Straw Vote To Be Held With Frosh Elections

By JIM ROBINSON

The straw vote on Presidential and gubernatorial candidates will be held in connection with freshman elections, Thursday, October 29.

At the same time the student body will decide on two constitutional amendments, one concerning the inauguration date of student government senators, and the other dealing with the granting of presidential veto power.

The voting on national and state candidates is to be sponsored by the student government elections committee. The State Young Republicans Club originally offered to pay for the ballots and count them but the offer was declined by Student Government.

SG President John Atkins said he felt both jobs could be better handled by a neutral group, rather than by one of the political groups on campus.

Ballots cast in the straw vote will be counted by the Circle K service club if it has time after counting other ballots. Otherwise the election committee itself will count the votes. The cost of printing straw-vote ballots was $13.

Campaigning for the national and state party candidates for the straw vote will be under the same rules as those covering SG elections, according to elections committee chairman Webb Langford.

Willard Pruessel, co-chairman of YRC, stated yesterday: "We intend to take full advantage of the student government decision to allow us to post campaign materials. We assume the YDC will do the same thing."

The YDC response was similar in content.

"I would like to thank the Student Government for its decision on the presidential and gubernatorial straw vote to be held along with the freshman election," said Milton Helms, YDC president. "I think this exemplifies Student Government's growing concern for the students and their participation in activities."

Helms also urged all students to cast their votes, emphasizing that there is no age requirement for voting.

SSL Meets Feb. 18

The Interim Council of the State Student Legislature met recently at UNCC and set the dates for the legislature's meeting in Raleigh.

The Council decided on the dates of February 18-20 for the State Student Legislature meeting which will be held in the old State House.

SSL is composed of delegates from colleges and universities throughout North Carolina.

Any State student desiring to participate in the SSL may contact Butch Fields, chairman of the NCS delegation, at TE 2-9148.

Yearbook Remains 'Agromeck' For '64-65

By BOB HOLMES

The N. C. State yearbook will retain the name Agromeck for a period of at least one year.

In a unanimous vote last night the student legislature decided to reinstate the name Agromeck for the year 1964-65 and to reconsider the issue during the spring elections.

SG Treasurer Jim Miller introduced the "Agromeck Name Change" resolution on behalf of the Budgetary and Finance Committee. A member of that committee had introduced the original resolution which set off the controversy between the Student Government and the Board of Publications.

Miller's resolution was based on the recommendations submitted by a special advisory commission on the name change and approved by the Board of Publications. That commission proposed that "the question of a name change, with no reference to any previous suggested name, be brought before the Student Legislature and that they decide: (1) whether a Student Legislature Resolution or (2) a Student Body vote is more representative in making a name change decision." In addition, the commission suggested that if a name change was favored, then "the Student Government would be the instrument for determining how the new name should be evolved."

The final resolution which was passed last night, accomplished all of the recommendations of the commission and of the Board of Publications.

The resolution "(1) reinstated the name Agromeck for the year 1964-65; (2) Gives a vote of confidence to the Agromeck staff in striving to provide the students with a better yearbook; and (3) Delays all action for a new name of the yearbook until the spring of 1965 and such change, if still then desired, will be brought before the Student Government Legislature and that body shall determine the method for such a name change."

The new bill allows SG to call for a student vote in deciding whether or not to change the name of the yearbook. However, the actual method of change is left up to the student legislature should the student body decide in favor of such a change.

The measure pointed out that there was not enough time to consider the change for this year's annual due to the deadline of November first for such changes in format. Miller stated that October 29 would be the first possible opportunity for any type of student referendum, and that this would be only two days before the yearbook deadline.

The resolution ended a long period of debate between the two campus organizations. All elements involved expressed satisfaction with the solution.

Judge Talks At Dinner

By JANEEN SMITH

Judge Pretlow Winbourne, Raleigh city court judge, was guest of the combined Honor Code and Campus Code Boards at a dinner meeting Wednesday evening in Leazar Hall.

Winbourne said that as a city court judge he has the same problem, but the real concern is nailing guilt and punishment together. Should the same punishment apply to all convictions? In Winbourne's opinion, you have to feel the case as it comes through to you.

He said that the real function of the Boards was to listen to the students, and to gauge them in relation to campus life. He said students are better equipped to do this than faculty, because they live in the campus atmosphere.

"Your reaction to the basic fact of the case will be your best answer. With two-thirds of you having to agree, I don't see how you can go wrong."

