Work Begins On Student Center

by Hilton Smith

Construction got underway yesterday on the new Student Center, only one of over $20.4 million in projects now under construction or contract on the campus.

The new $3.29 million Center, to be located between Reynolds Coliseum and Alexander Dorm, will contain greatly increased space for student activities.

It will contain cafeterias, a snack bar, lounges, game rooms, a 900-seat theater, student government and student publication offices, an art gallery, and religious offices. It will also contain a ballroom and several meeting rooms.

Construction on the project had been delayed because the bids opened last September were almost $700,000 over the money available. The project plans were then scaled down and the new bids were within $28,600 of available funds.

According to Facilities Planning Director Carroll L. Mann, the additional $28,600 came from student fees. The building will be paid for entirely from that service. Plans call for completion in about two years.

Another project soon to be constructed is a $2.9 million Nuclear Engineering and Enginearing Research Addition to Burlington Laboratories. An emergency appropriation from this year's General Assembly gave the additional money necessary to start the project that had been held up.

The three story building, to be constructed on a site now partially occupied by a fountain, will contain a new, more powerful Pulsar Reactor, laboratories, classrooms, and offices for the Nuclear Science Department. It will also contain research space for the School of Engineering as a whole.

"Contract awards have been made and contracts have been sent to low bidders for execution. I anticipate construction will start within 30 days," said Mann.

According to Chemistry Head Z.Z. Huges, the new $2.9 million Physical Science Building is only a few weeks from completion. Moving in will probably begin about the end of the semester.

The nine-story building, located next to Harrelson Hall, will be devoted almost exclusively to the Chemistry Department which will transfer its major activities to the new building.

Harpist Will Fill Musician's Post

The lyrical, angelic sound of the harp is coming to State next year.

Chancellor John Caldwell announced the appointment of Joel Andrews as musician-in-residence.

A master of the harp, Andrews was a prize student of Carlos Salzedo, internationally recognized harpist. Also noted as a composer, arranger and conductor, Andrews plays everything from baroque to the most avant-garde works.

"He is one of America's outstanding harpists," said NCSU Music Director J. Perry Watson. "He is knowledgeable in the many resources found in this instrument."

He continued, "This is an extraordinary opportunity for our students and faculty, as well as for Raleigh and the surrounding area. His influence should be felt throughout the entire State."

Watson said that Andrews will present a series of Sunday evening concerts and is planning seminars on the awareness of music and sound. Exchange concerts with faculty members at Carolina have also been arranged for next year.

Andrews is noted for the special effects he is able to create with the harp. "Sea Suite," one of his own compositions, uses 15 of his 30 new effects and ably demonstrates the artist's ability to create varieties of harp music.

He has composed, arranged and performed music for the (see SPECIAL, page 3)

Student Bill Considered

The bill to place the student body presidents of senior state-supported institutions of higher learning on their respective Trustee Boards is now under consideration by the Senate of North Carolina General Assembly.

It passed second reading Monday night, but was held for third reading Tuesday. However, an amendment was prepared for the bill that will hold up final consideration until today.

If the Senate passes the bill it will then go to the House where it must be passed there before it becomes law.

State People Win In City Election

The election of the new Raleigh City Council and the new Raleigh School Board last night bought about the winning of seats by two people associated with State and the narrow loss by a third.

Robert W. Shoffner, for many years Director of Foundations here and only recently retired, won a seat on the Council.

Jack Porter, Director of the N.C. State Studios of WUNC-TV, narrowly missed a seat on the City Council by only six votes. He was in eighth place.

State's Regestar Ronald C. Butler retained his seat on the Raleigh School Board. He was in second place in the voting.

State Students Demonstrate Against Draft

Fifteen State students went to the Raleigh Induction Center yesterday to support a potential draftee in his efforts to stay out of the Armed Forces. Rocky Fallon, formerly of East Carolina University, is protesting the draft.

He stated, "I've made up my mind. I'm not going. I don't believe in killing. I think that I have a right to decide what is right and what is wrong. I'll go to prison if I have to. I don't intend to be pushed around."

