Infirmary inundated

Radiation leak threatens Snake

by Bell Pairing
Staff Writer

The nuclear reactor which was dedicated to the University March 16 has been leaking harmful radiation into the atmosphere for the past five years and by this fall the level will be dangerous, the Dept. of Nuclear Reactors released Saturday.

Dr. William Robinson, director of the reactor facilities, admitted that "the reactor has been leaking .05% harmful radiation into the atmosphere since we began using the reactor on a regular basis."

Robinson added that students, faculty and staff who have been at the University at least a year have built up some resistance.

"The problem is with the incoming freshmen. Each year approximately one-fourth of the freshmen report to the infirmary with radiation sickness," Robinson said. "However, the infirmary staff tells them it's a stomach ache, gives them salt to gargle with and sends them back."

Wilburta McKenzie, staff nurse at the infirmary, said, "Sure we knew it was radiation sickness but they (the Nuclear Department) told us to not release information concerning radiation leakage."

She added that right now the infirmary has eight patients up on the third floor with serious cases.

Campuses all over the nation have had the same problem. Montville University, New Jersey, is the nearest university with a similar problem. Last fall they closed their reactor down.

Robinson admitted that the only solution to the problem was to close down the reactor. However, he added, "We can't just stop operating a reactor that has been given to us and is worth 3.5 million dollars.

"Alexander, Vanderbilt, who gave us the money, would be furious," he explained.

Robinson added that even though the level will be dangerous this fall, the reactor will continue to operate.

"Radiation can't be that harmful. Of the 50 people who have worked closely with the reactor for the past five years, only five have quit. And that was only because they were going blind," he said.

Dick gets Hyman

WASHINGTON—Theodore M. Hyman, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at North Carolina State University, was today recognized for his continued efforts in the field of Mass Media Control. Concurrent with that official recognition was the announcement by White House Press Secretary Ronald Zeigler that Dr. Hyman had been appointed to the newly formed Mass Media Control Commission which will oversee all visual, written and audio communications within the territorial limits of the United States and its Possessions. The brief announcement by Mr. Zeigler was followed by a five minute news conference by President Nixon himself.

The President said, "It is with great pleasure that I approve the recommendations of the new Mass Media Control Commission (MMC) and appoint Ted Hyman to that Commission. I have known Ted for a number of years now and have been especially impressed with his active leadership in the field of Media Control while working with the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) at North Carolina State University. His appointment will complete the membership of the Commission and is effective today, April 1.

HYMAN IS A GRADUATE of the University of Wisconsin where he completed his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees. Hyman spent several years working with the Public Broadcasting System at N.C. State but more recently has become a noted lecturer in Media Control in his course Mass Communications and Modern Society.

In a short statement, Chancellor John T. Caldwell said, "We here at North Carolina State University take pride in the accomplishments of Dr. Theodore M. Hyman and the recognition which President Nixon has seen fit to bestow upon him today."

'Name' acts at AR'73

by R.J. Erase
Contributing Editor

"We're expecting an overflow of people," said "Big Nick" Urisini, King of the Student Central.

URISINI'S COMMENTS came in response to the completion of contracts calling for personal appearances of Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones, Curtis Mayfield, Chicago, America, Melanie, J. Geils Band, Steve Miller Band, and Bread at this month's All-Rumpus Weekend beginning 7 p.m. April 14.

The Stones, together with Buddha female vocalist and originator of "Lay Down" Melanie, will perform opening night of the gala.

GRANNY AWARD WINNERS, America, are scheduled to perform with Bread Saturday afternoon and will be followed by Columbia's moneymaker, Chicago, and also Curtis Mayfield, who will bring AR'73 to a close at midnight Saturday.

The Steve Miller Band and J. Geils Band will play from late Saturday morning until mid-afternoon. J. Geils is one of the first recording groups that AR'73 booked for this year.

Tickets are available for $35 per student at the information desk of the Student Central.

When asked about the excessive cost of the ticket, Cripes said, "We had to sell tickets at $35 apiece to pay for the entertainment. Actually, we got the Stones and Chicago at surprisingly reasonable rates for what they usually charge for a concert."

