Phi Kappa Phi Elects 169 New Members

Phi Kappa Phi, highest academic honorary society at State, initiated 16 alumni, 14 faculty members and a record 139 students Wednesday night.

The students, whose names were released earlier, earned membership in the national organization by achieving scholastic averages of "B" plus or better.

The alumni and faculty were elected by special committees of the NCSU chapter on the basis of outstanding professional achievements.

Initiation ceremonies were held at the Erdahl-Cloyd Student Union.

Faculty members tapped were: Norman D. Anderson, Leonard W. Aurand, Harlan C. Brown, Henry S. Brown, Thomas S. Elleman, Kwangil Koh, Jasper D. Memory, Joseph T. Nerden, M. Necat Ozisik, William E. Smith, Charles W. Suggs, David H. Timothy, William B. Toole III, and H.R. van der Vaart.

Alumni chosen for the honor ranged from bankers to engineers:

M. Edmund Aycok, vice president and manager of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., Raleigh; William H. Burton, manufacturing vice president of American Thread Co., Westport, Conn.; Marcus B. Crotts, partner in Crotts and Saudners Engineering, Inc., Winston-Salem; and G. Brantley DeLoatche, general manager of Central Carolina Farmers, Durham.

Also William H. Entwistle, president of Sandhurst Mills, Rockingham; S. Scott Ferebee Jr., president of Ferebee, Walters and Associates, Architects, Charlotte; John B. Gaither, president of Creative Graphics, Raleigh; L.R. Harrill of Raleigh, retired state 4-H Club leader. J. Wade Hendricks, director of farm and public relations for the Northwestern Bank, Statesville; Julian G. Hofmann, project forester with Albemarle Paper Co., Roanoke Rapids; and James S. Lasley, executive vice president Spring Mills, Inc., Lancaster, S.C.

Charles A. Musser, sales manager of American Oil Co., Chicago, Ill.; Henry M. Van-Oesen, consulting engineer of Wilmington; John R. Williams, principal partner of Johnson and Williams Consulting Engineers, Washington, D.C.; George L. Winchester of Raleigh, retired conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, and William W. Wommack, vice president of the Mead Corp., Cincinnati, Ohio, were also chosen.

Campus Judicial Board Adds Eight Members

Eight students have been elected to serve on the campus Judicial Board for next year.

The students, including two coeds, will serve on the Board which judges cases of alleged misconduct by students.

Elected from the rising senior class were James W. Pearce and John G. Fragakis, both engineering operations majors.

Rising juniors who will serve on the Board are Jill R. Stivers, zoology major J. Michael Herrington, chemical engineering major; and Linda L. Walker, an English major.

Three students were chosen to represent next year's sophomore class.

Clifton F. (Chip) Davis III is a liberal arts major planning to go into engineering next year.

Bradford K. Harrison, an engineering student and Charles W. Johnson, a liberal arts major who will enter engineering next fall were also elected.

Five other students will serve on the Judicial Board as holdovers who did not have to be re-elected this year.

The students, their present classes and fields of study are: Patricia D. Council, sophomore, food science; Robert Carson Bain, junior, biology; David S. Jolley, junior, economic; Herbert B. Edgerton Jr., junior, biology; and David C. Whitehead, sophomore, engineering operations.

George Pantan, editor of the Technician, and Calvin McSwain, a student at A&T University and President of the State Student Legislature were appointed by Governor Bob Scott to the Good Neighbor Council Friday. This is the first time students have been named to any official agency of State Government.

In ceremonies in the Governor's Office, Scott said "Today we add a new dimension to the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council. We add youth."

"Deliberative Council, particularly in areas requiring restraint and tact, has traditionally been the domain of the more mature. We are now giving youth an opportunity to add its voice to this important state body."

In departing from his prepared text, the Governor talked of his close associations with N.C. State, and how he had been a member of Student Government.

The Good Neighbor Council is an advisory group to the Governor. The 20-member council meets quarterly to hear reports from field workers and to make recommendations to the Governor.

