Elections

Constitution, Senate and Judicial seats up for vote today

Elections are being held today for approval of the new Student Center Constitution and for certain freshman, sophomore and graduate seats in the Student Senate and the Judicial Board.

Polls are open from 8am to 4pm in the following locations:

- (1) Inside the Erdahl-Cloyd Annex
- (2) Entrance to Student Supply Stores tunnel
- (3) Entrance to Coliseum tunnel
- (4) Bragaw Snack Bar
- (5) First floor of the Student Center
- (6) Syme Snack Bar

Everyone is eligible to vote for the Student Center Constitution.

FRESHMAN AND GRADUATE Students can vote for candidates in their respective schools in the Senate and Judicial Board seats.

Write-ins are acceptable, but their election to an office will be subject to certification by the Judicial and Elections Board.

In the Judicial Board race, seats are open for freshmen and graduate students. Church Maxwell is the only candidate running in the freshman race. A blank is provided to write in the other candidate.

GRADUATE STUDENTS running for judicial seats are Alan Price, Gary Parker, Larry Cogburn, and Steve Lacy.

Freshmen candidates from the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences are Donna Crocker, Curtis Small, Iris Clontz, Bill Jones, Doug Insch, Pam Jones, John Hollard, Debbie DeMaria, Margaret Reid, and Sally Aurand. Vote for two.

In the School of Design senatorial race, all classes are eligible to vote for the two open seats. Those running are Glen Morgan, Jim McDaniel, Gary Wolf, Michael Rickenbacker, Robert McCarter, Dell Monroe, Cathy Pernel, and Tim Cathey.

IN THE SCHOOL of Education, freshmen and sophomores are eligible to vote. Of the two seats open, only Michael Berry has filed. A blank is provided for another candidate's name.

For the freshman engineering senatorial race, two seats are open. Running for those seats are Ron Klutz, Don Scoggin, Frank Sulton, Charles Lord, Malcolm McSynden, Jack Dorety, Robert Eure, Reid Maness, Billy Fenner, John Henry Sullivan, and Scott Bright.

Freshmen in the Forest Resources senate race are Larry Poe, Mike Davis, Jill Belshan, Chris Peterson, and Steve Gaines. Only one seat is open.

Three senate seats are vacant in the Liberal Arts senate race. Freshmen are Fred Comer, Mary White, Bill Shefte, Bill Mueller, Andy Smith, Bob Manuel, Jan Wilson, Cliff Bailey.

In the School of Physical and Mathematical Sciences, one seat is open, and only Karen Denbraven has filed for the vacancy.

ONE SEAT is open for a freshman or sophomore textile senator. Rick Hallman, Gary Everette Gourley, and Steven R. Blanks are in the running.

Ten seats are open for Graduate School senators. Al Burkart, Charles Case, Charles Malons, Carroll Melton, Fred Pilkinton, Sue Potter, Kay Shearin, Walter Strickland, and Tim Tazioli have filed.

Kelly plans retirement; Provost search begins

by Kathie Easter
Staff Writer

A special committee is now in the process of accepting recommendations and nominations for the office of Provost and Vice Chancellor. Dr. Harry Kelly, who has served as Provost since July 1, 1962, will retire June 30, 1974.

"This is a very important and very sensitive role," said Dean J. A. Rigney, Chairman of the Search Committee. "It is an office which affects everybody involved with the University and we are very eager to be sure that we get a good person in that position."

RIGNEY SAID that the committee, which has had one organizational meeting, is advertising nationally as well as writing letters to appropriate people. "It would be fine if we could find the appropriate person on campus. We are asking each school and every section of the University, including students, to give us their ideas and recommendations," said Rigney.

Outlining the functions of the Provost, Rigney emphasized that he is "the main administrative official in charge of academic projects within the University. All of the school deans report to him on matters pertinent to any academic program we have."

"The Provost has so much influence over the general orientation of the University that one of the things we tried to establish at our first meeting was what role this university played in the state of North Carolina," said Rigney. "The major thrust of this University is in the technical concerns. Not that we are downgrading liberal arts, but we would like to find someone who understands that role for a university."

OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES of the Provost include all budgets for the various schools and all promotions and appointments of academic staff. He is also responsible for seeing that the University complies with governmental regulations about discrimination. In addition to these duties, some of the units of the University for which he is responsible include the library, the computer center, and the University Studies Program.

The Chancellor has requested that the committee finish its work by the end of March.

Students must remove cars from Pullen

Due to extensive renovations which were begun recently in Pullen Park, students will not be allowed to park in the gravel parking lots. Frank Evans, head of the Raleigh Recreation Department, emphasized that although no cars would be towed, he would like all cars removed as soon as possible.

"There are Students who keep their cars stored in Pullen Park for days or even weeks, and we know that," he said. "We don't want to tow anybody because that would mess them up as far as money is concerned, and we don't want that."

MAJOR RENOVATIONS will get underway soon and room must be made for heavy equipment. Also, the gravel in the parking lot will be collected to fill in other spaces.

$800 waits for those who prove residency

by Nell Perry
Staff Writer

In-state? Out-of-state? The difference is about $800.

A student applying for a change in residency status for tuition purposes is faced with such indecisions as he awaits the answer from the Admissions Office.

And if he doesn't like the decision of the Admissions Office, he can appeal his case to the Appeals Committee on Residency headed by Don Solomon, assistant dean of student development.

OF APPROXIMATELY 100 petitions filed with the Admissions Office, less than 30 per cent have received change of status.

