Request met

Talley gives black students first floor Print Shop

by Jean Jackson

The decision to allow black students access to the first floor of the print shop for the development of a cultural center was made official Monday in a letter from Banks C. Talley, Dean of Student Affairs.

The letter addressed to Don Bell, president of the Society of Afro-American Culture (SAAC), stated the proposals Bell had submitted concerning the development of the center were "ambitious and deserving of an opportunity to succeed."

Talley outlined his intention to request assistance of Wilbert Johnson, Assistant Program Director of the University Student Center with the belief that Johnson would be helpful in establishing and maintaining a visible and beneficial program of cultural and social activities available to the entire campus community.

In addition, Talley stated he hoped to locate and employ a black graduate student to "serve...as coordinator for academic aid programs to be operated from the Center."

In the letter, Talley requested the designation of a committee consisting of members from present organizations of black students to work with Johnson in planning and scheduling activities. Talley also recommended to Bell that a second committee be organized to work on the tutorial program with W.F. Weston of the Counseling Center.

When contacted for comment, Bell stated, "I am pleased. The basic plans we outlined have been covered."

COMMENTING ON THE FACT that present university staff members would be employed rather than hiring a coordinator for activities, Bell said, "We thought someone would be hired...but I think this (the use of staff officials) can work effectively."

Prior to the release of Talley's letter, Bell met Monday afternoon with Chancellor Caldwell to discuss the allocation of the Print Shop. Bell, along with several other students went before the chancellor to discuss what action has taken place to alleviate certain problems they considered to be of great concern to students.

The topics discussed in the meeting were the allocation of the Print Shop to black students, a requested decrease in parking decal prices, the assurance to students in dorms that they will have the same privacy as other Raleigh citizens, and a requested 10% decrease in Students Supply Stores prices for textbooks and other course-related materials.

Among those at the meeting with the chancellor were Bell, speaking for the request of the Print Shop for black students, Eric Weber and Rick Eudy, speaking on the issue of privacy for dorm residents, and Student Body President T.C. Carroll, speaking on the requested decrease in prices of parking decals and textbooks.

Originally, Carroll had presented the set of requests to the chancellor and issued a deadline of March 11 for some action to have taken on each of the points of concern. In response, the chancellor stated in a letter to Carroll that the deadline had "no relevance" to any of the issues.

WHEN ASKED in the meeting about the progress of the print shop issue, Caldwell said, "the conversations have still been going on."

Caldwell added he thought Bell would be receiving a memorandum from Dean Banks Talley of Student Affairs "very soon," and that he (Bell) would find the contents "very satisfactory." The chancellor did not indicate that the letter would be released immediately following the Monday meeting.

When asked why he did not inform the students at the meeting that a letter would be released so soon, Caldwell said he "didn't know" Talley was planning to release the letter Monday. "I was surprised," he said.

CALDWELL SAID the reason for not telling the students of the decision to give black students access to the Print Shop was the he "didn't want to pinpoint Dean Talley."

The Monday meeting included a lengthy discussion on the issue of privacy in the university's dormitories. Weber and Eudy, disturbed over the recent drug raid at Syme Residence Hall, were concerned about the legitimacy of the information that reaches the Raleigh Police Department. They also had questions for the chancellor about possible student

A group of streakers heads through the back door of Lee during the first streak, about two weeks ago. Another streak is planned for tomorrow night, when a group of "nekkid runners" will attempt to break the world record. The university will make no move to interfere, so long as the runners stay on campus.

Co-op, 'four requests' reports given to senate

by Howard Barnett

The Student Senate, in their Monday meeting, listened to reports from Student Body President T.C. Carroll and various committees, as well as considering new bills by title only, before the meeting was cut short by a call for quorum. Of the 37 members needed, only 27 were present.

Carroll yielded the floor twice during his report for reports from Susan Kirks, who had been working on the study for the food co-op, and to Eric Weber and Rick Eudy who were working on the four requests given to Chancellor John Caldwell in February.

KIRKS REPORTED that she had done "extensive research" since November, and that, at present, the type of co-op the majority of the students want would be in violation of the Umstead Act.

