Senior AFROTC Cadets Honored In Final Parade

The annual AFROTC parade honoring the senior cadets Thursday marked the official change of command and the adoption of the STATE AFROTC Wing by the 482nd Squadron at Seymour Johnson AFB. Attending the ceremony was Chancellor John T. Caldwell, Col. J. D. Howder, Professor of Aerospace Studies at State, and Lt. Col. George R. Halliwell, Commander of the 482nd at Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base.

Lt. Col. Halliwell attached a banner on the ROTC wing flag, and a citation was read as the official announcement of the adoption of the 595th AFROTC wing by the 482nd Fighter-Interceptor Squadron at Seymour-Johnson. This adoption of cadet wings is now becoming a part of Air Force policy concerning ROTC for the purpose of closer coordination and guidance according to Cadet Colonel David Ivey, outgoing wing commander. To further mark the event a formation of F-102 Delta Darts made three passes over the parade field. The change of command was made official by the presentation of the Wing Commanders Trophy to the new Wing Commander, Cadet Colonel Leo G. Miller from Ivey.

There were 80 seniors honored in the ceremony. Of these cadets, 33 are now in flight instruction and 17 have been nominated for regular Air Force commissions on the basis of outstanding grade accomplishment and military bearing.

Cadet Captain Chip Brumberg received a letter of commendation for being the Marching Cadet Drill Team Commander this year.

The N. C. State Drum and Bugle Corps provided the cadence for the parade in which the entire wing passed the reviewing stand of senior cadets.

The parade marked the last drill this year for the AFROTC which was named the "wing most outstanding on the East Coast," by the inspection group from AFROTC Headquarters. The 595th Wing Command feels that it may or may not have the same wing strength next year due to the voluntary program in the future which will require a drastic change in the structure of the wing.

Plans Are Now Being Studied For 20,000 Students At State

A planning official at North Carolina State University predicts an eventual enrollment for N. C. State of 20,000 students.

Carroll L. Mann, director of facilities planning at State, made the prediction in describing campus planning at State to some 400 college physical plant directors at their national conference here Thursday, May 6.

Mann based his predictions on a national basis when an official of National Educational Facilities Laboratories in New York, speaking at the meeting, said college enrollment across America would double in the next decade.

Ronald W. Haase, an architectural staff member of the laboratories said, "We will have an enrollment explosion which will double college attendance in the next decade."

Haase noted that pressures on American colleges and universities include the following: Exploding enrollments, Expanding knowledge, and the decreasing ratio of teachers to students.

He also stated that colleges and universities need to increase their utilization of classroom space because of increasing enrollments.

Recommending increasing the use of "Student station space," the space required for one student in a classroom or a laboratory, Haase predicted that by raising space utilization 13 percent, 50 percent more students could be accommodated in the same amount of space.

Haase also recommended year-round student enrollments and noted that 12-month school years would prevent the large number of students looking for jobs in the summer.

Mann noted that State asked the 1965 General Assembly for buildings totaling $36 million. He conceded that it is highly unlikely that that much money will be received.

Faced with limitations of buildings funds and a sharply increasing enrollment, Mann said, "It is incumbent upon us to do the best we can with every dollar we get. Every dollar is real significant."

Reviewing the master plan for development of the North Carolina State Campus, Mann said, "We must grow up rather than out." He cited the high-rising Lee Hall and the forthcoming Sullivan Hall as examples.

Mann said the long-range plans for the State campus calls for walking students rather than motorized students. He pointed out that the design is to build new classrooms and dormitories so that students can walk from the center of the academic campus to the edges of it within eight minutes. Among the long-range plans for the University here, Mann said, are reservoirs of "green space", areas of trees, lawns and bushes.

Preservation of such areas, he said, is needed "If we are to have a university-like atmosphere rather than a factory-like atmosphere."

Slater Leaves Union, Starts Night Service

Slater Food Service will cancel its service to the Erdahl-Cloyd Union as of June 30 and will institute a new, nighttime service at Harris cafeteria beginning this summer. These two major changes in Slater service at N. C. State were announced yesterday by A. H. Clarke, director of dining services, at the final meeting of the Cafeteria Advisory Committee. According to Clarke, the Union service "is being discontinued by mutual agreement of the parties concerned." The Union will resume its own catering July 1. Henry Bowers, director of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union, stated that "this will be a reinstatement of the situation as of two years ago. We hope to offer a more closely co-ordinated service for the students." The Union staff will handle banquet services, snack bar, cafeteria line, and table service in the State room. A full time manager and an assistant manager will be employed by the Union and employees who were with the Union at the time Slater took over will be eligible to work for the Union again under the new arrangements, according to Bowers.

