Johnson Scores Landslide Victory; Moore Downs Gavin For Governor

LBJ Sweeps N.C. As Well

President Lyndon Johnson was returned to the White House last night with an overwhelming victory in the national election.

A Tar Heel win for Johnson was one of the indications of the landslide by which Johnson won his first term in office.

The trend was very apparent as early as 7:40 p.m. when the popular vote count showed Johnson with 1,750,264 and Goldwater with 1,173,608. The President at that point had 60.2 per cent of the vote to 39.8 per cent for his GOP rival. The first four states to tumble into the Johnson column were Kentucky, Ohio, Massachusetts, and Connecticut. Ohio was one of the states Goldwater had listed as necessary for Republican victory.

Early returns also indicated that the Democrats had retained control in the House of Representatives and the Senate. They were expected to gain more members in the House.

By 9:15 p.m., with only 18 per cent of the vote counted, Johnson had a lead of 2,770,000 votes.

Just before 10 p.m., it appeared that Senator Goldwater might carry only three states—Alabama, Mississippi, and South Carolina. However, with 38 per cent of the votes tallied in Georgia, a state that has never gone Republican in a Presidential election, Goldwater was in the lead.

A number of previously Republican strongholds were falling like bowling pins into the Johnson column. In many cases, Republican congressional and state candidates were being dragged down with Goldwater.

Piedmont Splits

Democrat Dan K. Moore swept out to an early lead in the race for the North Carolina governorship last night, outpolling his Republican opponent in every section of the state.

With a third of the precincts reported, Moore had better than a 24,000 vote lead, but Robert Gavin, the Republican nominee, had more votes than in 1960 when he was unsuccessful in a race against present Governor Terry Sanford.

Moore outdid himself in the East, which gave him the nomination, pulling in 64 per cent of the vote, with his narrowest margin in the normally Republican Piedmont section. In Moore's home section, the West, Gavin polled only 42 per cent of the vote, down from his tally in the region in 1960.

Democrat Robert Scott was easily elected lieutenant governor and members of the Council of State up for re-election won handily.

At Technician press time, Republican Jim Gardner was closely trailing incumbent Congressman Harold Cooley for Fourth District representative.

Secretary of State Thad Eure defeated Edwin Butler of Clinton; Treasurer Edwin Gill defeated Charles Mitchell of High Point; Auditor Henry Bridges defeated Everett Peterson of Clinton; Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier defeated John Clifford of Winston-Salem; Agriculture Commissioner James Graham defeated Van S. Watson of Whitaker; and Attorney General Wade Bruton defeated T. Worth Coltrane of Asheboro.

'Antigone' Opens Saturday

The Frank Thompson Theatre will open Saturday with its first play, Antigone. Eugene Seals (from left) and Craig Givens have the roles of second and third guards. Lloyd Harmon plays Haemon. Frosh Runoff Tomorrow

Jim Bailey and Bill Iler will knock heads for the presidency of the freshman class in tomorrow's run-off elections.

In other freshman class contests, Chris Christy and Tim Scofield will compete for the vice presidency and Hardy Poole will vie with Thomas Finch for the treasurer's position.

Thirteen senatorial positions are still vacant and will be decided in the run-off. These seats are for the schools of Design, Forestry, Education, Liberal Arts, and the Graduate School.

Election boxes will be located at the same positions and will maintain the same hours of operation.

SG Debates Homecoming

The major item of consideration at tonight's Student Government meeting will be a bill calling for revision in the process for selection of the homecoming queen.

The group supporting the measure feels that there is too little student representation in the actual choosing of the queen.

The resolution, which was introduced at the last regular meeting by Engineering Senator John Yarbrough, claims that "no consensus of the student body is taken in the selection of the homecoming queen."

The "Homecoming Queen Selection Process" resolution would make the following recommendations to the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity, sponsors of the Miss Wolfpack contest:

"That steps be taken to cause increased participation of the student body and/or its representatives in the selection of Homecoming Queen. These may include:

- Inclusion of student representatives on the committee of judges for the final selection.
- Inclusion of student representatives in the selection group for determining the 10 finalists.
- The suggested student representation may include one or two members from each of the following groups:
 - 1) Fraternities and sororities
 - 2) Non-fraternity dormitory residents (male)
 - 3) Watauga Hall
 - 4) Off-campus students
 - 5) Student Government"

The resolution also calls for a Student Government vote of confidence for the "fine job done in the past."

