Caldwell Responds To Workers' Letter

by Hilton Smith

A new conflict has arisen between State Chancellor John Caldwell and the non-academic employees which has resulted in harsh correspondence between the two parties.

On March 18 a list of 43 requests was submitted by a group of non-academic employees to Chancellor Caldwell. One request asked "that no women be assigned to men's dormitories and those women presently working in men's dorms be reassigned to other buildings."

"We understand this request. The change has been initiated with full implementation expected within three weeks," stated the Chancellor in his reply of March 24.

The new controversy has grown out of a letter sent on April 8 to University non-academic personnel by Caldwell in which he changed his March 24 position.

"We understand well the intent of the request and wished then and now to respond constructively to it. I regret that since March 24 it has become evident that I was not properly advised on making the above response. Two very important considerations have come to light which cannot be ignored," he stated.

Scott Against Protestors

"I have no desire to be a college administrator. The people of North Carolina elected me to be a governor—not a university president," stated Governor Scott at a speech on Friday.

He spoke to an adult student group in Chapel Hill shortly after a closed meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

"The people of our State want to know that no part of state government, and the state-supported colleges and universities are a part of it, will buckle under violence or the threat of violence," he added however.

At about the same time the Executive Committee of the Governor Robert Scott

The letter then cited a petition signed by "a large majority of women employees now assigned in men's dormitories" requesting that they not be transferred.

A second reason in the letter dealt with scheduling stating that men, if the former policy were implemented would have to be shifted from academic buildings where their work day concludes at 1 pm to dorms where their work day would conclude at 4 pm. This would work a hardship on workers that now have extra afternoon jobs.

"I must at this time, therefore, change from my previous response to the following.

"Effective immediately the University will reassign women from dormitory to other buildings as requested by individual women workers to the maximum extent that is possible to do so without violating the rights and desires of other employees.

The new position of the Chancellor brought quick response from the N.C. State Non-Academic Employees Union in the form of a letter to the Chancellor April 10.

"We find your changed position on the status of maids in men's dormitories disappointing but not surprising. Your willingness to tolerate this Trustees made public a speech given by Scott to the Trustees on March 14, during the trouble at Chapel Hill.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that a study of the (university) rules governing tenure and student discipline is necessary or a least advisable," he said.

"Apparently, concessions have been made in regard to procedures for disciplining both students and faculty to the point that we may need to wipe the slate clean and start over."

The speech seemed to show Scott's impatience with the way campus administrators had handled situations and disorders.

"I have learned, and I hope your administrative officers have learned, that indecision, delay and vascillation prevent the orderly and continued operation of the University," stated Scott.

According to Scott some campus officials may not be willing to take positive action and he may have to step in.

In his Friday speech Scott explained that he does not oppose change or orderly dissent and that he knows that universities "are in the business of searching for truth and knowledge for a better life for us all."

situation gives us reason to question your sincerity on all racial issues," stated the letter.

The letter, published in the Friday's Technician, talked about degrading black women "in conditions which would lead to insult and embarrassment."

"...we do not intend to permit black women to work in a white men's dormitory. We black men insist that the change be made immediately and that by Monday morning (April 14, 1969) no black women be working in men's dormitories. We intend to see this accomplished..."

On Friday Chancellor Caldwell issued a reply to the letter. The reply is on page 4.

"2001" Author Lectures

by Jack Corbell

"Education and entertainment will be the greatest industries of the future," stated Arthur C. Clarke, co-author of "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Clarke, inventor of the communications satellite gave his two current predictions saying, "By the year 2001, we will have extra-terrestrial communication and intelligent machines, not necessarily named 'HAL'."

Clarke, who is very active in undersea exploration near his home in Ceylon said, "We today are very primitive in our use of the sea. In the future we should have undersea ranches with herds of fish and whales."

Concerning food problems of 2001, Clarke added, "Through micro-biological engineering we will be able to get food from such materials as carbon dioxide limestone, oil, and coal.

"We must relinquish the idea that education is only for the young. Future education will be a full time experience."

Members of six fraternities are the Wake County Cancer Society Drive's "finest asset" according to the Society's Executive Secretary Jacqueline Chamblee.

Wearing identification badges, the fraternity members will canvass Raleigh seeking donations and distributing cancer educational leaflets in April.