The new service at Harris cafeteria "will provide a new kind of service to the students in that living area", Clarke stated. The program, to be initiated during the summer session as a pilot model for the fall semester, will include a take-out service which will feature such items as chicken-in-the-basket, steak, sandwiches (hot and cold), and soft drinks.

Tentative hours of operation have been set at approximately 8 p.m. through 10 p.m. At present, the daily cafeteria services terminate at 7:30 p.m. Clarke noted that "if the service proves popular, we will probably extend the closing time to a later hour."

Correction

There is a correction to be made concerning the construction of Sullivan Dormitory.

The reported construction time of 15 weeks is in error, and the actual figure is 15 months. Construction of a 12 story dormitory in 15 weeks is impossible.

Therefore, the dorm will open to students in September, 1966, not in 1965.

Director In Textiles Retires After 22 Years At State

G. H. (Floopy) Dunlap will retire June 30 as placement director of the School of Textiles at N. C. State.

Dunlap's tenure with the School of Textiles began in applied research when he came to this campus in 1943. Since 1947, Dunlap has served as placement director of the School of Textiles. In this post, he has also acted as director of student activities, chairman of the scholarship committee, founder of the T. R. Hart Fund, and coordinator of the school's student recruiting program.

A native of Rock Hill, S. C., Dunlap was graduated from Clemson College in 1928. After playing a summer of pro-baseball with Greenville of the South Atlantic League, he became a textile faculty member at Clemson College. He became director of research for the Southern Textile Association after leaving Clemson in 1941. In December 1942, Dunlap was named assistant director of research for the Cotton Textile Institute, from which position he joined the administration of the School of Textiles at N. C. State in 1943.

The placement service that he developed and maintained during the past years was said by many professional personnel people to be the best in the country. Dunlap has been said to be one of the best-known men associated with the entire U. S. textile industry.

The outgoing placement director plans to spend more time with his family after retirement but will continue to be available to the school on a consulting basis. He is 62 years old and is retiring due to reasons of health. His wife is the former Franky Wickliffe of Wall-halla, S. C. His daughter, Franky, is a senior at Converse College. A son, George, Jr., is with Deering Milliken Research Corp. at Spartanburg, S. C. Another son, Billy will graduate from Duke University's Medical School in June.

Two weeks ago, the Golden Chain recognized Dunlap as their honorary member. The textile students have presented Dunlap with an air conditioner for his office, and instigated the Annual G. H. "Floopy" Dunlap Student-Faculty Golf Match, in appreciation for his services.

We're No. 1

The familiar strains of "Where the winds of Dixie softly blow . . .", the N. C. State Alma Mater, were heard in a most unfamiliar place yesterday, the WKIX radio station's "Tommy Walker Show."

N. C. State's number one tune captured the top spot on the program's "Top Five of the day" contest. Selection is based on the number of telephone requests received for any particular song, the winner being the rendition receiving the most requests. According to the radio station, more than 50 requests were taken for the N. C. State Alma Mater, providing the winning margin for the day.

However, when the winners were determined, WKIX discovered that it did not have a copy of the new number one tune and had to be rescued by the campus radio station, WKNC, which provided the appropriate record.

YMCA Officers Plan For More Activities

Walter Richardson, Jon Hunter, Oliver Noble, and Steve Hughes have been elected president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer respectively of the YMCA for 1965-66.

The new leaders have plans to continue and expand old programs and set into motion new plans according to Richardson.

"The first thing for the new officers will be a Freshmen Camp to take place the weekend before Labor Day" said Richardson. "At present it is planned for 100-150 freshmen to attend the camp which is designed to make the transition into college smoother."

Richardson also pointed out that there are plans for the expansion of the Apollo Club activities. In the past the club has met "four Wednesdays in October." The new plans call for a week-long program. The club plans to arrange for speakers to come to the campus and discuss certain issues with any organization that wants to hear them. The Speaker Ban Law and Birth Control are an example of the topics to be discussed.

Richardson also pointed out that Gordon Shepard, a member of the Y organizations, has been elected Chairman of the Carolinas District of the Y.M.C.A. and affiliated groups. This district includes both North and South Carolina.