State To Host Union Meeting

N. C. State will host the Region V Conference of College Unions next fall.

This year's conference was held last week at the University of Kentucky. Five State students and two staff members attended.

Bill Campbell of UNCCH was elected president of the conference.

State students attending the meeting were Herb Sanborn, George Barnett, Joe Clocker, Janice Lee, and Barbara Miller.

The purpose of the convention is to exchange ideas and solutions to problems existing in college union.

SAE Placed On Social Probation Following IFC Rules Infraction

By JAY STUART
Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity was found guilty Monday night of serving alcoholic beverages to minors and has been placed on social probation for the remainder of the academic year, according to Tom Covington, assistant director of student affairs.

Due to the violation, which involved high school students from St. Mary's on October 21, the SAE's will be allowed only one weekend party this year. The party may consist of live entertainment with dates, but at no time will girls be allowed in the fraternity house except during this one function.

Jim Martin, president of SAE, had no comment to make except that the fraternity would appeal the Interfraternity Council Investigations Board's decision to the IFC as a whole. The appeal was to have taken place last night at the weekly meeting of the IFC.

Covington, commenting on the decision of the Investigations Board, said he "thought the board handled the situation properly." The trial and investigation was handled entirely by the students.

Last April the SAE's were placed on social probation by the administration due to what was termed "the poor condition of their house and a party held early Sunday morning . . ." At that time questions were raised as to why the matter was not referred to the IFC Investigations Board.

Covington, in a statement to The Technician, said that "the IFC Investigations Board has not been directly involved with this particular incident stems from the fact that IFC does not have any policies with regard to the physical conditions of a fraternity house, nor does IFC grant approval of 1 a.m. to 6 a.m. parties."

Since that time, the IFC has made policies concerning the hours at which parties may be given and the methods of approval of parties.

E. Sigurd Johnson Award Presented

Frank Royal Loyd Jr., a junior in furniture manufacturing and management, has won the E. Sigurd Johnson Memorial Award, presented by the N. C. State Furniture Alumni.

The annual award was established by the alumni group in memory of the late Professor E. Sigurd Johnson, first head of the furniture curriculum offered through the Department of Industrial Engineering.

Loyd was selected for the honor on the basis of scholarship, leadership potential, character, and interest in the furniture industry.

An active member of the Furniture Club and the student chapter of the Forest Products Research Society, Loyd is also on the Dean's List and a third-year N. C. State band member.

- Campus Crier -

The Taylor Sociology Club will meet tomorrow at noon in Harris Cafeteria. Dr. Bert Adams from UNC at Chapel Hill will speak on "Visitation Patterns and Kinship Roles of Young Married Couples." The public is invited.

The Congress of Racial Equality will hold its southern regional conference Friday and Saturday at the Union Baptist Church in Durham. Contact Fred Lutz at TE 2-9263.

The Ag Ed Club will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Tompkins Hall.

All fraternity treasurers will meet tonight at 7:30 in 211 Peele Hall to discuss financial matters related to fraternities.

An economics textbook found in the Textile School may be obtained at the Sigma Chi fraternity at TE 2-9148.

A Penney's jacket with the name Foil on the brand label was lost. The owner asks that it be returned to the information desk at the Union.

A Cushman motor scooter manual with a blue cover and a Cushman Eagle on the front has been lost. Contact John McAlpine, 321 Owen.

All presidents of clubs in the School of Liberal Arts are asked to submit a list of all members and officers to The Agromeek office as soon as possible.

Freshmen, Graduates: Don't Forget To Vote

Elections aren't over yet, at least not for the freshmen and graduate students. The polls will be open tomorrow for all freshmen and graduate students to vote in the run-off elections.

In many respects, this election is just as important as the primary election last Thursday, particularly for the class officers, for many positions are yet to be decided. The positions of freshman class president, vice president, and treasurer remain to be filled. In addition there are 13 senatorial positions still to be contested.

If the turnout for the primary elections was indicative of the interest the freshmen have in the elections, then tomorrow's elections should be interesting. About 50 per cent of the freshman class voted last week, which is highly complimentary, in comparison with the 34 per cent of the entire campus that voted. A similar turnout in the run-off would mean that the winning candidates for class offices would have to take more than 500 votes.