Clash On Councils Highlights Debate

by L. Russell Herman Jr.

A clash on the role of school councils between presidential candidates Jim Hobbs and David Loftis highlighted a discussion among candidates for student government offices Friday night at the Baptist Student Union.

Loftis, during a question-and-answer period said school councils should not have legislative powers. He said all legislation should be handled by the Senate and the councils should only have powers of recommendation through their senators.

Hobbs said for the councils to only have powers of recommendation was contrary to the constitution which specifically gives the school councils legislative powers. He also said it was entirely against the philosophy behind the constitution which meant for the councils to be more autonomous and to handle matters which were of a mechanical or local nature so that senate could spend its time on matters of more widespread concern.

Candidate for Student Body President, Lindsay Peterson, said that he had been active in local politics since he was 14 years old. He said apathy was one of his main reasons for running. He said he was concerned about State's image.

Peterson said State loses too many students because of its image as a "suitcase college" where everybody goes home on the weekends. He made a central point about social life and said State is lacking in this area. He said students at East Carolina University got more for their money from their activities fees. He said "school is not only books" and complained that high academic standards drive students away.

When asked how he would pick his appointees to the Athletics Council, Peterson said he would appoint several well-known athletes. The question (see HOBBS page 8)

Winner Gets Bronze Bra

The Veterans Association, again this year, is going to sponsor another Miss Campus Chest Contest during All-Campus Weekend.

"Any campus organization can sponsor a candidate. She must be a single girl and must be present at the contest booth for at least one hour every day. (April 18 and 19). She does not have to go to school here," said contest co-chairman Ken Zuorro.

"Any individual going to school here can also sponsor a candidate. Trophies will be given to the first three placements and the first three sponsors will receive plaques. The winner will get the big bronze bra, which will be on display at the Union."

All entries must be in by 11 p.m. April 17. Pick up entry blanks at the Veteran's mailbox at the Union. For further information contact Bill Van Hoy at 833-7881.

Beginning Monday Sullivan Drive from West Dunn Avenue to Gorman Street will be closed to all traffic. Construction in the area will prohibit vehicular traffic for about three weeks. Residents of McKimmon Village may use Gorman Street, Faucette Drive and Dan Allen Drive for access to and from the campus.

Windowshopping WITH WALLY EDWARDS

This week "Windowshopping" examines the science of cursing your fellow student. I maintain that a long string of four-letter Anglo-Saxon words does little more than raise an eyebrow of most students, and therefore, I will not suggest using phrases such as "L...!" or the more popular "S...!" ("?!"). I will however, introduce you to my entirely new concept of verbally attacking those individuals who choose to cross your path. I call it the manly art of "wishing minor catastrophes." By "wishing" one of the following items upon the next annoying character, you'll experience that ecstatic satisfaction which neither profanity nor feeble insult can derive. If you like, you may keep this article in your wallet for future reference. I just hope the guy you pick the argument with doesn't have the article too.

- Here are the catastrophes:
- May your English Literature professor fall asleep during one of his own lectures.
  - May you get fixed up with a blind date and have her seeing-eye dog bite you.
  - May your mother's cooking be worse than that of the dorm cafeteria.
  - May you go to the campus bookstore, buy six books, six notebooks, a pack of pencils, and two pens and then have the clerk behind the checkout counter politely ask you, "Will that be all?"
  - May your student I. D. picture look very similar to one of the photographs hanging on the post office wall.
  - May your roommate own a 100 watt amplifier and 75 sound effect records.
  - May your instructor call on you just as you're putting the finishing touches on a most elaborate doodle in your notebook.
  - May you rush into a liquor store on your twenty first birthday and have the proprietor sell you everything your heart desires without once asking for proof of your age.
  - May you faithfully attend a class every Monday, Wednesday and Friday and find out a week before the final that it's a five hour course.
  - May you crumble and throw away your solutions to an exam and hand in the scratch paper.
  - May you flunk the required lab in a sex education class.
  - May you return home from a Canadian vacation and find your draft notice in the mail.
  - May you be among a group of hippies who have begun a sit-in inside a condemned university building.
  - May you receive a letter from your girl with 6c postage due, pay the six cents, and then find out you're being jilted.
  - May you be told that you're a man ahead of your time and later discover that you've forgotten to take your watch off daylight savings time.
  - May your professor collect the only homework assignment you failed to do.
  - May you have the same name as the student who was arrested for selling narcotics.
  - May you learn that the guy you just insulted is the captain of the football team.
  - May your father's favorite expression be: "You know, when I was your age we didn't have..."
  - May you be introduced to a girl with a "nice personality."
  - May all your exams include that one question you were sure the professor wouldn't ask.