Both Pantan and McSwain will be Seniors in political science next year. Their appointments are for a period of one year.

Pantan said, "I hope we will be able to get more participation by college students in the work of the Good Neighbor Council. We hope to get the work of the Council known to the college community."

Present at the swearing in ceremony in the Governor's office were Fred Cooper, chairman of the council, and Betty Sandford, the Council's executive secretary.

Brooklyn Bridge Here

For an entirely unique experience see The Brooklyn Bridge Wednesday night at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum. Tickets are now on sale at the Union Information Desk, Thiem's Record Shop in Raleigh and all Record Bar locations in Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill.

Prices are $1.50 general admission and $2.50 for seats in the reserved sections.

Beginning Tuesday, construction of the new Student Center will commence.

Students with white and yellow decals will be allowed to park parallel to the curb on both sides of Morrill Drive, Doak Field, Lot West of Old Naval Armory (off Dan Allen Drive), first base line area next to baseball field on West Dunn Avenue and on Cates Avenue in back of Coliseum by practice fields.

Survey's indicate adequate spaces will be available.

All vehicles must be removed from West Coliseum Parking Lot by 6 p.m. today.

Scott's Statement On Student Appointments

Today we add a new dimension to the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council. We add youth.

Deliberative council, particularly in areas requiring restraint and tact, has traditionally been the domain of the more mature. We are now giving youth an opportunity to add its voice to this important state body.

The Good Neighbor Council sails uncharted seas. There are no signs to tell its members which way to go in the sea of discontent they often must sail.

The captain of a ship setting out on a voyage will gather a crew he believes has the qualifications and capacities to handle the ship safely and wisely.

We have a good crew in the Good Neighbor Council.

The council is important to our ship of state. To carry out its mission, it needs the steady hand of experience and cool, reasoned judgement. These are qualities we normally associate with men past their first three decades of life. But we all know there are exceptional young people who possess these qualities. They are young enough to identify with the youth of our state but mature enough and judicious enough to apply the test of reason in seeking to solve problems beyond their experience.

Membership on the Good Neighbor Council is not a job for the weakhearted. Members of this body must have the courage of their convictions—because they must rise or fall on them.

I said early in my administration when I named Fred Cooper to head this council I thought two vacancies on the council should be filled by college students. I have found the two students I think will give conscientious and effective service to the council and to their state.

I challenge these young men to give their best. And I would remind them that service to others is man's highest calling.

I close with the Serenity Prayer that members of this council have often heard:

"Grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, The courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

State Worships Bacchus At Neuse River

by Rick Curtis

As some students at State would have it, this fine institution needs a little more social life; a little more student interaction.

Saturday, State had just that: student interaction. The Fourth Annual Neuse River Derby, sponsored by the School of Design, was again a great success. Over 500 people gathered at Raleigh Beach Saturday morning to watch the State Regatta get underway.

Crafts of all sizes and shapes (many defying all attempts at description) were arranged along the shore awaiting the blast from the air horn to get them underway.

It never came, instead a word from the director, Fred Eichenberger, "Go!" was the starting signal which sent the merrymakers and would-be sailors on their way to the briny deep.

From the start it was a disaster. Crafts piled up right and left in the narrow channel soon after the start. Crafts, untried and untrue, capsized, ran aground, collided, blew up, fell apart, and in general, sank as they hit the rough water.

After sorting themselves out, and much on-the-spot redesigning, they floated serenely down the mighty Neuse, along with the beer cans, coolers, paddles, various bits and pieces of rafts, crafts and would-be yachts.

Who won the race? Rumor has it an engineer of all people did in a canoe, which probably took a lot of imagination, but this writer doesn't know for sure. Winning the race though, couldn't possibly be the objective here. Creativity and longevity has to be the prime objectives.

The eight foot beer can, the Hand, the round, roly-poly innertube craft and others showed much imaginative thought if little sound reasoning. Others also deserve mentioning, especially the ones that made it. An old airplane drop tank along with styrofoam showed great promise, and the "slave ship" of a second-year design class were good ideas and they worked!