Low revenues force closing of Center

by Boob Testes
Staff Writer

Due to spiraling operating costs and disappointingly low revenues, the new University Student Center will be closed down after the current semester.

The $4.5 million building, which opened June 1, 1972 after a delay of a year and a half, has been the subject of much criticism since its occupancy. Complaints have ranged from wasted space and poor planning to unfulfilled promises and technical problems.

MUCH FANFARE and elation followed the opening of the Student Center, as the campus organizations which had been waiting to occupy their new and more spacious quarters were finally able to drag the new furniture out of warehouses and set up for business. Dormitory residents of South Campus were also eagerly anticipating the arrival of the much-publicized food facilities that the new building would have to offer.

"The Techinashit staff practically kept those places open all by itself," observed Jeff Watkins, Assistant Sports Editor Emeritus, in reference to the first floor snack bar and the Walnut Room.

"THE FACT THAT the Food Services people have continually refused to give publications people a discount for their patronage has led them to take their business elsewhere, thus reducing by $1500 a week Student Center revenues," commented Bev Privette, Associate Editor in Charge of Saying Not a Damn Thing Hardly Ever.

The loss of this massive block of income (reportedly, 85% of all Publications salaries never leave the building) has forced the snack bar to reduce its inventory to its more popular items, the Neptune Sandwich and phosphates.

The problem of what to do with the empty shell (which is more or less what we have now) has brought forth many suggestions from both the creative and the Techinashit staff. "I think they ought to turn it into a parking deck," offered Preston Rydlehuber, a junior in RPA (Recreation and Parking Asofenaspossible). "Hell, I'll pay $50.00 to park in the Techinashit editor's office, if they leave the red carpet in."

ANOTHER SOLUTION was proposed by Swank Stud, Special Theatre Assistant in Charge of Collecting Roaches After Rock Concerts. "Not many people realize this, but the Student Center Theatre was originally (more-or-less-elsewhere)

The Techinashit's photo editor, I. Caram-bah, managed this spectacular picture of the large Profusiscus crappa bird which made an aborted attack on Poe Hall Saturday, having mistaken it for a Hartz Mountain Bird Seed Treet. Physical Plant officials estimate that cleanup operations on the building will take up to three weeks.

Method of operation revealed

Who out there has wondered, "Who actually writes this shit?" We know some of you read these editorials because you write in and call us names. We're Techinashit. But you don't know who to address in your attacks. Well, we're sorry, but we don't know who writes these things either.

You see, when you have a small staff to work with, and half of them don't know a cutline from a tag sheet — well, you see the problem. Sheet. The fact is, we're so desperate for copy that we'll take anything that's pushed in our faces.

Those of you who subscribe to the New York Times, which, let's face it, isn't a whole hell of a lot of you, notice that on the front page beside the banner ("ears") we call them in journalistic jargon, is a slogan that reads, "All the news that fits we print." And there is the entire crux of the problem. As long as it fits on the page, we don't complain.

And who knows? One day you might be reading Martin "Four Eyes" Winfree without realizing it (and let's face it, that's hard to do). And the next day you could be reading the leftist chants of Don "Six Quarts" Abernathy. We don't know, and the funny part is you don't know either.

And that's just the way we're going to keep it. W.C. Fields once said, "Never give a sucker an even break." And that's what we're doing. We've kept tabs on you, and we know that somebody picks up this garbage and reads it. So as long as you keep reading this drivel, we're gonna keep feeding it to you. We're in this for the money, just as you would be. If we can make a buck while just sitting on our rumps and pecking away at a typewriter, we're gonna do it — wouldn't you? Of course you would. So we're just stabbing you in the back before you can do it to us, the Commie Rats, and that's the American Way.

Those of you who constantly keep abreast with our editorials are probably aware that we keep harping on the same subject. Over and over again we keep hashing on the one topic that we mention in the first sentence. You could read that first sentence and know where we stand. Take a hint from the one today. But, being the fools that you are (be honest with yourself, we are), you keep reading down to the last period and think that you've been good boys and girls and are thus enlightened. Well, the joke's on you, friend. You've been had if for one second you believe that any intelligence comes out of this rag.

