Fall Enrollment Reaches New High

Enrollment figures are now up to 8,878, record high for the fall semester.

The figures include 8,276 men and 602 women, an overall increase of about 500 more than were registered last fall, according to the Office of Registration. The figures include all undergraduate and graduate students registered for day and evening credit classes. Not included are students taking correspondent courses or courses at extension centers.

About 4,370 students, less than half the enrollment, live in dormitories. More than 3,000 live in off-campus facilities. Others live in married student housing, fraternity housing, or with parents or relatives.

The smallest class is the junior class which numbers 1,399. The largest is the freshman class with 2,178. The sophomores and seniors total 1,559 and 1,568, respectively.

Less than one-fourth of the student body is married and about half of those married have children.

The largest enrollment by schools is in the School of Engineering which has 3,597. The School of Forestry, with 396, has the smallest number.

The registration figures also include 2,468 Baptists, 1,925 Methodists, and three atheists.

Wolfpack Smashes Virginia For Fourth Conference Win

FRIENDS OF THE COLLEGE

By MARTIN WHITE

State's Wolfpack unleashed what is probably its most effective offensive attack this season to turn away the upset minded Virginia Cavaliers, 24-15, in Charlottesville, Saturday. The victory enabled the Pack to keep its conference championship hopes alive and changed the minds of many who thought that State had reached its peak and was sliding down the other side.

The Pack's fine ground game netted 280 yards which is a season high. The only weak spot in the offensive attack was the five for 15 completed passes netting only 62 yards.

The first score for the Pack came in the second quarter after 10:30 of the period, on State's four ball possession. The drive began on the State 20-yard line and moved to the score in 13 plays. This is the longest scoring drive for the Pack this season, bettering the 59-yard drive against Maryland. Shelby Mansfield scrambled over from the six to score the first State TD in three games. Gus Andrews added the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

On the first play of State's next possession Gary Rowe rambled 42 yards on a faked reverse play to tally the second State touchdown of the day. Andrews again added the PAT for a 14-0 lead.

Early in the third period the Cavaliers, rather, quarterback Bob Davis, successfully eluded a host of Pack tacklers and raced 88 yards for the home team's first score. The sophomore quarterback alone gained 251 yards rushing and passing. This play put the Cavaliers right back in the game, trailing 14-7. The remainder of the period however went State's way and iced the game for the Pack.

The next score came after the Pack had moved from its own 30 to the Virginia 12 in seven plays. Three tries from there netted only two yards and on fourth down Harold Deters booted a 27-yard field goal for a 17-7 lead.

The final Wolfpack score of the day came shortly afterwards after a 51-yard drive. A Virginia penalty in the drive gave the Pack the opportunity with a first down on the Cavalier 25. Following a first down on the 15-yard line. State was stalled to a fourth and 15 at the 20. Deters was again called in to place a field goal, but Charlie Noggle took the ball on the fake attempt and raced to a first down on the three. Two plays later, Ron Skosnik hit Gary Rowe in the end zone for the score. Andrews added the PAT for the Pack's 24th point.

Noggle became the first State quarterback of the season to gain over 100 yards in one game as he passed for 33 and rushed for 74.

The deadline for display entries is tomorrow.

Homecoming Decor Will Rise Friday

Homecoming displays may be raised by any dormitory, fraternity, or off-campus organization starting at noon Friday.

Organizations and off-campus fraternities will be assigned areas on campus for their displays by contacting Jackie Mitchell, 106-B Bragaw. Each group may use one cloth banner which must be placed only on a fraternity or residence hall.

According to the official rules, the display must not "unfavorably reflect upon the character of the University or organization," must not use persons or fires, and must not deface campus property in their erection. Stakes may be used for stability. The themes of all displays must pertain to State Homecoming Day or some other State activities. The displays will be judged Saturday morning on general appearance, presentation of theme, and originality.

The deadline for display entries is tomorrow.

Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity Holds Dedication Ceremony

By JAY STUART

Chi chapter of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity held the formal dedication of their fraternity house yesterday.

According to Henry Turlington, the reason for the dedication being held at such a late date was that the brothers of the fraternity wanted to get settled in their new house.

The formal dedication of the house began with a short speech by Al Bass, president of the alumni corporation, who spoke on the history of Chi chapter.

His speech was followed by Bob Harrison, president of the chapter, who spoke on the present situation of the chapter. Jack Anson, national secretary of Phi Kappa Tau, outlined the fraternity nationally and also spoke on the attitude of college administrations toward fraternities. The formal dedication was then made by Bob Harrison.

The dedication ceremonies were attended by William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, Chancellor John T. Caldwell, Banks

Talley, director of student affairs, Tom Covington, assistant director of student activities, and Richard J. Preston, dean of the School of Forestry. The dedication was also attended by parents, alumni and presidents of other fraternities.