No matter how sound a student feels his case may be, he has to rely on how he presents the evidence. In the long run he is at the mercy of the committee.

John Thomasson, a 27-year-old native of Kentucky, has lived with his wife in North Carolina for a year since leaving the National Ocean Survey. He is a graduate student in architecture at State.

CRAIG SAMPSON, a Virginia native, has lived and worked in North Carolina with his wife for two years which includes paying taxes and rent. He is a senior in Industrial Arts.

Robert Godfrey, a senior in pre-dentistry, has lived with his family in North Carolina for four years (two with the military at Jacksonville). His wife is employed here. He is a native of New Jersey.

THE APPEAL IN each of these cases was turned down because (1) their parents lived out of North Carolina, (2) there was no indication that they had established roots, and (3) it seemed their coming to North Carolina was only for educational pursuit.

Registering to vote, filing income or property tax returns, registering or licensing a motor vehicle, acquiring a driver's license, owning real property, being employed, maintaining membership in social, fraternal or religious organizations, and maintaining bank accounts are all indications that a student has maintained a domicile in the state.

And he must do the above for 12 months prior to filing for a change in residency status.

IN ALL THREE cases, the students plan to file for residency change again next semester and if necessary, appeal it again to the committee.

Thomasson explained that as far as his coming here only for an education, "I had planned to settle down wherever I went to school, I told the committee. But they just didn't think there was enough proof."

"One thing that hurt me was that because I did not work in North Carolina last year, I didn't file income tax. And I did not register here until March," he continued.

Apathy spreading to Union leaders

Students must be forgiven if they are less than enthusiastic about today's vote on the Constitution of the Union and the University Student Center. The Technician does not wish to encourage apathy on campus, but in all honesty, the vote on the Constitution is of very small consequence to the individual student. The proposed Constitution does not change the function of the Union, it only changes the decision-making processes.

The only people that the Constitution really concerns are those who take an active interest in the Student Center — for the most part, those who are the "hierarchy" of the Student Center. These are the officers who direct the use of the building as well as the officers who do little if anything except collect their salaries, use their free parking spaces, and enjoy the comforts of an office and secretary.

Most students do not ask much of their Student Center. All they want is a convenient place to go to in their leisure time to enjoy a movie or exhibit, or a decent place on campus to eat. They don't ask for a lot of fancy frills. For these reasons, the new Constitution is of little concern and understandably so.

There is little in the Constitution that bears directly on the individual student. For the most part, the changes are mere technicalities. There is some concern for increased student representation on the Board of Directors. Faculty representation is to be reduced to make room for more student members. It is doubtful if this small concession will have any impact on the operation of the Student Center in general. Good intentions are behind the change, but it is really irrelevant to the students.

Another minor change is the recognition of the name "Union" instead of University Student Center. It makes little difference what the building or the organization is called. That in no way alters its function. It would seem that this change was made solely for the sake of change so that it would appear as if a lot of time and work had gone into the innovation.

Another problem with the new Constitution and today's vote on it is that the campus as a whole is uninformed about it. There has been little or no attempt on the part of Student Center officers to educate the students as to the relative merits, if indeed there are any real merits, of the new Constitution as opposed to the old.

The Student Center leadership has been incredibly lax about pressing for passage of the Constitution. If it is that unimportant to them, how can students be expected to take an interest?

Since the people at the Student Center are so apathetic about the new Constitution, the students cannot be blamed for feeling likewise. Perhaps in this case, apathy by students in turning out at the polls is justified.

EDITORIALS

A paper that is entirely the product of the student body becomes at once the official organ through which the thoughts, the activity, and in fact the very life of the campus, is registered. It is the mouthpiece through which the students themselves talk. College life without its journal is blank. Technician, vol. 1, no. 1, February 1, 1920.

Football fever

After only one outing, the Lou Holtz brand of football has already brought rave reviews. Holtz, in his second year at the helm, proved to the doubters Saturday night that last year's success was not just a flash in the pan.

Holtz has brought a whole new psychology to the State campus, and with it, winning football. Coach Holtz' attitude both on and off the field is one that lesser men might be hardpressed to understand.

As is rarely the case, Holtz the man and Holtz the football coach are one and the same. His character does not vary. While some coaches animalize their players in order to produce winning teams, Coach Holtz has taken the opposite approach.

He pushes his players rather than punishing them. He realizes that to gain respect, you have to give respect. It is a rule too often broken in modern society.

Holtz' players produce out of respect and admiration rather than out of fear. He is as decent and honest on the field as he is off the field.

The football fever that is presently enveloping the campus can be directly related to Holtz and his players. There is a confidence on the team that was unheard of several years ago when the Wolfpack was playing a lackluster style of football. Holtz and his team have caused a complete turnaround in student attitudes toward athletics on campus.

Holtz has also displayed an interest in civic affairs; a concern for the community as well as the school. He has managed to integrate the two, and has proved that a coach does not have to be a hermit to be successful.

The image of "dumb jocks" on the football team died the moment Holtz arrived on campus. His personality and enthusiasm for the game was transferred to his players. And, moreover, this enthusiasm was transferred to the student body as a whole.

Saturday night's record breaking crowd was concrete evidence on the new football fever that has been generated by Holtz and his charges. Against a non-conference opponent like East Carolina, such a crowd would have been unheard of in the past.

There were those who laughed when Holtz first arrived on the State campus from William and Mary. He promised a dynamic team and a bowl bid — a lot to promise considering the previous year's record. But Holtz came through with his promises and opened a few eyes in the process.