"We circulated a survey to a limited number of students, and the results were figured on a pro rata basis," said Kirks. "We sent out 375 surveys, of which 195 were returned. That's about 52%."

This, according to Kirks, corresponded to about 7,800 students in the university community. "The surveys were sent to sample groups from off campus, on campus, and other groups of people," said Kirks. She also stated that, on the basis of the replies, about 6,000 university students could be expected to participate in a program if one were started.

"The type of co-op they wanted was the commissary type, rather than the type where you place bulk orders and then wait for a week to have the groceries delivered," added Kirks.

SHE ALSO STATED that, according to her figures, about 400 to 450 people would be needed to start the program off, at about $3 per membership. "At the present time, though, the type of operation the students want would be in violation of the Umstead Act. It would be in violation if we used part of the Print Shop, as we had wanted, because that's on University property, and it would be in violation if we used money from the Senate, also."

Weber and Eudy detailed the recent drug arrests in Syme dorm, and explained how the four issues came together in one group to be presented to the chancellor. "It was coincidental that we came together in the same office at the same time," said Weber. "It is not a political ploy, and it is not just the work of one individual," added Eudy. "It's an effort on the part of concerned students trying to get things done by going directly to the administration."

WEBER EXPRESSED during the meeting the fear that the Raleigh police department was employing informers in the dorms, who may or may not be State students. He said that he feels this is an invasion of students' privacy.

Eudy said he felt the meeting with the chancellor "solved nothing," and described it as "disappointing."

"He didn't seem very well informed," said Eudy. "Absolutely nothing was said."

Student Senate President Kathy Black announced at the end of the meeting that meetings would be every Wednesday for four weeks, starting today, and urged all senators to inform their colleagues of the time for the next meeting.

UNC Board

State's desegregation plan approved

by George Pantan

The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina Friday approved racial desegregation guidelines that would increase the black enrollment at State from 350 to over 500 by 1977.

The increase would be from 2.4 to 3.4 per cent of the total enrollment. This falls short of the Health Education and Welfare recommended guidelines of a black enrollment of 10 per cent.

The Board approved racial desegregation guidelines for all state-supported universities at their meeting in Chapel Hill. In the policy the number of black student at the predominantly white institutions would increase from the present 3.7 per cent to 5.1 per cent of the total enrollment by 1977.

The number of white students at the five predominantly black schools would increase from 5.9 percent to 11.1 percent by 1977.

HEW REJECTED an earlier UNC desegregation plan as "too vague" and contended that the black students institutions should have a white enrollment of 30 per cent and there should be a "significant increase" in black enrollment at the predominantly white schools.

In their reply to HEW, the Board rejected the 30-10 quota ratio, stating that "variations ought to be expected and accepted as unavoidable because of geographic considerations, varying institutional characteristics and the extend of the 'integration foundation' on which the particular institution is building."

Dean of Student Affairs Banks Talley said the specific goals for State were determined at the UNC general administration level. The goal was knowledge, no complaint had been filed with the security office during the previous streaks.

Poole stressed the fact that the Raleigh police department has the authority to come onto the campus any time they feel it necessary, but added, "They have agreed with us to stay off the campus until they are called on."

"I think the thing to stress is that streaking is good-natured fun," said Poole, "and this university, as well as many others, has sort of looked upon it in that regard as long as it is confined locally within the university late at night, then really, it only involves students... but if they do leave the university confines, they will be subject to arrest for indecent exposure."

Streakers may be arrested off campus

by Howard Barnett

Streakers who stray onto Hillsborough Street, Western Boulevard, or Pullen Road may be subject to arrest by Raleigh Police for indecent exposure, according to Dean of Student Development John Poole.

This is the policy on streaking taken by the Raleigh police department. In addition, those who come close enough to be seen from those streets will be subject to the same penalties.

"Anyone streaking within the confines of the university will be the concern of the university and the security office, however," said Poole. "Students streaking on campus will not be arrested by campus security unless someone files a formal complaint."

Poole added, however, that, to his arrived at by present enrollment, demographic studies of the population, and programs offered at the institution.

He noted, "black students are not inclined towards the hard sciences but more towards the liberal arts." This fact is one reason for the relatively small projected black enrollment increase for State.

