Johnson Ad Libs In Coliseum Speech

By BILL FISHBURNE
President Johnson, evidently not content with his prepared text, ad-libbed for fifteen minutes while speaking in the Coliseum Tuesday night.

Since the text passed out to the press before the speech ended with the words "journey," the President took his leave from the text at that point.

"Peace," said Johnson, "is the most important word in the English language." This began a speech on the awesome responsibilities of the Presidency, and how this power was put upon him 10 months ago. "We realized that you could press a button and wipe out the lives of 300 million people," he said, "and you cannot recall these lives."

Warming up slightly, Johnson hit at Goldwater by saying, "Don't let anyone tell you there is not more freedom in the world today than there has been in your lifetime. Yet we hear men of little faith say we have lost our freedom. Well, I haven't lost my freedom. I am freer tonight than I was a year ago because of the nuclear treaty . . . the air I breathe here tonight is less polluted."

This brought the house down in true political fashion.

The President also said, "America is the strongest nation in the world, and is stronger than all the rest put together." On the budget: "We spent $670,000,000 less than we told you we would." On Reynolds Coliseum: "This is the most beautiful hall I have ever seen. I like the decorations, and I like the Democratic enthusiasm."

Switching to North Carolina politics, "I have enjoyed working with your young, progressive Governor Terry Sanford and I will enjoy working with Dan Moore." Shortly thereafter he said, "I don't know when I will be invited back again."

When the President arrived, the State band played "Hail to the Chief." Just before that moment Dan Moore entered and mounted the rostrum. At that point, 14 students from Southeastern Seminary stood and yelled, "Join the Party, Moore!" When the President first mentioned Moore's name, the same group shouted "You're in now, Moore."

Following the speech, the President went to the balcony overlooking the north parking lot and addressed the people who had not been admitted to the Coliseum. There he urged everyone to vote Democratic from the "White House to the Court House."

Then Johnson entered the ex-hub bubble top limousine with Moore and Sanford for the trip to the airport.

India Association President Resigns

By AVIJIT DE

Both big India and little India know now, to get the "Indian things" done, they must have leadership.

Little India, Association of the Indian Students of North Carolina State, is presently faced with a political crisis due to the resignation of President Ram Badan Singh, who must return to India soon.

With the election of a successor to Singh on top of the agenda, the Association met at the Union Sunday night.

Business transactions were quickly put out of the way, and the floor opened for the nomination of candidates. C. N. Nirmel was nominated for the presidency, and the nomination was seconded. The candidate signified the acceptance of the nomination.

A slight murmur rose in the crowd at this point, and the clouds began to gather of the chaos in which the meeting dispersed more than two hours later.

A member up front objected to Nirmel's candidacy on the grounds that Nirmel, who hails from Kenya and who migrated there with his Indian parents when he was still a young boy, is not an Indian and hence cannot be nominated to the Association's highest office.

To this statement, there were clapping and sounds of approval from the 92-member club.

According to one of Nirmel's supporters, this opposition was largely due to Nirmel's withdrawal from the club and his demand of the refunding of his dues last year.

K. M. Mathur, the treasurer of the Association, stated that his impression of the cause of Nirmel's actions was that Nirmel did not consider himself an Indian and therefore did not wish to belong to the club.

Nirmel, who holds a British passport, stated that "financial irresponsibility and total lack of coordination" on the part of the club leadership was the cause of his actions, and he denied making any statements which may have contributed to Mathur's impression.

From that first objection, the order in the meeting began to deteriorate. Hot discussions, proposals, shouting, and hand-clapping prevailed on the floor despite the effort of the president and a few members to get the meeting back to order.

The argument that Nirmel's supporters brought forth was that since the club had no formal constitution, the legality of Nirmel's candidacy could not be refuted.

Finally the crisis was shelved by the executive committee, composed of the present officers, who compromised on Vasant Rao Nivargikar as a temporary president and appointed a committee to draft a formal constitution.

SG Hears Report On Name Change

By BOB HOLMES

A discussion of the yearbook and the presidential veto were the major items of business at Wednesday night's meeting of the student legislature.