Winbourne discussed the attitude of State students toward cheating. The Honor Code has great latitude in setting punishment, from reprimand to permanent expulsion. Winbourne said the criteria should be fairly loose, because the same punishment applied to all cases is not justice. Only in second offense cases should fixed punishment be set, the Judge said, to show that cheating as a pattern of conduct is not to be tolerated.

Winbourne suggested the possibility of finding some type of punishment other than suspension for Campus Code offenders. He mentioned that more punishments should be relative to the offense involved.

A main concern of the Boards is what to let the students know they will tolerate, or will not tolerate. "Try to feel what will get the result you want. The result is really the most important—on the people outside and on the people you are dealing with. Regardless of who you're dealing with, if you can possibly see the way clear, in your own conscience, I wouldn't hesitate to give the man a second chance unless the case is completely outrageous and absolutely cannot be tolerated. Give him back the burden, so he can either make a go of State or make a bust of it."

Forestry Group Conducts Rodeo

The senior forestry class is out to prove its superiority at the annual Forestry Club's rodeo Saturday.

The interclass competition will start at 10 a.m. at the forestry school's Hill Forest, 19 miles north of Durham. The main purposes of the rodeo are to initiate new forestry club members, and to have a good time.

The held events include log rolling, wood chopping, and knife throwing.

One of the lighter events of the rodeo is the fire fighting. Other events include axe throwing, crosscut sawing, and pole climbing.

SAMs Visit Orphans

The brothers of Sigma Alpha Mu are planning a visit to the Catholic orphanage Sunday.

Usually, all the fraternities at State entertain a group of orphans at a Christmas party, but the Sammys are planning to make a year round event of it.

On Sunday the brothers and pledges are taking a group of orphans for a ride with the hope that some lasting friendships will be formed. It is anticipated that members of the fraternity who make friends with the orphans will become "big brothers" to them during their stay at State.

Same Name, New Book

The Agromeck lives on, for another year at least, thanks to the students who raised such a ruckus when the Board of Student Publications voted to change the outdated yearbook name to Phase 65.

After passing through many hands, the issue was finally resolved by Student Government Wednesday when the group voted in favor of reinstating the name Agromeck. In view of the circumstances which preceded the settlement, it is hoped that the student body in general will find the decision satisfactory.

While the yearbook staff did not succeed in its efforts to have the name changed to coincide with the new format this year's book will be taking on, plans are still well underway to make the 1965 book the best ever.

But the issue is still not completely dead, for the possibility of a name change for 1966 is due to be brought before the student body in the spring. After seeing the 1965 yearbook, the students should be in a better position to judge whether a change is necessary or even desirable. Many students no doubt have voiced opinions on the name without really being too sure exactly what the name involved. A new name does not necessarily make a new book nor does a new book necessarily require a new name. However, this idea of just how important a name is, or what significance a new name has, is something every student should keep in mind when they see the new yearbook in the spring.

Another issue concerning the yearbook will also be up for consideration in the spring. That, of course, is the question of whether students prefer the new format without individual pictures of underclassmen or whether they prefer the old format with them. The new book will be aimed at creating an overall image of the school year rather than displaying posed pictures of the many clubs and organizations on campus. Individual class pictures only of seniors, graduate and professional students will be featured this year. In the past, pictures of each student who had his picture taken were printed.

It appeared from the letters submitted to The Technician that many people were more concerned with the deletion of these pictures than they were with the name when the controversy was forming. However, nothing could be done about the pictures this year because the contracts were signed last year. It also seems reasonable to assume that many people will not be too disturbed when they find that their pictures are not in the book since only about half of the campus turned out to have their pictures taken last year.

All of these matters will be up for consideration again in the spring, preferably after the students have had a chance to see for themselves the book that has caused such a stir.

Meanwhile, the Agromeck lives on, and hopefully the creative spirit of the yearbook does the same.

PESSIMISTIC LETTERS

To the Editor:

I wish to commend Mr. Shepherd on his recent letter to The Technician concerning pessimistic letters submitted for publication. I agree that constructive criticism is often essential. And, too, I admit that criticism can sometimes be amusing. But the letter published concerning the girls in Watauga was downright insulting.

The writer of that letter—and I hesitate to call him an author—not only showed his disrespect for the young ladies in Watauga, but also his crude self-conceit. After such a letter, what makes him think he could get a smile from Watauga? Our coeds are entitled to as much pride and respect as anyone else. Let's show the true State spirit and share it with them!

David W. Bradshaw

WRONG IMPRESSION

To the Editor:

It was not my intent to ridicule, to the extent that I evidently did, our coeds in my recent letter. The complete purpose was to cut them down for the remarks they fired at us in their article. It seemed they were making fools of us for swooning over them as young men will do. And hitting us with a backlash like "Boys from Carolina even call us for dates," was not, in my opinion, a very considerate remark. But supposedly they must have their social status upheld since we're not good enough for them.