WE THINK THERE will be no problem of reaching the goal. Things look encouraging this year. A couple of hundred prospective black students will be up for the Pan African Festival, but how many will actually come in the fall is another question," Talley said.

He also noted that a 10 per cent black enrollment at State or Carolina is unrealistic at the present time. A & T, one of the largest predominantly black universities in the country, has

Vivian Blaine stars in 'Twigs'

Twigs, a new play written by George Furth, the author of the award-winning musical comedy Company, will be presented in Stewart Theatre next Sunday for two performances at 2 and 8 p.m.

The play introduces us to four different women of a loosely knit family. All four women will be played by Vivian Blaine, veteran actress of the New York stage, television and motion pictures. She will be recreating the role that won the Tony Award for Sada Thompson.

VIVIAN BLAINE burst upon the theatrical scene with her unforgettable portrayal of Adelaide in the Broadway production of Gypsy and Dolls, repeating the role in London and in the movie version. Recently, Miss Blaine toured in a revival of Light Up the Sky, and starred as Hortense in a national company of Zorba. Miss Blaine co-starred with Larry Kent on Broadway on Hal Prince's award-winning musical, Company, and repeated the role in stock. She recently toured in Follies.

Twigs is poignant as well as hilariously funny. The audience visits four households during the day before Thanksgiving. The first three scenes concern three middle-aged sisters individually. The last scene deals with their mother, the tree from which the "twigs" have sprung. The four ladies have much in common. They are all cheerful, plucky and not overly bright women who like to talk, but whose circumstances are quite different from one another.

THE DIRECTOR employs some brilliant techniques enabling the audience to discover certain family traits in each of the ladies, and also makes clever use of time during the brief scene changes. Between each sequence and while the stage is being changed, the audience is treated to "being there" while Miss Blaine is transformed from being one member of the family to becoming another. As the curtain closes on each scene, Miss Blaine is rushed to a special area of the stage, where, in full view of the audience, a barrage of wardrobe personnel, hairdressers and make-up men converge on her to make the next transformation.

For information and reservations, call the Stewart Theatre Box Office, 737-3105. Student tickets are $3 and $2.

Mu Beta Psi sponsors 'Springfest'

by Lyn Walls

Come and celebrate the arrival of spring at the Springfest!

Springfest, a music and beer festival, will be held Friday, March 15, at 7 p.m. in the University Student Center Snack Bar. The festival will be celebrated with constant beer and entertainment.

SPRINGFEST IS brought to N. C. State by Mu Beta Psi, the university's music fraternity and the group that sponsored the well received Octoberfest last fall.

A variety of entertainment, which includes rock, bluegrass, jazz, boogie, and folk music, will be given by professional musicians and will provide "something for everyone."

Tony Matteraza is the featured vocalist in a rock and roll group and will be backed up by a three piece horn section. Roanoke Rapid's Danny Tickle will "boogie" with the guitar, while the Willis Wahoo Revue will change the pace with contemporary bluegrass.

THE BLUEGRASS group is comprised of Billy Willis on lead guitar, Gary Bailey on bass, Stan Brown on banjo, Gary Mitchell on rhythm guitar and Lewis Allen on the mandolin. All are N. C. State students with the exception of Allen, who attends UNC-CH.

Also performing will be Mike White and John Dillinger, who play regularly at the Cafe Deja Vu, and Dave Seaford, one of the Wolfpack cheerleaders.

Tickets may be purchased at the Student Center Box Office or from a brother of Mu Beta Psi for $1.75. Tickets will also be available at the door for $2.00. A ticket entitles the holder to all the beer he or she can drink and an evening of good music. Cokes and snacks will be on sale at reduced rates for those who wish to purchase them.

The doors will open at 7:00, and the music will begin at 8:00. Come celebrate!

Physical Education Department will offer proficiency testing

If you are looking for a way to be exempted from required physical education courses and thus increase your opportunities to select other courses, the Physical Education Department Proficiency Testing may offer what you are searching for.

THE TESTING is administered once each semester in the following sports: badminton, body mechanics, fencing, handball, modern dance, squash, tennis, swimming, weight training, and track and field.