And that's what April Fool is all about. You probably never realized that we changed the name of the paper, and that the letters were made up, and that Bill Walton never even heard of this place (or wouldn't really even want to), much less transfer here. Well, it's all made up, although the questions and answers in Nurse's Bag seem up to par.

So, back to the original question: "Who does write this shit?" Well, as Clark Gable said in "Gone With the Wind," "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn." Neither do we, and the joke's on all of us. No shit.

Center's demise uncovers corruption

by Hack Slander
Libel Editor

The demise of the University Student Center is currently being bemoaned by students and University administrators. The Administration has every reason to mourn the loss of the Center, whereas students should rejoice, for the building has been nothing but a hotbed of corruption and a source of illegal revenue for University administrators at the expense of students and taxpayers.

Reliable but unrevealing sources have spilled the beans and the full story behind the fiasco may now be told.

The original design for the University Student Center called for a Neo-Gothic Victorian relic accentuated with Ionic, Doric, and Corinthian columns. However, plans for the unique and much more functional structure were squashed by Rep. Carrie Kickback (D.-Transylvania). Kickback felt the needs could be better fulfilled with a building constructed by his brother-in-law, Norman Pigfeet.

Feeble protest by University officials proved ineffective and Harris B. Schmerdli of the University Office of Build Cheaply and Poorly (BPC) issued Pigfeet the contract for the sum of $250,000 and a full expense paid weekend for two in Fuquay-Vagina.

Schmerdli reportedly spent the weekend engaged in an continual orgy involving three secretaries and two janitors.

To keep the affair quiet and to appease the avaricious appetites of University administrators, Schmerdli was forced to pay Chancellor John T. Scoldwell $25,000.

However, Scoldwell was not satisfied with the sum and began a policy of corruption all his own.

The conspiracy first involved Harry Swillman, director of food services and ptomaine poisoning of the University Center. Scoldwell paid Swillman $10,000 to fake inefficient service, poor food preparation, and inefficient bookkeeping so it would appear the Center was losing money.

Actually, the Center was making money out the ass, but the profits were going to Scoldwell and Swillman's pockets to the tune of $25,000 annually each.

However, the student comprised Center Board of Directors got wind of the conspiracy and demanded a halt to it or a piece of the action. Rather than losing the entire profits, the two administrators consented to give each member of the board $100 per month.

Fearing the word would leak out through the crusading campus newspaper, the Techinashit, causing severe reprisals from an aroused student body that has never been known for its apathy, Swillman and Scoldwell enlisted the aid of Jive Honkey, Musician-in-Residence and occasional drug addict, to conduct weekly Coffee Houses.

During these notorious activities, unsuspecting students, particularly those in power, were fed aphrodisiacs and drug-soaked food and drink supplied by Honkey to lull them into complacency.

This nefarious scheme was fortunately nipped in the bud by Farpin Winpee, Champion of the Just and Might Right. Winpee learned of the scandalous activities and threatened to write home to Jesse Helms.

To avoid embarrassment the Administration concocted the cock and bull story about unbearable financial losses to close the Center and permanently dismantle it.

The students of Snake can thank Winpee for his pure as driven snow character and hope the administration has learned you can't cheat an honest man.

Snakes actually turkeys

One wonders the validity of today's newspaper, the Techinashit, formerly the Technician. Throughout the paper you will find unbelievable stories that could have true meanings. But this could also be an April fool.

As one infamous newscaster puts it: what are those prevert students at Snake doing now. He continues to say that such radical movements should stop at once. Further explanation of today's paper is in order not only for him but for the rest of our readers.

April 1, April Fool's Day, or All Fool's Day was yesterday but for the enjoyment of our readers we decided to dedicate a complete issue to the cause. The name came from a custom of playing practical jokes on a friend on April 1. The French call a fooled person a fish. Let's also boycott fish today. In Scotland the victim is called "cuckoo" or "gowk." But at Snake he is called a turkey.

Take today's paper any way you wish but remember the joke's on you.

