

A crippled Technician? Yes, without ...

Quality — everyone looks for it. And everyone complains about the lack of it — in the teaching staff, in University Food Services and in the Technician.

After having worked at the Technician for more than a year, I've developed certain eccentricities. One is the urge to punch out anyone I hear complain about the Technician — or at least make a bundle containing every issue of the Technician that doesn't have a byline with his name in the issue and drop it on him from the top of the library.

Now I know people tend to get defensive about their place of employment, but this goes much further than that. I agree that sometimes the Technician isn't the quality newspaper the staff wants to produce. But guess whose fault that is?

I'll give you a hint — it's not the fault of anyone who works there.

Now let's consider another word that is very

The news editor has to find out what is news, find writers, assign stories, coordinate stories and photo assignments, make sure the stories are written, make sure the stories are written correctly, make certain the stories are typeset, think up headlines and cutlines, decide how the page should be laid out, deal with irate people complaining about writers' errors, keep up with new developments on past stories and — oh, yeah — go to school, not to mention eating or sleeping occasionally.

OK, what happens when as news editor you have only a handful of writers? All the writers have been assigned stories and with their stories and pictures you will just manage to fill the page.

Then 10 minutes before deadline half of them call to tell you they can't write the stories. There you are with an empty page and a test the next day. What happens? You sit down and write the stories, get the page finished at 1 a.m. and drag home too tired to study for your test.

Either you quit the job to pull your grades up or get suspended. And why? It's because you don't have enough staff and you end up doing the jobs of two, three or four people. And who has the time to do a quality job in such a situation?

This situation doesn't apply to just the news department. Just about every department is understaffed. I know — you don't have time to attempt such a grand undertaking as joining the staff. The only thing you have time and energy for is picking up a paper and criticizing it.

But it usually only takes four hours to research and write a news story. If every student at State wrote for the Technician, you would only have to write one story every 26 semesters.

OK, so you're having a hard time just maintaining a 2.0. If every student with a 3.0 to 4.0 GPA wrote for the Technician you would only have to write one story every five semesters. Now is that too much to ask in the name of quality?

So let's face facts. You don't care enough. It's not worth any effort other than reaching into the box and pulling out a paper. Remember that next Monday, or the next, or maybe the next when you walk by those familiar red boxes — and they're empty.

And the next time you criticize the Technician's quality be sure to blame the right person: YOU.

Toni Hunter, a sophomore in pulp and paper technology, is a staff writer for the Technician.

much used today — apathy. I know — you've heard it a thousand times. Right? I realize that shouting "apathy" isn't going to automatically result in thousands of offers of help. It probably, in fact, will turn off lots of people. But my purpose isn't to stir guilty feelings that result in enlisting to work for the Technician. I simply think that instead of complaining, students should stop and think — and be grateful that the Technician even exists.

I can hear you now: "But it's their job — they get paid to produce a quality newspaper." Anyone who has had any contact with the Technician knows this isn't true. Now no one is complaining. They like what they do, but that is the only reason they do it. Just the fact that they try should be appreciated.

Very few people bother to even try. And I can attest to the fact that most of the staff works very hard to produce a good newspaper.

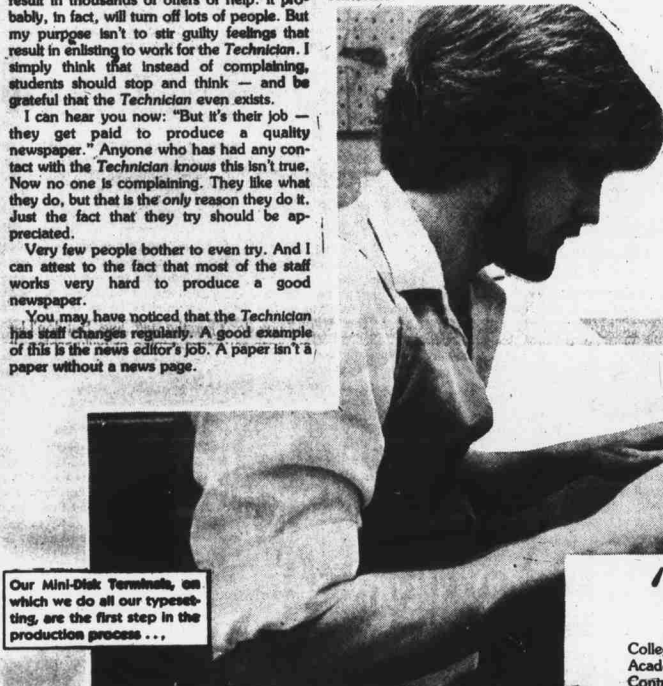

You may have noticed that the Technician has staff changes regularly. A good example of this is the news editor's job. A paper isn't a paper without a news page.

