See Wednesday's Technician For Maryland Player And Game Photos Washington: A Success

WASHINGTON, D.C.—"This here room is the Green Room. As you leave, stay away from the red curtain. If you get too close to the curtain the Secret Service will have you and I won't."

Those were a few of the choice remarks of the Secret Service guide who led the Washington seminar on its tour of the White House Friday.

The seminar included 23 student leaders who traveled to Washington last weekend. They met with various governmental officials on international monetary problems.

The seminar was briefed in the Indian Treaty Room of the Executive Office Building on the President's Council of Economic Advisors and the Urban Affairs Council.

Later in the day, the seminar met with a 46-year veteran bureaucrat in the Commerce Department.

In the afternoon the seminar was briefed at the State Department. A briefing officer was asked: "Do you see any progress at the Paris peace talks?" The quick, short answer was a terse "No!"

Later in the afternoon the group was briefed at the modernistic German Embassy. Saturday, the seminar met with Representative Wright Patman in the plush Sam Rayburn Office Building.

Congressman Patman expressed the belief that the high interest rates are responsible for the present high rate of inflation. Also he expressed concern over the power the large banks are exerting on the nation's economy. He foresees the day when large banks might cause a depression so that the large bank holding companies could buy up cheaply bankrupted property.

The final session of the seminar was with James P. Tank, a member of the White House staff. He was active in youth voluntary action programs. He said President Nixon was very eager to have a voluntary action program succeed.

He stressed the expansion of voluntary services into areas other than the national area. A program at Michigan State included programs from teaching prisoners calculus to setting up ham radio clubs.

The seminar group returned to Raleigh yesterday afternoon.

by Hilton Smith
It will be acceptable for students to participate in the October 15 moratorium under a disruption policy adopted by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees July 7. However individual faculty members who boycott classes will be in violation of the policy.

These positions were contained in a University Policy Statement Regarding Proposed October 15 Activity released last Thursday.

"Participation in the proposed moratorium by any of us who are members of the faculty and staff, including part-time instructors, is not prohibited so long as such paricipation does not conflict with the performance of validly assigned duties," it said.

"A willful or intentional refusal to meet assigned responsibilities necessarily invokes the terms and conditions of the Trustee policy."

The policy statement, signed by Consolidated University President William C. Friday and the Chancellors of all six campuses, also stressed that any faculty or staff member who finds a valid reason not to meet his scheduled responsibilities October 15 should notify his departmental chairman or dean in advance.

As for students and the statement reaffirmed "the rights of members of this University Community to engage in free discussion of all issues, peaceful demonstrations, and the right peaceably to assemble.

"Class attendance is a matter between the student concerned and the unit of the University in which he is enrolled. The Trustee policy states, however, that any attempts to prevent students from attending class constitutes a violation of the policy," the statement continued.

The guidelines for the October 15 policy were obtained from the Disruption Policy adopted July 7 by the Executive Committee of the University Board of Trustees.

Turnovers Kill Terps, Defense Sets Up Win

by Dennis Osborne

The defense performed as of old to lift the Pack from a first quarter deficit to win a 24-7 victory at Maryland.

Jack Whitley returned an intercepted pass 42 yards and Pete Bailey recovered a fumble on the Terps' 25 to set up two TD's.

"What lost the game for them were the interceptions and fumble" said Coach Edwards afterwards. "The fumbles were caused by carelessness—good teams don't fumble very much. The game was pretty even, but penalties were costly to them. They were caused by a lack of discipline, carelessness about the starting count."

For State, it was lucky the defense was working, for the offense had trouble moving the ball against the Terp tacklers. Most of the first quarter, the partisan crowd in Byrd stadium felt they were going to win. Quarterback Dennis O'Hara seemed to have no trouble moving the ball as he pleased. He took his team to a score with an 80 yard drive in the middle of the first quarter. This drive was marked with a good passing game, but when he tried to repeat the maneuvers, Jack Whitley intercepted a toss on the Maryland 42 and ran in for the Pack's first score.