* * * * *

The April Fool's edition is a tradition for the Technician with the exception of last year. Three years ago the lead story was Chancellor Caldwell leaving Snake to take a similar position at West Point. Bob Scott, Carlie Scott, Terry Stanford of Dupe University, Leo Jenkins of ECU, and Joe Williams of Hacksonville University were reportedly in line to fill the vacancy.

Two years ago the April Fool's edition had Student Body President Cathy Sterling and others taking over the Chancellor's office and presenting a list of demands including the firing of Earle Edwards, Mrs. Norm Sloan to lead off All-Campus '71 with "Do You Know The Way To San Jose?" and "Indiana On My Mind," and the naming of the Student Center Theater as the Sterling Memorial Union Theater (SMUT).

The April Fool's Edition is only meant in fun. Maybe. The staff decided it would be a great way to start the year, and we hope no one will be offended with its content. Cheers.

To the Editor:

Hey! That editorial over on the other page is really something. I mean, you were right when you said that we were actually wondering who writes all of this drivel.

I have been an ardent reader of these pages for three years now, and I must admit that my life has really been influenced by some of the things I have seen in print. Like, without the "Page 2 / Techinashit / April 1, 1973" how would we ever keep track of what day it is, or even what page we are on? Many thanks for such enlightening information; it is people like you who make those 8 o'clock classes easier to cut.

It is especially edifying to me, as a staff writer for this paper, to know who does all that behind-the-scenes work and produces that copy that appears frequently under bylines such as my own. Many thanks for some of the fine articles which have been attributed to us writers.

One last thing. Your editorial mentions that space considerations are important in determining what is printed and what is not. It is my sincere wish that you will have enough space to include this letter of appreciation in

by Nurse Young, RN, DS, VD

Dear Nurse "Y,"

I have varicose veins on my penis. It is very painful for my girlfriend when we have sex. She often calls me lumpy. What can I do, this is an emergency?

Varicose veins are caused in the legs by too much standing. The logical extension of this gives rise to the following: take the problem in hand and wrap it securely in an ace bandage.

Dear Nurse "Y,"

When I have intercourse with my girlfriend she continually complains that I am pulling her pubic hairs while we are in the act of copulation. Thus at the moment of my greatest satisfaction, hers' is altered to pain due to a few little hairs. Can you suggest a cure to our barrier to copulational bliss?

Buy a razor.

Dear Nurse "Y,"

Bill Walton and I seem to have the same problem, at least according to Curt Gowdy. You nurse's bag

see, I've grown so fast that I have stretch marks all over my body. As a result, my nipples have been moved to my armpits. Since I am a girl, this develops some problems for me. I look like I'm from one of those ads for invisible Hollywood satin underwear, and when I shave my underarms, it usually ends up a milky mess. What should I do?

Ever heard of Ringling Bros.?

Dear Nurse "Y,"

When my girlfriend and I engage in intercourse, she climaxes immediately. Consequently, her contortions have given me a sprained back, a crick in the neck, and several other injuries which have caused extreme discomfort to me. What can I do to hold her down?

"Seat belts are a perfect way to say 'I love you.'"

Dear Nurse "Y,"

My boyfriend is in the blues right now. We have been going steady for two months now and he wants me to go further than kissing. However, when I get too excited, I start babbling and carrying on, and I faint dead away after breaking out in a horrible rash. Do you have a solution?

Yes.

William The Conqueror:

"Well, I've always felt chained down with my clothes on, so every spare minute of the day I escape from my prison and feel the wind blow against my body," exclaims William Barit. "I think God meant for us to walk around nude and catch rays from the sun."

Barit, a 45 year old ex-model from Skowhegan, Maine, is definitely a free spirit. Roaming around the country in his Pinto, he feels that this country has a lot to offer.

"WHERE ELSE could a guy like me get a job as a model, and what other country would permit a publication like the Technashit to photograph me in the nude?"

Raised in the wilds of Maine, William left his home state at the age of 43, searching for new worlds to conquer.

"Have you ever tried to spend a winter in Maine with no clothes? I consider myself as tough as nails, but I just couldn't hack it. I decided to move South where the sun really shines."