The field has been narrowed considerably since the primary, so an individual candidate should count on getting more of his supporters to the polls if he wants to win the final go-round. A candidate with 300 votes in the primary might need twice that number to win in the run-off, provided the turnout is as good or better.

Just remember that the polls are open tomorrow and that your vote counts.

1964 Homecoming A Great Day At NCS

Homecoming was never like this—or so it seemed on several occasions Saturday. Spirits, of one kind or another, were high and the weather was beautiful—a perfect day for homecoming.

The day began without the annual homecoming parade, which was mourned by few and forgotten by many. The Raleigh City Police cheered—they already had enough headaches. The local residents were curious—they thought State was losing its human touch. And the students carried on as usual—they were anxious to get to the game.

One of the happiest moments of the day came at the halftime when the winner of the homecoming queen contest was announced. Nearly everyone was curious. Four coeds were among the 10 finalists for the first time in the history of the predominantly male University. So when Many Ann Weathers was named Miss Wolfpack, the crowd went wild. They were cheering an N. C. State student, not a stranger.

Before this year, no one had really pushed the idea of having the homecoming contestants limited only to State coeds, rather than opening the contest to girls from colleges all over North Carolina. But if the enthusiasm over Mary Ann is any indication of approval of this idea, then perhaps the rules should be changed. Anyway, the trend is looking good.

When the second half began, the football team was the only sore thumb of the day. But the Wolfpack, eager for another win, sneaked past the University of South Carolina Gamecocks, and emerged victorious—to make the day complete.

It was a great day for N. C. State.

On The Campaign Trail

DESIGN SENATOR

William A. Barbour

There are many different systems of successful government but all have one thing in common—active participation by the governed. Here at N. C. State, you the students participate by electing qualified student government representatives from your midst. Since this is the only means of expressing the mood of the student body, it is essential that you select a representative who is not only experienced in the legislative process, but one who will constantly lend a sympathetic ear to the opinions of his classmates.

I have gained parliamentary experience through various high school organizations and teen political groups. I share your problems and would gladly share your opinions. With these thoughts in mind, I solicit your support in tomorrow's election.

FRESHMAN CLASS

PRESIDENT

Jim Bailey

Before the election of the freshman class officers and student government senators on October 29, I urged you, in an article appearing in The Technician, to vote for the candidates of your choice. Once again, I urge you to support your candidates in the run-off election on November 5. I hope you will vote because it is one of the few times that a freshman can play an active role in the decisions of his class.

Throughout my campaign, I have strived to approach as many of the freshmen at N. C. State as possible. I have visited almost all of the dorms on campus, and I have talked with individual students as long as fifteen minutes at a given time. During these visits, I have made no promises nor have I obligated myself to any group of freshmen on campus. I have not and I will not flatter anyone with promises which I am unable to fulfill. I offer only good, honest leadership and hard work if you elect me as the president of the freshman class. I will respect your opinions, honor your ideas, and strive to carry out your wishes if you elect me to lead your class.

During my four years of high school, I participated in many of the functions of my school and class. I served as vice president of the senior class, business manager of the yearbook, mimograph editor of the school newspaper, president of the Beta Club, vice president of the National Honor Society, a member of the Monogram Club, and a member of the high school basketball team. In those four years, I learned two things. First, I learned the importance of cooperation and interest in the class and school; and second, I learned the necessity of hard work in accomplishing goals. Now that I am running for this office, I urge you to cooperate and show interest in your class by voting on November 5. If you elect me as your president, I will diligently work for the advancement of the class. I will strive to be your leader, to represent you at N. C. State.

Thus, I have made my last appeal for your support in the run-off election. But whether I win or lose this election, my efforts will not have been in vain, for the experience that I have gained in meeting people and the lasting friendships that I have made throughout this period are far more valuable to me than the office itself.

FRESHMAN CLASS VICE PRESIDENT

Tim Scofield

I, Tim Scofield, candidate for vice president of the freshman class, have served in student government in high school and feel the experience will enable me to fulfill the responsibilities of the office I now seek.

Recently, many decisions affecting freshmen have been made by upperclassmen having no concern with the feelings of the freshmen. I want the freshman voice to be heard, and I intend to have it heard if elected vice president.