Maryland took the kick, lined up, and threw to Jimmy Smith on their 45. He returned to the 24, but the ball wasn't advanced enough for a first down. Mike Charron came in and kicked a field goal to put the score at 10-7.

For the rest of the afternoon, the Terps would gain eight of ten yards on a play and have the gain nullified for a penalty. Art Hudson several times would tell an official the man opposite him was moving, and then move in and hit the man before the snap. Maryland couldn't seem to stop these illegal procedure penalties, and at one time the scoreboard showed first and thirty-eight.

In the third period Pete Bailey pounced on a fumble, and Moody produced a play with a lot of dash. Moody pitched to Bowers, Bowers handed back to Moody, and Moody passed to Mason for a 19 yard gain. Maryland drew an off-sides penalty, the Pack moved in three more yards, and Bowers carried in to score, making it 16-7.

It was a head-knocking battle for the rest of the game until Leon Mason made a beautiful run of 74 yards for the final TD. Mason weaved and turned up the sideline until only two men were in front of him. He then turned directly into them and ran over the tacklers for the score.

Moody diversified the attack with passes. He passed six completions, out of ten attempts for 76 yards. Coack Edwards thought the team "caught the ball pretty well."

Some people were critical of Moody, saying he ran the ball too quickly, but Coack Edwards said, "I advise him to run if the ball receivers are covered. The more time he takes, the further back he is going."

The Pack went to Maryland, capitalized on interceptions and fumbles to bring home an ACC victory, and performed efficiently with few mistakes. It seemed as if poor Maryland couldn't do anything right, and therein lay the difference.

State Turns 80 This Week

by Parks Stewart

Governor Bob Scott and Chancellor John T. Caldwell will take a buggy ride on September 30 at 9:00 a.m. from Holladay Hall to the Memorial Tower to commemorate the 80th anniversary of North Carolina State University.

On Oct. 3, 1889 State College opened its doors to less than fifty students.

Now 12,600 students will celebrate throughout the anniversary week of September 29th. The celebration plans are Alpha Phi Omega's project this year as they have been for the past two years.

In addition to the morning buggy ride, the Governor will arrive in the buggy at the Union terrace at 5:30 p.m. He will be welcomed by Alpha Phi Omega President William Thigpen, Student Body President Jack Burger, and Alpha Phi Omega Anniversary Representative Richard Johnson.

Boxed chicken dinners will be sold for 99 cents by the Union beginning at 5:30.

Trumpeters will play and "The Grains of Time" will sing. President Jack Barger will speak and introduce Governor Scott, who will present a birthday cake to the campus. Caldwell will accept it.

The climax of the occasion will be the emergence of a "surprise" from a large red and white imitation birthday cake on the terrace.

On Oct. 3, an anniversary music program will be broadcast over WPTF-FM.

Director of instruction in the School of Agriculture and Life Science, Dr. E. W. Glazener, who is chairman of the University anniversary celebration committee, said the celebration will "call attention to the changes that have been made," and "give the faculty and students a chance to work on something together."

Glazener commented, "We are all interested more in the future than the past, but it is important to occasionally recall our heritage."

NOTICE

NOTICE: Any person—student, faculty, or staff is urged to contact campus security FIRST when reporting any type of emergency, such as fire, break-in, or auto accident. The Security number is 755-2181; or just 2181 from a University phone.

OUR SAY 'Special Day' For Vietnam A Mockery

If a "day apart from business as usual" is necessary to discuss the War in Vietnam, then the American educational system is seriously debased.

If it is not our usual business to reflect upon a venture which has killed 40,000 young men, then any pretense that universities in this country are dedicated to discovering knowledge or truth or whatever it is they say they do, is a farce.

If the moral, ethical, and political questions raised by the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia are not grave enough to merit classroom time—even though it might mean a little less attention to thermodynamics and Chaucer—then it's absolutely ignorant to assume that a special day can educate persons who have been heretofore unmoved about the tragedy of Vietnam.

Yet such is the thrust of the October 15 Vietnam Moratorium. And the reaction from students and administrators at State probably belies the futility of such a demonstration.