Let's Look At Slater

The last Cafeteria Advisory Committee meeting was a hot one. More than one voice was raised and more than one temper at least momentarily lost over the problem of feeding students at State.

Out of the debate and discussion came three major areas of accomplishment: new proposals from Slater Food for extending and improving their service, a new recognition of the need for student good will towards the cafeteria system, and a more objective look at the whole "food dispute" on this campus on the part of The Technician.

Students, administration representatives and Slater managers went to the advisory meeting in mutual hostility. The atmosphere for a good part of the meeting was defensive on all sides, with students being both critical and criticized. One Student Government senator leveled some hasty charges at Slater and left; one cafeteria manager left the meeting unwilling to discuss problems he did not believe existed.

By the end of the meeting, however, a less strained relationship existed between the students, Slater, and the Business Office.

Proposals by Slater Food indicated their willingness to improve their image on campus. The administration and the food service company agreed to speak jointly to Student Government. The managers urged that they be immediately shown by any student what was wrong with any unsatisfactory meal so they might improve service. The food service people were concerned, as were the administration representatives.

But their concern and willing attention to student opinion can only be expected so long as there is constructive student action on cafeteria problems.

The Technician intends to give the Cafeteria Advisory Committee better coverage. If Slater Food is trying to improve, it will be reported. The individual student who feels wronged by the cafeteria service he receives should complain or advise this board. As for Student Government, we agree with its plan to advise freshmen of the Slater board plan; but their representatives on the committee could be more effective also.

Before any large-scale campaign for removing the present food service from campus gets under way, it would be well to consider that a change may not necessarily be an improvement. It would be better advised that the student body first take an objective look at the merits and faults of the present service. If, after constructive criticism, the Slater service is still found to be unsatisfactory, then we may justifiably express a desire to "shop around" for a better way to run our cafeterias.

And a better way is necessary.

PRINT TWO ISSUES

To the Editors:

After reading the May 10th issue of The Technician, I was convinced that the publication was a waste of paper and ink. It was self-evident that the only goal of The Technician staff was to fill four pages. To show an example, I use the two column article on Governor Moore's wife accepting to serve as Honorary chairman of the "Women for the Triangle Repertory Theatre." This article was completely of no interest to the average State student. I would suspect that this article had no purpose but to fill space.

The Technician has fallen to such a low quality that it is hardly worth the money that students pay for it in their fees. To save money and to improve the quality of news, I would suggest a reduction in the issues per week. With a reduction of issues the quality of news would probably increase enough to compensate for the decrease in quantity.

TAKE OVER

To the Editors:

The Technician, and Student Government, should be congratulated for its articles and editorials on the integration of the Gateway, and the way it has helped push integration down Mr. Wilder's throat.

The Technician is guilty of representing the minority. The Technician has not printed many articles against integration. However, over three-fourths of the editorials, since Mr. Wilder refused to integrate the Gateway, has been on such topics as integrate the Gateway, down with white supremacy, down with the KKK, and many other articles supporting integration. If The Technician isn't going to express the views of everyone they should drop the editorial page.

The Student Government is also guilty of representing the minority. The Student Government officers were elected by the majority of the student body. Yet, they decided they had rather represent a select group of the student body and support the Negroes in the integration of the Gateway. When Mr. Wilder reported that he was not going to integrate the Gateway, the Student Government began immediately to support the Negroes, and asked the students to boycott the Gateway. The integration of a private business is none of the Student Government's business and they should have kept out of it. Another reason the Student Government should not have gotten involved is that Mr. Wilder's restaurant isn't on the campus of NCSU.

I guess from the above that the members of the Student Government, the staff of The Technician, and the members of the minority groups on campus think that I am a member of the KKK. Well, I don't care what you think! However, I am not a member of the KKK, and I think that the Negroes should have equal rights. However, I don't see any need to let them take over the U. S.

SLATER IS OK

To the Editors:

It is true that Slater does not serve the best food in the world. However, no institution-type cafeteria does. Slater serves good food at reasonable prices, which is all that one can ask for.

Those people who believe that the Armed Forces have better food than Slater have not eaten on a military establishment for any length of time. The services serve good food; but they use the same menu week after week. One soon becomes tired of it. When I was in service my lunch consisted of green-powdered eggs, canned salted bacon, and condensed sterilized milk for months at a time. Was this a better lunch than Slater's?