If the freshman class officers are to be effective, they must speak with a unified voice. It is the duty of the vice president to work with the president and help him in any way possible to present a unified voice. That is what I propose to do if elected vice president.

STEAMPIPES

By Bill Fishburne

Into the mind's eye of a thousand lashes walks the stagnation of the soul. Self-condemnation of the wrongness of a noble experiment comes crashing around its head, as the tiger claws its back. The light in the wilderness is extinguished, as if it never burned; and one man walks alone.

Cantilevered justice from the mighty paw swirls and flows to the limbo of all lost causes and the rationalizations pour forth. Buddhist monks burn in the streets and parish priests say their beads, and the sports fans cheer from the sidewalks. Hush, America; the night is dark and the work is yet to be done.

Kerouac has a nightmare and Feringetti's Cuba sinks into the rippling sea. No one cares.

The people cry or laugh in the courtyard as the master's voice rings down the empty halls promising a meaningless fief. Not a sound is made inside. No one hears.

The race goes on as the lemmings push into the sea, and the birds fly south; or north; or not at all. No one knows.

Pools seek their "dusty death" as the candle dims, and the idiot tells his tale. The candle flickers, but does not die.

A child seeks the comfort of its mother, the strength of its father, amid the ashes of the forgotten world. A cord of wood is thrown into a fire; but no one guarantees that it will burn. People come and people go, but institutions are established and goals are set and met, with individuals working in harmony. The fear enters and the child cries, for the wood will not burn and institutions have died; the torchbearer trips on the last step.

Hush, America; the night is dark and the work is yet to be done.

Leaders are born and heroes are made, while the meek tremble and the tender cry. Goals are met or lost with the mettle of the individual, for the mouth must end and the work begin.

The victor garners the spoils and the vanquished walk the lonesome trail, but who will judge today's man today? A thousand tears will judge; may it take a thousand years.

Meanwhile, the sun sets in the west and a lonesome man meets his fate, asking, When and Where. And the natives riot in the streets in honor of his defeat.

Dust settles in the Village pads for the enemy has been met; and they are ours. The beats return to the cellars and the fight is over. The issues will die and bitter memories will fade into the night. Hush, America; the night is dark and the work is yet to be done.

One hundred million people with one voice cry out; and no one hears, and no one cares. Examine the ants, Thoreau, and look at the grass, Mr. Whitman, for the Nightmares begin at night. The stoics cringe and the hedonists cease their orgy, nevermore. The Lion roars tonight.

Hush, America; the night is dark and the work will never be done.

AGE PROBLEMS

To the Editor:

Since this week is the highlight of this nation's political scene, perhaps someone in the student body can help me with a problem. Each year of election, there are several million Americans between the ages of 18 and 21 who are denied the privilege of voting. Certainly there can be no doubt that this age group has the responsibility and maturity to evaluate the qualifications of a presidential candidate. Students study politics, read platforms, and, in my opinion, are much more open-minded and thoughtful than some of the 99-year-old "sages" who are given the privilege to vote. The main idea that has always been a thorn in the flesh for me is the idea that I am old enough to travel anywhere in the world and carry a rifle, but I'm not old enough to decide what concepts or leaders I am to fight for!

Many of the engineers at State have had the opportunity to read the article in The Southern Engineer, written by Mr. W. G. Preussel Jr., EE '65. His article involves more than just the age limit I'm crying about, including the effects of the party system and policies of government. It's my suggestion to the author that much of the indifference on campus could be attributed to the fact that in most cases one is not allowed to vote until he is at the level of a senior. Why get upset about a situation one can do absolutely nothing about? Don't misunderstand me; I agree with the author in every way, but I am suggesting that this "indifference" in my opinion, can be attributed to the age limit.

Why is this farce of excluding millions of Americans every election year allowed to continue? Can anything be done?

I am personally 20 years of age, and although I consider myself rather low on the intellectual "totem pole," I try to credit myself with being able to evaluate a situation such as this election. How many others under 21 feel "immature"? Does it bother you that you have no voice in this "democracy" of ours?

This problem bothers me continuously. Perhaps one of my contemporaries would like to explain "why" to me.

Leo R. Simpson

THE CONTROLLING BODY

To the Editor:

In an article under the caption of "SG and ME," Bob Holmes expressed dismay over the fact that the Sigma Chi fraternity controls so much of the Student Government here at State.