The TECHNICIAN Experience

It's the education you've been waiting for.

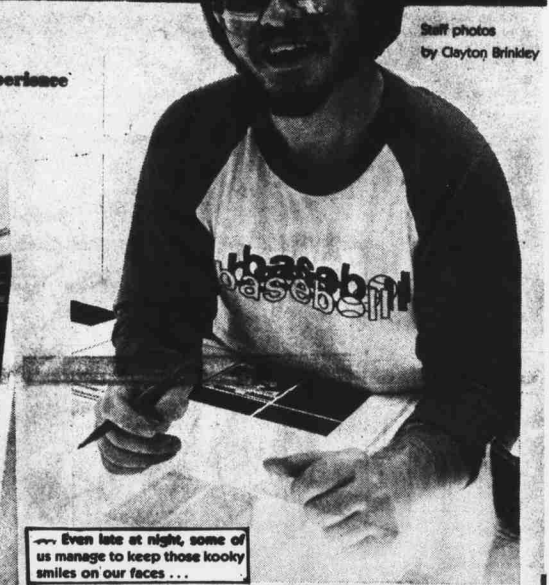

Our Mini-Disk Terminals, on which we do all our typesetting, are the first step in the production process ...

... Our layout artists are often amazed at what the editors want to put on their pages ...

... Sit is always a crowd.

... Even late at night, some of us manage to keep those kooky smiles on our faces ...

'I ... uh ... I don't have time'

College Academics. Contrary to widely held beliefs the two words are not synonymous. While academics does and should receive major emphasis within the college experience, the definition of education is not limited to intellectual development.

Most students on this campus would agree with the above paragraph, and most would agree wholeheartedly — until asked to back it up with a staunch commitment to an extracurricular organization. When pressed for such a commitment, the reply, almost invariably, is, "Well, I ... uh ... I really don't have the time. You see, I'm taking 16 hours and I've got two tests next week and —"

Having been with the Technician for more than three years, I couldn't begin to count the number of times I've heard those words. "If I had a nickle for every time I —" etc., etc.; it's true I would be a very wealthy lady.

It's rumored we have serious staff problems at the Technician, and everyone knows he can ignore rumors. So let's try some fact: the Technician does not have serious staff problems — it has critical staff shortages and turnovers in almost every department.

And at the root of the difficulties are all the many variations of that same theme, "I ... uh ... I really don't have the time." Translation: either a) "I don't care," or b) "I don't care enough to make an effort to find the time."

No one ever said working on the campus newspaper is easy, and I'm not about to be the first. But no one ever said it was unrewarding, either. Every Technician staff member who picks up a copy of the newspaper is holding a big "I did that" in his hands. Whether it's a story, a picture or special-effect page layout, it's his creation.

The reward comes from knowing that thousands of people will see that creation. All will respond to it — some with indifference, some with negative comments and some with appreciation. While sometimes it seems that those in the first two categories outnumber those in the third, the staff member trudges onward with conviction. He knows that he has a purpose, that what he is doing is good, and that somebody somewhere appreciates him.

There's one interesting fact you should know about this Technician staff member: just like the average student, he doesn't have the time to work on the campus newspaper. He really does not have the time. If he's a writer, he spends an average of one to 20 hours per week at the paper. If he's a layout artist or proofreader, he spends anywhere from six to 14 hours. If he's a photographer, he spends from three to 25 hours. If he's an editor, he spends from 30 to 60 per week.

No student has that much time to waste in a given week unless he's majoring in language, writing and editing and can put it on his resume — which brings up a few common myths about Technician people:

Myth No. 1: Technicianites waste inordinate amounts of time that could be better spent doing other things.

Tucker Johnson

Staff Opinion

Fact: The only thing that keeps most staff members working at the paper is that it is a learning experience. It's challenging. It's hard to do anything associated with the paper and not learn from it — even though what's learned might not always be described as having immediate intellectual or academic benefits.

Myth No. 2: All Technicianites are English majors.

Fact: Jeff Cooke, features editor, majors in nuclear engineering. Tom Alter, entertainment editor, majors in speech communications.

Clayton Brinkley, photo editor, majors in civil engineering. Tom Carrigan, editorial editor, and Frank McClendon, advertising manager, major in political science. Dave Wooten, graphics editor, majors in history.

Teresa Moore and Darrell Shortt, production managers, major in zoology and telecommunications, respectively.

Myth No. 3: Despite what pleas you might hear, the Technician really does have a large staff.

