Thomas plans 'capital campaign' to improve faculty, student body

by Fred Brown

News Editor

Chancellor John L. Thomas, at a meeting of the UNC board of governors Monday, outlined his plans to improve the university. Some of these ideas include increasing student body size, improving the quality of State's faculty and facilities.

Attracting gifted students and increasing faculty size are two ways to accomplish these objectives, he said.

Chancellor Thomas referred to the Caldwell Scholarship Program as an example of State's attempts to enroll gifted students.

The number of John T. Caldwell, the new director of the program, increased to eight, four of which were awarded to Raleigh-Chatham highschool students.

An additional 25, strong leaders-ship abilities, character and community services are the qualities judged in such applicants.

"For the first threat of the capital campaign, I would like to cause funds to be a major endeavor for another scholarship program," he said.

"I believe that funds from the students make it worthwhile for the teaching and staff require them to do the best work.

"We must become more competitive to attract the number of teachers we need at the University;" he said.

"The bottom line in people make the difference. We will find the means to achieve the best.

In an interview following his report to the UNC board of governors, Thomas commented on the status of the budget crisis proposed in the N.C. Legislative Joint Appropriations Senate Budget Committee report.

Proposed cuts for agricultural and forestry programs, he said, "I feel very strongly that the money needed to remain intact and right to the point that the research being done at the Agriculture Institute is extremely important in the sciences of State. I wonder if they know how much we need.

Thomas said he is also unhappy about a proposed change that I hope we will have students at each school in the University system.

"It would cause a dilution in each teaching program. It would be a dramatic and qualitative effect on the whole student programs," he said.

Anonymous death threats in Alexander Hall lead to eviction of student based on handwritten analysis

by Brian Fishel

Staff Writer

A former Alexander Hall resident charged with four counts of anonymous death threats, each carrying a two-year sentence, has been arrested by the State Troopers and is now in jail.

Donald Huskins was charged with 13 counts of anonymous death threats after information was received by the State Troopers of a death threat.

The analysis of the complaint was released by the squad leader at a press conference Tuesday.

"He was not found to be in his room at the time of the death threat," Huskins said.

"The handwriting was to be similar to the handwriting of the four letters and the death list, Parker said.

"The Greek system is a well-placed organization," said Thomas. "I am part of it as a member of Alpha Phi Alpha and I am proud of what we do. We try to help the system and increase its support.

The students were asked how they can increase the support of Phi Omega. Several brothers and sisters were present.

"The candidates were asked how they can increase the support of students. They were present.

"I would push for these policies that allow the students and off-campus students," there were.

"I would place emphasis on financial sponsors and keep the Student Busitness Council to get through school and to obtain those that the students ask for," Bevy said.

The candidates for the office of student businesc executive were Sanjay Long and Tony Ensey.

The candidates were asked if they are familiar with the Finance Commi-

tee. "I served on it for the past year," Ensey said.

"I am very familiar with the financial and the committee," Bevy said.

"I want to plan several definite acts to the students that will serve me."

Long said.

"I want to examine the statutes very carefully and find those that can be amended. I will have a procedure book that will be held on March 24th.

The candidates were asked how they would handle situations that they had in mind.

My emphasis will be on the values of our school. I will never serve, we are facing."

The candidates were asked if they are familiar with the Finance Committee.

"I served on it for the past year."

"I am very familiar with the committee and the procedures."

"I have reviewed the operation of the Finance Committee," Bevy said.

"My academic record shows that I was pick of all my classes. In fact, I will have the opportunity to become more accomplished with this."
Student body president candidates reveal positions

by Ron Spivey

The student body president must be a charismatic leader, a person not afraid to take on difficult issues that will present themselves. The ability of the student body president to work with different people and their various interests and values is crucial. This person must also be able to create a sense of unity within the student body. The student body president must be willing to listen to all voices and work towards a common goal.

There will be several issues that will demand consideration in the upcoming year. The student body president will have to decide the final decisions on the operation of the student body. These decisions may include budgeting alternatives to the present year. There will also be issues surrounding the campus environment. The student body president will be responsible for addressing these issues and making decisions that are in the best interest of the students.

The roles and responsibilities of the student body president are very important. The president must be able to work with others to achieve a common goal. The president must also be able to communicate effectively with the students and faculty. The student body president must have good leadership skills and be able to make tough decisions.

by Mark Brooks

Some people believe students at N.C. State are apathetic, but I believe that they are not. The issue of student leadership is something that is often overlooked. The student body president plays a crucial role in the student body. The student body president must be able to work with others to create a positive environment on campus.

