Watauga Hall Housemother Discovers Little Change

By BILLI DARDEN

"There's not much difference between being a housemother for girls and monitoring a fraternity," according to Mrs. Martha Lathrop, former housemother of Sigma Chi Fraternity and present dorm resident for Watauga Hall.

In an interview with The Technician, Mrs. Lathrop said while she has not gotten to know all the coeds in the dorm but the ones with which she has had contact have been very kind and cooperative.

There was some confusion at first, according to the head resident, when messages had to be delivered to each room personally since there was no intercom system. One has been established now, she added, and this has freed the phone on each hall.

A convenience soon to be added to the dorm is a selection of vending machines which will be located inside the residence hall on the first floor.

A suggestion for further comfort which has been turned in to the housing office is a request for furniture for the lounges on each floor, according to Mrs. Lathrop. "This was just a proposal made at the first meeting the girls held," she added.

Another recommendation the girls have made is that no shorts and bermudas be worn on campus. "There are no plans to enforce this," she asserted. "It was just one idea the girls thought of."

The 80 residents elected officers to represent them in IDC Tuesday. President of the first women's dorm on campus is Judi Blondeau, a junior from Maryland. Jane Kenyon of Raleigh is vice president, and Barbara Brown, a Raleigh sophomore, is secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Lathrop has been associated with State in previous years when her son, Roy, a 1959 graduate, was editor of The Technician.

Auto Permit Sales Increasing; Parking Problem Is Critical

More Cars Than Ever

By CORA KEMP

The number of student parking permits sold so far this semester are well above last year's figures despite the increase in rates.

Mrs. Esther Hinton of the Traffic Records Office yesterday reported 3,682 student permits had been sold. Only 3,296 were sold by this time last year.

An additional 2,612 permits have been sold to faculty and staff members. Seventy-eight motor bike and 91 bicycle permits have also been issued.

The cost of student permits were raised $1 over last year. They now cost $4. Faculty and staff permits were also increased from $3 to $5.

Mrs. Hinton said students were still coming in every day to buy the permits. They are valid until August 31, 1965.

Mrs. Hinton also said 3,016 traffic tickets had been issued this semester. However, she could not say whether this figure was higher than last year's.

Most of the tickets were issued to students parking in no parking areas around the dormitories at night, she pointed out. This is a $2 violation. There were also a number of tickets issued for parking in restricted areas, a $5 violation, she said.

N. B. Watts, advisor to the Student Government Traffic Committee, credited the increase in the cost of permits to inflation.

"Everything is going up," he said. Watts added, however, that a new employee had been added to help Mrs. Hinton in the Traffic Office. "It was too much work for one person," he said.

Watts issued a notice to all students earlier this week warning them not to park in areas not marked for parking, specifically not on the grass or dirt areas. He also cautioned them against parking in restricted zones.

W. T. Blackwood, chief of the campus police, termed the traffic problem "terrible." He said most of the violations are occurring in the vicinity of Lee Dorm, where students have only limited parking spaces.

Blackwood said his three traffic policemen are kept busy this semester due to the congested area. He added that no plans are in the making for expanding the number of policemen to combat the problem. "They'll just have to work harder," he said.

A 66-car parking lot for the 840-man Lee Dorm is now on the drawing board, Blackwood said.

Student parking places numbered around 3,500 when an official count was taken in 1962. Counting faculty and staff areas, the spaces total 4,924.

Coeds Need Sleep; Architects Don't

By JANEEN SMITH

Complaints have come to the School of Design from campus housing authorities that design students working late at night are disturbing Watauga coeds.

Yesterday a memo was issued to all design students that "full consideration for the sleeping habits of young women should be observed during the late night hours."

The ultimatum: If the noise isn't cut down, the drafting rooms and studios will be locked at the dormitory closing hours.

How do the coeds feel about midnight shenanigans in the School of Design?

"The noise isn't bad—it's just like somebody walking down the halls, only a little more interesting."

"My room faces the School of Design and I haven't heard a thing—but then, I'm a design student."