Fact: According to its most recent payroll computer printouts, the Technician staff includes 77 persons, i.e. less than one-half of 1 percent of the entire student body. But a figure of 77 wouldn't be that bad if it conveyed a realistic picture of the number of people who devote a significant amount of time to the paper. Of those 77, however, between 20 and 30 persons can be credited with the majority of work done during that pay period.

Myth No. 4: You have to have experience to become a member of the Technician staff.

Fact: The new staff members we hire every year are about evenly divided between those who have had prior experience and those who have not.

Myth No. 5: Technicianites are gods. They are not supposed to make mistakes. When they do make mistakes, it is because they are lazy.

Fact: We are human.

We at the Technician take our work very seriously. We want very much to produce a quality newspaper, but we can't do it without you. The critical staff shortages in many departments make one wonder if the campus newspaper will continue to exist many years into the future.

Imagine, one morning, finding those red distribution boxes empty. Let's face it; it could come to that.

Tucker Johnson, a senior in psychology, is editor in chief of the Technician.

... your help, we are less than we could be

Brain-crunching thought is always part of the job, especially for writers and editors ...

One of the most frustrating things I've had the misfortune to encounter on this campus is apathy.

More specifically, I speak of apathy directed toward the student newspaper. It is like attempting to ram one's head through a rock wall to get people at State to crawl out of their cubbyholes and do something to make their presence known.

It's amazing how much one can overhear if she happens to be a practiced eavesdropper. Usually I hear things I really don't want to hear. For example, here are scraps of a conversation that took place in the library:

"Did you read that article in the Technician?"

"You mean the one on ----?"

"Yeah. It really stunk."

"Don't I know it? Man, that guy didn't know what he was talking about."

It is a conversation oft-repeated around campus. Yet out of approximately 20,000 students enrolled at State, fewer than 50 are significantly involved with the Technician. That is less than one-quarter of 1 percent (0.25 percent) of the campus population.

The ones who are doing all the mouthing off about how terrible the paper is and how poorly it represents the students are most often the ones who don't even know where the Technician office is located. Confronted with this fact, coupled with an honest and sincere invitation to join the staff, they are also the ones to come up with ingenious excuses for why they can't get involved with the paper.

Let me use the organizations on campus for an example. Our staff is bombarded with English 111 — even if it takes more than one attempt — can write for the Technician. This is not to say that it is all that easy to produce a clear, well-written article, but there are plenty of people on the staff who are eager, ready and willing to help you compose an article.

How do you think more than half of the staff learned to begin with? They were born with ink and a silver pen in their mouths? Wrong. Most have never had formal journalistic training.

They were willing to learn and let their voices be heard. And with the encouragement, helpful hints and constructive criticism they've received from the staff — most of whom learned the same way — they turn out good material.

The satisfaction of having your words read by a circulation of thousands and seeing your name in print is incredible. Add to that how good your resume will look when it includes the fact that you wrote for the student newspaper — not just for language, writing and editing majors but for anyone in any field.

As said above, the editors' and staff's energy is limited. Many work until the wee hours of the morning to make deadlines so that you can have a paper to read on your way to class.

Without a sufficient amount of writers, the paper will begin to suffer and eventually die. No matter how dedicated, a tiny staff cannot carry the weight of the responsibility of a large school's publication. The same few cannot satisfy the needs of such a diversified university.

Education is supposedly why we are all here. But learning does not stop once you leave the classroom. Future employers will look for those who have rounded out their days at school with worthwhile activities — no, not drinking.

The Technician is State's student newspaper. It is written for and by students. But the full student body cannot be represented without you and your help. Why do you insist on remaining silent?

There is, literally, someone in the Technician office at almost any hour of the day. We are located on the third floor of the Student Center, a building a large percentage of you visit almost every day.

Stop by and see us. There is a place for almost everyone on the staff. You pay for the paper through student fees. You can get that back threefold or more by writing, doing layout or any other job at the Technician. Your return will be both in cash and experience, plus the advantage you'll have over the competition when you reach the job market.

If you don't join the staff, fine. But don't let me hear any more griping or belly-aching. It will only make you come across as being less of a person. The staff we have is working at top capacity. Imagine what can be done with a staff twice its size.

A cubbyhole can get awfully lonesome at times, you know?

complaints about how little coverage events and club projects receive. When asked how we are supposed to cover these events when we have so few writers, we usually get stupid looks. If the organization's representative is asked to write and submit the information about an event that could be used by the staff in writing an article, we either get more excuses or are told that it is our job, not theirs. "Doodley-squat" is what I say to that. It's every student's "job." Last time I checked it was every student's paper.

The Technician staff has some of the most talented and dedicated writers, editors, layout and production people I've had the good fortune to meet. The key word is dedicated. These people devote the major portion of their free time and energy — and some that is not so free — to ensuring that the paper is out to you every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. But their energy and time are limited.