He handed out leaflets that basically expressed these sentiments on the way to the Induction Center from Hillsboro.

Some members of "the Group" also handed out leaflets in support of Fallon.

Their pamphlet stated that "the selective service is being used as a tool in controlling the young of America, in channeling them in Lewis Hershey's own words 'toward a pliable populace.'" But there are some alternatives.

The State members had to leave at 900, though, to go to class.

Hall Presented Award At Alumni Weekend

Five top awards were presented Saturday, one posthumously, as the climax of the annual State Alumni Association weekend.

The awards were announced at the luncheon meeting of several hundred old grads.

Honored were the following: The late Everett D. Stevens, Raleigh businessman who died last year during his term as president of the State Alumni Association; Nello L.

Teer Jr., Durham contractor; Mose Kiser Jr., Greensboro sales manager; Arthur P. Moss, a vice president of Union Carbide; and Bobby Hall, star wingback of the Wolfpack football team.

The Alumni Association's Meritorious Service Award went posthumously to Everett D. Stevens for "dedicated and loyal devotion" to the University.

Teer was named the 1969 winner of the Award of Merit "in recognition of his outstanding contributions and leadership."

Kiser, the son of an alumnus of State, and regional sales manager of Boren Clay Products Co., was named Outstanding Young Alumnus. He was cited for leadership in the Greensboro Jaycees, Kiwanis Club, United Fund and other civic endeavors.

Moss, vice president of the Chemicals and Plastics Operations Division of Union Carbide, was chosen as Outstanding Engineering Alumnus for 1969.

Bobby Hall, who was selected for the Alumni Athletics Award by his fellow students, was an all-Atlantic Coast Conference halfback.

The awards luncheon highlighted two days of activities by several hundred old grads who returned to their alma mater for the weekend.

L.L. Ray of Greensboro, chairman of the board of directors and Bryce R. Younts, director of the Alumni Affairs Office, announced that the Alumni Association is establishing an additional Distinguished Alumni Professorship. The association established the first three professorships last year to encourage outstanding teaching on the campus.

Dr. Harry C. Kelly, State provost, said: "During this critical period in all universities, it is most important that we demonstrate that we are deeply concerned with the problems of communication with the younger generation."

Clayton Awarded Grant

Charles Barry Clayton, a student at State, was awarded a National Commander's Scholarship by the National Society of Pershing Rifles of which he is a member.

Clayton was one of two Pershing Riflemen chosen from applicants from colleges across the nation on the basis of academic achievement and extracurricular activities in both high school and college, activities in Pershing Rifles, and faculty recommendations.

He is enrolled in the AFROTC and a member of Company L-4, Pershing Rifles. Other activities include State Collegiate 4-H Club.

Circle K Builds Lecterns

The Circle K Club has just completed its spring lectern project.

Thirty-eight lecterns were distributed to various professors in the different schools on campus. Working a total of one hundred and eighty man hours, the project involved practically every member of the club. This is the second year the project has been undertaken by the club. It is the main service project to the campus by this service organization.

Mori To Discuss Japan

The Honorable Tomio Mori, Information Officer for the Permanent Mission of Japan to the United Nations, will visit State this week.

Mr. Mori plans to speak on "Japan and the United Nations" Friday evening, at 8 p.m. in the Union ballroom. As a rule Mission members are not allowed to leave their posts for speaking engagements, but First Minister Uomoto gave special permission for Mr. Mori to come.

His visit is being sponsored by the Committee on International Relations and UN Affairs, and by Contemporary Scenes. The CIRUNA group represented State at the National Model United Nations in New York last month, at which time they enjoyed an informative briefing with Mr. Mori.

space will remain in Withers. Physics and Biochemistry will also have some space in the new building.

Now under construction is an 11-story tower for the D.H. Hill Library. It is part of a $3.72 million renovation and expansion project for the library building and the present Union.

The new tower will be primarily for graduate study. The new Student Center will replace the present Union and it will then be used as an undergraduate facility for the library, with the ground floor remaining a cafeteria.