Joint Concert Tomorrow

On Thursday evening at 8, in the ballroom of the Erdahl-Cloyd Student Union, two elite singing groups will combine their vocal skills in a Spring Song Festival. The occasion is the Annual Concert of the Varsity Men's Glee Club of N.C. State in tandem with the Salem College Choral Ensemble, an all female organization.

The resultant mixed chorus effect has long been one of the most popular of on-campus events at N.C. State.

The program, as always, is geared for variety, ranging from Calyso to Contemporary. The two groups will perform separate groups and then combine for two groups with each club's director conducting. The Choral Ensemble is directed by Paul W. Peterson. Milton Bliss directs the Varsity Glee Club.

In addition, two segments feature The Melas Two, a folk-duo of Dee Dee Geraty and Linda Camp; and the Grains of Time, N.C. State's popular men's ensemble. Both groups sing Rock, Folk and Show Tunes with equal ease. Accompanists for Salem will be Sally Rhodes, Susan Fowler and Mary Lynn Drye on Flute. Robert Daniels and Carl Duncan are accompanists for N.C. State.

Jarles Alberg, tenor from Raleigh, N.C. will be featured in Schubert's "The Night is Cloudless and Serene." Jake Houck, tenor from Jacksonville will sing the plaintive "Poor Wayfaring Stranger" accompanied by the Glee Club.

Their first workshop will be held in Rm 248-250 of the Union on Wednesday, April 16, at 7:30. The workshop will be given by Mrs. Robert M.

Phillips, director of the Meredith College Playhouse. Her subject will be, "Even YOU Can Be Beautiful!" or, in more practical terms, "Makeup."

The University Players have several other projects under consideration including plans for a trip to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the near future.

"We hope that you will be able to attend our first workshop and see how much fun theater work can be. NCSU needs an active theater group and the University Players needs you," explains President Duane Sidden.

Technician Endorses Hobbs For President

Wednesday's campus election will be one of the most important in recent years. The new officers will have to implement the new Constitution with its greater responsibilities. With these new responsibilities will be a need for strong leadership, therefore the Technician will break precedent and present our choices for the various offices.

There is not much question that Jim Hobbs is the most qualified candidate for President of the Student Body. Jack Barger, a write-in candidate, also seems sincere and has a number of good ideas. But Barger's chief concerns are the localized problems of residence halls. The office of the Student Body President has changed extensively in scope over the past few years until now a person elected to this position must be concerned with the entire University. Barger could best serve the school by greatly involving himself with the Inter-Residence Council and strengthening on-campus living.

The other two candidate, Lindsay Peterson and David Loftis, are extremely presumptuous to even offer themselves for the presidency. Neither has ever attended a Student Government meeting or in any other way associated with Student Government. David Loftis, while recognizing the problem of making student government meaningful to the student body, exhibits very little grasp of the impact the new constitution is going to have. He does not seem to realize the Student Body President faces an awesome task—there are problems in publications and services that cannot be solved by merely "recognizing good legislation when it is brought to the Senate."

And as for Lindsay Peterson we suggest he transfer to East Carolina in time to run for Student Body President there.

Jim Hobbs as presidential assistant this year has acquired an intimate knowledge of the problems posed by the new Student Body Constitution. He realizes that next year's president will be the key factor in the success or failure of the expanded student role. We urge you to vote for Jim if you want your Student Government to be a viable force in moving the University forward.

Eric Moore is running unopposed for President of the Student Senate. He has a grasp of the role of the Senate under the new Constitution and of the problems facing Student Government. In fact he has the qualifications to be running for President of the Student Body. As president of the Society of Afro-American Culture he will provide black students a much-needed voice in the higher levels of the University.

Because of his expanded duties under the new Constitution, the Student Body Treasurer must be a person familiar not only with the basic mechanics of a $50,000 budget but with the types and availability of services which Student Government should provide for the Student Body. He must also obviously be a person of unquestioned integrity.