State fans everywhere owe a debt of gratitude to Holtz for the fine job he has done during his short stay at State. He has made winning a way of life. But he has refused to sacrifice an ounce of character in the process. He remains an outstanding football coach and an equally outstanding person.

Endless woes, red tape

Flunking out—no source of thrills

by Jim Pomeranz
Staff Writer

What ever you do, don't ever drop more than 25 quality points below a 2.0 average, or in layman's terms, 'flunk out.' It's pure hell.

Last May I had the displeasure of receiving my spring grade report with the word "suspended" at the bottom. I knew it was coming, but my parents did not. I decided I should tell them before it came.

Upon hearing the news, my mother asked me, "Well what just exactly does that mean?" After reassuring her I would be in school in the fall after attending summer school, she suggested I be very careful and calm when I told my dad.

The three weeks between spring semester and summer school seemed to pass like a turtle: very slowly. Each day I waited for the mailman to come by the house and then I would run to the mail box to see if it had arrived. It didn't show up for the first week and I began getting lax about checking the box. I still hadn't told Dad.

At the beginning of the second week Dad asked if I would take a business trip with him. With the grade report in mind I hurriedly accepted, and we were off. I knew I had to tell him during the trip but only at the right moment.

We were gone for three days and on the returning final 80 miles I realized I hadn't mentioned a word of it to him. So finally I told him, boy, did he blow his stack. I kept quiet, and after ten minutes or so he finished his loud lecture. Now for the soft approach.

He told me it was my own life and the rest of all that bull that Dads have to tell their sons and daughters after they have made a BIG mistake. I took all that in also without saying a word. I just kept right on driving.

This technique of no rebuttal was taught me by none other than dear old Dad. You see, my sister and I seem to always get into arguments and just as she begins to get quiet I say something back to her, and she begins again. I love it.

Well, my father is just like my sister in that respect. If there is one thing you don't want to do, it's rile him. So, I was pretty quiet for the rest of the trip except for an occasional golf comment or something not on THE SUBJECT.

He didn't say another word about the matter for the next week and a half. Summer school was ready to begin. I was ready to leave home. But a last conversation on the topic of suspension was inevitable.

This time, I had to go into great detail about the consequences and how I planned to get back in school.

I thought I would sign up for "easy A" courses and tried to: HI 216 and PSY 210. The history course, "Latin America Since Independence," was great the first day. An "A" for sure. But when I arrived in PSY 210 the section had been cancelled.

My advisor suggested I take the course he was teaching. It would be a good course, and anyway he needed more students so the university would let him teach it. I signed up: PSY 473. Why was I taking a 400 level course for QPs? I guess for the same reason I took ENG 262 second summer session.

Most of the dorm students in summer school who knew I had flunked wondered the same thing. I was told I should have signed up for bridge, monopoly, cookouts, and poker. In those I could easily have made an "A".

As summer school progressed, everything looked fine and dandy for the fall. That is, for the first couple of weeks. About the middle of the third week I received a check from State for $147. What the hell is the University doing giving me $147?

Then I realized that was the amount one pays for a semester's room rent. I had paid for my room in Alexander for the fall. I called the Housing Rental Office to find out if this was the money.

"Yes, it is," came the reply.

"Why?"
"You were on the suspension list and our orders were to return the money."
That was a hell of a note. I knew there would be a gawdawful number of students on a waiting list (see 'Jumps', page 3)

New constitution

To the Editor:

Today students have the opportunity to vote on a constitution for the Union and the University Student Center of North Carolina State University. I was one of the writers of this constitution and one of its sponsors in last year's Senate. Seeing that no great efforts have been made to publish the changes, I will try to bring forward the facts in this letter.

The first major change is in the name of the student organization that runs the programming in the Center. It was felt that a "Union" was warmer and more human-sounding than a "University Student Center." The name of the building will stay the same. A change in this would have to go to the Board of Trustees of the University.

The second major change is in the composition of the Board of Directors. The addition of another at-large student member along with a reduction of faculty members give the student more representation on the Board of Directors.

The third major area of change is in the selection of officers. Last year, only students who had served six months as chairman of a social program board could run for president. Not even the Vice-President or Secretary of the previous year could run. This seemed overly restrictive. In the new constitution any chairman or member of a programming committee for at least six months or a member of the Board of Directors (including the Union officers) may submit their names to the Board of Directors to be candidates for the office of President. The Board of Directors then must submit between two and four candidates for the students to vote on in the spring elections. Since membership of programming committees is open to all Union members (full-time students who pay the compulsory Student fee), any student who takes time to show an interest in the Union for at least six months may run for President if he can convince the Board of Directors he is capable. In the past the Vice-President and Secretary were chosen by the Board of Directors. Now they would be appointed by the President with the approval of the Board of Directors. All positions are to be announced in the campus media two weeks prior to filling.

I feel the new constitution is a much clearer document than the one we presently use. I urge all students to vote for the constitution in the referendum today.

Calculators

Fellow students,

First of all, allow me to apologize to those of you who came up to Student Government Friday in order to rent a calculator. There was a bit of confusion about the exact date we would begin calculator rentals. We will be renting calculators at the following times:

Monday	8:00-10:00	3:45-5:00
Tuesday	8:00-9:00	2:15-5:00
Wednesday	8:00-10:00	3:45-5:00
Thursday	8:00-9:00	2:15-5:00
Friday	8:00-10:00	1:15-5:00

During these times you may come in and rent a calculator or reserve one for future rental. This means you have first priority on that day provided calculators are available. We are making every effort to keep these machines in circulation.