The present library building will continue in library use. The whole project will increase the library capacity from 400,000 to over 1,000,000 volumes.

A $4.5 million, seven story School of Education Building next to Leazar Cafeteria and a $1.7 million, four story forestry Building on Western Boulevard are also under construction.

Other projects in various stages of completion include a $353,000 addition to Scott Hall, a $790,000 renovation to Polk Hall and a $290,000 Central Stores facility near Sullivan Drive.

According to Mann two projects are reaching the point where bids can be advertised.

These are a $400,000 addition to the Student Supply Store and an Animal Research Center joined to the Animal Disease Laboratory on Western Boulevard.

"After these two projects and the Nuclear Science Addition are under way, that's all that we will have money and authority to do. It will give us a rest," concluded Mann.

The new budget for State, including capital improvements for the next two years, is now being considered by the current General Assembly. Currently no new academic buildings are included in the proposed budget.

Golden Chain Initiates Twelve

Golden Chain, the highest honorary society for seniors at State initiated 12 students recently in ceremonies at the College Inn.

Also elected were three faculty members.

Named from the faculty were William H. Simpson, assistant to the Chancellor and Provost at State; Dr. Ralph C. Bryant, professor forest management; and Professor George H. Blum Jr., of the Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering.

Students chosen for the honor were: R. Carson Bain, Greensboro; William A. Eagles, Macclesfield; Fred J. Ferguson Jr., Canton; Carl W. Hall III, Mt. Ulla; Patricia Ann Hart, Apex; James S. Hobbs, Anderson S.C.; Larry E. Jordan, Raleigh and Hickory; Stephen P.

solo harp, harp ensembles, dancers, poets, plays, exhibitions, radio and television.

He holds three degrees and during four years at the University of Texas, he founded the First Annual Harp Festival which drew 50 harpists and Carlos Salzedo in 1960.

Andrews has taught at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and spent four years as solo harpist with the Oakland Symphony. More recently, he was with the San Francisco Ballet and Opera.

Andrews is also interested in the occult. His uncle is the well-known astrologer, Gavin Arthur, of San Francisco. His father-in-law is philosopher Alan Watts.

Andrews and his wife, Ann, have two children, Myra and Michael. Andrews states that his family is his hobby, although he is also interested in chess and photography.

'Federal Thrust' For Schools

Two organizations representing the nation's public colleges and universities have called for "a major Federal thrust" which would provide for a combination of increased support for institutions and disadvantaged students.

Such an effort would "provide educational opportunity beyond the high school for all who can benefit from it", the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the American Association of State Colleges and Universities said in their joint statement of recommendations for national action.

The two organizations, representing some 350 public institutions that enroll more than half of the nation's college students, called on the Nixon Administration and the Congress to "make a major Federal thrust toward institutional support which will enable colleges and universities to open their doors to all potentially qualified students, stem escalating student charges and improve the quality of education."

The Associations are seeking a national institutional grants program to provide, on a formula basis, broad support for all types of institutions of higher education, to complement existing Federal programs.

In a joint legislative statement the two groups urged greater federal support for academic facilities, housing and for a variety of existing education, research and public service programs now supported by the federal government.

Beating Heat

"Thermal Pollution" is one of the big questions facing the power generation industry today, particularly when the generation is by nuclear power.

In an attempt to clear some of the emotion away from this issue and present both sides of the argument, the American Nuclear Society is presenting a symposium tomorrow night starting at 7:30 in 242 Riddick. The public is invited.

Ed Utley, Manager of Power Production and James Cell, chemical engineer will be present. Both work for Carolina Power and Light Company.

State Senator John Burney from New Hanover County, will also be present. He is an opponent of Carolina Power and Light Company's plans to build a nuclear generating plant in the Wilmington area.

Union Boards Need People

Various boards of the overall Services Board are seeking students to work for the fall and spring semesters.

The Arts board is concerned with the graphic and performing arts.

The Discounts Board searches out discounts for students around Raleigh.

Entertainment Board is important. It will be concerned with changing the present image of the Union, by searching and obtaining quality entertainment.