SG Meets Today

The Student Government will meet this afternoon at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union to further discuss the presidential veto amendment.

A group of students discovered that the current bill for the constitutional amendment does not technically meet all the specifications for amending the SG Constitution. However, the difficulty is mostly in the phraseology of the measure, according to SG President John Atkins.

The meeting will be concerned primarily with a rephrasing of the amendment.

Straw Vote Needs Support

(The following is the first of two editorials to be published this week concerning the issues involved in Thursday's campus elections. Wednesday's editorial will deal with the two Student Government constitutional amendments to be voted upon by the entire student body.)

The elections Thursday should be of greater interest than ever. Usually only the freshmen and graduate students are involved in the fall elections. But this year, the elections will take on a much broader scope to include a straw vote on the Presidential and gubernatorial candidates. In addition, two Student Government constitutional amendments will require the approval of the student body.

The straw vote should bring to the polls many people who ordinarily wouldn't be concerned with the elections. A large percentage of the student body is under 21 years of age, and therefore ineligible to vote in this state. Also, a number of those over 21 probably haven't bothered to register. This will be perhaps the only chance many will have to express their political preferences. The results will have no bearing on the outcome of the national and state elections November 3, but they are quite likely to be of great interest not only to State students and faculty but to the public. Poll after poll taken among the public at large shows that President Johnson is favored over Senator Barry Goldwater for the Presidency. Only a few have indicated that Goldwater might win. Also, some political observers are saying that campuses are more conservative than the general public. The straw vote will be an opportunity to see just how State students stand on such issues.

The race between the two gubernatorial candidates is also likely to create interest, particularly among the members of the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans Clubs. Democrat Dan Moore and his Republican opponent, Robert Gavin, are two sensitive topics among their party members. Last spring, prior to the primary, Moore's Democratic opponent, Richardson Preyer, appeared to carry much weight among the college crowd. When Preyer was defeated in the run-off, the Young Democrats split and became known to the public as the Preyer supporters and the Moore supporters. Consequently, the Young Republicans may have won support from the Preyer people. Gavin himself has made no secret of the fact that he will welcome such support.

Both the campus Young Democrats Club and the Young Republicans Club here have shown a vivid interest in their candidates this year. They have done much to inform the rest of the students what their candidates have to offer or what their opponents lack, as the case may be. Both clubs have shown a desire to arouse interest in politics in general in addition to their particular parties. This poll will have significance to them as an indication of both their individual strength and the overall campus interest in the elections.

If the straw vote is to be of any value to anyone, however, it will require the backing of more than just the two or three thousand students who normally vote in campus elections. It is hoped that every student will make a special effort to vote, making this a successful election for all the issues involved, not just the straw vote.

Japan Philharmonic, Stern Please Patrons

By JIM ROBINSON

The concert given by the Japan Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra last Thursday and Friday nights in the Reynolds Coliseum proved interesting and well-performed.

The orchestra, under the direction of its founder and conductor, Akeo Watanabe, is on tour for the first time in the Western World this year.

The first piece on the program was William Schuman's "American Festival Overture," a fast-moving musical recreation of boyhood days in an American big city. The audience responded favorably.

In contrast, the second number, "Essay for Strings," by Japanese composer Toshiro Ma-yuzumi, was not as well received. The composition, beginning as a mournful violin solo and growing to a weird surging chorus including the whole orchestra, brought images of a land of dragons. However, the mysterious dissonant beauty seemed to be too much for the audience, which responded with some impolite laughter and only perfunctory applause.

Completing the first half of the concert was Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor, Opus 64" with Isaac Stern as violin soloist. His colorful and intricate performance was only momentarily marred by a broken string in the midst of a solo passage Thursday night. Stern turned and exchanged instruments with the first violinist until his violin was restrung and returned to him. Stern completed the piece and bowed to a well-deserved standing ovation.

The concert ended with "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Opus 43" by Jean Sibelius.

After prolonged final applause, the orchestra played an encore entitled "Dai Kagra."

Mr. Watanabe, autographing programs and answering questions "backstage" at the Coliseum, said, "It was very exciting to play before so many people. They were very enthusiastic. It was wonderful." The audience numbered about 7,500 and apparently the conductor may have had some apprehensions. He was well pleased with the concert, however, and repeated his appreciation.

On The Campaign Trail

(Editor's Note: The following is the second of a series of background and platform information submitted by the candidates in the fall elections. The material is written by the candidates and, except for necessary editing, is printed as submitted. This coverage will continue until Wednesday, the day before elections.)

FRESHMAN CLASS PRESIDENT
Jim Bailey

October the twenty-ninth is a very important day in the life of every freshman at N. C. State. On this day every freshman should fulfill his first obligation as a member of the class of 1968. He should vote for his class officers and Student Government representatives.