Of the three candidates Maynard Ernest (Student Party) and Rick Rice seem to have the best grasp of what the office of the treasurer entails. In the categories of enthusiasm and preparation, Ernest gets the nod. During recent weeks, he has worked very closely with Treasurer Don White in preparing next year's budget. It may be that part of Ernest's motivation stems from the fact that White is Student Party Chairman and as such would require a candidate to appear eager for the office. Rice on the other hand has shown less overt enthusiasm.

We do however have serious reservations about Ernest because of his activities with the State Student Legislature. as chairman of State's delegation, Ernest knowingly permitted a student who was convicted by the Honor Code Board of plagiarism to associate with the delegation even though University regulations specify that convicted students must forfeit membership in all organizations representing the school. There is however, a provision allowing such students to remain in organizations in which they have lifetime membership. This stipulation was made for members of fraternal organizations. When the SSL convened, the Greensboro delegation offered a bill making membership in the legislature lifelong.

Thus the state delegate was on firm footing legally although one might question the ethics involved. This student sought the office of SSL president for which he was defeated and was later elected to the vice presidency. Had his association with the state delegation been denied initially by Maynard Ernest, there would not now be a student

Great Scott!

by Craig Wilson

Once again Governor Bob Scott has treated us to one of those periodic lectures on law and order. During recent comments to the Board of Trustees, Scott made it clear that during his administration he intends for the orderly process of education to continue unobstructed.

His motives are't hard to explain. He was elected, not by students, but by North Carolinians who are, as a general rule, interested in education only insofar as it effects their pocketbooks. Scott's constituency feels that it has provided universities by paying taxes and it's presumptuous for anyone who hasn't made this sacrifice to criticize an institution, much less destroy it.

In short, the Governor apparently cares little about the education offered by the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Whenever there's campus disorder, he never asks "what's wrong with the University?" or "shouldn't we listen carefully to the voices of the young people, since they're the ones who will have to use the education we provide them?" Instead Scott talks about "new directions" in regulations concerning academic tenure and even hints that if chancellors can't control their campuses, he will use the power of his office to find someone who can. And always he rants on that "education must go on" and that "the orderly processes must not be disrupted."

I share the Governor's concern for "law and order." It just doesn't make sense to injure and destroy when there's such an obvious need for reconciliation and reconstruction on college campuses. But it disturbs me greatly that Governor Scott shows no interest in what dissenters are saying. He won't admit that all disruption at Universities just can't be the product of diabolical trouble makers.

At this point the blame comes back to us. One of the most important factors contributing to the "generation gap" is the failure of the college generation to articulate some of the goals which are in conflict with those we find within the University today.

Thus I shall in a series of columns attack some of these questions. We need comment and discussion with men like Scott, not their lectures. And obviously it is we who must set the example. I hope that what I say in the coming issues will contribute somewhat to that end.

The first thoughts in this series will deal with what students expect an education to provide. Later I would like to discuss options to present curriculum structures. And of course if there's a topic that interests you, let me know.

with questionable ethics in such an important position.

It is thus will all due respect to Maynard Ernest's ability that we do not feel he is the type of person we would like to entrust with the ever-expanding office of the Treasurer. We endorse Rick Rice.

Chancellor's Reply

To: Mr. J.L. Stewart, Mr. Morris Barbour, Mr. Ronald Alston, Mr. Fred Partin, Rev. Robert Talley, Mr. J.D. Tillage, Mr. Eddie H. Davis, Mr. Clarence L. Davis, Mr. Vernon Carrinton, Mr. Earnest Hinton, Mr. Jesse Carpenter:

You are signers of a letter handed to me yesterday, April 10, 1969.

My recent decision regarding the work assignments of women on the campus was based upon a compassionate understanding of the problem which had been posed. The decision was entirely reasonable, just and practical.

You have chosen to send me a letter which in substance and spirit is unjustified, unreasonable and disrespectful. I cannot, therefore, honor it. You have apparently been misled.

I suggest that you restore your thinking to a more helpful and useful position for all concerned.

Sincerely and respectfully yours,
John T. Caldwell
Chancellor

Wants To Vomit

To the Editor:

Your article on baseball makes me want to vomit. Certainly it contains the biggest bunch of lies and false innuendos ever written about our national pastime.