The first part of my program involves increasing the students' study efficiency. I believe that by providing courses in student services to students, they will be able to study more efficiently. Some of the things I want to do are change the location of the Student Information Center and the career center. These centers will serve as a major resource for students.

A week or two before major tests is the most important time. I believe that it is important to provide students with study tips and tools that will help them to be successful.

"Stay a program that I call "study pools." This program is similar to "pooling" in the fact that students are encouraged to study with one another. To sign up for a program, a student will fill out an application sheet at the start of the semester.

Everyone who participates will have his name, legal address and telephone number on the program. The program will be held in the classroom. If a person misses a class, misses a homework assignment or was not able to study with a classmate before a test, he can call on someone else on his list and be recognized by his group.

Our program will try to be effective, free, and provide the opportunity to students in some of our introductory classes.

The second part of my program involves getting students more involved in campus activities. There are many activities taking place on campus.

I want the presidents of each organization or club to get together and discuss the most important events that are occurring in the fall semester. We can also have a more efficient way of helping students to find the clubs they are interested in.

Make free pamphlets containing information on each organization. Each organization will get a pamphlet written by one of their students that reflect their group. A photo they feel represents the group, so I can get a sense of what the club is all about.

The pamphlets can be placed in racks in the basement of the old union and the first floor of the Student Center. If a student has some free time he can wander up to a rack and pick up a pamphlet on a club that interests him.

Not only will he be able to read about what the club does, but also have a name, address and telephone number of the students involved in the club. He can then call one of the students in the club and get the initial effort to find out. These pamphlets will solve both problems.

Some other services I want to provide for students are printed brochures and a phone directory. The phone directory will be on campus and in the Honors on Prentice.

There is nothing more frustrating than trying to get in touch with people. The phone directory will be able to provide the students with the correct phone number for finding people. This directory will be available on campus and in the Honors on Prentice.

I have talked with people about this idea and it is very feasible that the campus telephone company can wire in the directories. I am also going to try to produce a public telephone directory with Dr. William Turner, vice chancellor for extension and public service, to help students find the right phone number for the educational channel and get information on campus and off-campus.

I have been working with the student population—instead of at work, this is my way of getting a better idea of what work areas for Student Services best serve my needs and are in the best interest of the student body. I also have been working with people important in this issue, which is a concern that I do have. They have given me a chance to obtain experience with work, through a uniform service of the student body.

My fellow students, if my beliefs and interests in this position were not something that we all think and share, I would ask you for your support. We commit this to our community. This is an opportunity to make N.C. State a better campus.

The office of student body president is one of the most important offices on campus. It is an office that is filled with many responsibilities. The student body president must be able to handle these responsibilities with ease. The student body president must be able to work with others to achieve a common goal.

I want to call a "study pool" program. This program will provide students with study tips and tools that will help them to be successful. Our program will try to be effective, free, and provide students with an opportunity to learn.

Student Senate president candidates present papers

by Bill Thorne

Many students are like me and they hope as they read through the various campaign platforms that at least one of the candidates will have the answers to our housing, parking and academic problems. I feel this is not going to be a positive paper with a positive solution to our innumerable problems.

I do not believe in any way that Student Government is a positive organization that should be supported. It can and can be very effective. Effective service to the student body is possible and possible today but also in helping to shape policies that will meet future student recreation and a need, we need to get involved as students. Student Government's effectiveness and express with you the ideas of the student body. For all the work and effort put into the Campus Government by the elected students, we students have a responsibility to keep it effective and to see that our voice be heard.

For those interested in student issues and members of the administration and provided a fair ticket distribution policy for football and basketball games.

Also, as chairman of the Athletes' Committee, I introduced the Student Senate motion opposing the proposed athletic fee increase. I talked with a large number of students and received a resolution, which passed resolution 1577, in the Student Senate, that called for a reduced fee increase.

I really believe that without our recognition, the Student Senate's editors' regulations of the student body, the student body doesn't have authority, and the presence of the Student Senate would be NULL.

As the editor of the student newspaper, I am not in favor of the full proposed athletic fee increase for athletic participation. This example only shows that my belief that students working together can be a very effective form. If elected Student Senate president, I am willing to work with the faculty and the administration to improve the Student Senate so it will be a reduced force for improvement.

My plea for your support, and I would like to see with your help, I will be successful. It is a very important step in the history of the Student Senate.

As for the parking problem, I will continue to exert the effort to get a more effective system which is needed to be implemented in our community. I believe the two parking lots are insufficient and that the Community Council parking lots have been expanded with the request of setting up a CATS for a key student body calling for more service.

As a result of the parking shortage, if we can come together, provide a way to promote awareness to ease the burden of the student body and call for better organization.

For all those students who are interested, you can participate in the student Senate and I am willing to work with you.