I would like to point out that there are approximately 140 elected and appointed positions in the organization of Student Government. At the present time, the number of Sigma Chis serving Student Government in any capacity is 15. This representation has been responsible for much of the work and many of the important contributions in SG this year. It appears inconsistent to criticize the student body for being apathetic, and then criticize an organization for showing a strong interest.

I agree with the concept of government without minority rule, but until I see a bill passed in the legislature to specifically benefit this fraternity, I will not worry about this problem in our Student Government.

Three Teams Upset In Fraternity Play-offs

By MARTIN WHITE

Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, and Pi Kappa Alpha, all second place teams from Sections #1, #2, and #4, took upset victories from three first place teams to advance to the semi-final round of action in the fraternity intramural football play-offs. Sigma Phi Epsilon of Section #1 was the only first place team to reach the second round.

The Sig Eps extended their undefeated record to a 7-0 mark with a 26-6 victory over Pi Kappa Phi. The two teams played even ball in the first half of the game as each squad tallied one score for a 6-6 deadlock. Doug Monday put the Sig Eps into a 6-0 lead with a 50-yard touchdown pass play to Pat Calhoun. Martin of PKP took a hand-off after a completed pass and raced 50 yards to tie the score.

SPE went ahead for good in the contest when the Monday to Calhoun combination completed another TD pass in the third period. Two touchdowns in the final quarter iced the victory for the Sig Eps as Monday completed scoring passes to Waggoner and Calhoun. Laird scored an extra point for the winners.

Pi Kappa Alpha took a 6-0 lead over previously undefeated Sigma Nu in the first period and withstood a strong rally in the second half to take a 20-14 victory.

The Pikas scored first on a pass from Morrison to Grey for the 6-0 halftime lead. Each team scored seven points in the final two periods as Morrison connected with Grey and Collins and Brisson of Sigma Nu threw a scoring pass to Hendricks and tallied on a run.

Another undefeated team, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, met its Waterloo in the form of a very determined Theta Chi team by a slim 19-18 margin. Theta Chi scored the first TD of the game in the second period for a 6-0 halftime lead. Dellostritto threw to Swain for the tally.

In the third period, the SAE's nulled to within one point with two touchdowns on passes from Penninger to Everett and Parker. Dellostritto connected to Swain again for a 13-12 Theta Chi lead at the end of the period. Dellostritto gave the underdogs a seven point lead in the final quarter on a pass to Meade, but Penninger matched the score with his third TD pass. A chance to tie the game failed as the extra point pass was batted down.

In the third upset game of the day, Sigma Chi came from behind in the final period to take a 27-24 victory from Pi Kappa (See FRATERNITY, Page 4)

Matmen Begin Practice With Several Vacancies

Wrestling season is here again as Coach Al Crawford begins practice by inviting all young men interested in wrestling for State to come down and discuss the program with him any afternoon at 5:00, in the wrestling room of Carmichael Gym.

Wrestling at State is strictly on a competitive basis, and a few weight classes on both the freshman and varsity squads have very little competition right now.

Practice began Tuesday with several of last year's lettermen returning. Among them is Robert Brawley, 167-pound conference champion, who was voted outstanding wrestler in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year.

Coach Crawford is looking forward to another successful season after a commendable 7-4-1 record last year. This was good for a third place finish in the conference.

Dormitory Football Reaches Final Round

As the dormitory intramural football season reaches the final round, only Becton of Section #2 and Alexander of Section #4 remain undefeated.

Berry-Welch-Gold leads in Section #1 with a 4-1 record while Bragaw North #1 and Bragaw South #1 are tied for second place with 3-2 marks. Last week South #1 tied North #1, 0-0. B-W-G won over Lee #2.

Becton, 5-0, heads Section #2 while Owen #1 with a 4-1 record holds second place. Owen #1 defeated Owen #2, 28-0 last week.

In Section #3, Tucker #2 and Syme are tied for the first place position with 4-1 marks. In the last round, Tucker #2 defeated Tucker #1 by a 19-0 score while Syme won over Bragaw North #2, 16-7.

Undefeated Alexander holds the number one position in Section #4 with a 5-0 mark, followed closely by Turlington with a 4-1 record. Last week Alexander downed Lee #3, 21-0, and Turlington defeated Bragaw South #2 by a 13-0 score.