Many overturned in what "flatlanders" call rapids, which occurred about three times along the 3.1 mile course. But this has to be the longest three miles you ever rowed, paddled, walked, swam, drifted or motored.

And so, while the men over on Whiskey Hill partied and raised it at Jubilee, and Lindsay's ECU Pirate Jamboree was a real blast, the School of Design had to show the way to 11,900 State students on how-to-have-a-good-weekend-without-really-trying.

Next year? Yes, I guess there will be a next year. What better way to end a year of academic difficulties, worries and pressures; what better way to let of steam, show a little of yourself, waste a few dollars worth of cardboard, wood and nails than to design it, build it, and hopefully, sail it down the Polluted Neuse.

Maybe the Administration should try it next year—ought to relieve some of their nervousness.

COMING THIS SUMMER TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

First Step

By appointing two students to the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council, Governor Scott has taken a giant step in the right direction.

And that direction is the path of soliciting the help of the State's youth in reconciling divergent forces now breeding hate, fear and suspicion in many quarters of North Carolina.

Ours is not like the "lost" or the "found" generations. Ours is rather a generation with high goals and inconsistent methods; of changing values, difficult to express in terms most of Scott's generation can understand; of questions and problems likely to go unresolved for decades hence.

So here we are—a generation of ideas, idealism and impatience. And there Scott is—governor of the state. He has no quick solutions to the things we hold dear—like relevant education and social justice.

But he has the power to help us search and we hope he will.

The Good Neighbor Council is a good place to start. Composed of 20 gubernatorial advisors, the Council has too often had the image of being called together simply to mediate violent disruptions. Now it seeks to become a board that will act before the fact, fostering racial justice whenever and wherever possible.

That role is perfectly suited to young people, because we are more closely in touch with high-minded (and often militant) ideas which so many older people perceive as threats to their security.

But we hope Scott will go beyond the Good Neighbor Council. We would like to see the Governor endorse Sen. Ralph Scott's bill to place students on the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina. For that matter he could go his uncle one better by appointing students to the Board of Higher Education.

We're convinced the Governor will soon learn that such appointments would be among the wisest of his entire administration.

Disruption+Violence+Destruction =Political Intervention By States

by Marquis Childs
COLUMBIA, MO.—Some 200 regents and trustees responsible for governing universities and colleges with a majority of the nation's students are meeting here to consider how to contain the campus revolt and at the same time insure the freedom of the academic community. It is a bit like trying to square the circle.

These men and women representing their respective institutions at the annual conference of the Association of Governing Boards are acutely aware of the gathering storm. They know that profound changes must come in higher education to meet student and faculty demands. Yet they know, too, that legislatures—not to mention taxpayers—that must appropriate funds for the great state universities are in revolt against the excesses they see reflected in the headlines.

A threatening equation is written large on the blackboard: disruption, violence, and destruction of property equal more political intervention in the academic community. Fire that professor for talking radical stuff, the legislature says. And if you can't keep those students under control you're going to find your funds cut off. This fits in perfectly with the drive for economy reflecting the pinch of ever-rising taxes.

National Standards?

One question put to the conference is whether the governing boards should try to establish a national standard for coping with students, the minority of extremists, who destroy and disrupt by force and violence. Should they be punished under the laws of the land as would an ordinary violator? Or does the sanctity of the academic community make them immune from the punishment meted out to the lawbreaker on the outside?

There are no easy answers. One problem is to determine what authority is to pass on the accused within the academic community. That gets down to the student demand for shared as against imposed authority. A student facing suspension or expulsion for going beyond peaceable demonstration and protest, as defined in a code of conduct, would have a hearing before a board made up of representatives of students, faculty and administration.

But expulsion under the draft as presently operating would make the individual liable to be called for service in a war which is one of the chief sources of student protest. This is a sensitive nerve troubling authority at every level.

The trustees and regents know only too well that they are the scapegoats for the ills of a society in turbulent change. They did not generate the education explosion which has seen most institutions of higher learning, certainly those publicly supported, swollen to almost unmanageable size. Yet they are under unremitting pressure to fit the unwieldy mass into a frame designed for another and more restricted time.