Many people bypass Slater by eating off campus. How much time are these people wasting traveling to these fine food emporiums, and waiting to be served? An hour, an hour and a half? Does a student have this much time to waste? No! He must cut these living functions to a minimum so that he has more time to study.

Also, the food at Slater's is approximately ten per cent less than off campus. This ten per cent does not seem like much when paying for each individual meal; but when one eats at Slater's constantly, he eats every tenth day free when comparing Slater's prices with off-campus competition. Yes! Slater's food is the same day in and day out; but what institution's food isn't? It is clean, nutritious, inexpensive, and convenient.

TAKE FOUR YEARS

To the Editors:

Many current AS I cadets feel that they can skip the second year of basic ROTC and enter the advanced course in their junior year, and become an officer without further training. The cadet entering the advanced course without the second year of basic AFROTC must pass the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test, the medical exam, be in good scholastic standing, and then he must attend a six weeks summer camp, instead of the four week one between the junior and senior years.

Those cadets who do not have two years of basic ROTC will forfeit any chance they may have for a scholarship, thus losing full tuition, fees, books, and laboratory expenses, plus $50 per month as compared to the $40 received by two-year cadets.

Another advantage accompanying four-year cadets is the extra credits that the basic cadet earns count toward a degree.

Two-year cadets also lose many opportunities for additional information about the Air Force through films, lectures, and base visitations.

Many two-year cadets would miss the opportunity to pledge military fraternities, since these organizations draw heavily on freshmen and sophomores for pledges.

Cadets interested in the advanced course should consider the advantages and disadvantages of both the two- and four-year programs, and, after the first basic year of ROTC, should agree that it is more advantageous to continue in the basic program.

Campus Comments

By THOM FRASER

We are in complete sympathy with this editorial in the Macalester College (Minnesota) Mac Weekly.

MOONSHINE ACTION VIOLATION OF RIGHTS
Recently a rumor circulated on campus that students in one of the dorms were brewing more than talk. Investigation by dorm officials revealed that there was substance to the rumor.

There is still some question as to the chemical content of the substance that these students were brewing. Therefore, the nature of this crime, if indeed it was one, is still questionable.

The investigation also uncovered several bottles of commercial alcohol. When no one stepped forward to admit ownership of them, the dorm director announced that he was revoking the section's right to hold open houses.

This is an excerpt from an interview of The Emory Wheel with United States Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach:

Q: In your speech (at Emory Law Day) you said "... that each individual must obey not only those laws which he affirms and agrees with, but also those with which he disagrees." How does this apply to the case of the recent civil disobedience campaigns in the South?

A: I have never condoned disobedience... but there may be a justification for a refusal to obey (so-called) "laws" when they are clearly unconstitutional (on the basis of numerous recent Supreme Court decisions) and men hope for a remedy to a situation in which they have had no voice; played no role in making the laws by which they feel abused, nor the selection of the officials who enforce them.

Q: In the case of capital punishment we... wonder what the relationship of the law to the statistics might be. The deterrent factor?

A: It's almost impossible to get statistical figures on that because you don't know who is deterred and you don't know whether conditions are the same... I think it's largely a moral question as to capital punishment. I think it would also help to solve some of the most difficult problems of the law with respect to sanity... My personal opinion is it's a good idea to abolish it.

And finally, some DTH "Awards of the Week":

LOSER OF THE WEEK: The man who had to pay $21.50 in fines and court costs in Greensboro for stealing a 5-cent newspaper from a rack.

WHITE MAN OF THE WEEK: Matt H. Murphy Jr., defense attorney for the Ku Klux Klansman accused of killing Mrs. Liuzzo. He said in court, "I'm proud to be a white man and I stand for white supremacy, not for black supremacy... God didn't intend us to mix with the black race. I don't care what Lyndon Johnson says."

NEVER-SAY-DIE AWARD: Bruce (Bozo) Burlison, former wrestler and gubernatorial candidate. He ran for mayor of his hometown Bakersville and lost—with 17 votes. "I have been steamrollered by a political organization that uses dubious methods," he said. His opponent is violating a state law against holding two offices, Burlison said, and he has called for Gov. Dan Moore to back him up—"or I'll hitch hike to Washington and personally take it up with President Johnson."