Typical among your deceitful declarations was the assertion that the last nail was driven into baseball's coffin with the retirement of Mickey Mantle. Apparently you forget that there are about 600 other major leaguers still going strong, more than a few of whom are more skillful players than Mantle was in the past couple of years. The loss of any one star in a sport as large as baseball won't even be noticed.

Your misrepresentation of baseball's future is matched by your obvious ignorance of knowledge concerning the game. Again I take Mantle as an example. You say Mantle stood at the plate "coiled like a python" waiting to drive the ball "over the center fielder's head." It is fortunate that Mantle isn't dead—if he were he would be turning over in his grave this very moment. The truth of the matter is, of course, that Mantle's stance was quite open, not at all coiled, and also, since he was a switch-hitter, his power was to right and left center, but definitely not to straightway center.

Mr. Wilson, why did you write your destructive article since you didn't even know what you were talking about? Perhaps you had better spend your time straightening out your warped political beliefs instead of attempting to discuss subjects about which you are so sadly unaware.

Major Candidates' Statements

Student Body President

Hobbs

This has been one of the most productive years that Student Government has ever had—not productive in the amount of legislation that was passed, but productive in the sense of improvement in methods and philosophy. This year we turned our attention inward to study the actual make-up of our Student Government and with the help of the school councils, the residence councils, the judicial boards and the Student Union, we completely revised and restructured the government of the student body. The final result is a new Student Body Constitution more versatile than before and a Student Body Government more powerful than before. But along with this added power is added responsibility—this demands for Student Body President a man who is familiar with the executive duties and capable of carrying them out. Some of the areas that will need particular attention next year are: increased involvement of school councils in academic problems on the school level; a re-evaluation of the social programs formerly handled by the Erdahl-Cloyd Union; and careful selection of the Chancellor's Committee Appointments to assure effective representation of students to the faculty, administration, and board of trustees.

Three years in the Student Senate and serving this year as Presidential Assistant and a member of the Executive Cabinet has given me the opportunity to participate in executive planning on these various levels. This experience is invaluable in understanding how to get things done within the university structure.

Next year can be as active and productive as this year—with your support in Wednesday's election.

Jim Hobbs

Loftis

During my past three years at N.C. State I have found that the most predominant problem in our Student Government is that of ineffective representation. Senators are elected in the Spring; they attend SG meetings and vote, but, to a great extent, they do not know the will of the student body as a whole. With our new constitution, however, we do have an excellent opportunity to know the will of the student body through the various councils provided for.

Undoubtedly, the constitution alone cannot assure us of an effective student government. Student Government Presidential appointees must be chosen with the utmost care and consideration. Student Senate committees, both standing and special, must be headed by capable and interested persons.

In this complex network of senators, councils, boards, and committees, where does the Student Body President fit in? My ambition is not to introduce hundreds of bills in the Student Senate, but rather to be informed so that I might recognize good legislation when it is brought to the senate and encourage its passage. My ambition is not to be a silent member of various student-faculty committees, but rather to bring forth and strongly promote the desires of the student body.

The Student Body President acts as a liaison between the students and the administration. I feel that we can solve many of our grievances by using this link for proper communication.

I will make no small, insignificant promises which I might have no intention of filling. I will, however, state positively one important point. My aim is to keep our Student Government running smoothly and effectively; for the smooth, effective operation of government, in itself, insures improvement. Think about it.

David Loftis

Barger

I am actively seeking your support in my effort to become Student Body President. By necessity, certainly not by choice, I am being forced to conduct a write-in campaign. The circumstances surrounding this action are far too involved for space to admit any explanation. I can only say that my write-in campaign is a serious one.

The residence hall system has been ignored for too long. As President of Owen Hall and a member of the Inter-Residence Council I am aware of the urgent need to concentrate a vast amount of Student Government effort to improve the residence halls.

There are many committees on campus which have no student members, for instance, admissions, etc. I firmly believe that we should strive to have some student representation on these committees.

I realize that the uphill battle that any write-in candidate must wage has got to be vigorous. I have been and will continue to carry my campaign to each student personally because I feel that Student Government is established to serve the student.

Jack Barger

Peterson

We are faced with many new ideas that are slowly growing on our campus, so let's "tell it like it is." What are the real issues?