"Does it both me—no! But I love watching it."

"I don't hear a thing."

"Why should I complain? They're over there working. It doesn't bother me at all."

"You can find some pretty cute boys just by looking through the windows. They can't throw the poor things out!"

Mrs. Lathrop, the Watauga head residence counselor, said that she had been disturbed on occasion, and that she had received several complaints from the girls in the dorm.

"I understand that the boys have to work late, but we have to get up in the mornings. If some of the girls are disturbed, there is a problem."

YDC Elections

Two State students have announced their candidacy for offices in the North Carolina Federation of College Young Democrats.

Ed Merritt is running for chairman and Milton Helms, current president of the N. C. State YDC, is campaigning for vice chairman. The election of officers will be during the statewide convention of the North Carolina YDC being held today through Sunday at the Sir Walter Hotel.

The candidates were given 100 per cent support by the N. C. State YDC at its first general membership meeting Monday night.

New Arts

Anyone who wishes to buy a ticket to New Arts may still obtain one for $3.50 at the Erdahl-Cloyd Union main desk.

The first program of the season will be the Four Freshmen, Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum.

COACH OF THE WEEK

Coach Earle Edwards of N. C. State has been named national Coach of the Week by United Press International. The wire service's selection, based on votes by sports writers, came following State's 14-13 victory over arch-rival Carolina. A pep rally will be held today at 4 p.m. at the track field in preparation for tomorrow's State-Clemson game. (See story, Page 3.)

Honor Code Board Makes Revisions

Recently established review boards and a revision in the honor pledge are two changes which have been made by the Honor Code Board.

The Board, which was begun to help enforce the honor system, is planning a more active year than it has known in the past, according to Mike Scofield, chairman. It will be involved in a year-long orientation program aimed at new students.

The review boards have been established in each school and are composed of two professors and three students. They will hear cases where evidence is vague and refer them to the Honor Code Board or dismiss them, Scofield said. He added that a student will act as chairman of each board.

The revision of the pledge came in the dropping of the clause which makes it mandatory for a student to turn in anyone he thinks is cheating, lying, or stealing. Scofield said, "Students are still strongly advised to turn in violators."

Another change in procedure, according to Scofield, will be better coverage of the activities of the board by The Technician. He said, "There will be more details and explanations made available as well as more letters to the editor."

AGR Frat Gets Housekeeping Award

By Jay Stuart

Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity members have been named the best house keepers on fraternity row.

For their achievement they will receive $25 from the Student Activities Office. The results of the "summer house maintenance evaluation program" were announced by Tom Covington, assistant director of Student Activities, at the Interfraternity Council meeting Tuesday night. Second place went to Phi Kappa Tau which will receive $15.

Allen Tohill reported for the social committee that the Shirelles have been booked for the Fall IFC, October 14. Entertainment for the Sunday afternoon concert is still to be determined.

Four fraternities were placed on social probation by the IFC Investigations Board. The averages of the four being placed on probation are as follows:

	Fall	Spring
Delta Sigma Phi	2.08426	2.02258
Kappa Sigma	2.10947	2.22556
Sigma Pi	1.81281	2.08740

PEP RALLY TODAY: 4 P. M. AT THE TRACK FIELD

New Opportunities

N. C. State is relatively new in the field of liberal arts, but it is consistently providing the students in the various departments with opportunities unequalled anywhere else in the state.

One example is the progress being made in the Department of Political Science. The North Carolina Center for Education in Politics is instituting a new program this spring that will provide an unusual opportunity for students interested in politics. The organization will select five to ten students from universities throughout the state to work as interns in the General Assembly.

The program has special significance here, however, because this campus will serve as the center for much of the activity. In addition to working with the legislators, the students will take political science courses here specifically designed to relate to their work.

For political science majors, the program would prove to be highly advantageous since their jobs as interns would function as a laboratory period to expose them to an application of their studies.

But the program is not limited to political science majors. Any student may apply. Here again the program would be profitable to students who are interested in that field but have not yet made up their minds what their major will be.