To you, coeds, I apologize. However, there is an exception. My apology does not apply to those who contributed to the sarcastic article. I feel they, too, owe an apology; an apology to the male students on campus.

But to those who were not responsible for such remarks, I feel I must apologize, since many of the boys do not go along with my opinion.

Maybe I like to be different; I'm a Republican, too.

FRATERNITIES and BRINER

To the Editor:

Each year at election time, an editorial is published in The Technician admonishing fraternity men for participation in campus activities and encouraging "independents" to eliminate this "minority rule."

This year the job has fallen to Mr. Bob Holmes and has been published under his regular headline, "SG and Me." This is a somewhat questionable column for its publication due to the article's content and intent, and due to the fact that far greater emphasis in the election is placed on class officers than Student Government senators.

As for the intent of the editorial, I hope Mr. Holmes' effort has done some good. There is, in fact, a great deal of student apathy on this campus as can be seen by the number of campus leaders who hold more than one responsible position. But is this the fault of the man? A man who is concerned about our university is not going to let a job go unfilled. He is going to accept more responsibility and more headaches just because no one else is willing to accept them.

Why is it that while comprising only ten per cent of the student body, fraternity men fill most of the responsible positions on this campus? Could it be that fraternity men are the only ones who are concerned about what happens on the campus? I submit that this is true and that fraternities should not be reproved but thanked for instilling concern for the campus in young men.

As for the content of the editorial, I'm sure that each fraternity specifically mentioned would like to thank you, Mr. Holmes, for pointing out that they are indeed doing something about the upcoming elections. I know that space limitations kept you from mentioning the other fourteen, but they are doing just as much. However, what are the dormitories doing, Mr. Holmes? Why doesn't election time "stimulate a flurry of activity" in Owen or Tucker or any other dorm? Perhaps the answer is that dormitory boys don't want to be bothered with the problems of leadership. Perhaps some of them might have to put on a coat and tie to attend a meeting or have to stay on the campus over one weekend.

So, Mr. Holmes, I hope your editorial does stimulate interest and competitive spirit in the elections. But until "independents" get out of the dorms and into office, don't admonish fraternity men, because if they didn't do the work, it wouldn't get done.

Frank C. Briner

(Editor's Note: No editorial has appeared in this year's Technician "admonishing fraternity men for participation in campus activities and encouraging 'independents' to eliminate this 'minority rule.' nor has Bob Holmes' column advocated such. Mr. Holmes' column is concerned primarily with observations, not advice. It is not an editorial nor is it intended to be one. The column deals with the various activities of Student Government, one of which is sponsoring the fall elections.)

GAMECOCK SUPPORTS GOLDWATER

The Gamecock, the student newspaper at the University of South Carolina, expressed its support of Barry Goldwater for President in a front page editorial earlier this month.

The editorial urged "all students to aid and help select the Republican nominee, because he offers a clear-cut program of freedom with responsibility."

It also stated, "America needs Goldwater. America needs a fiscal conservative, a vigorous defender of personal freedom and a man who will bring honesty and integrity to the federal government. America needs Goldwater because he is concerned with this nation's wasteful government programs and is determined to halt the present drive toward a socialistic state."

RING PRODUCTION STOPPED

Production of class rings was halted at North Carolina Wesleyan College recently when it was discovered that the ring contract had been violated.

A student noticed that the 1964 class rings felt heavier than the new ones. Upon weighing the new ring in a chemistry lab, he discovered that the ring weighed between 14.5 and 15.0 pennyweight gold. The class had requested an 18 pennyweight ring.

The ring contract was signed with Allen Barbee, who is also handling the college's yearbook and graduation invitation contracts.

The yearly battle of the ifers has begun.

If State can win the rest of its conference games and if Carolina takes Duke down a notch when they clash and if State doesn't have any more injuries and if the ball bounces our way and if . . . ad nauseum.

The Wolfpack, at the halfway mark of the 1964 football season, is a study in contrast. At present the Pack is last in total offense, last in pass offense, sixth in rushing offense, fourth in total defense, seventh in rushing defense and second in pass defense. The contrast becomes evident when it is discovered that State is in second place in the conference while maintaining domination of last place in the statistics.

Let's take a look at some of the Wolfpack members that have created this contrast by their actions on the playing field.

