Group Staging Protests On University Plaza

"We are going to continue this picket line until the Chancellor reinstates the four maids and two janitors that were fired and until the Chancellor meets the basic non-academic union demands," stated Brick Miller, member of the Group.

According to Miller the picketing at the Union that was started Friday will continue for two or three hours everyday until these demands are met. A resolution was passed to this effect.

"We had an average of about 30 people at any one time on Friday and we hope this number will grow as people learn about it," Miller said.

"We are also requesting that the Chancellor drop the charges against the 16 people arrested in his office. On this demand we feel that the University Community can handle its own affairs, if it is a democratic institution, without outside repressive force."

He also stated that the Group felt the Non-academic workers should have some control over basic decisions that affect their lives.

"We feel that both workers and students should have a voice in the conditions that affect them, workers in the conditions in which they work and students in what is being taught to them."

Demonstrators in Friday's picket line who were protesting the "political firings" of non-academic employees, were heckled by other students. (photos by Miller)

Employees Circulate Petition

A petition is being circulated among all the non-academic employees at State seeking the reinstatement of the six black employees that were fired recently said a spokesman for the non-academic employees union.

The petition will be presented to Chancellor Caldwell "within a day or so."

Mrs. Willa Hinton said the petition, addressed to Caldwell, "is solely in support of persons fired." The petition states, she says, that members of the non-academic employees union "would like for the wrong done these people to be corrected."

"Some letters" from a committee within the employees union have already been sent out asking for financial help from businessmen, churches schools, and colleges which might have an interest in supporting the dismissed workers, said Mrs. Hinton.

Eddie Davis, the most recent to be fired, was an organizer of the predominantly black workers union and a janitor-window washer while he worked for the university. He

Environment Discussed

What is the cost of progress to our environment? What harm is being done to our world?

These are the topics that will be discussed by prominent State Associate Professor of Social Studies Dr. James C. Wallace at a lecture Thursday evening at 7 in Williams Auditorium.

Sponsored by Xi Sigma Pi, Honorary Fraternity in the was suspended from his duties last week, then fired for leaving his work to hold a press conference.

Four black maids, and a foreman, J.D. Smith, have also been fired from their jobs.

Mrs. Hinton said Raleigh attorney Sam Mitchell had been hired "some days ago" to handle any problems of the Union.

School of Forest Resources, Dr. Wallace will discuss "Our Changing Environment—A Need for New Directions." The talk will be open to the public.

Some of the main areas to be discussed will be damage from water and air pollution and radioactive fallout from nuclear bomb tests. Also to be discussed will be the effects of pesticides on our environment.

Few people stayed on campus this weekend. The wonderfully sunny weekend beckoned many either to the beach or to the races at VIR. For the ones, like this robin, who did remain on campus the weekend was very boring. (photo by Miller)

Spender To Discuss Arts

Poet-critic Stephen Spender will conclude the 1969 Contemporary Scene Lecture Series here with a public lecture tomorrow.

Spender will discuss "What is Modern in Modern Art?" at 8 p.m. in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union ballroom. His talk will cover what the distinction between contemporary and modern writers means and why the visual arts remain modern whereas there has been a reaction towards the traditional in literature.

Spender will also discuss student unrest during an afternoon seminar Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Union ballroom. His latest book, The Year of the Young Rebels, will be released in May. He wrote an article on the subject "What the Rebellious Students Want" in a recent issue of the New York Times Book Section.

The noted writer is author of an autobiography, World Within World, and several books of criticism. He is also co-editor of the famous review Encounter.

An Englishman, Spender has frequently visited the United States since 1947 when he taught for a year at Sarah Lawrence College.

He was Ellison Professor at the University of Cincinnati in 1953, and Beckmann Professor at the University of California in 1959.

In 1962 he was made Commander of the British Empire, in the Honours' List on the Queen's birthday.

During World War II, he was a fire fighter in the London National Fire Service. He co-edited the review Horizon with Cyril Connolly from 1939 to 1945.

YAF Organized

The State Chapter of Young Americans for Freedom met last Tuesday for organizational purposes.