Keeping Ahead

Two significant and little understood facts emerge in the discussion here. One is the way in which many institutions have kept ahead of student demands and have thereby headed off the kind of uprising engineered by a small minority intended to draw in the moderates against repressive authority. Yale under the administration of Kingman Brewster is an outstanding example.

Even less well known is how comparatively few institutions have had incidents that made sensational headlines. Not more than perhaps 40 colleges and universities out of a total of more than 2,000 have had blowups that got onto national television.

Yet the shock wave from each incident ripples through the entire academic community and has its echoes in legislative halls. At the University of Missouri here in Columbia they have had no violence or disruption and only the most minor brushes with authority. But in the prevailing atmosphere what would have once been called a rally—a vigorous talk-in with every viewpoint represented at a mass meeting in the plaza before the university's historic columns—was dubbed a riot. As with the prominence given civil-rights demonstrators, the news media gets no little blame from authority for the shock waves reverberating across the land. As it was put by the president of a large university which has had its full share of turbulence:

"We are doing a great many exciting and constructive things here. But the only time the reporters and the television cameras show up is when a few hundred students have invaded an administration building or have trapped the recruiters for Dow Chemical or the CIA."

Deeper Causes

The underlying discontent and frustration on the part of both students and faculty are deeper than the surface manifestations. It is a discontent with the narrow terms and the machinelike quality of higher education in America. President Howard R. Bowen of the University of Iowa expressed this with remarkable candor in a recent speech:

"The University has unwittingly become a handmaiden of the established order and finds its main purpose in training professionals to serve it and in carrying on research and service to support and perpetuate it...The University's involvement with the established order robs it of its role and its contribution as disinterested critic of society and thereby reduces its capacity for liberal education."

That is what a lot of students have been saying with varying degrees of fury. And it is this accusation and how to respond to it that the troubled representatives of authority are trying to sort out.

Draft Counseling Center Started At B-J

by George Evans

Almost anything "from mental disorders to missing toes" could get you a relatively safe class 1-Y deferment according to counselor John Bradford of Draft Information Service.

Bradford also said that, although many people did not know it, any "full time student who is behind in hours or grades and is under 22" years of age may be eligible for the 1-S-C classification which extends his deferment for one calendar year. Unfortunately, this can only be used once!

A further caution is that if a student gets out of high school, marries and accepts a II-S classification he is "never" eligible for a III-A "fatherhood" deferment. Such students might get III-A "hardship" but they would have to be "pretty bad off!" If his wife were a mental case for example.

The Draft Information Service has been aiding students with these and similar problems from their new office in the Bar-Jonah for over a month now according to counselor Paul Geissler.

Geissler commented that none of those counseled have yet been drafted but there is "no sure formula" to keeping clear of the draft.

The D.I.S. exists to "give information about draft laws to those who want it" and gives its reasons as "patriotic."

"We, feel that what we are doing is in the best interests of the country." The D.I.S. also claims to be the first "organized draft counseling service in our area."

Many of the counselors are themselves conscientious objectors who want to help others, while several counselors only object to the war in Vietnam for political reasons.

Still others object to the draft itself. Bradford also claims that at present "three counselors are professors" although anyone can become a counselor "just come by and ask for help."

All counselors have received a special four week training course through the American Friends Service Committee from High Point.

The Draft Information Service office is open in the Bar-Jonah from 12 to 1 on Mondays Wednesdays, and Fridays and from 2 till 4 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

We put our unique rotary blades into three floating heads that follow your face by going in where your face goes in. And out where your face goes out. This way the new Norelco gets close enough to shave you as close or closer than a blade. As found in two out of three shaves in an independent lab test. And you get a comfortable shave because the Norelco floating heads curve with your chin, bend with your neck, and even straighten out for your cheeks. Automatically. And without a nick, pull or scrape. The new Norelco has a hidden trimmer that pops out for sideburns, and a push button for easy flip-top cleaning. It also comes in a rechargeable model that gives almost twice as many shaves per charge as any other rechargeable. We can't see you changing the shape of your face. Pack Fricassees 'Cocks

by Dennis Osborne
South Carolina had a pen full of Gamecocks, but State had the winner in its bullpen Saturday. Mike Caldwell turned in one of those "do-or-die" pitching efforts to defeat USC at Columbia, 4-1.

