New Policy Causes Increase In N. C. State Student Fees

BY CORA KEMP

N. C. State student fees have been increased $18 for the year to pay for utilities used in non-academic buildings and to pay matching retirement and social security funds for the employees.

The fees went up $6.50 per student for the fall semester and will be increased $11.50 for the spring semester primarily to support the athletic department, Erdahl-Cloyd Union, and health services.

The change was brought about by a directive from the State Department of Administration indicating that non-academic buildings will no longer be financed by state appropriations.

N. C. State's business manager, William Turner, said the University was first notified that the appropriations would be discontinued December 12, 1963, and the increase in fees was the only feasible way to compensate for the loss. However, the student body was not notified of the new rates until bills were issued August 1.

The higher fees were approved by the University's Board of Trustees this summer, Turner said. The University is already paying the cost of the utilities but will not begin payment of the retirement fees and social security funds until July 1, 1965, Turner said.

Frank Justice, budget analyst for the state Department of Administration, said the state department issued the directive in an overall attempt to "clean-up" the budgets. He said all three branches of the Consolidated University were included in the clean-up, and that the University at Chapel Hill was hit hardest because of its larger study body and health services.

Projected costs for a year's utility bill at the Union is $30,000, with $8,548 for the employees' fees.

At the Clark Infirmary, the estimated utility cost per year is $4,000 and the matching retirement and social security costs are expected to be $8,430.

The figures for the Athletic Department were not available yesterday.

The student medical fee was upped from $6 to $7.50 per student each semester. The athletic fee increased from a yearly total of $15 to $20, remaining at $10 the fall semester and going up from $5 to $10 for the spring semester.

The student activities fee is $27 this semester and $26 in the spring. This is a $5 increase each semester over last year's fee.

Summer school medical fees are also scheduled for an increase, from $2 per session to $2.50 and fees at the Union will move from $4 up to $5.50 each summer session.

The new fees put the total cost of tuition and fees up to a record high of $169 for the fall semester and $168 for the spring semester.

Turner said that he did not expect the fees to be increased again next fall. He explained that if the total increases were not used this year to pay the bills, the money would be absorbed into the overall budget of the particular organization to provide the students with better service.

He said he was primarily concerned with whether the current increase would cover the bills.

Turner said the administration did not want to increase the fees, but that the state had made it clear the students, rather than the state, should be paying for non-academic functions.

Justice commented that his department wanted to draw a distinct line between what was used for academic and non-academic purposes. He added that the department began an investigation into the matter about "five or six years ago."

Turner remarked that the Student Supply Stores, the dormitories, and the Print Shop were also included in the directive, but these groups were already self-supporting.

Computer Colic! And the lines form to the rear.

NCS Enrollment Reaches New High

BY BILL FISHBURNE

Enrollment at State for this semester is expected to reach an all-time high of 8,500, including 400 women students.

Tentative registration figures show 7,150 undergraduate students with Engineering leading the way with 3,150 expected.

Actual figures will not be available for some time due to the mix-up in registration this semester. The punch cards for the IBM machines were not quite right, and this was complicated by other factors which led to the snafu encountered by most students on Sunday.

The School of Textiles announced it would not conduct any classes until today. The Textile office did not answer when called by The Technician to confirm the re-opening of classes.

Part of the increase in enrollment this year is due to night classes being considered as day school. The enrollment was separate from the regular school until this year.

Approximately 16 per cent of the student body was affected by the computer foul up. This is approximately 1,360 students. Some were completely wiped out by the computer, and others were only mildly bothered by any classes until today.

One student for example, was scheduled for a 641 chemistry course with time to be "arranged." He had signed up for CH 103. A coed in psychology was put down for 14 hours of touch football, with the time listed as "conflict."

Goldwater To Speak On Courthouse Steps

Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican candidate for President, will continue his campaign in North Carolina by giving a speech in front of the Wake County Court House tomorrow at 9:30 a.m.

The senator's plane is expected to arrive at the Raleigh-Durham airport tonight. The senator will then go to his hotel for some rest before attending a fund-raising breakfast for the North Carolina GOP.

Transportation will be provided by the State Young Republicans Club, beginning 8:30 Thursday morning in front of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union.

Additional information may be obtained from the chairman of the Young Republicans Club or one of the other members of their booth in the basement of the Union.

Watauga Hall Opens As State's First Coed Dorm

BY JIM ROBINSON

Something new (besides more bricks) has been added this fall at N. C. State—girls!

Improving the scenery on campus are about 200 females, 90 of which are housed in Watauga Hall across from the Alumni Building. The coeds may sometimes be contacted by calling one of the two phones at the hall (1st floor—TE 2-9447; 2nd floor TE 2-9132). Telephones in the hall may not be used later than half an hour after closing hours and 12 p.m. on weekends (Friday-Sunday).

