowledge its mistake in not including this statement in the original bill by amending it in a special session this Saturday night.

Progressive Education

At last the administration has come up with a brilliant solution to perfecting the grading system.

We have long held the present system is not feasible. The students should under no circumstances be required to depend on their own intelligence to determine their grades.

The administration should be applauded for its wise decision. Now the students may concentrate on their jobs and forget about studying.

Frosh English Is Drastically Revised

The English Department will announce tomorrow a drastic revision in their freshman reading program.

According to Dr. Faillell, head of the department, all freshman reading material has been revised so that freshmen will be able to grasp the content with first-grade rapidity.

The Tell-Tale Heart by Edgar Allan Poe—A Modern Revision for State Freshmen.

In a big house live two men, an old man named Tom and a young man named Dick.

Old man Tom is a good man except for his left eye which is evil. It is an evil, evil eye.

Because of Tom's evil eye, Dick hates him. Dick hates evil. Rah for Dick.

Dick is going to kill Tom. Let's watch the murder. It is now midnight. See Dick open Tom's bedroom door. Open the door slowly, Dick. Slowly, Dick, slowly. Oh, no! Tom has awakened.

Tom is scared. See how scared he is. He is scared. man, scared. It is fun to scare Tom. Have fun. Help Dick scare Tom. Say boo. Scare, scare.

Hear Tom's heart beating. bam—bam. Bam—Bam—Bam. BAM—BAM—BAM—BAM. Ho, ho, ho. He is scared.

Yeeoww!!! Dick jumps yelling into Tom's bedroom. It's a scream. Tom's heart goes bam. BAM! He is scared stiff.

Dick pulls Tom's stiff body off the bed onto the floor. He drags the mattress over the body. Dick jumps up and down on the mattress. Go up, Go down. Jump, Dick, jump. Jump, jump, jump. See Dick jump. Wheeeeee! Have fun with Dick.

Help Dick jump on Tom. Be happy. Soon Tom is dead.

Dick is cutting Tom into pieces. Dick likes to cut up Tom. Squish, squish. Dick needs help. Help Dick cut up Tom. This is fun. This is a new experience. Experience, man, experience.

Dick is stuffing the parts of Tom's body under the floor boards of Tom's bedroom. He is very careful not to leave any blood. It is fun to be careful.

Help Dick be careful. Have fun. Stuff Tom's head in good. Stuff, stuff.

It is now 4 a.m. The police knock at the front door. They are investigating the yell. The neighbors heard a scream, they say.

Dick is confident. He shows the officers the entire house. Be confident with Dick. Show the officers this room and that room. Show them every room. It is fun to be confident. Confident, man, confident.

Come, officers, let's go into this room and rest our weary legs. Dick leads the officers into Tom's bedroom. They sit down. Dick smiles in triumph. The officers have found nothing. Smile, Dick, smile. See Dick smile. Dick is happy. Help Dick smile. Be happy.

Dick hears a faint noise. bam—bam—bam. He laughs. Ho, ho. What an imagination I have, he thinks. What an imagination. Yes. Dick certainly does have an imagination. What an imagination. Ho, ho.

Bam—Bam—Bam. What a loud imagination Dick has! He certainly does have a loud imagination. Dick does. Ho. That's what it takes now days to get ahead—Imagination, man, Imagination.

BAM—BAM—BAM. Dick gulps. Gulps! BAM—BAM—BAM! I admit it! Dick screams. I admit it! I killed old Tom. He's here under the floor boards. Hear his infernal heart!

Dick is happy. He is happy because he confessed the murder. Happy, happy. Help Dick be happy. Be happy with Dick. Happy, happy, happy.

Math Major Proves People Don't Exist

A State mathematics major, Sloggy Ooglehouse, proved yesterday that people don't exist, contrary to popular belief.

His professor, Miss Ermine Daggerbutt, confirmed the proof as valid and released it to The Technician and other newspapers of the world this morning. At this chronological moment mathematicians and scientists the world over are oozing their brains out in a desperate effort to invalidate the proof.

Som philosophers and scientists, however, have accepted the proof as valid and are investigating the effects this new truth will have on mankind. The world's foremost philosopher, Dr. Flufu Hopticking, declared, "This discovery is the biggest breakthrough since God created woman! As soon as man fully appreciates the fact that he doesn't exist—that he himself is only an illusion—he will merge into eternal unconsciousness, accomplishing his most noble and glorifying purpose. It will solve all the world's problems."

The proof that people don't exist follows: "Let E represent the existence of people and let N represent the non-existence of people.

Then E^-NE+N^ equals N^-NE+E^ Reason: Identity

(E-N)^ equals (N-E)^ Reason: Factoration

E-N equals N-E Reason: Ex-traction

2E equals 2N Reason: Trans-position

E equals N Reason: Division

"This proves that the existence of people is the same exact thing as the non-existence of people. So, if people exist, then they must also not exist. Or, if people do not exist, they do not exist. Conclusion: people do not exist."

Ooglehouse urged, "I would be excitingly thrilled to discuss my proof with any State student. They may call me at TE 3-2511."

Letters Concerned About Technician

To the Editor:

I'd like to know what in the hell's going on down there at The Technician office? I picked up the paper last night and the entire thing was printed upside-down. Not only that, but you misspelled the word "cossack." You had it spelled "k-i-o-s-k." Sometimes I wonder about you guys.

While I'm griping, I'd like to add that I don't like coeds, Harrelson Hall, the administration, pickled pigs' feet, mayonnaise, basketball, Democrats, Republicans, and State.

If I weren't so tired and busy, I'd come down there and get that paper straightened out.

Donald Duck

To the Editor:

How are you? I'm fine. I just thought that since you get so many grouchy letters that I'd bring a little sunshine into your day.