A great deal of the outlook of the class will be determined by the extent of the vote cast. If a large proportion of the freshmen vote, then the future prospects of the class will appear favorable. On the other hand, if a small proportion of the class vote, then the outlook is one of disinterest and unconcern for the class and for the school in general. What kind of a class would you like to have? I urge you to vote on election day.

The accomplishments of the class will also depend, to a great extent, on the candidates that are elected to represent the class. When a student votes on election day, he should ask this question about each candidate: Could he do the job well?

Many freshmen have asked me, since I am a candidate for class president, what is the job of the president. In my opinion, the most important duty of a class president is to lead the causes of the students in the class. The most important objectives of a class president are to develop loyalty to the school and unity in the class. Being quite hard to accomplish, these objectives demand the efforts of every freshman class student. One can begin to help his class now by voting on Thursday.

If I am elected president of the freshman class, I will diligently pursue all matters pertaining to the freshman class and to N. C. State in hopes that some lasting gain will be accomplished for our school.

Family Files Suit In Death Of Jon Speaks

A $200,000 damage suit has been filed in Superior Court in Tarboro charging negligence in the highway death of N. C. State basketball star, Jon Speaks, last year.

Donald Everette Hamilton Jr., 20-year-old driver of the car in which Speaks was a passenger, and Donald Everette Hamilton Sr., of Charlotte were named defendants in the suit.

Trial of the suit was docketed for the next term of civil session of Superior Court.

Speaks died in the May 26, 1963, accident in which Ron Gossell, 21, of Harvard, Ill., another N. C. State basketball star, was critically injured.

Young Hamilton, a football player at N. C. State and now a resident of Raleigh, was driving the car when it crashed into a concrete bridge on a straight two-lane stretch of N. C. 97 about 2 1/2 miles east of Leggett.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Speaks of Lexington, Ky., would be recipients of any award money. Joel Bourne, a Tarboro lawyer, is plaintiff in behalf of Speaks' estate since his parents are not residents of Edgecombe County.

Speaks, an all-Atlantic Coast Conference player and leading scorer on the N. C. State basketball team for two years, died a week before his graduation. He was a "B" student and vice president of the Senior Class.

The complaint alleges Hamilton was negligent in failing to decrease his car's speed and heed a sign when he approached the narrow bridge into which the car careened. The car was registered in the youth's name but the complaint said it was bought by the senior Hamilton for the use of the family.

State Highway Patrolman Bill Pridden said shortly after the accident that his investigation led him to believe the car was not speeding or all three boys would have been killed.

Model Assembly To Be Held On United Nation At UNCCH

The Collegiate Council for the United Nations will hold a Model General Assembly at UNCCH February 10-13.

The model assembly includes the same style committees, security council, and general assembly found in the actual United Nations organization in New York. Each college in the mid-south is allowed a delegation consisting of five members, with some of the larger schools having two or three delegations.

State will have three delegations this year. Each delegation will represent a particular country and seek to represent that country in the same manner as that country would represent itself in the actual United Nations.

There are four main committees in the Model General Assembly. These are Political and Security, Social Humanitarian and Cultural, Economic and Financial, and Administrative and Budgetary. All legislation which is brought before the committees is brought before the General Assembly. For example, last year the Union of South Africa was condemned for apartheid and the USSR nearly lost its vote in the General Assembly for being more than two years arrears in its debts.

There will be a meeting of all students interested in being delegates Tuesday in Harrelson 325 at 7:30.

Glee Club Season To Open Thursday

The 1964-65 Glee Clubs will open their season with the Varsity Men's Glee Club, under the direction of J. Perry Watson, performing at St. Mary's College this Thursday.

This year's Glee Club is the largest in the history of N. C. State and is one of the largest in the Southeast.

The officers for this year's Glee Club are the following: Walter C. Richardson, president; H. Boyd Perry, first vice president; and James R. Honeycutt, second vice president. Rudy M. Partin is secretary-treasurer of the Varsity Men's Glee Club.

UTC Captures Soil Contest

The University of Tennessee won the 1964 Southeastern Collegiate Soil contest held here last weekend.

Tennessee Tech won second place in the competition that covered a seven-state area.

These two top teams are going to the national contest which will also be held here in the spring.

The Agronomy Club was the sponsor of the contest and was therefore unable to enter, since the students from the sponsoring school know the soil types in the area.

After the welcome and orientation ceremonies Friday, the teams practice-judged one or two pits at the Crops Research Station near Clayton. That night a banquet was held in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union for the soil judging teams and their coaches.

The contest began Saturday morning when the contestants were carried to four pits of different soil types.

The trophies were presented after the judging Saturday afternoon.