Innovations into the Union are discussed by the General

Services Board, the International Board, and the lectures Board.

The Social Action Board helps with community projects and with racial and social issues.

The Summer Programs Board works with innovations to the Union over the summer.

To obtain good programs in the symposiums the Services Board will have to go to the different school councils to help finance these programs.

For further information contact John Miller at the Union Program Office.

The Verdict Rests With You

It is a sad commentary on the University's social program when the IFC and three dorms sponsor bigger name groups than the Union.

Tonight the IFC is sponsoring the Brooklyn Bridge in a charity concert to provide funds for a baseball team for underprivileged children and Saturday night Bragaw, Metcalf and Sullivan are sponsoring a dance featuring the Original Drifters.

If these concerts are a success, it should provide an incentive for other campus organizations to sponsor concerts. These concerts would provide a necessary service to the students as well as provide the sponsors with funds.

The campus is sorely in need of good entertainment. If the Union can not provide this entertainment, the students should look to other sources. The two concerts this week must be a financial success if these other organizations are to receive the incentive to sponsor their own concerts. Promoting a concert is always a big financial gamble, and there must be some signs of possible success.

We urge you to attend the concert tonight and the dance Saturday night. Only by attending these attractions will the organizers make enough money to make it worth while to sponsor other concerts next year. The success or failure of these two events rests with you.

Reader Opinion

It is with very deep regret that I find myself writing this letter to you. It seems that I have been slowly losing my faith in the American system and the last straw has been broken. Monday I participated in the picket line behind the student union for the non-academic workers that had been

To the Editor:

Rather than continue giving visitors to campus parking tickets, and raise the currently ridiculous price of $10 A YEAR for vehicle registration to the utterly ridiculous price of $20 A YEAR, I have hit upon an ingenious suggestion for implementing the campus revenue. This is, simply, to have Physical Plant install coin-operated turnstiles at all the entrances to buildings on campus, with a rule in the Honor Code that all students feed the turnstile rather than jump over it. Even at a penny for the realm, this would soon bring in a considerable amount of revenue to work with. The turnstiles could even be made to accept tokens, which the Supply Store would sell at its 20% profit rate. Such a system would, I feel, make parking tickets unnecessary and campus cops obsolete. Then think of all the printing and hiring costs that would be saved!

fired for political reasons. As some people passed they took the information we were handing out, but all too many simply passed by with a word or two of profanity, keeping their minds tightly closed to new ideas or the simple truth.

The American system has been based on discussion and rational discourse between people, but with minds that refuse to listen to new ideas this system cannot operate. The next time you pass the picket line, take the information and read it. They you can decide for yourself exactly what you feel about the workers. But please do not make up your mind because, The Group is doing this or because the picketers have long hair. Only after reading all that is available [sic] should any rational person make up his mind on any controversial issue.

Track

The site has been switched but the theme song will still be "Maryland, My Maryland" when the 16th Annual Atlantic Coast Conference Track and Field Championships open Friday at Duke University's Wallace Wade Stadium.

The meet was moved to Duke from North Carolina State last week because State's new track is not ready.

The Maryland Terrapins, who have captured the team title 14 of 15 years, again rule solid favorites to walk away with the team trophy. So, the big battle shapes up for second place and four teams—South Carolina, Clemson, host Duke and North Carolina—appear to have the best crack at the runnerup position.

Tennis

If regular season results are any indication of strength, Clemson's tennis teams must be rated a forerunner for the Atlantic Coast Conference net title to be decided this week on the courts of State in Raleigh.

The Tigers are undefeated in 16 matches this season and Coach Duane Bruley calls his squad "the best Clemson has ever had." This claim is even more significant because Bruley maintains the '69 Tiger netters faced the toughest schedule in Clemson tennis history, winning over such perennial powers as North Carolina, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, South Carolina and others. The Tigers' 7-2 triumph over North Carolina this season was a first for Clemson.