My next proposal will affect the interests of all students.

That proposal is to be considered and support of the student Senate in every way possible.

by Jim Yocum

Jin Yocum may or may not be a familiar name to you but it has been around for a while. Over the past five years, for both of those reasons, I have been a member of the General Assembly, Assembly Legislation Committee and the Budget Committee. I was also the student representative to the Senate for the two-year term as the student treasurer. Jin Yocum was elected to that position by my fellow students.

Candidates for treasurer offer platform

by Tony Reavy

My name is Tony Reavy and I am running for the position of student government treasurer. I would like to work to give students the best return on their education dollars. I believe the student government is the place to do this, and if elected, I will do everything in my power to ensure that this is accomplished.

My platform is based on three main points: first, to increase student government transparency; second, to improve the student government’s financial management; and third, to return the student government’s money to the student body.

As treasurer, I will work to ensure that the student government’s financial policies are transparent and that the student government’s money is used for the benefit of the student body. I will work to ensure that the student government’s financial management is efficient and effective. I will work to return the student government’s money to the student body.

Thank you for your consideration and I look forward to the opportunity to serve as your student government treasurer.

Leading the call for better communications with the public, the Student Senate President, Paul Paul, will be joined by the Student Senate Speaker, Jim Yorman, and the Senate Finance Chairman, Ron Spivey, to discuss the importance of open and effective communication.

Agriculture leader wants better communications

By Bill Thorne

The Student Senate President, Paul Paul, will lead the effort to improve communications between the university and the public. The Senate is working on a new communication strategy that will increase the public's understanding of the university's research and development efforts.

"We have to be more proactive in communicating with the public," Paul said. "We need to find new ways to reach out to the public and educate them about our work." The Senate is considering a variety of communication tools, including social media, public presentations, and community outreach programs.

The goal is to increase public awareness of the university's research and development efforts, and to build a stronger partnership with the community.

U.F.O. brings a set of British hard rock deliveries to a wider audience.

No one can doubt the consistent popularity of the group U.F.O. and particularity of its new release, The Wild, The Willing, and The Innocent. This is a tour de force of hard rock music making is and remains superbly executed, once tagged as "rock opera," a moniker that was labeled, "a bloated, inflated, and overblown ceremony," a criticism of 18 years of hard work and dedication which has broadened the band's appeal.

The members of U.F.O. have 10 years of musical experience behind them. Their latest album shows their unity as a group.

The band's music is picked up by the heads of their tour stop, American radio stations. Their music is performed in various parts of the world, including the United States, Japan, and England. The key to success was internationalization.

State rallies in 9th on Conway homer

by Terry Kelley
Assistant Sports Editor

For those who were at Friday’s State High Point baseball game it was as if they were at a movie. Reading “Covey at the Fall” with a Harper eating or some other baseball story centering on another great game might have been more dramatic than State’s 6-0 victory at Dake Field.

The Wolfpack was down 2-3 with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning. State’s Lacey Conaway, driven by a pitch in the left-field area, hit a pop fly in the outfield for the first out. The next batter, Danielle Lacy, drove the ball into centerfield for a base hit. State had two on with two outs.

State needed the lead in the bottom of the sixth on a run to keep Federal Creek’s Offense at bay. The Wolfpack had scored 11 runs on 8 hits in the first three innings. The State offense was plodding along with 5 hits and 1 error in the first three innings.

State rallied for a lead in the bottom of the sixth on the home run hit by centerfielder Chris Braly. The Wolves scored 11 runs on 8 hits in the first three innings. The Wolfpack offense was struggling with 5 hits and 1 error in the first three innings.

Professional stage actors make work seem like play

by Jess Rollins
Asst. Features Editor

Professional actors are an intriguing lot. They practice their art with the skill and precision of master craftsmen, breezing worlds of harsh reality and light-hearted entertainment with the spoken word. It's not the easiest of jobs but when the lights go on and the curtain draws back they disregard the hardships of the profession and fall into the surreal condition of the stage. But they must remain mindful of their purpose—making the audience enjoy the show.

This is especially important in comedy productions.

"If the actors aren't having fun, then the audience won't have fun," explained Leigh Hackett, the Madams in Mull Flanders currently playing at the Village Dinner Theatre.

After the second performance Wednesday night, some members of the audience were filing out into the lobby when one lady turned to Hackett and commented on how much she enjoyed the show.

"B'we," she lightly shot back, "it's supposed to be my job.

According to Hackett, the producer of the show had always stressed that he wanted his actors to have fun on stage.

"He wants his actors to go home happy," she said.