For example, the Student Senate decided to take up the issue. And did they discuss Vietnam? Has the Student legislature ever grappled with the real issues? Not on your life. Only once—when it went on record last year as supporting draft reform—did the Senate really discuss the implications of the war, but even then the talk was mostly about procedural problems, not essential policies. To have that kind of dialogue, it seems, we have to have a special day.

And the University, for all its trappings of "this policy" and "that policy" has shown that it does not want to bring such topics as war and death under consideration. For example, it has never seemed coercive or disruptive of the educational process in the past when Saturday classes were dismissed so that State students could view that great philosophical spectacle of the Homecoming Parade.

The obvious conclusion is that this debasement of our educational system, that is, its refusal to deal with relevant questions should be the main thrust of any "revolutionary" movement by students. Our national myths and consequently our national policies will be significantly changed only when we change the tone and substance of our political socialization, that is the indoctrination in our schools.

We should support the Student Senate's proposal insofar as it is able to produce any overt sign of significant public opinion. But if the moratorium is to be a sideshow for two bit revolutionaries, we should stay in class October 15 and force discussion about Vietnam and the ABM and the ghetto and air pollution and . . . until we get our educational priorities straightened out.

-YOUR SAY- Earthbound?

Mr. Golden first chastises the astronauts for their spiritual activities in outer space. Why shouldn't three men who risk their lives in an experiment express their gratitude and praise to their God at their triumphant moment? If they truly worship that God, can they say "Well God, you're a big help to me on earth but when I go into outer space you just be good and stay on earth o.k.? You've done a good job of creation but while I explore another toy you stay on earth and try to piece back together what I've broken." Did those on Columbus' ship think they could leave God in Spain? Did they say "Let's clean up the mess in Spain before we take God to America"?

Mr. Golden speaks of the various manifestations of God and says that God has not manifested His will in outer space—where does Mr. Golden base this statement? Has he spoken to everyone concerned with the space program? Is he positive that NONE of them are following a spiritual guide? How can Mr. Golden be so presumptuous to say, "I am quite sure He doesn't want us to bother with His will in outer space"—Can man limit God's will to this earth?

If Mr. Golden is ever launched into outer space, then he must decide for himself whether or not he will pray or sing Christmas carols to his God. It is my opinion that, as their spiritual activities ("church") did not in any way interfere with their official duties ("state") the astronauts had every right to "take" their God into outer space with them.

Pipers To Debut At 'Birthday Party'

by Bill Perkins

One of the attractions at the commemoration of the eightieth anniversary of State tomorrow will be State's own bagpipe band.

The band started a year ago with Ted Tonkinson, an instructor in Soil Science. Before coming East he played a side drum in a pipe band in Tucson, Arizona. He decided to form a pipe band here and placed an ad in the Technician last fall in an attempt to bring together persons interested in belonging to a pipe band.

Among the persons responding to the ad was Bob Howland, a grad student-instructor in Math and an experienced piper. Tonkinson and Howland started a beginners' class using the practice chanter, which sounds and looks like an anemic pipe which has lost its bag.

This year a band has taken shape from last year's class and a new group of beginners has started. With the help of J. Perry Watson, Director of Music, the band has received the sanction of the Music Department and is now known as Music 015, NCS Pipes and Drums, a noncredit course. The band will practice with the Royal Scots Greys while they are at State for a Friends of the College performance in mid-October.

Mr. William Muirhead, a contractor from Durham, N.C. and formerly of Scotland, has generously donated the money for the purchase of instruments and uniforms. The instruments include 10 sets of pipes, two side drums, one bass drum, and one tenor drum.

James Klibbe, an associate professor in Textiles, lent a helping hand in seeing that the band will be able to look the part at its debut; he persuaded Burlington Industries of Raeford, N.C. to make 300 yards of Tartan material for the band. Eighty yards of the material was sent to Toronto, Canada to be made into kilts by two kiltmakers originally from Glasgow, Scotland.