The calculators will rent for $1 per day, $5.00 a week, or if you prefer $15.00 a month. If a student rents a calculator for ten consecutive months and then pays a $5.00 fee, the calculator becomes his.

It is the thinking of Student Government that this is a much needed service to the students and simultaneously serves three purposes. First of all, calculators are almost a necessity for some courses but are just too expensive for most students to purchase. Now, the student can rent a calculator at a very inexpensive rate. Also, if a student uses the calculator for 10 months, it becomes his. And thirdly, the small profit made on these machines does not go toward padding someone else's pocket but will be used for more student projects and services. We hope to generate between $20,000 and $30,000 by doing a large volume business, while offering the best deal students can find. We hope to offer another line of calculators soon which will include trig and log functions as well as the eight functions now offered.

Before closing, let me say a special word of thanks to Larry Tilley and the Student Government Services Committee for the work and time they have put into this.

Sincerely,
TC

Circle K club

To the Editor:

The Monday September 10 edition of the Technician ran a letter by Miss Ellen Jenkins concerning the lack of a service organization open to college women. Miss Jenkins lamented that the expense of a sorority as well as the fact that APO being limited to college "men" inhibited women from membership in a service organization.

North Carolina State University does have an organization, Circle K, which is open to all students. Circle K International is the largest collegiate service organization in North America. This co-educational club concerns itself with projects on and off the campus. Such projects include tutoring at a local orphanage, carrying out recreational programs in two Raleigh slum areas, concern for the aged and dependent peoples, and many others. There are avenues of service for people of all interests within the framework of Circle K.

Therefore, we invite Miss Jenkins as well as any student to attend the open meeting which will be held September 17 at 6:00 in room 4114 of the Student Center.

Board of directors

To the Editor:

In reference to the new constitution of the University Student Center, the following point, which you conveniently forgot in your article, should be made. Article 4, Section C, Point 3 states:

"All officers of the Student Union are elected by the Board of Directors. A nominating committee of the Board of Directors consisting of all outgoing officers of the Student Union and the outgoing President of Student Government, presents a slate of officers to the Board of Directors. This slate is chosen from all applications received by the president of the Student Union and all applications are presented to the Board of Directors with the Nominating Committee's slate. The Student Union President shall serve as chairman of the nominating committee. . . . A general, campus-wide announcement shall be made two(2) weeks prior to the time when applications for officers and chairmen are due. This announcement shall include general qualifications for the offices in question."

What the above amounts to is that it allows the Board of Directors to perpetuate a particular power clique without regard to the student body. No longer will the students be able to vote for the President of the University Student Center. Probably the most disgusting fact is that the current Board of Directors is trying to get this new constitution passed by the student body without telling them everything about it.

I urge all concerned students to vote NO on the new Student Center constitution.

Al Burkart
Dr. NE

Editor's Note:

The constitution from which Mr. Burkart takes his quotes was one of the preliminary drafts submitted to the Student Senate last spring. It failed to pass the Senate.

Listed below are sections from the final draft passed by the Senate concerning elections of officers for the Union.

Section Three: Subsection C

Point 2. President's Qualifications -- The President shall have served at least six months as a chairman or member of a programming committee or as a member of the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors has the right to waive this and all eligibility requirements except that all officers shall be regularly enrolled students in good standing with the University who have paid the full Union and University Student Center fees.

Point 3. . . . The Board of Directors shall then choose from these nominees between two and four candidates for the office of Union President to be submitted to a vote of the Student Body in the Spring general election.

Point 4. . . . A general, campus-wide announcement shall be made two (2) weeks prior to the time when application for officers and chairmen are due. This announcement shall include general qualifications for the officers in question.

Section Two: Membership

The regular membership is composed of fee paying students, faculty, and staff. Special memberships may be granted by the Union Board of Directors as provided in the Union Statutes.

Alcohol ban

To the Editor:

This is in response to your editorial of Friday, September 7, 1973.

I strongly disagree with your statement blaming "some morally righteous alumni members and students" for the recent change of policies at Carter Stadium concerning the ban of all containers. Several times the past three years my date and I have found ourselves sitting next to groups of students who evidently attend football games only to drink. (I can't refer to these people as fans since they show no interest toward the game.) By halftime some are intoxicated to the extent they can hardly walk. I have even seen an empty can and bottle of beer being tossed from the upper to lower deck by these students.

On yet another occasion, this time after a game, I witnessed an older fan (not a student and clearly under the influence of alcohol) jump from his car to confront a student who had evidently said something the man did not like. The car was left in reverse and nearly ran over a group of students before the man's wife got the car stopped.

If any group is to be blamed for the recent policy changes it should be the minority of people who attend the games only to get intoxicated out of their minds. As is too often the case, the majority of fans will suffer because of the few who have so severely misused this privilege that we have had in the past. If a person wants to drink to the point of intoxication why not wait until he gets home so those around him are not endangered by his actions?

Mike W. Kowa
Sr. Math

We encourage students and others within the University community to express their opinions via the Letters to the Editor section of this paper. On letters from candidates running for SG office, we continue the policy utilized last Spring and will withhold the letter from publication until after the final runoff. Letters will then be published at the earliest possible date. Due to limited space, we must ask that all letters be 300 words or less. If otherwise, they will be subject to editing for length. All letters should be typewritten and triple-spaced. If not typed they should be legible and neat. All letters are subject to editing for libel. Letters must be signed by the writer and should include local address, class standing and major.

Jumps from frying pan to fire

list and I would never get a room on campus even if I got back in school. Residence Life Director Jim Ross told me to come see him after I got back in school.