Bruley is simultaneously excited and cautious over Clemson's chances in the league tournament this week. "We are unquestionably in a better position than we have ever been at this point," says Bruley. "But four other teams have depth and strength comparable to ours, so it'll be anybody's tournament."

"So much depends on how our boys are playing on the day they face their toughest tests. "In tennis," he continues, "a good kid can be clobbered by a poor one if the better player has an off day. And several of our boys' games fluctuate noticeably. But I am very optimistic."

The reason for Clemson's 1969 success Bruley answers: "The leadership of our two seniors, captain Jim Poling and David Cooper, and the play of newcomer Gordon Hebert. Poling and Cooper have set an example for the rest of the team. Often seniors fall off in their final season due to indifference and fatigue. Not Jim and David. They've gotten stronger."

Bruley himself must receive credit for Clemson's tennis success. Since he became head coach in 1963, he has guided the Tiger netters to 93 wins against only 24 losses in seven campaigns. Six of his teams have finished second in the ACC, and today Clemson's tennis program is rated one of the best on the eastern seaboard.

"Our boys have final exams behind them now," notes Bruley. "They'll be able to go into the tourney without the burdens of school weighing on them." The eight ACC members pursue the conference championship beginning Thursday, and Clemson University will be in the limelight from the outset.

Golf

The newly-crowned North and South Amateur King, the reigning Southern Amateur titleholder, the Carolinas Golfer of the Year and the defending champion will be among those on hand at McGregor Downs in Raleigh Friday for the start of the 16th annual ACC Golf Tournament.

The Deacons finished with a five-man total of 730 last year, 31 shots in front of second place South Carolina. Maryland was third at 763 and North Carolina fourth at 771.

Wake Forest already has two tournament championships to its credit this season. It won the Red Fox Intercollegiate at Tryon over a 12-team field by a 51-shot margin, and later added the Palmetto Intercollegiate at Orangeburg, S.C., over a 17-team field by 24 strokes. Friday's play is expected to get underway at 8 a.m. with each of the eight schools being represented by a seven-man team. Eighteen holes will be played both Friday and Saturday.

South Carolina takes a 6-4-2 dual match record into the Atlantic Coast Conference golf tournament this weekend over the McGregor Downs Country Club course at Raleigh, N.C.

The Gamecocks hold conference dual match wins over Virginia and N.C. State and ties with Clemson and Duke, but have dropped matches to defending champion Wake Forest and North Carolina.

Last year, South Carolina finished second in the ACC tournament to Wake Forest.

Answers to Today's Puzzle

"Remember,
we're nonviolent,
so be careful of your after shave."

Wild-eyed coeds can turn any peaceful demonstration into a full-scale riot, so be careful how you use your Hai Karate® After Shave and Cologne. But just in case your hand slips, we include instructions on self-defense in every package. (If you're a pacifist, maybe you'd better read the instructions twice.)

Hai Karate—be careful how you use it.

Pack Hacks Pirates

Pirates may have cutlasses but State carried the big bats in Monday's game with ECU. The Pack got 16 hits off six East Carolina pitchers and scored its fifteenth victory, 12-2.

He batted four times in the first three innings and knocked out a triple and three singles.

The first of his four hits. Martin scored the third run of the inning on Dennis Punch's sacrifice fly. A walk by Gary Yount followed, and Dave Boyer and Darrell Moody singled.

These hits got State off to a 9-1 lead after three innings. Martin's triple was the big blow of a four-run first inning against the Pirates. Clem Huffman walked and Chris Cammack singled before Martin got Three walks and a single by Martin brought in a run in the second. Four more came across in the third on Boyer's single, a walk, and hits by Huffman, Cammack and Martin.

In addition to triples, singles, and walks, Francis Combs hit a homerun over the center-field fence with Boyer on base in the fourth.

One of the Perquimans County men, Robbie Wilson, pitched the first five innings before retiring because of a blister. Freshman Stu Shearin of Raleigh came in and blanked the Pirates on two hits in the last four innings.

This victory was the sixth straight over ECU. Four of them came last season.

Tagging out a State man: One of the few plays ECU made all afternoon.