The student left is growing here on campus; and if their power is not checked, trouble like that of Berkeley and Carolina could evolve here. I'm not against change, but I am firmly against violent means. Some of the 43 demands of the Non-Academic Employees are well founded, but a few are absurd. The salary they are demanding is more than the salary of a public school teacher.

There is another question I would like to ask: Why is it that East Carolina University can have a very varied social program that is sponsored by the Student Government and State does not? They have had such names as Johnny Mathis, the Platters, Roger Williams, Chad Mitchell Trio, Ray Charles and Louis Armstrong. All free to the student covered under his activity fee.

By way of my dues to IFC, I receive some of these benefits. Why can't the whole campus receive these benefits, as do the students of ECU, through their activity fees? I am a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, but I lived in the dorm for 2 years. So you see I have seen BOTH sides of the picture; and I understand the problems of each.

I am also a North Carolinian, a "Grit" to some. But there is one strong factor about a "Grit," he is mean as hell when some pushes him.

If elected, I promise to be open to all views. I offer a new look in student government.

Lindsay Peterson

Student Senate President

Moore

With the passage of the new constitution, student power has come to N.C. State University. Students will have more administrative authority than they have ever had before. A large base of power on campus will be in the Student Senate. "The supreme legislative power for the Student Body shall be vested in the Student Senate." An annual budget of approximately $56,000 must be approved and allocated by the Student Senate. Policies and programs for the student body will be determined by the Student Senate. The services and programs of the Union as well as university student publications must have representation from the Student Senate on its boards. The charters of the services boards and the Publications Authority must be approved by the Student Senate.

I am running for the office of Student Senate President because I am concerned about the direction that will be taken by Student Government under the new constitution. The Student Senate should be more concerned with the issues facing the students of this university. If elected, I will do my best to work for those changes which the student body feels are necessary for this university. I will challenge the Student Senate to take a stand and become more involved in campus issues. The Student Senate should become the sounding board of the student body and if elected, I will see that all sides are heard. A great American scholar once said: "Power concedes nothing without a demand...it never has and...it never will." You the students of this university have begun to demand by passing the new constitution. Will you now sit and let nothing happen, or will you continue to push by electing a person who will look out for student interests on this campus? Student power can be yours for the asking. Do you want it? Cast your vote for Eric Moore and you will have taken a giant step towards getting it.

Eric Moore

Student Body Treasurer

Rice

With the new Student Government constitution, the office of Treasurer has become more important than ever before. The Treasurer, with the Finance Committee, has the responsibility of proposing a budget to be approved by the Senate. This new budget will cover the activities of the present organizations receiving funds from student government as well as the Union activities. This naturally gives the Treasurer greater responsibility in the administration of student funds. I feel these funds should be allocated in such a way as to provide the greatest benefit for the greatest number of students.

If some organization is now receiving funds that benefit only a few people who happen to belong to such an organization and do not benefit an appropriate number of people for the amount of money involved, then I feel this money could be more wisely used.

Next year will be the first time a Treasurer will be responsible for administering such an extensive budget—$50,000 to $60,000. Certainly this first step must be a sound one, undertaken with much study.

The new Treasurer will serve not only in the obvious capacity as administrator of funds, but also will be a member of the Student Services Cabinet, the Publications Authority, and an ex-officio member of the senate. The Treasurer will have to be a capable person whom you can trust and depend on to handle your funds in the best possible manner. He must also be interested in student needs and programs and articulate enough to represent you in the above capacities.

I welcome the challenge and feel I have the qualifications to fill the job capably. My two terms as Senator have made me thoroughly familiar with the workings of student government. I have been a delegate to the State Student Legislature, have served on several Senate committees, and was appointed to the Consolidated University Student Council.

Rick Rice

Ernest

The new constitution passed this year has given the Student Body an effective tool in working in and with the University community. With this tool, students now have the ability to do something for themselves. The question lies in whether or not the students will take advantage of and use what we have.

Next year the office of Student Body Treasurer will be an important position through which many long sought changes could be realized.

I am seeking this office because I believe there is much that could be done in this office to help the Student Body as a whole and the students as individuals.

With the new structure of the student services, in which the Union budget would be classified as Student Body Funds, the budget will be more than four times the present operating budget of Student Government. I feel that a thorough investigation should be carried out during the coming year and careful note taken concerning an overlapping of the funds and unnecessary disbursement of funds.