As the summer passed all I could think of was a way to get my room back in Alexander and that girl in Carroll Dorm. This, though, didn't keep me from the fun of summer school. (It is quite a bit of fun. Everybody should try it once in his life.)

I made the grades I needed to get back in school: "B" in history, "B" in politics, "A" in speech, and (for those of you waiting), a "D" in English. Nine QPs were made up and since I was down 32 originally I am now down 23. Plenty of room to work with.

I dashed back to see Ross but he was away at a conference for three days. The drive from Sanford is not that bad but I wouldn't suggest it for seven days in a row. When I finally got in touch with Ross he told me to come see him around the middle of September. I wrote that off.

What I needed was a place to put my bod at night, and I wasn't going to be too picky. In fact, Frisbee, Risley, McSwain and I all needed a place to stay. After a week of searching, and a lot of pleading with Dad for the money, we signed a lease and moved into King's Row Apartments. King's Row was built for kings, and we felt like we filled the description.

I thought my worries were over. But, I had forgotten about registration day. What lines! Incredible! I sure was glad to find the back door open. In my three years here I have never been through a registration day without having a problem with my schedule. This year was to be no exception. Damn computers.

Hour problems and seat problems filled my schedule card. I complained to the registration department, but they informed me it was my own fault. My schedule was not run until I was readmitted. That had been only a week earlier.

Change day went so badly I finally started signing up for courses I'd never heard of. Eighteen hours is one helluva load for a student 23 QPs down.

Recently, I've dropped a course and changed a course and now have a pretty good schedule. However, one would not know I was a politics major with the courses I'm taking: one politics course, one textiles course, one sociology course, one PE course, one speech course, and a Spanish course. I guess that's the variety one gets when one flunks out.

Think about it... twenty-five quality points... That's all it takes to fill your summer full of joy.

Billiards

'Minnesota' would have to wait in line

by Reid Maness
Staff Writer

"The Champ" studied the pool table from every possible angle, lined up his shot with delicate precision—and he scratched.

Later he carefully pocketed three shots in succession—and then scratched. On his next turn, he drilled a shot into the corner pocket—for a scratch.

SOON, HOWEVER, "The Champ" got his concentration together, he was finally "warmed up." He missed every remaining shot. "See how great I am?" He said, "That's why I'm 'The Champ.'"

"The Champ" and his fans were enjoying an evening of excitement at the pool tables in the Student Center Games Room. Like most of the students in the room, these "hustlers" were all freshmen at State. And, like most of their fellows, they "play pool whenever we got spare money and spare time."

FOR THOSE WHO are not familiar with the gentleman's game of pocket billiards, the game is played on a 7 to 9 foot long felt covered table. The object of the game is to strike the cue ball so that it will knock other balls into one or more of the table's six pockets. Variations of the game include "8-Ball", "Rotation", "Cut-throat", "Last-Ball", and "Snooker."

Anthony Tatum, manager of the Games Room in the Center, actually has very little authority other than to employ attendants for the facility. Concerning maintenance, Tatum said, "all that is taken care of by the business office." Students feel lack of direct authority may be one of the reasons the equipment in the room is not presently in top condition.

One student described the condition of the tables as "playable-but they need leveling. He cited that many of the tables also need re-felting, and most of the cue sticks are noticeably crooked.

BOB JACKSON, Games Room employee said the condition of the equipment is mainly the fault of the students. Jackson stated that he has had seen cues dropped, slammed against the sides of the tables, and scraped across the felted surfaces of the tables.

According to Richard Heaton, director of the Center, the tables in the Games Room as well as those in the Erdhal-Cloyd's room, "will be recovered by May...We try to keep the tables in top condition."

Heaton also reported that the gross annual income from both facilities totals $24,921. Much of this money, he noted is used for the upkeep on the rooms and the equipment.

Jackson commented that "the pool room has just been incredible this year...once I had 10 or 20 people waiting in line to get a table." Jackson added that almost the entirety of the patrons are freshmen. But he feels that the novelty will soon wear off and business will slack up. "Besides, the professors will run 'em into their dorms to study pretty soon."

UNTIL THEN, however, the sharks can feast on the unsuspecting freshmen. One unlucky frosh found himself suckered into a game of snooker against one of the resident pros. After a quick explanation of the rules of this complex and exciting game, the two gamers lost themselves amidst the click of the pool balls and the clanging of the pinball machines.

But soon the relative skills of the players were apparent and the match became just another of the minor massacres which occur daily on the green topped arenas of the pool room.

Season approaching sell-out

Stewart Theatre tickets moving fast

by George Pantone
Senior Editor

"Whoopee," was Stewart Theatre Manager Maggie Klekas' reaction to the sale of theatre tickets this fall.

"The Broadway series is now sold out both matinee and evening. The response from the students has been fantastic," Klekas said. "We do have individual tickets left for the Broadway shows which have additional performances including Godspell, Stop the World, I Want To Get Off, Grease, and Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris.

"THE JAZZ SERIES has fewer than 50 season tickets left, the classical theatre has about 75 tickets left. Also, the Godspell Sunday evening performance is half filled already, and the student interest has been very high for the Mark Twain performance.

"The Ticket prices for the students thanks to a $10,000 subsidy from the Student Center Board of Directors has enabled us to make the ticket prices so low for students that they cannot go to a good movie for much less," said Klekas.

There are five different professional companies in three weeks with at least one performance from all four series.

"I HAD NOT expected the theatre's progress to avalanche the way that it has. I am very happy because last year was such a slow start. We have come a very long way in one year's time," she said. Last year Stewart Theatre lost $17,000.