The registration for this semester begins Monday through Friday, March 18-20, students may register from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Carmichael Gymnasium main office. Examinations, of which the first stage will be written, will be given beginning Monday, March 25 through March 28, at 7 p.m. in Room 213 of Carmichael Gym.

Students who make at least 85 percent on the written section must then take the skills test. The final phase will be performance testing which normally will follow the skills test. Some sports will require game participation.

Proficiency testing will be administered only to students who are currently enrolled in physical education.

A STUDENT MAY not take scheduled tests for exemption in an activity which he is currently enrolled in. No academic credit or grade will be given for passing a proficiency test nor is there any penalty for failing the testing.

Caldwell suggests 'proper channels'

informers living in residence halls strictly for student surveillance.

Caldwell stated that a meeting had been held with the Raleigh Chief of Police. He assured Weber and Eudy that all the warrants served "have... been in perfect order" and continued by saying "they (the police) do not practice entrapment."

Eudy, concerned about the possibility that some students might be selling drugs and also turning in names to the police, asked the chancellor if students residing in dormitories were being paid as informers.

CALDWELL REPLIED, "I wouldn't be surprised," and added he would have "no objection" to informers who were going after pushers.

Those attending the meeting then discussed the subject of rates for parking decals. The chancellor was asked what progress had been made in this area.

Caldwell stated, "I didn't expect to be any further along. I'll be getting recommendations from the Parking and Traffic Committee."

"I've been pushing things along... (and) I have nothing else to report to you," he said.

Carroll asked the chancellor if the new parking rates for next year would be higher or lower.

Caldwell answered by saying, "I don't know. It might be up or down for different areas. I'd be surprised if there weren't some reductions and some increases."

THE CHANCELLOR then suggested that Carroll take his requests to the Parking and Traffic Committee and employ the "proper channels" in having the proposal acted upon.

Caldwell concluded discussion on the parking rates saying, "The goal is not just lower rates. I hope it would be one of the by-products."

The group then briefly discussed the request made that Students Supply Stores prices on textbooks be lowered. Caldwell felt that the university was "not in the position to act now" because of the present lawsuit between the university and DJ's Bookstore.

Caldwell did indicate that he was "not prepared to recommend a 10% decrease" in textbook prices because this money is used for financial aid scholarships. Although not in favor of the decrease, Caldwell did indicate that he wished to change the percentage of bookstore profits that goes to athletic scholarships and see that the funds went to financial aid scholarships for black students.

AT THE CONCLUSION of the meeting, Eudy asked the chancellor if any action could be expected to come from the meeting.

Caldwell said that he "understood their position... (and) I'm anxious for faster answers," adding, "I don't want to make any promises on when we'll act."

The chancellor assured those at the meeting that the administration would use their "very best and earnest use of the machinery of this university" to work on the requests.

Integration: 'a long, drawn-out affair'

an enrollment in the area of 4,000. "There are not enough black students to go around for State and Carolina to have several thousand black students. Certainly the black institutions do not want to fold up. I think everybody has decided that it is a long drawn out affair," he said.

John Sanders, UNC vice president, told the Board that the number of black students attending predominantly white and the number of whites attending black universities should be about double by 1977.

He said, "If we start out on the premise of doubling the white enrollment in black institutions and vice versa, a question comes, 'where will the black students come from?'" educators fear that the plan threatens the continued black identity of their schools and might result in a shift of the best black faculty and students to the predominantly white schools.

SANDERS SAID many black

Under the plan the percentage of non-black students would increase at the five predominantly black schools as follows: Elizabeth City State, 717 to 14.4; Fayetteville State 3.5 to 6.8; N.C. A & T, 5.4 to 10.2; N.C. Central, 8.0 to 14.9; Winston-Salem State, 3.6 to 6.9.

Under the plan the percentage of black students would increase the 11 predominantly white schools as follows: Appalachian State, 1.7 to 2.4;

East Carolina 3.4 to 4.7; N.C. School of the Arts, 7.9 to 10.9; N.C. State, 2.4 to 3.4; Pembroke State, 3.3 to 4.7; UNC-Asheville, 2.9 to 4.1; UNC-Charlotte, 5.2 to 7.2; UNC-Chapel Hill, 5.1 to 7.1; UNC-Greensboro, 4.8 to 6.7; UNC-Wilmington, 3.1 to 4.4; Western Carolina, 2.1 to 2.9.

news in brief

The "President and the Congress in the 70's" symposium continues this evening with the presentation of the sixth speaker in the series.