Visitors will be received in the parlors from 8 a.m. until the closing hour. Residents must personally sign out before leaving to spend a night or weekend out, only to approved designated locations, and parental permission must be indicated to the Head Residence Counselor before such nights out. Late permission of one hour is allowed for school holidays ending on week nights (not including Friday as a week night).

The Technician would like to join the rest of the 8,000 males at N. C. State in welcoming our coed students to the I.B.M.-wrecked Wolfpack campus. The problems they will encounter here, as a result of being isolated in this nearly all-male society, are various.

Watauga Hall hours require that they return to the residence hall at 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday, 12 midnight on Sunday, giving them a little time to retreat to their dorm for study.

Faculty Club Manager Dies

Funeral services for William Macon (Bill) Richardson will be tomorrow at Edenton Street Methodist Church.

Richardson, assistant manager of the N. C. State Faculty Club, died Monday night at Veterans Hospital in Durham of injuries received in an automobile accident near Lone Pine, Calif., July 16.

For a number of years, Richardson operated a vending machine service before becoming assistant manager of the faculty club.

UNC To Play At N. C. State

N. C. State Coach Earle Edwards has asked that when State's new stadium is completed the annual State-Carolina game be held two consecutive years in Raleigh.

The request was made at a joint press meeting in Chapel Hill yesterday afternoon. Carolina Athletic Director Chuck Erickson objected to the proposal, stating Carolina's schedules are made up five years ahead.

The annual State-Carolina fracas has been played at Carolina for the past 12 years.

All seniors, grad students and professionals who wish to have their picture in the yearbook this year should go by the Erdahl-Cloyd Union this week. Appointments and sittings will be made through September 25. This will be the only time these students may get their pictures taken.

Square dancing will be taught at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union Ballroom.

The Christian Science Organization will meet tomorrow at 7:15 p.m., in the E. S. King Chapel. Interested students are invited.

The State Student Government Legislature will meet tonight at 7 in Room 256-258 of the Union. All senators are requested to attend.

Tryouts will be held September 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. for parts in the Frank Thompson Theatre's production of Jean Anouilh's play, Antigone. Parts are open for eight men and four women, including both leads.

New Arts tickets are now on sale at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union main desk for $3.50 each.

There will be a brief meeting of Thirty and Three at noon, September 21 in the Student Government office.

Welcome Freshmen

The welcome mat is still out for the new students. It will take them some time to get adjusted to their new schedules, provided they have gotten them and even then, it is impossible what to predict next.

But we encourage them to take an active part in student activities as soon as possible, if they are at all interested in getting a complete education. This way, they might not know all that happens here, but at least they will feel a part of the university community.

It is hoped that when they graduate, their years will have been well spent.

Pre-Registration, Registration, &amp; Re-Registration

Each fall students return to school wondering what could possibly happen and this time everything did—all at one time.

The University's first attempt at pre-registration like all other firsts, had its faults. Namely, it didn't work properly.

But before pre-registration goes down in history as a misguided stepchild, the administration would do well to take a careful look at just what went wrong in order to avoid a similar mishap in the future.

The computer's mix-up in schedules involved everything from issuing no schedules at all for some people to such absurd mistakes as assigning a class in the fourth floor of a three-story building.

The primary reason for the errors, according to the administration, is that somebody punched the programming cards wrong. Theoretically, the computer had the correct idea, but not the correct information.

The blame cannot be pinpointed to one person or one group, and even if it could, it would not compensate for the time students have wasted while waiting for the situation to clear up.

The confusion has caused many classes to go unattended, not because the students haven't made an effort to find their classes, but because the information simply wasn't available. Consequently, several days' of potential class time has become chaos for some students.

On the other hand, the students who were registered correctly find their classes interrupted by those who weren't.

Fortunately, the students have taken their poor luck in stride. There have been no violent protests and the administration should be grateful for this.

To say that the University's first attempt at pre-registration failed is hardly apropos, however, but it has been extremely disappointing.

POSTER PROBLEM

To the Editor:

Finding posters advertising fraternity rush on many major campus buildings this fall surprised me to a certain extent. In the past it has been a school policy not to permit posters on the exteriors of campus buildings except during elections. Indeed, even this has been limited more and more from election to election.

On several occasions in the past, organizations of which I am a member have been prevented from using posters in this manner.

Last year the chairman of the Campus Chest Drive was reprimanded by the Student Government for placing posters on the outside of several campus buildings. One would think that this cause would have precedence over fraternity rush.

If the posters were unauthorized, the Interfraternity Council should be reprimanded as the Campus Chest was. If the posters were authorized, the administration should make clear what its future policy on organizational posters is to be.