A new philosophy has been established this past year which in effect will allow for the financing of activities rather than organizations. This was done with the idea that in this manner more students would be reached by the Student Body Funds. Through careful administration of this policy, funds would be available for campus wide functions such as Homecoming and All-Campus Weekend. Studies in this area should be conducted so that the interest of the student could be considered in how YOUR money is spent.

There are several areas I feel should be reviewed and will be reviewed if I am elected to the office of STUDENT BODY TREASURER. If given the chance, I will work to coordinate the interests of the students, the Student Services, and the Student Legislature. This will add to an effective University community where students though THEIR Student Legislature, have a voice in the control of Student Body Funds.

Maynard Ernest

McCrary

As a candidate for Treasurer, I would like to familiarize the importance to you of this position and why I can best represent you. The Constitutional changes are interesting provisions reflecting a new philosophy which extends the Treasurer's influence into the Publications Board, Executive Cabinet, the Student Senate, and the Services Cabinet. With the consolidation of the Union with Student Government, the Treasury was raised from $13,000 to $56,000, with additional influences of $143,000 and the total Student Government voice of $1,132,000. I am assisting the present S.G. Treasurer in preparing next year's budget. With this amount of money to handle, previous experience and training are necessary. I am Treasurer of Metcalf Hall where we are successfully handling $8,000. With this additional influence, I will play a role in policy making, creating a responsible, representative body that will better serve your needs and secure positive action. I possess the necessary experience of exercising influence of this office along with the ability of sound financial management. With my knowledge, the continuity in this office is highly valuable. And since I owe no previous allegiance to any group, I can best secure the student body interest and be responsive to you the student.

As your Treasurer, I feel I can best perform these duties with the highest standards and competence. I wish you to consider my candidacy and I will appreciate your cooperation and support by voting for me as Treasurer. John McCrary

Engineering and Science at IBM

"The interdisciplinary environment keeps you technologically hot."

"Working in data processing today pretty much means you work in a broad spectrum of technologies," says Nick Donofrio.

An Associate Engineer at IBM, Nick is a 1967 graduate in Electrical Engineering. He's using his technical background to design circuits for computer memory systems.

"Circuit design used to be a narrow job," he says. "Today it can take you into the front yard of half a dozen different fields. In my job, for example, I work with systems design engineers, chemists, physicists, metallurgists, and programmers."

Nick describes a hypothetical case history: "A memory systems man comes to me with memory circuit requirements. Before I can start designing the circuit, I go to see a physicist. He helps me select an appropriate technology for the monolithic circuit.

"As the design develops, I work with a test group and also check back with the systems and semiconductor people to make sure I'm on the right track."

Keeping up

The interdisciplinary environment at IBM helps you keep up to date technologically. As Nick puts it, "You're constantly exposed to what's happening in other fields."

IBM needs technical graduates to work in research, design and development, manufacturing, product test, field engineering, and space and defense projects. We also need technical people in programming and marketing.

Combs, Wilson Lead Win

by Dennis Osborne

One down, two to go. That's the situation now since State won convincingly Saturday over Duke, 5-2.

Coach Esposito said the Pack had to win the Duke game and the pair with Carolina tomorrow to stay in the conference race. His team is now one-third of the way out of the league cellar.

Saturday's contest was well on the way to looking like a "T" in the "W-L-T" record until the eighth inning. The score was tied up then at 2-2.

With two men out, Duke made their fatal error of letting Gary Yount reach first on a throwing error. Dave Boyer then walked and stole second. Francis Combs, the man who hit to win the Brown game, came up with a repeat performance and lined to center.

Combs got to second on the throw to the plate, and came home with the third run of the inning on Robbie Wilson's single to left. That was the end of the scoring, and the club had won a vital game.

This was State's first win in the last three ACC games. The victory was the third straight for freshman left-hander Robbie Wilson, who got into trouble frequently but worked his way out.

The Wolfpack led, 1-0, through the first four innings on Clem Huffman's first inning lead off double. The Blue Devils got their first runner on base in each of the first four innings but couldn't score. They did not get the leadoff man on in the fourth but this time they scored twice for a 2-1 lead. In the sixth the Pack tied the score and won in the eighth.

Camrack's two hits in three trips brought his season's batting average back to .500.