In the future "I would say we will stick with the basic format of the four series. We are toying with a classical art film series that would be open to the public. Since the theatre is so heavily booked by campus functions, we have not yet decided if we can add more performances. This year we are doing a total of 36 professional performances, an average of one in every eight days. We may not be able to go much bigger than we are right now," Klekas said.

THERE HAS BEEN a change in the Broadway series. Ain't Supposed To Die A Natural Death company cancelled the whole tour last week. "When companies cancel whole tours, there is not much we can do even with contracts. We were able to substitute Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living In Paris on the exact dates that we had the other show. Plus they are doing an extra performance on Saturday night September 22," she notes.

Jacques Brel is performed by the Alive Company. It is the music of Jacques Brel who is the most popular composer in France. His works reflect life as it really is. The show ran for four years in New York and was sold out during that time. In Chicago, San Francisco and Boston the show was the longest running musical in the history of the towns. The company works with no set, it is a concentration on Brel's music.

It is a show geared towards young audiences.

Klekas concluded, "I think it is a show that State students would really love." Student tickets for the Saturday night performance are $2 and on sale at the Stewart Theatre Box Office.

Dancing expresses feelings in motion

by Anne Castrodale
Asst. Features Editor

The cool jazz beat begins as black-clad bodies move boldly to the rhythm of the dance at the Gym from West Side Story.

This is only part of the program covered in the beginning Modern Dance class offered to students by the physical education department.

THE OBJECTIVE of the class is to learn to express feelings through the medium of dance. "We tend to have a lot more inhibitions now than when we're small," explained Miss Lynn Berle, instructor of the modern dance class. "Through modern dance we can learn to express feelings and emotions through body movement."

Beginning with the learning of the basic dance techniques of locomotion, progressing to the jazz dance, the course culminates in the students choreography and performance of their own dance.

Miss Berle, who dances tap, ballet and jazz, noted the growth of student participation in the dance classes. They have grown from 18 at the beginning of last fall to 25 in the present class.

AND IT IS NOT unusual to find male students taking the class. So far, eight have been enrolled in the class. Latimer Bailey, one of these students, has since taken additional courses at the Raleigh School of the Fine Arts.

Jeanie Frye, a junior in sociology, who took the course last fall, said "There is something about body movement and using it to express feelings that makes modern dance so interesting." Although Jeanie had never had dancing before, she enjoyed the class and would consider taking additional courses if they were offered.

Berle would like to see enough interest generated to open an intermediate course to students. Ideally, the two courses would be run consecutively during the semester.

SHE VIEWS THE forming of a modern dance club as a way in which to build this interest. Berle would serve in an advisory capacity, while the students would do their own choreography and give a performance at the end of the semester. This club could be incorporated into an intermediate class.

While the beginning dance class emphasized technique, the intermediate course would provide more basics on music, measures and give more of a feeling of achievement.

She emphasized, "You don't need skill, but the interest will carry you."

Gingersnap

By Linda Anderson and Ginger Naylor

Dorm dwellers this recipe is especially for you because in addition to being good it really takes a minimum of equipment and time. To make Seven Layer Cookies you will only need an oven, a 9x13 inch pan, a table knife, a can opener, some waxed paper and perhaps an empty coke bottle to make the graham cracker crumbs. Preparation time is approximately 30 min.

Seven Layer Cookies

- 1/2 stick butter
- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 1 3/4 oz. can of flake coconut
- 1 6 oz. pkg. chocolate chips
- 1 6 oz. pkg. butterscotch chips
- 1 14oz. can sweetened condensed milk
- 1 3 oz. pkg. chopped pecans

Melt the butter in the baking pan. Add the ingredients by layers in the order listed. Bake at 325 F for 30 min. Let it cool in the pan and cut into small squares. This recipe makes very rich candy-type cookies good for a special friend or party.

Dave Buckley has apparently rebounded from his eye operation of last spring, as evidenced by his sterling performance against East Carolina last Saturday night. As a freshman sensation last season, he sparked the Wolfpack on many occasions. (photo by Caram)

Eye operation fails to faze Dave Buckley

by Ken Lloyd
Sports Editor

Luckily for State football coach, Lou Holtz, Dave Buckley's eye trouble has only given him one problem so far this year — he can't tell the Buckley twins apart.

Last year, Don, the pass catching half of the duo, wore glasses so Holtz could readily tell the brothers apart. But after his eye operation to repair a detached retina last spring, Dave has to also wear corrective lenses, thus giving Holtz a problem.

BUT THE WOLFPACK coach is no doubt thankful that that minor problem is the only trouble Dave's operation has caused. For sometime last spring it was feared Buckley's football career was over.

Now, however, it is evident, after his sparkling performance against East Carolina last Saturday night, that Buckley has come back as good and possibly better than ever. He had a perfect night passing, completing all six passes for 117 yards. Also, he carried seven times for 46 yards.

If anyone was worried about Buckley being gun-shy or a little wary of contact this season, his first run from scrimmage Saturday night should have dispelled any doubts. He took off around left end for a good gain, but instead of playing it safe, he instead hurtled his frail body right into a mass of Pirate tacklers. He came up unscathed and came back for more.

"MY VISION isn't quite as good now, but it isn't that bad and it is correctable," said Buckley.

In practice this fall, Buckley has tried playing with contact lenses and without them. Saturday night he chose not to wear any corrective lenses.

The sophomore from Akron, Ohio, said he noticed no real difference in his eyesight in the ECU game. "My throwing seems about the same," he noted. "I thought it would be different, especially at night, but it hasn't been that bad."