Bill Howle, senior senator from the School of Textiles, reported on the joint meeting of the Investigations Committee and the subcommittee from the Publications Board. In general remarks, Howle stated that 80 per cent of the students who picked up yearbooks hardly looked at anything. He added that State should "have a yearbook to look forward to."

Dan Derby, editor of the yearbook, submitted a "Summary of Events and Decisions Concerning Changes of Yearbook Format" to the legislative body in conjunction with Howle's report. This summary included a thorough sequence of events concerning the yearbook beginning with the SG commission last year and continuing through the controversial resolution passed by SG recently.

Following the report, Mr. Derby explained his proposed changes to the senators. He stated that "certain phases of student life have not been represented" in past yearbooks. Derby announced that the coming annual would be enlarged by a 40-page section concerning events during the year '64-'65. In addition, the editor stated that such sections as married student housing, the Union, dormitories, and intramurals would be enlarged.

During a questioning session, Raye Parrish, sophomore senator from the School of Agriculture, asked if the students could be "charged more in order to include all the class pictures." Derby stated that "it would be physically and economically impossible to make such changes this year" but he said the changes could be made for the next yearbook if the feeling was predominant among the students.

President Atkins appointed an Agromeck Commission to advised him on the name change issue. Members of the commission are Dan Derby and John Gilbert from the yearbook staff, and Senators Terry Sparks, chairman, Mike Stanhouse, Bill Howle, and Billie Jones. This commission will have no official authority and will function in strictly advisory capacity.

In other legislation before the body, the presidential veto bill passed by the required two-thirds vote. Since this measure involves a constitutional change, a general referendum will be held during the fall elections. A two-thirds majority of all students voting is required for passage of the bill.

Another measure changing the constitution was introduced by the Promotions Committee. The constitutional amendment passed by the body requires newly-elected senators to attend all regularly scheduled meetings of SG and to assume office for the last two regularly scheduled meetings of the spring semester.

'Friends' Series Begins Tomorrow

The London Symphony Orchestra will present the first program in the Friends of the College series Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum.

The selections to be performed by the group are the Overture from "The Wasp" by Vaughan Williams, Horn Concerto No. 2 in E Flat by Mozart, Symphony in Three Movements by Stravinsky, and Symphony in C Minor by Brahms.

Students must obtain a ticket which will admit the student and a date. They are available at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union and in the offices of residence counselors and fraternity house-mothers.

Witnesses To Accident Sought

An accident occurred on Hillsboro Street last Sunday, but the only witnesses disappeared.

A State student's car was parked between the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity house and Chamberlain Street when a car traveling in the right-hand lane struck the left rear tail light of the parked car.

According to Tommy Riddick, owner of the parked car, the driver talked to two boys on the sidewalk after the accident and then drove just beyond Tompkins Hall to park.

Riddick stated that he would like the two witnesses to contact him in the Alpha Gamma Rho house at TE 3-4545 to furnish needed information about the accident.

No Homecoming Parade This Year

A new variety of homecoming festivities is to be initiated this year instead of the usual parade downtown.

Thirty and Three, the sophomore honorary fraternity which handles homecoming arrangements, is introducing a new program in an effort to increase campus spirit for the game and provide more persons with an opportunity to view all the displays.

Tentative plans call for displays to be set up by the various dormitories and fraternities. The ban on cloth banners is expected to be lifted for the occasion. In addition, the various campus organizations may be given space for displays in the area between the 1911 building and Peele Hall. Design and building parties are scheduled to begin following the pep rally October 30, the night before the game. The Raleigh Merchants Bureau has agreed to supply the trophies as usual for the displays.

Some of the reasons given for the change from the parade included: 1) Due to the televising of this year's game, the band is operating on a very tight schedule and very possibly would not be able to perform in the parade; 2) many students did not get to see the parades due to Saturday classes; 3) many of the parents coming to the game were not able to arrive in time for the parade; and 4) the campus itself has not provided a very "spirited" appearance for the game.