Louisburg Offers Rare Films

by Barb Grimes

If you enjoyed Genesis I last year, make it a point to be at Louisburg College on October 2 at 8:00 p.m. for the finale of the Kinetic Film Festival.

Thursday's program, containing nine films, will be the last of the three-part series of kinetic delights.

First of all, there is The Last Trick of Mr. Edgar a Czech film by Jan Svankmajer dealing with the story of two life-sized mannikins who stage a vaudeville competition.

Albert Lamorisse again takes to the air, and offers us a helicopter view of Versailles.

Of special interest should be Yuki Kuri's Flower, the Silver Award Winner from the Montreal Expo Animation Festival.

Walerian Borowczyk's Gavotte focuses on an 18th-Century court dwarf as he whiles away the time during an afternoon concert.

A magician who spends the time between his acts in a castle above the sea is the subject of Ivan Runc and Pavel Hohl's The Magician.

Helmut Herbst examines the steps from conformity to Nazism in Red, White and Black.

The "traumatic impact of some ultimate war" is the subject of Franz Winzentsen's Afterward—The Adventures of A Doll.

Diourka Medveesky's Marie et le Curie is the "mordant tale of eroticism and psychosis in a French village."

Jordan Belson's Samadhi will end the minifestival with a universe of color, sunspots, microphotography and nebulae.

Fifty cents will enable the movie-goer to see the films and partake of refreshments and discussion in the Art Gallery after the show.

Here's what your first year or two at IBM could be like.

You'll become involved fast. You'll find we delegate responsibility—to the limit of your ability. At IBM, you'll work individually or on a small team. And be encouraged to contribute your own ideas. You'll advance just as fast and far as your talents can take you. Here's what three recent graduates are doing.

Soon after his IBM programmer training, John Klayman, B.S. Math '68, began writing programs used by a computer system to schedule every event in the Apollo tracking stations. And when the finished programs were turned over to NASA Goddard Space Flight Center, he was responsible for making them work.

Marketing representative Bill Manser, B.S. '67, is selling computer systems for scientific and engineering applications. His technical background and 14 months of training at IBM help him solve his customers' complex information handling problems.

Within three months after her IBM programmer training, Mardi Joyner, B.S. Math '68, found a way to streamline a key part of our Management Information System—a computer complex designed to give decision-makers constantly updated data.

FIRST ALL-AMERICA

State's first football All-America was tackle John Ripple who earned the honor in 1918. Ripple also earned All-Southern honors in 1917 and 1918.

WORST DEFEAT

The worst defeat in the history of State football was a 128-0 drubbing administered by Georgia Tech in 1918.

FIRST BOWL

The Wolfpack's first post-season bowl game saw national powerhouse Oklahoma dump Coach Beattie Feathers eleven 34-13, dropping their season record to 8-3.

The game scheduled at Oklahoma next fall will be the first meeting of these two teams since that 1947 Gator Bowl.

ACADEMIC-ALL-AMERICAS

When 1967 co-captain Steve Warren was voted Academic All-America last fall, he joined Wolfpack greats Roman Gabriel (1960) and Joe Scarpati (1963) on this list. Linemen Bill Kearick and Dennis Kroll have also received this award.

STATE vs CAROLINA

State had played arch-rival Carolina six times before finally holding them to an 11-11 tie in 1899. The Raleigh team did not gain a victory until 1920, when UNC went down 13-3.

FIRST GAME

State won its first football game 14-6 over Raleigh Academy in 1892. That was the only game played that year by the A & M eleven coached by Bart Gatling.

Punt Return

The record for the longest punt return by an N. C. State player is shared by Alex Webster, who returned one 86 yds. against Wake Forest in 1951, and by Jack Whitley, who got his 86-yarder against South Carolina in 1968. Both men scored.

Offense

When N. C. State's 1968 Wolfpack gained 3,060 yards total offense last fall it bettered the old school mark of 2,874 yards set in 1966 by 186 yards.

Penn State

When N. C. State meets Penn State in a nationally televised game Nov. 29, it will mark the seventh time the two teams have met. The Wolfpack has yet to win.