OPEN LETTER TO THE STUDENT BODY

Dear Students:

The 1964 football season promises to be a good one for North Carolina State. From all indications, it seems that the Wolfpack of 1964 will soon be ready to go into competitive action. I am certain that many times during the coming season, we, the Student Body of North Carolina State, will have the opportunity to sing the praises of our victorious team.

However, I am certain that each student on this campus realizes the responsibility that a victorious athletic team places upon this student body. No matter how successful our teams are, part of the sensation of victory can be wiped away if we, the Student Body, do not give the most gentlemanly and sportsman-like support that we can. Each of us expect our athletes to be good sports and act in a gentlemanly manner on and off the field. Therefore, I feel that the Student Body owes this same type action to our school and our teams.

Saturday afternoon, North Carolina State will visit its arch-rival, the University of North Carolina. I urge each student on this campus to, at all times, conduct himself as a true gentleman and sportsman as we visit our sister institution's campus. True, as always, the rivalry will be as keen this year as ever before, but I challenge this student body to set the example of gentlemanly conduct. I have the utmost confidence that we will conduct ourselves Saturday at Chapel Hill in a most gracious manner.

So, as we visit our rival on Saturday, let's cheer loud and long and at the same time let's remember that we are all to act as a gentleman and as representatives of North Carolina State.

John Atkins
President of Student Government

STEAMPIPES

By Bill Fishburne

Dear Freshmen,

This column is the first in the nation to be composed, typed, punctuated, and printed entirely by computer. Nothing can go wrong/* go wrong/* go wrong/* go wrong/* go wrong/*...

And so begins another year.

This column will again be concerned with the social, cultural, and educational things that affect the life of the students. This statement of concern will no doubt lead this column into other areas such as politics, finances, religion and computers.

Last year all continuing students went through a painless procedure known as pre-registration. The purpose of this was to eliminate the lines that formed at the Coliseum during the regular registration each semester. In some respects everything went quite well this year. For example, I am not in school now, and I won't be until Friday. When I walk into a class no one asks me whether or not I belong there, and no one asks what section I am assigned to. When I don't like a professor or class, I simply go next door. Great!

The School of Textiles did not get processed at all. A very wise decision was made to close the school until Wednesday (today). The Math department lost all courses below the 300 level—for a while. A friend of mine found them—on his schedule, all in conflict.

FOURTH

Bloody Fourth is gone. The oldest and in many ways the proudest building on the campus has been razed to make way for an addition to the School of Design. It held less than 45 students, so the housing space is not missed now that Lee dorm has been opened.

Something, however, is lacking around the School of Design. Now the descriptive drawing students must look to the YMCA or Gold dorms to find something worth sketching. It will not be found, unfortunately, for Fourth dorm was unusually well proportioned and quite handsome. The days when the dormitory was a second home for the students is gone forever. Now we have the age of concrete and glass, where the dormitory is a place to sleep and an area in which to study. Nothing more, and nothing less.

AGROMECK

This year the AGROMECK will not photograph juniors, sophomores and freshmen. Only the seniors, grad students and Design professionals will be in the annual. Thus we shall have a smaller annual, with higher quality for considerably less money. Most schools seem to forget the quality of the annual and aim only for a large annual. The delusion seems to be "the bigger it is, the better it is." Well, it isn't so. The schools who consistently win the top awards for their annuals do not have the largest ones. They are simply the best ones. State is moving toward the status of a major university in all respects. The AGROMECK and its new staff perhaps will be the most obvious example of the new feeling.

COMPUTERS, AGAIN

All students are urged to complete their drop and add cards and hand them in to Peele hall as soon as possible. The computer needs some more practice.

STRAW VOTE

For some unknown reason we have decided to have a vote amongst the students to determine for whom the campus will vote in November. Simply fill in the ballot as indicated and turn it in at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union main desk, or at the TECHNICIAN office. Please do not vote if you are from Madison county, as we would not have time to count the ballots this year.

Little Pessimism Shown In Pack's 1964 Outlook

By Frank Weedon
Sports Information Director
The 1964 edition of Wolfpack football finds only 13 lettermen returning from the Atlantic Coast Conference co-championship team of 1963. This is the fewest of any team in the ACC. Only one school lost more lettermen by graduation than did State (16).

It is obvious that there will have to be some rebuilding; mainly on the second and third units. The first unit will field 10 seniors and one junior, and should be able to hold its own in ACC competition. But the listed second team has only two seniors, with five juniors and four sophomores.

The backfield will be bigger, without sacrifice of speed, as it averages 190 pounds. This should provide better backfield blocking than last year. The weight in the line is about the same, averaging 207 pounds.

OFFENSE—There will not be a change in the Pack's winged-T formation, but there could be some change in the style of offense. More running is likely from both quarterbacks and the running backs. The passing may not be as strong.