Wolfpack Surprises

By ARTHUR DUMONT

The Wolfpack of 1964 has been surprising everyone—everyone, that is, except themselves.

Coach Edwards designed the success of the current Wolfpack team in the disguise of the Red Shirt. After last year's co-championship team and the loss of 16 lettermen, the Sportscasters peered into their crystal balls and came up with the prediction that State was in for a year of wishing-it-was-next-year.

Carolina must have read the pre-season reviews as evidenced by their play against the Wolfpack. We won 14-13 and it was called an upset. Clemson came to Raleigh expecting the Wolfpack to be in a slump after the Carolina game. There was a slump that Saturday but it was not on the Wolfpack side of the scoreboard. Maryland came to Raleigh last week and handed the Wolfpack its worst half of football this season. The second half the Wolfpack, along with 14,000 other players in the stands, came roaring back to win the game 14-13.

Just where does that leave us in the Conference today? Well, we are fourth in Total Offense, second in Rushing Offense, last in Pass Offense, third in Total Defense, fourth in Rushing Defense, second in Pass Defense and first in the standings.

Why is it imperative that State have an outstanding team again this year? It's just possible that the Wolfpack's winning ways might encourage the generosity of enough people to go over the $1,000,000 contribution mark expected by the Committee for the new stadium.

Homecoming Scene From A New Angle

But before the shock sinks in, the facts need to be heard.

Thirty and Three, an honorary fraternity responsible for setting up each year's homecoming activities, is dropping the parade from the agenda because the band is operating under a tight schedule in order to appear on the television broadcast of the game and because many people, both parents and students, have been unable to attend the morning parade.

The homecoming parade traditionally has been one of the most spirited events of the football season. It is something nearly everybody on campus is interested in regardless of whether their clubs or organizations are participating in it.

There is something about a parade that naturally attracts people. Perhaps it is the excitement, the friendly atmosphere, the gaiety, or the humor. But whatever it is, it has a human appeal quite unlike any other festivity.

The decision to drop the parade will no doubt be a letdown to many students. Students this year have taken an unusually strong interest in this thing called "school spirit," which many of the campus leaders have encouraged avidly thus far. The homecoming parade would have meant an additional opportunity for the students to demonstrate their spirit.

Now all of this is something of the past. There will be no homecoming parade this year.

Instead, there will be a new slate of activities, including a plan to give to the entire campus a "spirited" appearance. The homecoming festivities will be a full weekend event, not just a parade and a game on Saturday. And the whole campus will be able to participate.

Displays will be made, just as they have been in past years, dorms and fraternities will be decorated, and the campus itself will become one big immobile parade, provided Thirty and Three follows the program it has outlined.

If the plans do materialize, this year's homecoming will undoubtedly be the biggest and perhaps the best yet. The campus will be one big holiday beginning the Friday night before the game as the students put the final touches on the decorations.

Without the parade, homecoming will never be the same, but if everyone is willing to cooperate with Thirty and Three and its revolutionary decisions, perhaps it will be better.

PUBLICATION BOARD CHALLENGED

To the Editor:

Much has been said concerning the name change of the school yearbook and the elimination of class pictures. But, as far as I can see there has been nothing done about it. I, as an interested student, took it upon myself to do something about this situation. I drafted a petition which requested that the Board of Student Publications bring the subjects of the name change and deletion of class pictures to a vote of the entire student body.

I personally went from room to room in Owen dorm on Sunday and Monday evenings. I spoke with 205 students, without regard to their class standing. Of these 205 students I have obtained 199 signatures on my petition, which is a percentage of 96.6 signatures. As Owen is an average dorm on campus, I feel that this is a good representation of the general consensus of the N. C. State student body.

I hereby challenge the Board of Student Publications to do something about this matter other than tell us that it is too late for anything to be done. If we had been informed of what was going on earlier, something would have been done by us at an earlier time.

As students of North Carolina State, we demand that we have our right to be heard in matters which concern us. Are we to be heard on this campus, or aren't we?

PRIDE IN OUR SCHOOL

To the Editor:

What is pride in our school? It must be something that is put aside, does not occur, or is not considered here at State. This is the impression I have received and many others seem to have received.