WILLIAM MOVED down to Raleigh, and was discovered as a receptionist in the Technashit offices. So begins his spiral to the top. The svelte, blonde, 34-31-34 Barit has been all but unstoppable ever since that moment of movement.

No longer able to 'bare it' in snow-clad Skowhegan, our gallant gatefold gaucho moves to a sunnier clime

"Back in Skowhegan, about all the modeling I did was for Mechanix Illustrated. And those guys kept giving me flak about my hair, so every picture I posed for I had to wear a skull cap to hide my locks. And the makeup man always gave me crow's feet around my eyes, and half the time I had to wear a pillow under my pants to give me a gig beer drinker's belly. You've probably seen the pic where I'm sawing a piece of lumber, wearing some shit-eatin' grin and wearing somebody's old fishing cap with about 20 damn lures sticking in it. Yeah, that's me."

William's favorite hobby is riding his Pinto in the buff, but only during the winter.

"I used to ride naked all year long, but once after I took a dip at the beach, I ran back to my car and jumped in and WOW! Jeezus Christ that seat was hot. I jumped up and put a dent in my roof. Boy, it was really hot.

"I bought my Pinto after I saw that commercial where those airline stewardesses took a Pinto apart and put it together again. I thought it might be a good way to meet some stewardesses, but I haven't yet. If they've ever taken my car apart, they've sure put it together before I could catch them."

Oh, William.

Snake's coup grabs Walton on rebound

by Stale Nonsense
Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES - Basketball observers across the nation were stunned by a press conference here late yesterday in which All-American center Bill Walton of the NCAA champion UCLA Bruins announced his intentions to forego his senior year at the Westwood institution.

The surprise came not from the disclosure of his leaving UCLA but that the 6'11" star also will not join the professional leagues. Instead, Walton disclosed plans to play his senior year at North Carolina Snake University of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"IT'S BEEN a very difficult decision for me especially in light of the $10 million contract offered by the Philadelphia 76ers.

"Really, the fringe benefits of that deal were almost too great to pass up. I mean I was impressed enough when they offered to throw in the Liberty Bell, but when they told me I could play in the same jock worn by Wilt Chamberlain the night he scored 100 points, I was nearly overcome.

"And no wonder, they hadn't washed it since that night ten years ago.

"HOWEVER, I DECIDED that it is in my best interests to leave UCLA at this time so I can play out my eligibility at North Carolina Snake. I've always wanted to play in the ACC. And ever since I heard about Snake's 12-10 win over Duke a few years ago, I knew that was the brand of ball I really wanted to play," the lanky redhead said.

"I realize I'll have to sit out a year before I'll be eligible to play, but I know it'll be worth it."

Following UCLA's seventh consecutive NCAA championship win last week against Memphis State, rumors abounded that Walton would remain with Coach John Wooden at UCLA. Previously, other sources had suggested Walton might turn pro at the end of this season. His unexpected news conference put an end to these rumors.

WALTON REFUSED TO deny, however, widely publicized stories that a conflict between he and Wooden was the deciding factor behind Walton's move.

"I'm not saying the rumor that Coach Wooden keeps jumping out from behind corners trying to scare me with those fake glasses and the rubber nose is true, but I do think slipping that chopped liver in my jock last week was shitty of him.

"I JUST BELIEVE Coach

Wooden does not command respect at all times. He doesn't get the maximum effort out of us.

"I think Coach (Norm) Sloan (of N.C. Snake) really won me over with his flair for fashion — red crushed velvet suits with white penny loafers, and like that. I mean I can really relate to that."

Sloan was present at the press conference and expressed his unabashed pleasure at Walton's announcement.

"We're pleased to accept Bill's application for transfer to N.C. Snake. We think he's one of the best leapers in college basketball today. What great legs! With the proper coaching, Bill could become one of the finest centers coming down the pipe since Lanny Stahurski," Sloan said.

A CELEBRITY-STUDED audience listened in disbelief to Walton's announcement. Although a dejected Dean Smith had no comments for the press, the Tar Heel coach and Wooden reportedly were seen sobbing in the men's room of Pauley Pavilion following the statement.