EBNER'S LECTURE will deal with the executive viewpoint of impoundment in contrast to the legislative viewpoint given by Senator Sam Ervin last month.

Tonight's lecture begins at 8 in the Ballroom of the University Student Center. It will be re-broadcast tomorrow night at 7:15 over WKNC-FM. A reception in the North Gallery will follow the speech. The public is invited.

A brickyard rally will be held today at noon. It will be highlighted by speeches from several students who will talk on the three remaining issues of Student Body President T.C. Carroll's four-point proposal.

John Dilday, student chairman of the Parking and Traffic Committee and member of the Campus Stores Advisory Committee will speak on the request for decreases in parking rates and textbook prices.

The "invasion of privacy" issue will be discussed by Rick Eudy and Eric Weber.

T.C. Carroll, Mark Templeton, and Al Parnell will also be featured speakers. The audience will be invited to speak.

An All-Candidates meeting will be held at 5:30 this afternoon in the ballroom of the Student Center.

All candidates wishing to have their names on the March 20 ballot must be in attendance at the meeting or send an alternate. Names will be drawn to determine the order on the ballot.

Any group wishing to run the ballot boxes for the election and run-off (March 20 and 27) are asked to submit a bid to the Student Government office by 4pm Monday.

The Student Center Board of Directors will not meet tonight as originally scheduled. The meeting will be held next Monday evening. Time and place will be announced, or may be obtained from Brenda Harrison.

Position papers and ad regulations

Position papers for the offices of Student Body President, Student Senate President, Student Center President, and Student Body Treasurer will be published beginning Monday, March 18. Publication will be by office, in the order listed above.

Statements must not exceed 300 words in length, and must be typewritten and double-spaced. Final deadline is 5 p.m., Friday, March 15.

There will be no exceptions to the above regulations. Violations may result in non-publication.

Political advertisements for Friday's edition of the Technician are due at 5 p.m. today. Rates are $1.70 per column inch, must be prepaid, and can be submitted at room 3134 of the Student Center. Minimum four column inches. Our staff will compose all ads.

Solzhenitsyn, man of strong morals

Since his election to the U. S. Senate in 1972, Jesse Helms' ideologies and ours have seldom concurred. But recently, North Carolina's junior senator has made a proposal that we are very much in favor of. Helms has introduced a resolution to confer honorary citizenship to exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who was expelled from his native country last month following the publication of The Gulag Archipelago, which criticizes the Soviet Union's system of criminal justice.

Presently in Zurich, Switzerland, Solzhenitsyn is continuing his struggle to bring about changes in the governmental operations of the Soviet Union, which restricts basic individual freedoms that form the foundation of our democratic form of government. Solzhenitsyn and other Russian dissidents have continually been the targets of Communist pressure for their stand supporting a lessening of government repression. It is a confrontation that has caught the world's attention, with Solzhenitsyn emerging as somewhat of a martyr for his cause.

In a letter to Helms, the Soviet writer said he was "deeply touched" by the senator's proposal, but declined to visit here because he wished to concentrate on his work. It is regrettable that Solzhenitsyn cannot make the trip here, but it serves to underwrite his announced intentions of carrying the fight to his expellers. The chain of events leading to his expulsion have made Solzhenitsyn a global celebrity, but his refusal to yield to the accompanying pressures, as his Soviet detractors had hoped he would, shows him to be a man of strong moral fibre.

Sen. Helms is to be commended for his initiative in this matter. Taking a stand is nothing new to him, as his record as editorial director of television station WRAL-TV shows. Although we have disagreed with his position many times in the past, we wish to pay him our respect in this situation for his foresight in the Solzhenitsyn case. Rarely has honorary citizenship been proposed to an individual throughout the history of our nation, and only two, the Marquis de Lafayette and Winston Churchill, have actually been designated as honorary Americans. And rarely is the situation when, instead of the award honoring the man, the man honors the award. Such was the case with Lafayette and Churchill, and we feel that such would be the case with Solzhenitsyn as well.