In the quarterback slot, Charlie Noggle, Ron Skosnik, and Bill James have been calling the signals for the Wolfpack. Noggle and Skosnik have been averaging less than three yards per play in their offensive effort while James has been used primarily for returning punts. Both Noggle and Skosnik seem to get squashed more often than not on the option play. This is due primarily to the ineffective pass attack of the Wolfpack so far this season and the opposition's knowledge that when the Wolfpack rolls out on the option play, they really mean to run the ball. Credit should be given to Ron Skosnik for his ability to punt well. This helped to win the first three games of this season and stay our execution in the last two.

In the tackle slot, there are such men as Glenn Sasser, National Player of the Week during the second week of this season, Rosie Amator, Steve Parker and Dave Ellis. These four men have made the guard-tackle slot a virtual death valley for the opposition so far this season. Last week's game at Duke was the first time these men were unable to plug the gap. Even mighty Alabama had to take to the air in their game against the Wolfpack.

Holding down the guard positions are Bennett Williams, co-captain of this season's Wolfpack, James Martin, Silas Snow and Bobby Smith. A major effort on the part of these men has been a contributing factor to the contrast in statistics and standings for the Wolfpack.

In the middle of the line at center position are Lou DeAngelis, co-captain of this season's Wolfpack, and Jack Thomas. On these men lie the responsibility of placing the ball where it is needed—when it is needed for use by the Wolfpack backfield.

Bill Hall, Bill Gentry, Ray Barlow and Tony Golmont provide competition in the end positions. So far this season these men Tickets for the homecoming game may be picked up at the Coliseum box office beginning at 8:30 Monday morning. Students and student dates will sit in sections 1, 2, 7, and 8; date tickets cost $1.00. Parents of freshmen may have tickets at a reduced rate; guest tickets are full fare.

Regional attention focuses on the South Carolina-State contest when the NBC television network carries the highly touted contest to viewers in this region. This is one of the nine national and 20 regional televised NCAA football games carried this season.

Two Undefeated In Dorm Action

Becton of Section #2 and Alexander of Section #4 are the only two teams in the dormitory intramural football league to remain undefeated after four weeks of action.

In Section #1 action this week, Bragaw North #1 downed previously undefeated Berry-Welch-Gold to force a first place tie for first place between the two teams, the final score being 14-2. Holthouser passed to Blythe for ten yards to put Bragaw ahead in the game before Ferguson tallied the second score on an eight-yard run. In the other Section #1 contest, Bragaw South #1 topped Lee #2 18-6.

Becton and Owen #1 met in Section #2 action to decide first place in the section. Both teams entered the game with 3-0 records, but Becton came out with the better record by defeating Owen #1, 22-13. Shawn passed twice to Kunnemann for two TDs and ran eight yards for a third score. Avey forced a safety for the final two points. Scoring for the losers were Mike York on a run and Hudson on a pass play.

Duke gave us a good clobbering last Saturday. The difference in the score was the greatest surprise to all of us. They took us apart up front which we didn't think was possible. We have felt all along this season it would be hard for our opponents to move against us consistently but Duke proved without any question they knew how to do it. They deserved their early lead, and when we took the natural course later in the game trying to set up some long gaining plays, it turned out as it often does—we had pass interceptions. Once again we were guilty of fumbles, interceptions, and penalties, which helped to put us quite often in very poor field position.

However, there is no question that our major differences came from the simple fact that Duke out-played us.

We meet a team this week at Virginia that has apparently improved tremendously during the recent weeks. They have a lot of good athletes who are good football players. We have also learned that our game up there is the occasion of their Homecoming, Commonwealth Day, and Band Day so we can be sure spirit in the Virginia camp will be high. We have a couple of injuries but the squad as a whole is in reasonably good physical condition, and we have tried to prepare as thoroughly as we can for the game. We are most anxious to win it.

Ferrand and Artinano have each tallied 14 goals this season. Ferrand's high was four against Davidson.

A Review

RLT Opens With Musical Comedy

By CORA KEMP

The Raleigh Little Theatre's production of the musical comedy, The Boy Friend, was off to a delightful start last night even before the curtains went up.

Just before the action began, Lord Brockhurst, played by Jim Harvey, had a few words to say to the audience. The lively old Englishman, who is very much interested in foreign affairs as the story reveals, commented wryly on the roaring 20's in England. "The British did have the roaring 20's, you know," he remarked at one point.

Once the curtains open for the theater's first play of the season, the audience gets a full dose of the British during the flapper era. The scene is the Villa Caprice, Madame Dubonnet's Finishing School, on the outskirts of Nice, where the French teach the British millionairesses how to act like perfect young ladies.

The 21-member cast is led by Jeanne Smith, who plays the role of Polly Browne, and Trip Plymale, as Tony. Both prove to be outstanding, particularly in the parts that call for singing.