Sigma Phi Epsilon Wins Softball Championship

By MARTIN WHITE

Sigma Phi Epsilon rallied for seven runs in the last of the third frame to take a 10-7 lead over Pi Kappa Alpha and win 13-8 in the championship game of the fraternity intramural softball playoffs. The game was called on account of rain in the bottom of the fourth inning after the Sig Eps had scored three runs with no one out.

After a scoreless first inning, Plka took the lead in the second frame as Davenport walked and scored on two singles. SPE took the lead in the bottom of the inning as Chuck Laird homered with two men on, scoring Calhoun and Jarvis in front of him.

A six run flurry on five hits and three errors gave the Pikas a 7-3 lead midway through the third frame. The entire squad batted in the rally with Roger, Morrison, Adkins, Goodman, Warren, and Snow scoring runs. Sig Eps batters had a field day in the bottom of the third, scoring seven runs on six hits and two errors. Tony Barchuck brought in the first three runs with a home run, scoring Moser and Perrou. The next five batters reached base safely with La Bosse, Calhoun, Jarvis and Smith scoring runs before the third out.

PKA started a rally in the fourth frame by getting the first two batters on base, but a double play on the third batter and a base runner headed for home ended the threat. A single run by Morrison cut the SPE lead to 10-8.

The three and one-half innings completed with the home team ahead in the bottom of the fourth made the game official with the threat of rain becoming a certainty.

SPE added three more runs in the fourth before the contest was called as Morton walked and scored on a home run by Bruzz Perrou. Barchuck then connected for his second homer of the day for the 13th Sig Ep run.

State To Host ACC Track Meet

Runners from the Atlantic Coast Conference will be competing on one of the "fastest tracks in the South," when they compete in the annual ACC outdoor track and field championships at North Carolina State University, Friday and Saturday.

The quarter-mile clay and cinder oval has had seven world records set or equalled on it, with most of the records coming in the annual Carolinas AAU meet. This will be the first time that the Wolfpack has hosted an outdoor ACC track meet since World War II. State did hold the Indoor Games this year at the State Fair Arena, with perennial champion Maryland capturing its 11th title in 12 tries.

Maryland is expected to make its annual successful run for Atlantic Coast Conference track laurels, but the Terrapins do not figure to dominate the 12th annual outdoor meet this weekend as they did the indoor games last February. Coach Jim Kehoe's fast-moving Terrapins made shambles of the indoor games, bettering the combined score of its seven rivals, sweeping to a record scoring total of 91 points. The other seven ACC schools scored only 89 points.

South Carolina could cut into the Terp's big point total at the two-day meet on the North Carolina State University track, with Bob Crombie, ace middle distance man, sprinter Mike McGuinness, and field men Art Swarts and J. R. Wilburn, and their relays leading the Gamecock point surge.

Except for North Carolina's winning the 1955 indoor and outdoor meets, Maryland has taken every other ACC track title—both indoors and outdoors—since they were first held in 1954. The Terrapins should make it across the finish line first again, with their superior depth almost guaranteeing another title.

Turlington Captures Dorm Softball Title

Turlington dormitory blasted out for eight runs in the last of the fourth inning to come from behind and defeat Owen 1, 9-4, for the dormitory intramural softball championship Wednesday afternoon.

In the semi-final round of play, Turlington outlasted Lee 1, 5-2, while Owen 1 defeated Tucker 1, 6-2. Turlington trailed Lee 1, 2-0 after two innings but scored five times in the next two frames for the victory. Jones had the only home run of the game for Turlington. Owen 1 scored three times in the second and was never headed in the win over Tucker 1. In the championship contest, Owen 1 took an early lead, scoring three runs in the first frame. The Owen team tallied a fourth time in the fourth frame for a 4-0 lead and appeared to be headed for a sure win.

In the bottom of the fourth frame, Turlington scored three runs before Owen could get a man out. Then, with two outs, the Turlington batters pushed across five runs to take the lead and the victory. The game was called in the sixth with Turlington ahead, 9-4.

MERCURIO 175

YOU GET SMALL BIKE MANEUVERABILITY IN A FULL SIZE MOTORCYCLE!

Do you own a little bitty trail bike? Most people get introduced to motorcycling that way. The ultra lightweights are wonderful beginners' bikes. But what if you have gotten past the beginner stage? Are you ready for a real sassy-enough motorcycle? Would you like to have a machine with go at highway speeds without sacrificing maneuverability? That's what the Mercurio is all about.