Big Bill Walton, relaxing on the bench after UCLA's seventh straight NCAA championship, will have mixed emotions when the Bruins battle Snake's Wolfpack April 16 in Houston's Astrodome. The redhead from La Mesa, Calif. is transferring to N.C. Snake after this season in order to play for Coach Norm Sloan and to live in Sullivan Hall. (photo by Camera)

Wolfpack finally gets chance at UCLA

by Trim Palmer-ants
Good Guy

WASHINGTON- President Richard M. Nixon announced Sunday night a charity basketball game between the NCAA basketball champions, the UCLA Bruins, and the only other undefeated team in the nation, the N.C. Snake Wolfpack, will be played April 16.

The super matchup will be held in the 55,000-seat Astrodome in Houston, Texas.

The President based his reason for scheduling the game on several different points. "First, I want to make it perfectly clear that since I am the President I can order this game," the nation's numero uno sports fan stated. "And, secondly, Snake is on probation but does have an unblemished record. Now what exactly does this mean."

"WELL I'LL TELL you what it means. It means a number of things, and I will tell you what they are. Probation means the Wolfpack has committed a few underhanded recruiting violations, which personally I see nothing wrong in doing, and therefore the NCAA will not allow them to participate in any post-season tournaments. Being undefeated

"Also, the new situation with UCLA great Bill Walton going to Snake next year helped in my decision. John Wooden says he needs him to beat Snake," Nixon continued. See related story on page 6

The President also cited such reasons as "the unfair practice of the NCAA allowing Southwestern Louisiana to play a post-season tournament after committing over 140 violations and disallowing N.C. Snake," and "the recent feud between the NCAA and the AAU over post-season player and coach competition."

Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan and Bruin Coach Wooden each commented to the press through a special telephone hookup.

"I'M DELIGHTED WITH the opportunity to play UCLA this year with such greatness on both teams," said Sloan, speaking first. "I only foresee one problem arising in preparation for the contest, that is getting my team back together. But once we are together we will be ready."

Wooden had other thoughts. "I don't think this game is necessary but to please the President and N.C. Snake we will play," he said. "The Bruins are ready physically but mentally we have to combat the letdown occurring when Bill (Walton) signed with Snake. And to show the nation who is the best player in the nation we will play Walton on David Thompson."

THE NCAA MADE AN official statement concerning the game: "The President of the United States does not have the authority to override a ruling by the NCAA; therefore N.C. Snake cannot participate in the contest. In the case the game is played, no further action will be taken against Snake, but the President will be put on probation and not be allowed to watch, participate in, or coach in any postseason NCAA sanctioned game, nor run for re-election in 1976."

The AAU, feeling pressure to comment, also released a statement: "Stick it in your ear, NCAA."

THE PRESIDENT ALSO announced that all proceeds would go to the John Mitchell Relief Fund.

Snake power enough to worry Nebraska

NEBRASKA DIDN'T play Snake yesterday, but if the Cornhuskers had, they would have been beaten. That's the way Coach Lewd Hertz felt about it.

"Being realistic, I think the final score would have been about 49-0," Hertz stated. "We scored on three long bombs, and once our backs got past the line of scrimmage, nobody touched them."

While this offensive barrage was taking place, Snake's defensive unit was working out at the other end of the field doing calisthenics and wind sprints.

COULD THE FACT that the defense wasn't participating in the scrimmage have something to do with the offense's success?

"You know, I never thought of that," the football mentor smiled. "I knew something was missing out there, but I couldn't put my finger on it. Make that score 21-0 - we still looked awful good out there."

'Donny Osmond sucks'

Pitchers trade roomies

In a surprise move Saturday, Snake pitchers Mike Dumpsey and Stem Toddard switched roommates. Monte Tall, and Biff Quarters decided to accommodate their former roommates and change rooms. Tall will now reside with Dumpsey, and Quarters will reside with Toddard.

"Well, we met each other last year in the fall," Dumpsey said. "Since we've been at Snake we've lived in the same suite with the same roommates and listened to the same old shit. We just decided it was time for a change, but Stem gets the better part of the deal since he will room with Quarters. Get it? Time for a change - Quarters - get it?"