New provost first-rate

With the approval of Dr. Nash Winstead to replace Dr. Harry Kelly as provost and vice-chancellor for the University, State's academic future appears to be in good hands. Moreover, the transitional period between the changing of duties for Winstead should be rather minimal since he has been closely associated with Kelly for several years while serving as associate provost. Winstead has an intimate knowledge of the administration's functions, and this will benefit the University as well during this transition.

Winstead was chosen from over 100 applicants by the selection committee, which began looking for a replacement last fall. This, then, demonstrates what the academic community thinks of Winstead, to select him over all these applicants. His qualifications, plus his familiarity with University personnel, make him a first-rate candidate for the position.

And what is more refreshing to know is that Winstead will take a realistic approach to the related problems now facing the University. Citing a "limitation of resources," Winstead hopes to help State move in "new directions." Certainly, as a large segment of Raleigh, the University faces many of the same problems confronting all establishments in the city. And with a wide range of various programs that take on international importance, the University is also confronted with solving situations on a global scale. In his work with the faculty and students, Winstead will be called upon to coordinate the workings of the University, and such a task will be more difficult than ever.

As for Kelly, he will terminate 12 years of service to State as of June 30. Since his arrival in 1962, Kelley has played an integral part in the University's dynamic growth, which can be seen in State's record enrollment last fall. We wish him well in his retirement, and continued best wishes.

State is fortunate to have a man of Winstead's calibre to replace Kelly. He is willing to accept the challenges that now face him. We can only hope that he keeps aloft the torch handed to him by his predecessor, and is able to maintain the reputation the University now has among her sister institutions.

Winstead's main goal is simplistic and to the point: "...I hope we can work together and make this University a better one by the time I leave than it was when I got here..." Such a task is all we can ask for.

Loophole hunting

In case you missed it . . .

Tuesday morning we found that the following note had been delivered to the Technician office:

"You might find interest in St. Mark 14, Verses 51-52.

Sincerely, A Distinguished Onlooker."

Scurrying for a Bible, we discovered that the verses referred to say the following:

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him:

52 And he left the cloth, and fled from them naked.

Seems that the sport of streaking is not the revolutionary new idea that we college students might think.

Nixon's recent tax exemptions for Presidential Papers...

Nixon sets poor example

The revelation of President Nixon's income taxes has stirred controversy for quite a while, and with the deadline for filing taxes fast approaching, Internal Revenue officials are concerned as to how the President's actions are going to affect the lowly taxpayer. They have a right to be concerned. If the President can take advantage of tax loopholes, why can't the ordinary citizen? It's not fair.

The big problem here is that a significant amount of revenues ordinarily turned in to the government may be missing this year, because Americans are going to take a hard look at deduction policies, according to IRS officials. A congressman on the House Ways and Means Committee estimates that revenues could be reduced by $25 billion, or 10 per cent of the annual intake. If this actually occurs, the man to thank for this is Nixon. He set the precedent in his much publicized tax returns from 1969-1972, in which he paid about $6,000 for $800,000 income.

Although IRS officials expressed confidence in the morality of the taxpayers, there is still the fear that the President's tax returns could have a damaging effect on the government's receipts from now on. Citizens have every right to take advantage of tax laws for their own benefit. With the number of high-ranking officials among this clever group, it could almost be called "the American way."

Take the case of former vice president Spiro Agnew. Here is a man who was convicted of federal income tax evasion in 1967, while serving as governor of Maryland. Now he is still in the limelight, golfing or playing tennis with his Republican comrades, and writing a novel to be published by Playboy Enterprises. He walks the streets a free man, even though with his Secret Service protection discontinued, he may at times walk alone. What does this look like to the average taxpayer who is burdened with the responsibility of just trying to make ends meet? What else could it look like besides preferential treatment for the high-ranking official?