Why do I say this? Well, let me give you a few examples of anti-pride symbols on State's campus.

1) Harrelson Hall during a little bit of rainy weather looks like a muddy, distractful region in India during the monsoon season.

2) Lee Dormitory was built with few parking places with a nasty looking cop just waiting for you to park in a no-parking zone when no parking places are available.

3) The underclassmen are no longer considered to be students at State. According to the annual staff, there are just seniors and graduate students at State.

4) The wool was pulled over the students' eyes when the annual's name was changed. Isn't the wool always being pulled over the students' eyes?

The reason for this is because the students do not have a functional Student Government. Here some SG representative will say, "I cannot do anything without the students' support," or "If you are so smart, why don't you be a leader then?" When I voted for a SG representative and helped to elect him, I expected him to work for the students' interests and be our leader. As for myself, I expected to follow and back or support him with his work when possible. As of yet I cannot see where he has, or any other SG representative has, successfully worked (or made a good effort) for students' interests.

Let's, for example, say the SG was some sort of labor union with the laborers being the students. What type of union would you say it was? I would call it a company union—one whose real function is to benefit the members of the union and the company, not the laborers. The members of the company would be certain school officials, and the members of the union would be certain SG members.

The SG should be compared to an independent union—whose real function is to benefit the laborers' interests (the students' interests). Until the SG becomes independent and is able to stand by itself on certain student issues and interests, I will have little faith or pride in it.

In conclusion, we should have little pride in the points I have mentioned. So the SG, the school officials, and most of all, the students should try to devise some way to eliminate or to improve these anti-pride symbols on State's campus. If not, I guess we will have to let the drunks over at Whisky Hill take complete control of State.

JUST PUT IT TOGETHER

To the Editor:

I would like to commend you, John Atkins, the President of the Student Government, and Harvey George for the stand that you took on the yearbook controversy.

I would like to know what the editor of the yearbook thinks he is doing. I believe that it is the right of the entire student body to decide whether or not they desire a change in the yearbook's name. It is true that it was announced that a change in the name of the yearbook was being considered. This was all that I and probably the entire student body knew.

I would also like to know what right the yearbook staff has in leaving out the pictures of the underclassmen. The editor stated that only half of the underclassmen had their pictures in the yearbook. He further stated that this would cut down on the cost of the publication. As far as I am concerned, the underclassmen who had their pictures in the yearbook wanted them there, and I believe that the ones who want their pictures in this year's book should be able to have them in there. Do you honestly believe that the underclassmen will buy this year's yearbook, if their pictures are not even in it? I would speculate that about three-fourths of the underclassmen will not even buy a copy of the yearbook. I would not blame or criticize any of the underclassmen for not buying a copy of the yearbook.

I will be glad to listen to the yearbook staff's side of the story, but as far as I am concerned, the right of changing the yearbook's name and leaving the pictures of the underclassmen out is the right of the student body and not the yearbook staff. Their job is to put together a yearbook and nothing else.

FOOD POISONING HITS FRESHMEN

Nearly 100 cases of apparent food poisoning were treated at Emory University recently at the school's freshman camp.

About 25 per cent of the people at the camp were affected, according to the campus physician.

He commented that the attacks were probably caused by "some item of food in the lunch meal, but we couldn't pin it down."

The reason for the uncertainty was the fact that the doctor himself, as well as several administrative officials and some 300 students, ate the same food without being affected.

Most of the victims were reported feeling better that night.

Campaign Policy Set For Election

During the period prior to the fall elections, space will be available on this page of The Technician to give candidates an opportunity to publicize their programs.

Candidates for all office positions may submit whatever information they wish concerning their platforms or experience.

This information will be accepted no later than 3 p.m. on the days prior to publication (i.e., Sunday, Tuesday, and Thursday). It must be given to Bob Holmes, elections editor for The Technician, in person or deposited in the mailbox on The Technician's door. The Technician is located in the basement of the YMCA.