In addition to the interns, about 20 to 30 more students will be selected to attend political science workshops later in the spring semester.

State students have nothing to lose by applying for the positions. If they are selected, they will be among the few who are able to obtain a first-hand knowledge of the operations of North Carolina's governing body.

This would not only mean more to the students directly involved, but it would also mean N. C. State would be taking a step forward in improving and supplementing the programs it has to offer.

Onward & Outward

Apparently the motto for dormitory expansion here at State is "onward and outward." Students living in Lee Dorm will in the future no longer be considered the distant exiles on campus. It is not inconceivable that they may, in fact, become situated on the geographic center of men's housing on campus if present building trends continue.

Another dorm is being constructed behind Lee which is itself already about a mile from the administration buildings. That's a long walk for those who do not own cars or who prefer not to fight for a parking place near classrooms.

Residents in dormitories which are closer in towards campus must face the choice between the poor lighting, worn bedsprings, cramped closets, and noise of the older buildings and the remote but appealing newer constructions. The outside appearance of the old dorms may be improved by laying more brick; their function, unfortunately, is not.

It might be easier to reduce the masonry of some of the veteran dorms to solid foundations for more accessible modern construction. Admittedly there would be a problem created by demolishing the old dorms because of the present lack of housing space; however, it might be less expensive and more convenient in the long run.

This problem of inconvenience is no new issue. Married students living in McKimmon Village are a mile and a half from the main campus. Their plight, if dorm expansion keeps State moving westward, is to be shared by the Class of 1984.

One would hope that food service and library facilities follow the direction of dorm construction. That way, even if students can't make it to classes, they may still read and stay alive.

To the Editor:

We the undersigned found this year's issue of The Tower very interesting. Under the student activities section, an organization is listed called the Young Americans for Freedom which is supposedly non-partisan and dedicated to oppose the "onslaught" of Communism. We wonder if such statements are really true.

Last year literature from the YAF here on campus opposed the NSA. The insinuation of that literature was that NSA is a "pink" organization. The literature pointed out that NSA had been praised by a Communist Party magazine, and the U. S. students are rebelling against their professor's "shop-worn liberal shibboleths." YAF goes on to describe some recent NSA resolutions in such a way as to make them seem pro-Communist.

We, the undersigned, do not endorse NSA, but we feel sure that if it was a pro-Communist organization, it would be on the U. S. attorney general's subversive organizations list.

The tactics of YAF are clear. The places where YAF finds the "onslaught" of Communism may not necessarily be Communist without stretching the truth quite a bit. We wonder if YAF did not spread more fear and untruth about Communism in its opposition to NSA than effective and rational opposition. NSA could possibly be a Communist organization, but YAF's "proof" of such is ridiculous. In fact, the best YAF can do to show "proof" is to use slanderous insinuations devoid of any reason.

In The Tower, the YAF is described as "non-partisan," yet we wonder how an organization which publicly supports the Republican candidate for President can be called non-partisan.

Of further interest is a statement in recent YAF literature which says that by opposing NSA, students can "oust entrenched liberalism from the campus." We are of the opinion that any reputable political organization in this country should have some degree of tolerance. In a democracy, to attempt to eliminate one's opposition by slander and fear is a rather radical measure. Perhaps the YAF has forgotten that compromise is one of the basic requirements of our Republic.

We hope that YAF will continue to exist on campus. We hope it will be a conservative organization—not a far right clique. A look at the National Advisory Board Members of YAF would show its close ties with the far right. No less than six members are leading participants in the John Birch Society. They are Taylor Caldwell, Robert B. Dresser, Charles Edison, J. Bracken Lee, Ludwig von Mises, and John H. Rousselet.

Until such time as the YAF will cut its ties with the far right and cease tactics such as defamation and fear, we feel that The Tower should describe the YAF for exactly what it is—a radical far right group which is neither non-partisan nor effectively opposed to Communism.

Prof Expounds On Barry

Professor Abe Holtzman of the Political Science Department, told the general membership of the YMCA last Monday night that Barry Goldwater is offering the voters a clear choice for the first time since the 1936 Presidential election.