Actions such as these, along with Nixon's huge deductions for donating his vice presidential papers to the National Archives, can set a dangerous precedent. These officials seem to forget that, despite their lavish income compared to that of the majority of their constituents, they were elected to serve the people. Along with their responsibility go traditional benefits to be sure, but when these officials take advantage of tax loopholes at the expense of the American citizenry, something is going to suffer. Whether they like it or not, our elected officials set examples for the public to follow. They have a choice—they can operate in a way that will fill their own coffers, or they can operate in the best interests of the people. Whatever happens as a result, our officials better realize that they were primarily responsible.

Friars contest Wolfpack in regionals

by Ken Lloyd

After State and Providence lock horns tomorrow night in the second game of the Eastern Regionals in Reynolds Coliseum, the remainder of tournament could well be anti-climatic.

The Wolfpack and the Friars, ranked first and eighth in the nation, appear to be the class of the field, which also includes Pittsburgh and Furman. While both the Panthers and the Paladins carved out the best records in each school's history, they don't look like they have enough horses to keep up with the former two.

IF COMPARATIVE scores mean anything, then Pitt and Furman are in for a rough stay. State beat Furman 111-91 in Charlotte a month ago, Furman beat South Carolina 76-67 last Saturday in the first round of the regionals, while South Carolina topped Pittsburgh 67-50 during the regular season.

Providence, after going 27-4 last season, will be making its second straight trip to the Eastern Regionals. Last year in Charlotte, the Friars of Coach Dave Gavitt downed Maryland on the way to national finals, where they eventually lost to Memphis State and Indiana.

That team was led by a trio of bonafide all-stars—Ernie DiGrgorio, Marvin Barnes, and Kevin Stacom. Ernie D. has since taken his fancy passes to the NBA, but Barnes and Stacom are still around tormenting opponents for 25 wins against three losses.

BARNES A CONSENSUS All-American this season, is considered by many to be the best rebounder in the country. He says confidently, "when I get going, there's nothing I can't do on the court and no one can stop me."

It looks like State's Tommy Burleson, the hero of the ACC tournament, will be confronted with still another challenge.

Stacom is a 6-5, 185 pro-type guard who makes up for his lack of brawn with stamina and speed. Scouts have said he will be a better pro than a college player because of the way he moves without the ball.

The contest will also be a reunion of sorts for Barnes, Stacom, Burleson, and David Thompson. All were instrumental in the United States' championship in last summer's World University Games.

TOMORROW night's first game could shape up as a defensive battle since both coaches, Buzz Ridl of Pitt and Joe Williams of Furman, credited defense for their first round victories.

Pitt's "amoeba" defense proved to be too much for St.

Joseph while Furman came from behind to stymie state rival South Carolina last Saturday.

Thus far, the 17th ranked Panthers have streaked to a 24-3 record and at one time had the longest winning skein in the nation. But the Pitt schedule has been ridiculed by some as too easy, with the losses coming to West Virginia, Penn State, and South Carolina.

EVEN THOUGH Pitt is a quick, deep, and unselfish bunch of players who love to pass the ball around and play sticky defense, they may be hurting in the regionals because they have a "no-center offense" since their pivotman runs only 6-7.

"A good, big center could kill us," observed Billy Knight, Pitt's top scorer, recently. That could be a bad omen for the Panthers since the other three teams all have big, dominating centers.

Knight, a 6-6½, second team All-American, leads the Pitt attack but he reportedly has been in a slump as of late. Without him at top form, the Panthers could be in trouble.

IN RACING to a 22-7 overall record, Furman ran into some trouble along the way. While dominating the Southern Conference during the regular season, the Purple Paladins were hard pressed in the conference tourney before turning back Richmond by two points. They also lost by terribly lopsided margins to both State and Carolina in the North-South doubleheaders.

Furman has a big front line with 7-1 Fessor "Moose" Leonard, 6-9 Clyde Mayes and 6-6 Craig Lynch. Mayes sparked the upset win over South Carolina by ramming home 21 points while freshman guard Bruce Grimm pumped in 19.

Williams says "our game is a pressure man-to-man with a strong inside game..."

The first game will get underway tomorrow night at 7 with the second following at 9.