THIS MOVE parallels the switch made by New York Yankee pitchers Fritz Peterson and Mike Kekich a few weeks ago. Kekich and Peterson swapped their families.

"We used that as a model to go by," admitted Toddard. "But as you can see, we don't have any families - well, Monte has a pet turtle, Layup, but that's all."

"I think we all benefit from this," Tall interjected. "I've been a fan of Donny Osmond's since the beginning and Mike has all his albums. You know we're both sex symbols and everything. Well, I think it's gonna work out great."

Quarters apparently was dissatisfied with the present living arrangements, and it was he who initiated the swap.

"I THINK Donny Osmond sucks," he said as he was hurrying to class.

When asked about this switch, baseball coach Sam (Balk) Espository said, "I really am undecided about it. I try to judge the players on their ability on the field. I take that back, I am decided about it - I think it's funnier 'n hell. Hah!"

Bob Jimmy, commissioner of the ACC (All Carolina's Conference), issued a statement calling the trade "distasteful, immoral, and something else but I forgot what it was."

GT RADIAL

This is the rest of that story you started to read on 1

(this is the rest)
designed with 823 seats. But it was built with only 816. In order to alleviate the resultant overcrowding from being seven seats short, it is my feeling that the back wall of the theatre should be knocked out and the seats extended into the rest of the building. We could use the chairs from the Walnut Room and the snack bar, thus saving both money and embarrassment for the Food Service people. It's up to them to get rid of the tables, though."

In a special meeting, during which 517 decisions and 516 reversals were made, the University Committee on Procrastination, Apathy, and the Preservation of University Committees When We Get Around To It decided that it had indeed reached a decision and that their Press Relations Subcommittee would take care of disseminating the details to the working press, and also to the Technashit.

ACCORDING TO Sanderson Schizoid, Spokesman for the Press Relations Subcommittee of the University Committee on Procrastination, Apathy, and the Preservation of University Committees When We Get Around To It, the UCOPAATPOUCWGWATI, decided during its regular Wednesday meeting Saturday that the Center should be dismantled, piece by piece, and the pieces used elsewhere in campus construction.

"We can always use bricks," observed Walter Watermain, head of the Brick Turners and Sidewalk Washers Local No. 48, most of which is employed by the campus Physical Plant. "I don't know what we'll do with the tables from the snack bar, though."

CONTINUING To kick a dead horse, "T-shirt" Byrnes fumed, "What are we supposed to do for fire escapes?"

Salamander out as Divits takes charge

In a surprise move, Chancellor John T. Scoldwell removed Assistant Dean of Student Development Dandy Don Salamander for conduct unbecoming of that usually carried on within the sanctum of Fetal Hall. The true nature of his actions were not disclosed, although the sweet overtones of illicit contraband seemed to permeate the air.

Scoldwell announced that his decision would be final and that Salamander would not be able to pass go nor collect his $200 in back pay.

A glassy-eyed, dazed and distant Dandy Don Salamander dejectedly listens as Chancellor John T. Scoldwell proudly shows new Assistant Dean of Student Development Sod Divits his place in the Fetal Hall coffee break register. (photo by I. Caram-bah)

SUBSEQUENT INVESTIGATION also revealed an alleged 'bust,' to use Dandy Don's own hep phrasiology, that occurred last year in Harvard Square, when Salamander was employed by a Boston cab company. During this moonlighting period of Dandy's, nothing new to him, Salamander was reported to have offered lollypops and cigarettes with loads to innocent bystanders while waiting for the amber traffic lights to change.

The official police report stated that no illegal substances were found within the cab itself, but that Salamander appeared to have puffed cheeks like a chipmunk and mumbled incomprehensibly.

CHANCELLOR SCOLDWELL announced that Dandy Don's position will be filled by ex-Agromelch editor Sod Divits, a fifth year student majoring in V.D. in the Stool of Resign. Divits will officially assume his office, under some assumptions, after his graduation day, if it ever comes.

Divits, a native from deepest Thaomasville, and his lovely wife Fancy, are the proud new parents of a daughter Barly.