Holtzman also pointed out the Goldwater strategy of trying to capture the Southern, Western, and Midwestern States in order to win the election. The fact that Goldwater has finally brought the two-party system to the South is significant, he said. "He could take North Carolina," Holtzman observed.

It is also a point of maturity in the U. S. that Goldwater's running mate, William Miller, is Catholic, and that fact has not become an issue in the campaign, Holtzman added.

The polls show that Goldwater is running far behind Johnson in popularity, but Holtzman explained that polls show what was happening only at the time the poll was taken.

A number of Republicans are changing party for this election because they consider Goldwater "radical," he said. This has caused a significant number of Republicans to have anti-Goldwater feelings all over the country, according to Holtzman.

Goldwater, on the other hand, is gaining a large percentage of Southern Democrats in his favor, Holtzman said. However, Holtzman would not predict who would win the election when asked by a "Y" member during the question period.

NRT RETURNS

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro will be host to the cast and staff of the National Repertory Theatre until October 18. The group arrived Sunday.

The theatre will give seven performances between October 9 and 17. The schedule is as follows: October 9 and 17—"Lilium," October 16—"Hedda Gabler," October 15 and 17—"She Stoops to Conquer."

While at UNCG, the 60 member of NRT will work with faculty members who will use the rehearsals as "laboratory sessions" for students of the theatre.

The group was also at UNCG last year for a two-week period. The Carolinian, UNCG

GRADE POINT AVERAGES

Spring semester grade point averages at the University of South Carolina show both sorority and fraternity averages above the all-men's and non-fraternity averages.

The all-sorority average was the highest at 2.810 while the all-fraternity average was next with 2.315. The all-men's average was 2.287 and the non-fraternity average, 2.275.

These figures are based on a four-point system. The university until this semester based grades on a 6.0 system. The figures used here have been converted from the six-point system to a four-point system which the university has recently adopted.

The new grading system is being adopted to eliminate grades of "B-" and "C-," according to officials at USC. Students below a 2.0 will be allowed to keep the same average. However, those above a 2.0 will be converted to the new system.

The University will use a computer to figure the new grades.

STUDENT FEES: RISING, BUT NO COMPLAINT AT CLEMSON

The Clemson Tiger revealed in a survey of the catalogs of several land-grant schools around the nation that its "cost of education" was still below many of other schools, including N. C. State.

The study showed State students spent an estimated $1,035 per year while Clemson students spent $1,016 per year. (However, the latest figures at State as listed in The Tower, the student handbook, are $1,402 per in-state student.) The Tiger, Clemson University

Carolina Upset Worrying Tigers

The Wolfpack has them running scared!
The 14-13 upset over Carolina has the football fortune tellers reviving their forecasts. The formality of both coaches informing the news media that the other coach has a great team is now over. What remains is 60 minutes of what should be an exciting ball game.
Coach Edwards is looking to better his 2-7 record against Coach Frank Howard's Clemson Tigers.
The Wolfpack has Coach

Earle Edwards, this week's National Coach of the Week, the knowledge that they can win, and the enthusiastic support of the Wolfpack fans.
Under the command of Wolfpack Quarterback Ron Skosnik and Charlie Noggle the Wolfpack should be an even match for Clemson. Glen Sasser, lineman of the week, along with the other standouts of the Carolina game, have the capability of placing the Wolfpack in contention for this season's conference honors.

Football Comments

By Coach Earle Edwards
Although we face a fine Clemson football team this week and are concerned about the difficulty of the game, I want to take this opportunity to make a point about our students. Last Friday night we had the best pep rally we have had in my experience here, and the vocal support at the game next day was as good as we have ever had. The good effect this has on a football team is hard to measure, but we know it is considerable and important to the outcome. The coaches and players appreciate very much the turnout on both occasions, and you deserve a full share of the credit for our victory.

We face a difficult schedule, and it is likely the results will not always be as satisfactory as they were last week. Faith and loyalty are in question when disappointment strikes. I just want to let you know what it can mean to the team in the long run.