New Building

The design of the new English Department has finally been released. It is the product of the ingenious imagination of Professors Lodwick Heartless, Bellboy Williams, and L.S.M.F.T. Champion, who will spend the afternoons this spring gathering straw for the thatched roof. The original design has been approved by Kamy Helfner of the School of Design. The building will be dedicated April 23 by a young, aspiring playwright, Billy Shakestick. (Photo by Sixteenth Century)

Campus Crier

Members of the Women's Association who are planning to attend the meeting on April 8 are reminded of the increase in the price of the meal from 65¢ to $1.25.

A reward is offered for the return of a 1964 class nose ring. The finder is asked to contact the coed who lost it when she was chasing the boy who had slipped it out of his nose.

The monthly meeting of States Mates will feature a talk on "How to Help Husbands Flunk Out Early and Go To Work."

A sick pig has been lost on campus. It was last seen in the parking lot behind Leazar Hall. If found, it may be returned to the Infirmary.

Class rings for next year will be rectangular in shape to accommodate the name University of North Carolina at Raleigh.

NCS UNC RNC To Field Coed Grid Team

State has fielded a women's football team. The team is made up of State co-eds with the line averaging two hundred ten lbs. and the backfield, three hundred and forty lbs. Uniforms for the team were made by maiden form. Each player will wear a helmet, steel breast plate, and a whale bone corset. No hip pads will be used.

The first game will be with women's prison and will be held in the prison compound. When asked about tickets for the game the Prisons coach, Miss Pig Skin, said that five year passes were available. After this pre-season game State's coach, Miss Grand Stands said that the State team will meet Michigan State. Using entirely new tactics State hopes to smash Michigan. The game will be played in the Varsity Theater. Tickets for this game are available at the box office.

State's coach is predicting the team will get a bowl bid. Most probably the offer will come from the Camode bowl or the Dust bowl. If the State team does not get a bowl bid this year the team will most probably drop back and punt.

Girls interested in going out for the team can report to the office of the dean of girls for psychiatric examination.

What The Hail! We Beat Yale!!

By Bill Fishburne

State won the ball game today. At almost exactly 3:26 1/2 p.m. the State team quit en-mass due to a salary dispute. The unsalaried Yale team refused to postpone the game, leading to a forfeiture by the State team.

The Cheerleaders, assisted by the Technician sports staff came to the rescue. Peter Pann (adv.) offered the services of the cheerleaders to play the game, in place of the State ball team. Vic Sorehill, head coach, agreed to coach the Cheerleaders and the game commenced.

Marlin Bite, Technician Fashion Editor, led off for State, and hit a line bunt to short. It was so short, in fact, that the Yale catcher collided with the third baseman, who received a fractured digit attempting to throw out Bite. Bite objected to the Umpire about the force play, and the third baseman was sent to the showers.

When play resumed, Out replaced Smith at third and Pull moved to center for Right, who moved to Left replacing Who who moved to First replacing Second, moving Catch to Short putting Second at home. Whom continued as pitcher and Triple stayed at second.

Cathy Candy was next up for State, and she struck Out, when Whom tried a squeeze play. Fishbone pinched for Ever, and Candy knocked him out. Yale protested and Candy was ejected from the game. McLaughing hit a single to Left, who made an error putting McLaughing on Second. Ray went down swinging. Ross pulled a needle splitting third, and Pann flew out.

In the top of the ninth Second hit a single to Bite, who tagged Second for the force and threw to Kemp at first, but

Intramural Pantie Raids To Begin Next Spring

The intramural department announced today that next spring would see the addition of a new sport to the intramural program. The "pantie parties" will be in two phases beginning with organization and preliminary activities and ending with the contest being held on the new intramural field around Watauga Hall.

Points will be given on an individual and team bases. The team that raids the most panties during the pantie raid will probably win something. Individual points are based on size, color, and difficulty of obtainability. Bonus points will be given for complete sets of the Monday thru Sunday variety.

Physical Plant (PP) has consented to provide all the necessary equipment such as ladders, torches, axes, and room keys. Preliminary activities during the organization period will consist of dorm burning, rail road track greasing, and class room type bombing.

Wine Bath Found In Library

FBI agents uncovered this morning a massive bootlegging operation in the campus steam tunnels.

Said Mr. I. A. Boozer, head of the steam plant, "Googling wineguzzlers! We had it made! Seven thousand students for a market, all the free hot water we needed, and a perfect hide out!"

News of the operation leaked out when "Little Johnny" Barnum, SG president, discovered a janitor bathing in a tub of wine which had been tapped from a radiator in the library restroom. "Tapping lines is one thing I don't allow for," Bar-num muttered.

The FBI will let the operation continue, however, since the profits are donated to a worthy cause, the promotion of The Technician.

Easter Morning Blaze Leaves Fraternity Camped In The Street

During the Easter holidays, a terrible tragedy occurred on an extension of the campus.

The Beta Sig fraternity house was ravished by fire.

The fire was first noticed at 4 a.m. Sunday morning by some of the brothers who had stayed there to do a little extra research work.

Tom Jones, a brother, said he had been in bed since 10:30 and was just getting up to start studying again when he heard two explosions on the ground floor.

Tom was able to arouse the few other guys in the house and they tried fruitlessly to fight the blaze. When the Raleigh fire trucks reached the scene, the whole house was one big blaze.

By 8 a.m. the fire was extinguished but the house was completely destroyed. Damage was estimated at $2 million.

No immediate plans for rebuilding have been made yet. Most of the boys are now living on fraternity row in pup tents donated by ROTC.

The campus cops who are investigating the case say they will have the case solved by next fall. Several clues have been turned up to indicate that the fire was caused by an excess of alcohol in the basement, a spokesman said.