South Carolina has lost the previous nine ACC games, and Caldwell allowed the Gamecocks just nine hits in handing them their tenth loss. He allowed only five walks.

Completing his seventh game in nine starts and raising his record to 6-2, Caldwell struck out 11 Gamecocks and left 13 of them stranded on base. The Pack backed up the pitching performance with eight hits and errorless fielding.

The fifth was all State's. That's the inning in which they gained three runs to pull in front, 3-1. The scoring spree started with Pete Blocklin walking and going to second on Dave Boyer's bunt single.

Blocklin and Boyer advanced when Francis Combs made a sacrifice bunt, and Caldwell pushed Blocklin home.

Clem Huffman walked, stole second, and rode home with Boyer on Cammack's single past second base, making the score 3-1. Darrell Moody put Cammack on third with a single, and Punch pushed him home. The umpire allowed as how Cammack was out for not touching third, and the run didn't count.

Cammack and Boyer each got a pair of hits to lead the State attack. South Carolina scored its only run in the first, but could do nothing after that. The Gamecocks had runners on base in every inning except the seventh.

Phi Kappa Tau completed an amazing comeback last week to defeat Sigma Alpha Mu and capture the double-elimination badminton tournament.

PKT was in the loser's bracket and thus had to beat SAM in two straight matches to win the tourney. PKT won both matches by 2-0 scores, with Tom Fulgum and the doubles team of Tom Aracas and Bob Livengood winning for PKT in the final match.

Sigma Phi Epsilon continued its winning ways in softball by blanking Pi Kappa Alpha, 7-0. SPE is in first place in Section 3 with a 4-0 record, followed by Sigma Nu (2-2).

Sigma Chi won its fourth straight game last week by stopping Sigma Pi 10-1. Delta Sigma Phi is running second to Sigma Chi in Section 2 with a 2-2 record.

There is a three-way tie for first in Section 4, with Theta Chi, Sigma Alpha Mu, and FarmHouse all owning 3-1 records. FarmHouse defeated Kappa Sigma 14-2, but then lost 13-7 to Theta Chi to drop back into a tie for first place. SAM joined them in first by blanking PKP 12-0.

PKT's 3-1 record is the best in Section 1, with AGR and Lambda Chi Alpha close behind with 2-2 marks. PKT moved into first with an 11-8 win over AGR while LCA eased by SAE 8-4.

In other games, Sigma Nu stopped TKE 10-6 and Delta Sigma Phi overcame KA 15-8.

Duke Wins In WTVD Relays, Carolina Second

Defending champion Duke University won its second straight title in the fourth annual WTVD Relays held Saturday in Durham.

The Blue Devils finished with 57½, nine-and-a-half more than second place Carolina, the only other school to have ever won a title.

North Carolina College was third with 42½, Johnson C.

Smith finished right behind with 41; and East Carolina made a surprising showing, taking fifth place with 20 points.

Ronald Wheeler of Johnson

C. Smith duplicated his qualifying distance of 24-5½ in the long jump to set a new record. William Buckingham of Carolina A&T raised the record in the high jump by a quarter of an inch to 6-8.

Ed Sternburg of Duke broke his old measure for the mile with a time of 4:11.19. And North Carolina College, led by lead runner Lionel Urgan and anchor man Ronald Draper, sliced the 440 relay standard to 40.4.

State's Gareth Hayes wound up third in the two-mile run. He ran close to Sternburg and Mike Graves, who finished so close even the judges couldn't pick a winner.

Carolina, in finishing second, drew almost all its strength from the field events. In addition to taking four of five places in the pole vault competition, the Heels won the javelin and the shot put and placed in the long jump, high jump, discus, and triple jump, the only school to take places in all seven field events.