Candidates should turn in this information as soon as possible. It must be typed in 62-space lines, triple spaced. Recommended length is one page. The Technician reserves the right to determine the time of publication due to space available in each issue.

Space will be available for political advertisements at a special rate of 50 cents per column inch. A maximum of 10 column inches per insertion will be allowed. Recommended size is two columns by three inches. Pictures may be included in the advertisement at no extra cost. Preferred dates for publication may be specified but the business office reserves the right of final placement.

Wolfpack Surprises

Alabama is looking forward to the coming contest with State as a breather in its rough schedule. They are fast and light and fully capable of reaping the rewards of their opponents' mistakes. The Crimson Tide should find it a little difficult to maintain their better-than-30-points-a-game average against the Wolfpack. With men like Glenn Sasser, Ray Barlow, Lou DeAngelis and Silas Snow on the front line the Tide is going to rise slower than usual in Tuscaloosa this Saturday.

Charlie Noggle should pick up quite a few yards on the quarterback run play that State has used so effectively this season. Ron Skosnik's passing should be in better shape this weekend than it was last weekend and Don-Dearment should give the tackle-guard slot a lot of use as he travels up and down the field to pay dirt.

Coach Edwards will be looking for Tony Golmon's sticky fingers to be among State's pass defenders and Shelby Mansfield's legwork to pick up his average 4.9 yards per carry. Pete Falzarano will be trying the middle of the Alabama line for his 4.2 yards per carry. Any way you look at it, there will be a hard-fought football game in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, this Saturday.

Number 12 Travels To Meet Number 3

North Carolina State and Alabama, undefeated football leaders of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Southeastern Conference, ranked No. 12 and No. 3 nationally, meet Saturday at Tuscaloosa, Ala., in what must be termed a "top" inter-sectional game.

The Wolfpack of Coach Earle Edwards has won its first three games, all against ACC opposition, while Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide has swept past Georgia, Tulane and Vanderbilt in compiling its three victories in the SEC. That impressive Alabama showing has earned the Tide third place in the weekly national football ratings.

While Alabama has overpowered its opponents 91-9, with only Tulane scoring a touchdown against them, the opportunistic Wolfpack has had some solid defensive play set up four of its five touchdowns this year.

Three pass interceptions, including one returned 45 yards for a score by end Tony Golmon, led to Wolfpack touchdowns, and a fumble recovery at the Maryland four-yard line enabled State to come from behind to beat the Terps, 14-13. The only march for a score came on a 59-yard drive against Maryland in the third quarter, with sophomore quarterback Charlie Noggle carrying the ball over from seven yards out.

"Stopping ourselves at key times must stop if we are to have any chance against Alabama," says Edwards. "You can't wait for breaks against a Paul Bryant team. He usually whips you that way."

The Wolfpack has been able to move the ball on the ground, as evidenced by its 617 yards net rushing in three games. The passing attack has been effective, although not spectacular for yardage gained (119). The only touchdown by passing came on a two-yard flip to full-back Pete Falzarano, who actually bulled his way over after taking a toss from Noggle.

A 38-man squad is scheduled to leave from Raleigh-Durham Airport at 1:00 p.m. Friday, and arrive in Birmingham at 1:25 p.m. CST. The sixty-mile trip to Tuscaloosa will be made by bus, with a workout planned for Denny Stadium upon arrival. Wolfpack headquarters will be at the Stafford Motor Inn in Tuscaloosa. The Wolfpack will return to Raleigh immediately after the 3 p.m. EST game.

Football Comments

By COACH EARLE EDWARDS

Our two one-point victories have meant more than anyone knows. There must be an element of luck in games that end with so close a margin; however, I think it is a tribute to the spirit and enthusiasm of the squad, and the coaches have certainly been pleased with their effort. We have played three good football teams but I guess our next opponent, the "Crimson Tide" of Alabama, has earned their rank which puts them No. 3 in the nation. This is a great challenge to us, and we are going to try to prepare for them as carefully as we can. They not only have a fine football squad with years of success behind them, but they also have one of the nation's great football players in Joe Namath, their quarterback. Unless we can contain him with some success, it will be hard for us to stay in the game. We think it would make a difference to us if we could play them here at home, and perhaps our new stadium will give us an opportunity of this kind occasionally in the future. We are looking forward to the trip and to the opportunity to play a fine football team.