McNutt

Freshman State wrestler advances to NCAA's

by Steve Wheeler

State's wrestling team placed in a disappointing fifth spot in the ACC wrestling championships two weeks back. Virginia uncrowned Maryland, who had never lost a title in 20 years, for first spot. Duke placed Third, and Carolina was fourth.

For the second time in 21 years, all five competing teams won individual championships. State's Paul McNutt was the only victor for the Pack. He will now enter the NCAA Championships at Ames, Iowa along with 35 other champs Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

"MY CHANCES of winning the NCAA championship are very slim," said the 142-pound grappler. "But, I am real happy the progress I've made my freshman season."

McNutt won the ACC Championship under very adverse conditions. He was coming off a very painful back injury that allowed him to wrestle only four times during the season. However, McNutt was successful in all four of those matches.

"I've had this back ailment since birth," he explained about his injury. "It has to do with the cartilage between the vertebrae in the lumbar section. It gave me trouble even in my high school days."

MCNUTT BEGAN his wrestling career in junior high in Dresher, Pennsylvania as a seventh grader. He has progressed rapidly since then. Last year he placed third in the Pennsylvania State Wrestling Tournament, one of the toughest in the nation.

"I was really surprised at the higher competition in the high schools in Pennsylvania than the interscholastic wrestling here in North Carolina," commented McNutt.

"They have just started wrestling here in the last four or five years," he continued, "while we have been wrestling for as long as I can remember. But, looking at this year's high school tourney here, I can see it is progressing very fast."

McNutt is majoring in sociology and anthropology, but he says this is subject to change any time.

IN HIS SPARE time, the freshman likes to let his thoughts flow from pen onto paper and the ruggedness of mountain adventure.

"I just love creative writing," he said. "I like to sit down and express my feelings. And as for mountain climbing, I've been to Table Rock (near Linville Gorge) and climbed it several times."

But mountain climbing at Table Rock will be far from McNutt's thoughts for the next few days as he attempts another goal — the NCAA wrestling championships.

Providence center Marvin Barnes (13) participated in the University World Games last summer. He is currently the nation's leading rebounder with over 18 rebounds per game and is averaging 22 points per game.

Providence guard Kevin Stacom (9) is averaging 22 points per game this year. The Friars will play State tomorrow night at 9 in the Eastern Regionals in Reynolds Coliseum.

GRAND OPENING

Thank you for the very good support we have received from y'all over the past two and one half years. Due to your undying support we have expanded our facilities here in Raleigh and now have 50% more demonstration area. What this means for you, our cherished customers, is many things, but to mention just a few:

- More Selection. We have had trouble trying to display all the units we carry. Now they will all be out for your inspection: to hear, to see, and to operate.
- Less crowding. When you listen to a system in your own home, you lie back and listen. You could not do that before, but now you can. There will be less confusion between all the systems. Pull up one of our comfortable chairs and have one of our competent salesmen operate any system You want to hear.

- Privacy. Now that we have three separate demonstration areas, you will not be bothered by other shoppers or salesmen. You can select your system without the intrusion of others.
- Four Channel. We now have a good sized area set up to demonstrate the latest developments in sound for your listening room: four channel.

WIN THIS EXCITING NEW RECEIVER ...A $299.95 YAMAHA CR 400

In one of our rare give-aways you may win the most exciting new receiver to hit the market in many years. Come by sometime this week and look it over. We suggest you do so very carefully because to win it you must estimate the total number of parts built into it. That's right, including screws, wires, transistors, knobs, etc. We know how many there are, the closest estimator will win it. (In case of a tie we'll give each winner a unit.)

Come by any time this week to try and win.

INTERESTING & INFORMATIVE SEMINARS

On this special occasion we have engaged the services of two very important men in the field of audio. They are Jimmy Carroll and Stu Greenberg. Mr. Carroll, of McIntosh Labs will be lecturing on the loudspeaker and its importance in your system. Mr. Greenberg, now representing Yamaha, will help those of you who want to learn what to look for when trying to evaluate or purchase a receiver, amplifier or tuner for a stereo system. Both men have spent many years with audio products, and interestingly enough, each of them worked with the once famous Fisher Company.

Both Mr. Carroll and Mr. Greenberg will be on hand during our hours of operation Thursday and Friday to answer your every question about audio.