"THINGS ARE NOT real sharp," he said after the game. "I can see images but I can't see the numbers. It's just details I can't see. But it's not all that different and I didn't notice it all that much tonight."

Five months ago no one was sure Buckley would even be playing at all this season. "I first noticed the trouble on the afternoon of the spring game," he said. "It came first as a film on my left eye."

His trouble was diagnosed as a detached eye retina, which is not necessarily a football-related injury. He was then operated on at Duke Hospital by Dr. Banks Anderson, who had performed the same operation on Duke football player Mark Landon a year earlier.

AFTER THE OPERATION it was a matter of wait and see for Buckley for three months. It was not until mid-summer that he knew if he could compete ever again in football. Anderson gave him the medical go-ahead, but the final decision rested solely on the Buckley family.

"The decision was left up to my parents and me," said the soft-spoken Buckley. "The doctor explained everything. My parents just asked if I wanted to play. I said I did, so they said it was okay with them if I played."

"After talking to the doctor I never doubted I would play," Buckley contended. "When the doctor left it up to me, I never doubted I would be back."

WHILE BUCKLEY'S courage begs admiration, he nonetheless is still not playing entirely risk-free. There is a possibility that his retina could detach again, but that could also happen even if he does not play football.

"Since I am playing football, the chance is a lot greater of it happening again," he said, "but it's not all that much. The doctor says the odds are about one chance in 100."

Thus Dave Buckley continues to look fear and adversity straight in the eye and continues to do what he loves — play football. His own welfare is not his primary concern, rather he lends himself to his team.

IM football gets into full swing

by Ray Deltz
Staff Writer

Intramural football, probably the top participant sport in the Residence and Fraternity intramural ranks, has already begun another grueling season. Perennial favorites are expected to bloom once again in both leagues, while several surprise teams are expected to materialize.

In the Residence league, defending champion Owen II is expected to field another veteran team. Led by quarterback Gene Melette, who gained the Residence Athlete of the Year Award last year, Owen II will put a nine game winning streak on the line in its opening game.

PROVIDING STIFF competition in Residence play will be Sullivan III. According to Ron Catlett, student assistant in the Intramural Department, Sullivan III could be THE team to beat this year. "They return an experienced team with depth at most positions," added Catlett.

Although losing many talented players through graduation, Turlington, a perennial first division team, is expected to reorganize and once again be contenders for the championship.

While Residence football is apt to bring about a noticeable changeover in personnel from year to year, teams, on the whole, are able to maintain team members for a substantial length of time. "There are four teams that are always on the top of Fraternity football," expressed Catlett. "These are Sigma Epsilon, Delta Sigma, Farmhouse and PKA."

IN THE OPENING round of Fraternity play Monday, three of these top four contenders came out victors. Farmhouse lost a tough battle to SAE, 7-6.

Competition within each team gets stronger each year. In some dormitories, more than 40 players try out for the squad. Despite this enthusiasm, in the larger dorms competition for playing time is often very keen. Looking into Open Intramural leagues might be the solution. It would offer more playing time and at the same time offer good competition in league play.

As in the past, the top two teams in each division of each league will gain a playoff position at the end of the season. There is a possibility this year that the eventual dorm champion will meet the Fraternity champion to determine the REAL champion of Intramural football.

Bring people together

Sports Clubs offer competition

by Jim Pomeranz
Staff Writer

Varsity sports and intramural sports offer a variety of ways to exercise skills one has as an athlete. At State both areas are offered.

But there is also an area between the two. Sports Clubs at State offer competition in sports that have no intercollegiate team.

Joel Brothers, assistant intramurals director, heads up the program and feels the program is what is needed at State to add to the areas of athletic competition.

"The sports club program brings together people that are highly skilled in an activity and cannot compete in that field on the varsity level," he said. "Many students right out of high school are interested in activities other than those offered on the varsity level," he continued, "but they are a little more skilled than the intramural level."

The Sports Club program offers an outing club, women's tennis, women's basketball, gymnastics, weightlifting, badminton, and scuba diving.

BUT BROTHERS believes women's swimming and women's field hockey will be active this year. He also said there has been an interest shown for boxing, volleyball, and table tennis. Brothers hopes the bicycle club will become a part of the Sports Club program this year, also.

Who can participate in the Sports Clubs?

"We want people that have some skill," Brothers explained. "They should have completed the required or a related course in PE."

The Outing Club is sponsored by Dennis Campbell and includes backpacking, rock climbing, canoeing, square dancing, snowskiing and other related activities.

THE WOMEN'S TENNIS and Basketball clubs are very active in their programs and are coached by Jini Leath and Sandy Hill.

The Gymnastics Club is now seeking new members according to Scott Conrad, coach of the team. He is looking for some fairly skilled people.

The Weightlifting, or Barbell Club is planning on a meet with Central Prison that will include a clinic. Those interested should contact Bob Strauss.

THE BADMINTON CLUB headed by Shi Tien Ting usually plays its matches during the winter.

The Scuba Club does not require members to be certified divers; however, the club will offer certification within one year of joining. Dotti Bynum is the coach.

by Donna Stapleford
Staff Writer

"The prospect of women's intramurals this year should be tremendous," stated supervisor Lynn Berle as the girls' program gets underway.

"We have many activities planned, ranging from football to field hockey, which will enable most girls to participate in the sports they prefer," she continued.

These sports, kicking off with football this afternoon, include basketball, softball, tennis, badminton, table tennis, volleyball, bowling, and a swim meet as well as track and field events.