Chester Palmer, a sophomore, was re-elected as the chairman for the coming year. Four directors were also named. They are William Benny Teal, Robert Wray, Charles Sanford, and John Nye.

A new constitution was proposed and passed unanimously along with a number of resolutions. A resolution was passed in support of President Nixon's actions in the recent Korean crisis.

"Another important resolution was passed recommending that Fascists, racists, idiots, SDS members, and SSOC members be barred from joining the chapter here at State because their goals are inconsistent with YAF's national and local policies," said Palmer.

In addition to the resolutions, one member was commissioned by the chapter to plan a demonstration in the near future.

The typical college student little realizes the time and effort spent by innumerable committees on deciding whether or not to accept a new course into the regular class schedule. Surprisingly enough though, the number of courses offered in the school catalog are negligible when compared to the overwhelming amount of rejected subject ideas. The irony of the situation is this: while the accepted courses are reprinted countless times, the far more interesting unaccepted courses are kept hidden from the students. And so, after much undercover research, it is a privilege to finally put in print some of these unsuccessful courses and explain why they met an untimely death.

Phys 108 Atomic and Nuclear Physics Laboratory (Lab. 1)

A thought-provoking analysis of atomic explosives. Students are required to compose, assemble, and detonate a number of experimental nuclear devices.
(Course was rejected when 18 Red Chinese enrolled.)

Math 310 Modern Algebra (Lect. 3)

Set theory. Topics include base study and diverse algebraic concepts. Integral domains also examined.
(Course was abandoned when University officials discovered the same subject was being taught at a local elementary school.)

Engl 366 Great Icelandic Poets (Lect. 3)

(Course was rejected because there are no great Icelandic poets.)

Psych 208 Personality Theory and Dynamics (Lect. 3)

A study of human behavior. Particular emphasis on individual psychological problems. Many case studies analyzed.
(Course was eliminated when the only qualified professor to teach it believed he was Napoleon Bonaparte.)

EE 239 Power Safety Procedures (Lab. 1)

Practical and comprehensive study of the proper conduct one should have in order to prevent injury to men and equipment in a power atmosphere.
(Course was abruptly rejected when, on the first day of class, the instructor got his tie caught in the armature of an operating dynamo.)

-Those Crazy Courses

CSC 444 Computer Systematical Digital Analysis (Lect. 3)

Complex differential logarithmic variables involving insudtrial semi-circular formal distribution systems terminating subprogram division.
(Course met the approval of the faculty, however, the computer blatantly refused to program it into the class schedule.)

Phil 282 Practical Philosophy (Lect. 3)

A survey of the major approaches to philosophical thought, especially those concerning the nature of reality.
(Course was rejected when the instructor philosophically proved the course could not exist.)

Econ 288 Financing Techniques (Lect. 3)

Perhaps a monetary study of superficial methods to seemingly incorporate into a business unless derived results occasionally appear unnecessarily divided between ideas.
(Course was rejected when faculty decided the subject was too crystal clear in design, and such a well-defined course needs no instruction.)

These were only a few of the rejected courses I found. If you think they were ridiculous, you should have seen some of the one that were accepted—you wouldn't believe them . . . and in some cases, not pass them either.

Tennis: Lost Weekend

State's netters had a rather dismal weekend even with the best weather of the year. Friday the team lost to Maryland, 8-1, and Saturday lost to Virginia by the same score.

Both matches were played away. According to Eric Gaddis, "Maryland was just too tough for us. We barely dropped all three doubles, and William Coward was our only winner in the singles."

Gaddis went on to say about the Virginia loss: "It was a good showing. The only State winners were Coward and John Pfefferkorn in doubles." Once again remember the type player these schools get as opposed to the type player attending State.

Clemson has already clinched the conference title with the conference meet here May 8, 9, and 10.

On this Gaddis said, "We are a determined team. We are working hard, one of the hardest working teams anywhere." He thought that the meet would "find Bunny (Coward) having a real good chance. Also our doubles are strong."