Netmen Pick Up Wins

Yes, State has a tennis team and yes, they do win every now and then. Coach Joe Isenhour's boys are doing so well this year if they win another match, they will be doing their best in a decade.

The team has played ten matches and won four. In ACC play, the record is 0-2. The losses have been offset by wins over Appalachian, Hope College, M.I.T., and Pfeiffer, East Carolina.

In the match held with East Carolina, State split the singles with ECU, 3-3. The netwolves won the doubles however 2-1, and also the match 5-4.

In doubles, Byrd-Hunt and Pfeifferkorn-Coward won, and

Casey: Paris Bound

by Eli Gukich

"Paris in the Spring," "April in Paris," or "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down On the Farm After They've Seen Paris?"

These thoughts are in Willis Casey's mind right now because he will be in Paris, France, April 24-29, for an international swimming meet. He will take with him three of the world's greatest swimmers.

"Debbie Meyers is probably the best swimmer in the world," says Casey. She won the Sullivan Award as the top amateur athlete in the United States and received four gold medals at the 1968 Olympics.

"Mark Spitz is one of the best swimmers in this country," says Casey. "He was a triple champion at the recent NCAA championships."

"Zac Zorn has been undefeated in short sprints for the past three years. He holds the American record in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events."

Casey expects the roughest competition to come from the Russians and the Australians, but "Our swimmers will probably win their events without too much trouble."

Casey was honored at the recent NCAA swimming meet by the College Swimming Coaches Association of America, recognizing his 25 years of collegiate coaching. He was presented with a gold plaque on behalf of his service to the sport.

Casey was picked to coach the American entries by his fellow coaches. "I have been on the top of the list for the past five or six years, but this is the first opportunity I have had to coach an American team that didn't interfere with my coaching duties at State. I made a similar trip in 1959 when I took 17 swimmers to Japan for a meet," said Casey.

Casey, who coached at Carolina for five years before his 20 years at State, has an outstanding winning percentage of .879 in dual meets. His Wolfpack teams have won 182 of 207 dual meets.

And his teams have taken the last four ACC Championships and this year won 16 of 18 titles during the meet. Under Casey, Wolfpack swimmers have won more Atlantic Coast Conference individual titles than all other seven schools combined.

singles victors were Coward, Griffith, and Pfeifferkorn.

Tennis matches are held on the varsity courts, beginning at 3 p.m.

Amateur Athletes' Day Soon

by Dennis Osborne

"We've won 10 of the last 12 years."

"We've won more championships than any school of the Big Four."

Bill Flournoy, Student Supervisor of Intramural Athletics was talking of that event known as "Big Four Day." This sports field day is an event occurring annually among the Big Four schools, in which the amateur athlete gets a chance to show his stuff and represent his school in athletic competition.

"The idea of this day started with a softball game between Duke and Carolina. The winner declared himself champion of the ACC. The other schools heard about this and decided they wanted to participate too. This was about 1945," said Flournoy.

There are no individual awards given in the sports. The honors are awarded to each school. Points are awarded on the basis of five for first, four for second, and so on.

The school with the most total points wins the championship. The two years that State didn't win the championship, they shared it. In total wins, State has 11, Carolina 9.

Dave Adkins, Director of Intramural Athletics has announced that tryouts are now being held for all sports except softball. He would like anyone who can "athleticize" to come by the Intramural Office in Carmichael Gym and sign up for tryouts.

tioner then asked why Peterson intended to appoint athletes to this council since the purpose of the council was to regulate the athletic program and to appoint athletes would be to have the athletic program regulating itself. Peterson replied that athletes "do something we can't." He said he probably wouldn't appoint them directly, but would have the coaches make up a list of recommendations from which he would choose his appointees.

Loftis was asked what he thought about the statement in the constitution that the school councils must provide for democratic representation for their students. Loftis replied so long as there were no complaints there would be no reason to enforce this provision.

During the question-and-answer period, Peterson was asked for more details on his statement that ECU students get more for their money in activity fees. He said that ECU students paid on activity fees in one year what NCSU students pay in one semester approximately. Ernest said he had been talking to some of the student government officials from neighboring schools and that at State SG gets $1.63 per person and at ECU the student government gets $24.00.

Hobbs said none of the student body officers are directly connected with social activities.