Jeanne is the current Miss Cary. She has never been in a play before, but she has a distinguished musical career behind her. She is a senior at St. Mary's Junior College.

Trip is a senior at Broughton High School. He spent the summer studying dramatics at the Governor's School in Winston-Salem.

But the really sparkling person in the entire play, besides Lord Brockhurst, is Madame Dubonnet, played by Mary Lyman. She very obviously is a top ranking star at the theater, for she holds three "oscar" for previous performances at the theater.

Another bright figure in the play is Maise, played by Alice Anne Horne who won many honors in the theater at East Carolina College when she was an undergraduate. She now teaches senior English at Enloe High School.

The play will continue nightly through Sunday. Performances will resume October 28 through November 1. Special student rates of $1.50 are offered to State students as well as students in other local colleges and high schools. Reservations may be made by calling the RLT box office between 3 and 6 p.m. daily. Curtain time is 8 p.m., but reservations will be held only until 7:50.

The Little Theatre, located on Pogue Street, across from the Erdahl-Cloyd Union, is working with State's Frank Thompson Theatre this year. Students are invited to audition or assist in the productions.

Tryouts will be held Tuesday and Wednesday for the next RLT production, Major Barbara.

have had little luck in handing on the ball when it managed to arrive in their proximity on the field. Many times these men have been out in the open when a pass play was called only to find out that Noggle, Skosnik, and James were making a during-the-game snack out of the football back behind the line of scrimmage.

The remainder of the backfield is made of Halfbacks Shelby Mansfield, and Don DeArment, Fullbacks Pete Falzarano and Gus Andrews, and Wingbacks Jimmy Guin and Larry Brown. All of these men have been performing well—they just haven't been able to get much in the way of offensive yardage.

Every week these men give of their time, energy and in many instances their physical well-being to provide 60 minutes of entertainment for their school, their friends and their families. The credit these men deserve should not be in proportion to the statistics they compile on the playing field but in proportion to the enjoyment they provide for all through their competition.

This coming Saturday the second place Wolfpack, 3-2 over-all for the season, takes on the last place University of Virginia, also 3-2 over-all for the season. The outcome of this contest should be an indication of State's outlook for the second half of this season. Unless the current trend is altered, the Wolfpack will do a lot to make the other ACC teams look good.

Virginia, the "beef team" in the ACC conference, should present one of the most solid walls the Wolfpack has yet encountered. It will take more than a 77-yard rushing effort on the part of the Wolfpack if Virginia is to be "upset" on Saturday.

Music Lounge Inoperative

By JIM ROBINSON

Music lovers at State may have some wait ahead of them before they will be able to use the facilities in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union music lounge. The lounge has been out of order since the beginning of the semester.

Program director David W. Phillips stated yesterday he didn't know when the system will be operational. Parts were ordered earlier this fall to repair the technical failure in the amplifier system that has kept the facilities idle for the past weeks. They were found to be of the wrong type.

Phillips mentioned the possibility of substituting equipment from Southeastern Sight and Sound Corporation of Raleigh in the lounge's system until the necessary repairs were made. Richard Heaton, associate program director, who is in charge of technical maintenance of the facilities, was not available for comment.

The music lounge has been operated by the Union for the past ten years and features over 300 tapes of classical, semi-classical, popular, jazz, and folk music. The collection is increased from time to time according to requests by faculty and students.

Those interested in becoming familiar with the physical features of the lounge in anticipation of future listening or a quiet place to study or sleep may find the lounge on the second floor of the Union.

M.E. Gets $92,050 Grant

A grant of $92,050 has been awarded by the National Science Foundation to the N. C. State Mechanical Engineering Department.

The money will be used for equipping the planned expansion and renovation of graduate research facilities in the Diesel Wing, a building connected to Broughton Hall, the department's main building. Funds totaling $105,000 were appropriated for the renovation by the North Carolina General Assembly in 1963.

Announcement of the grant was made jointly by Dr. R. E. Fadum, dean of the university's School of Engineering, and by Dr. R. W. Truitt, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering.

Renovation and expansion will be done on the first and third floors of the Diesel Wing, giving an additional area of 10,554 square feet for research laboratories and student project rooms.

The now vacant third floor will be partitioned into project rooms for graduate students.

The old diesel engine room (first floor) will be partitioned into laboratories for research in such areas as direct energy conversion; solid, liquid and electric propulsion; environmental phenomena, particularly high vacuum at low and high temperatures.

Of the planned laboratories, only the Environmental and Vacuum Laboratory is scheduled to be operational with the completion of the renovations in late 1965.