Lovable character

Hackett said she enjoys performing in dinner theater because of the easy access to the audience, "I have to have the people," she said. "I don't care about New York. And I'd hate doing TV. I'd take the money and run like a hundred but I'd hate it. Because in the magic word, no two nights are the same." Since Mull Flanders takes place some 200 years ago, the costumes and makeup must be carefully chosen to add authenticity.

"It takes one hour to get dressed and apply the makeup for the first show but only 20 minutes after that," Hackett said.

There is one person in the play who needs no elaborate makeup to accentuate his character. As the lighthearted old raider Dick Terris, Michael McElroy is a Mull Flanders veteran. He started doing the show in 1975 and when this current run of the show is completed he will have performed his role 100 weeks. Perhaps the most incredible part of McElroy's performance is the way he handles numerous prat-falls during his character's drunken egressions on stage.

"I don't really think about them. I don't have specific falls but I generally know where I'm going. I work on them like the fall two days prior to the opening performance," McElroy said. "I wear six knee pads and two karate pads that cover my wrist and part of my elbows and a stomach pad. When I was younger I did a lot of tumbling and it's really come in handy.

Intimate bond

McElroy is a Vietnam War veteran but has apparently disregarded the horrors of that experience and his friendly, outgoing personality literally reaches out to his audience. This was apparent when McElroy shook a member of the audience sitting near the stage by asking her if he were drunk and humorous, true to character, if she had a drink after asking another character the same question.

"How bout you, lady," he suddenly yelled not a foot from her face. "You got a drink?"

As McElroy explained, in dinner theaters the performance tries to involve the audience as directly as possible.

"A lot of lines in the show are ad-libbed sometimes to do this," he said. "You try to get a lot of audience participation." The ability to suddenly ad-lib a line serves McElroy well and adds a pleasing dimension to his job as an actor.

It's not an easy job but talented performers like Hackett and McElroy have the ability to involve an audience in the show thus increasing the intimacy between actor and audience. And that intimate bond seems to be the ultimate in entertainment.

The following endorsements are for those who plan to vote for Student Government leaders Tuesday or Wednesdays.

Spivey

The Technician endorses Ron Spivey for student president. Although Spivey's most obvious plus is his experience — three years with Student Government, Spivey now serves as Senate president. But experience alone does not qualify a candidate. Spivey also has the leadership characteristics necessary for the job of student body president, which have been outlined as follows:

1. A desire to work for Spivey has been involved in numerous issues this year, such as the last-minute simplification of Snack Bar hours, which killed the snack bar, and less than a month ago, the board of trustees four-to-one decision to change the computer center name to "Computer Services.

2. A sense of diplomacy — As Student President, Spivey has effectively balanced the Student Senate and administration.

3. A high regard for the students who work in other offices. Both the administration and student government too easily forget these interests.

4. Student body presidential candidates have three main attributes: experience, vision, and the ability to work with student government leaders.

The other candidate for treasurer, Tony Thorne, has these essential leadership characteristics, enhanced by his active participation in Student Government. Although student body presidential candidates can be admired for their vision, the good qualities are both clear and attractive. We feel that Tony Thorne could serve much more as student body treasurer.

Student body president has been one of the most visible positions this year. The Student Senate has worked closely with the Student Body Treasurer to remove the student's voice.

The candidate for student body treasurer, Tony Thorne, does not have the necessary leadership qualities.

Yocum

The Technician endorses Jim Yocum for Student Senate president. The candidates have been the only opportunity for debate.

1. Are they experienced? The candidate who has been involved in student government activities in a leadership position will be able to bring a wealth of information and experience to the Student Senate.

2. Are they visionaries? The candidate who can articulate a clear vision for the future of the university and student government will be able to communicate this vision to the Student Senate.

3. Are they approachable? The candidate who is approachable and accessible to the Student Senate and its constituents will be able to build trust and rapport.

Thorne endorsed

I have known Mark Brooks for most of the school year and I have been impressed by his qualities: his interest in the activities of Student Government and his dedication to improving the quality of student life. I have seen his enthusiasm and dedication to making a difference in the lives of his fellow students. I believe he is the right candidate for this important position.

His leadership is the type which will carry Student Government to new heights of excellence. I urge all students to support Mark Brooks in this important election.

Please support Mark Brooks in the upcoming election and let him serve as our next student leader. He has presented innovative ideas on how to solve some of the things that Mark Brooks has proposed to do next year (1).

Some of the things that Mark Brooks has proposed to do next year (1) include:

- Cutting academic courses and faculty
- Creating a Student Government office
- Implementing a student handbook
- The campaign slogan is "Let's do it right this time.

I strongly believe that Mark Brooks is the man who can do these things and I urge you to vote for him.