Also included on the agenda is a new pitch and putt golf meet. There may even be soccer and archery if enough interest is shown. At the moment there are three clubs—tennis, basketball, and swimming and a fourth may be installed as field hockey.

State's women's intramurals, since its growth in the last couple of years, has been called one of the best in the state. It is divided into eleven organizations on the campus, which compete for the residence championship at the end of the year.

Brothers says there are other possibilities for clubs this year.

"BOWLING, ARCHERY, hunting, fishing, slow and fast pitch softball, handball, and squash may be in the making this year," he commented.

"There are many people that do not realize others have the same interests they do so they do not attempt to work up a club in that area," Brothers continued. "If someone has an idea for an activity they should come by the Intramural office and let us know of their interest."

Last year the Sports Club program was a big success and Brothers is hoping for another big year. "We want as many people that are interested to come out and get active," Brothers said. "All they have to do is contact me or a club sponsor."

At the season's close, the winner and the MVP are presented with trophies on Awards Day. Besides campus competition, there is a special event, Co-Rec Day, which consists of competition among UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Charlotte, UNC-Greensboro, and State.

As Berle says, "The real purpose of these intramural athletics is to allow girls to meet others; to have fun, wholesome activities; and to provide a break from their studies. No girl should feel she can't participate because of a lack of skills."

Game times for touch football will be set at 4:30pm and 5:15pm at the Intramural Field. All girls who have not signed up can still play, and if there are any questions, see Lynn Berle in Carmichael Gym.

When contraceptives are difficult to find and embarrassing to buy, it's society that suffers.

We'd like to offer a solution.

Since Population Planning Associates provides contraceptives privately by mail, we frankly believe the threats of unwanted pregnancies, rampant V.D., and a runaway population will be considerably lessened.

If you know male acquaintances who feel awkward about buying contraceptives in stores, they might appreciate knowing about an informative catalogue on contraceptives and birth control that we offer for 25¢.

Or they may wish to send for a sample packet of 12 of the most respected, reliable condoms for $3. This assortment, that includes 3 each of 4 leading brands, is sent in a plain package to insure privacy.

If they write Population Planning Associates at Dept. Z, 105 North Columbia St., Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514, we will respond immediately.

Three years and 50,000 clients later, we're convinced that this alternative method of purchasing contraceptives, on a money-back-guarantee basis, has fulfilled an urgent need to one of our nation's most serious problems. We hope you agree.

Thank you,

For students, it's a question of finances

SAMPSON EXPLAINED, "I didn't register to vote here and don't have a North Carolina driver's license. But I have lived here for two years and have been supporting myself. I have had to borrow money, work during the summer, and on weekends in order to pay the difference in tuition."

He added, "Another thing that bothers me is that I will be student teaching in a North Carolina school. I won't be paid to teach but I have to pay an extra $1,000 to be able to do it."

"Also, I'm 27 years old and have been married six years. Why should it matter where my parents live?" he concluded.

Godfrey commented, "I haven't lived at home for seven years and my parents' residence played an important part in my case . . . I also did not vote here. But I explained to the committee that I did not vote anywhere.

"HOW CAN A COLLEGE student afford to buy a house when he is paying extra tuition? And buying a house is a major proof that you are going to establish roots here," he continued.

Godfrey added, "My daughter was born here and my wife has a good job she doesn't plan to leave."

One of the cases brought before the Appeals Committee in which the residency status of a student was changed involved Sidney Gordon, a graduate student in physics.

THE MAJOR FACTOR in the decision of the committee to make the Virginia native an in-state student was the fact that he is employed at the Research Triangle and will have a job there following graduation.

Gordon commented, "I didn't expect to have a ruling in my favor. I got the feeling that there was a new law but that nothing had changed. I figured the committee could go either way and justify what they had done."

The fact that his parents live out-of-state and that he owned no house or land in North Carolina figured prominently in his being turned down initially by the Admissions Office.

Each of the students interviewed was doubtful as to whether a significant change had been made.

GORDON, WHOSE status was changed, commented, "The burden of proof was on me. I had to prove to the committee I was a bona fide resident. At least now, the students do have a chance to prove your intentions."

Godfrey said, "It was definitely a needed change. But the ones who are hurt are those who intend to stay here. There's no way to prove that one is going to stay. It's too arbitrary."

Sampson agreed that the change has been needed for some time. "Now students have a chance after a year to receive resident status . . . But 12 months is too long a time to establish domicile. It's prejudiced against the student."

THOMASSON WOULD like to see North Carolina adopt a policy like the state of Colorado. "The new residency rule isn't much of a change. Just being in Colorado for year establishes residency."

Solomon, who heads the appeals committee, said, "The committee follows the guidelines handed down by the legislature. We didn't establish the guidelines. But some of the students feel the committee is against them . . . There also is no limitation to the number of students whose status can be changed."

"The job of the committee is to decide the intent of a student as far as whether or not he plans to stay in North Carolina as a domicile," Solomon continued. "But it often seems like an arbitrary decision."

THERE ARE NO precedents by which to decide in each case. But with the change made by the General Assembly last May, it is now possible for students to earn in-state status while still a student.

If a student can prove domicile, the difference is $800 in tuition. The burden of proof is on the student.

To those students in the School of Design who just don't give a damn about Student Government, vote for someone who probably won't do any serious work in the Student Senate. But if you do care about how you are represented, vote for The Man with The Plan. Vote for Jim McDaniel for the Student Senate from the School of Design on Wednesday, September 12. You'll be glad you did.