Fraternity Football Schedule Reaches The Halfway Point

Four teams are still undefeated as the fraternity intramural football season reached the halfway mark this week. Three of these teams have defeated all three of their section foes while one has played only a single game.

Last year's champions, Sigma Phi Epsilon, remained undefeated in Section #1 with a 20-0 win over Sigma Pi. The Sig Eps hit hard for 14 points in the first period on runs of five and 31 yards by Doug Monday. A 40-yard pass from Monday to Metz brought the final score in the third quarter.

Kappa Alpha remained in second place in the section with a 12-7 victory over Sigma Chi. The winners trailed 7-6 at the end of the first quarter, but scored again in the second period to take the win. Medley tallied the Sigma Chi touchdown on a pass play while Jim Deaton and Jack Alford scored for KA.

Sigma Nu remained unbeaten in Section #2 with a narrow 7-6 verdict over Delta Sigma Phi. Mickey Brisson caught a pass from Huntsman for the Sigma Nu score while Tom Bare scored on a Darwin pass for Delta Sig.

Dellostritto passed Theta Chi into second place in the section as Alpha Gamma Rho was able to score only 13 points. Dellostritto sent four passes over the goal line for an average of 28 yards each. On the receiving end were Cauenes, Swain, Riggins and Meade. AGR scored on passes from Vollmer to McKee and Stutz.

Pi Kappa Tau struck twice in the first half and held Lambda Chi Alpha scoreless to take a 12-0 win and remain unbeaten in Section #3. Jim Emmons passed for both PKT scores, to Propst and Griffin.

Pi Kappa Phi took over second place in the section with a 34-0 romp over Farmhouse. Morris scored first for PKP with an intercepted pass. Mason also tallied on a stolen pass, and scored twice more on pass plays. Baxter also tallied on a pass.

In the only Section #4 contest, Kappa Sigma won over Tau Kappa Epsilon, 14-12. The undefeated section leader, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was idle this week and last week, having played only one game.

Work with a group worth standing out in.

The more competent your co-workers are, the greater your satisfaction when they admire something you've done. And the better your chances are to learn so you can move on to additional responsibilities and rewards.

Boeing's world leadership in the jet transport field is an indication of the calibre of people you'd work with at Boeing. The forward-striding attitude responsible for this leadership has, since 1916, provided a steady succession of pioneering achievements: first twin-engine, retractable-gear, low-wing, all-metal airliner; first four-engine, pressurized airliner; first modern, high-performance bomber; first large swept-wing, multi-jet bomber; and, of course, America's first jetliner, the 707, and the 720 and three-jet 727. (Right now we're designing a variable-sweep wing supersonic transport.)

Boeing is one of the nation's major manufacturers of heavy transport helicopters (Vertol), and for more than two decades has pioneered most of the world's applications of the small gas turbine in aircraft, industrial, marine and vehicular fields.

And the space age? Boeing's contributions here include major contract responsibility for the Minuteman ICBM and NASA's Saturn V Booster — the launch vehicle destined to send America's first lunar landing team to the moon. We're also working full blast in all other phases of space flight, including a manned earth-orbiting laboratory and a lunar orbiter.

Projects underway in Boeing's extensive Scientific Research Laboratories encompass basic and applied research in celestial mechanics, solid state physics, nuclear and plasma physics, terrestrial and space flight sciences and allied human factors.

Engineers and scientists at Boeing work in small groups, under supervisors picked for ability to inspire and promote the ideas of their associates. Individual initiative and ability get plenty of exposure that way. (The company encourages graduate studies at leading colleges and universities near Boeing installations.) Boeing is an equal opportunity employer.

We're planning to interview engineering and science seniors and graduate students on campus on the date listed below. So drop in at your campus placement office and arrange an appointment. We'll be looking forward to meeting you..