The editors on the staff spend a good portion of their time trying to find writers. At this time, there is the lowest number of writers on the staff that I can remember. Where are they? Well, there is a potential writer I know of reading this article right now. Yes, you, my friend.

In my opinion, anyone who can pass

Lotterization

1,872 tales of woe

Once again the lottery has left a record number of students without a room for the following academic year. Last year's record of 1,607 students was overwhelmingly surpassed by this year's total of 1,872 students who were denied housing.

Every year the lottery leaves more students homeless than it did the previous year. It is sincerely hoped that next year will prove to be an exception to that rule since a new residence hall is being constructed next to the new general athletics facility. Although no decision has been reached concerning the proportion of athletes to non-athletes who will be allowed to live in the new dormitory, it is hoped that a large percentage of the new rooms will go to those students who every year get "lotterized."

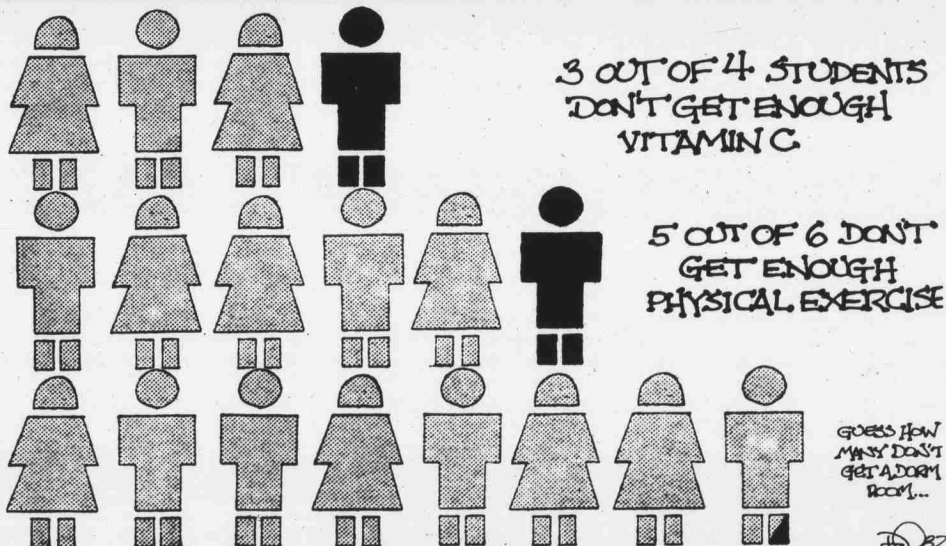

One reason for this year's new lottery record is that since no monetary deposit was required to participate in the lottery, more students may have applied who were not sincere in their desire to have a room next year. But a significant reason for the increase in the number of students losing rooms is that the Department of Residence Life is increasing the number of rooms guaranteed to freshmen.

Residence Life has expressed its concern that freshmen should be provided with a room as an effort to ease the transition from high school to college. However, a large number of those same freshmen will be forced into apartment hunting when they become sophomores if they lose out in next year's lottery.

The new lottery system is an improvement over the old one since it allows students to find out earlier whether they will be allowed to remain in the dormitories. But that is little consolation to the 1,872 students who must now try to find one of the rare vacant apartments at a cost almost always higher than dormitory rent.

There are no easy solutions to the critical housing shortage at State. The construction of the new dormitory will help, but only if a large number of non-athletes are allowed to live there. And guaranteeing more rooms to freshmen does not solve the housing problem; it merely transfers the problem from freshmen to upper classmen.

State must have more on-campus housing if the enrollment stays at its present level. Almost 2,000 students are hurting because of this year's lottery, and many of them will probably not be able to return to school because of the prohibitive cost of off-campus housing. The number of those evicted is far too high; it should not be allowed to grow any more.

By any other name ...

In response to staff columnist Thomas DeWitt's opinion of Feb. 3 ("Denial of tax exemption unfair: Government should not prohibit discrimination by private schools"): racism by any other name smells just as foul, despite the aroma of feeble technicalities that some pea-brained bigots try to thrust under our noses.

I am proud that the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Justice saw fit to uphold the spirit of our national policy of fairness and equality without groveling at the feet of the neo-fascist TV preachers who wield so much monetary influence with President Ronald Reagan and the Capitol Hill Republicans.

Obviously our national ethics are deteriorating when churches and "religious schools" openly become bastions of refuge for the two old devils — racism and sexism. Through its inaction the Reagan administration has reaffirmed the philosophy that the government should not reward bigotry, even when it hides behind the cross.

Smooth sailing ahead

Sailing Club expands fleet, opportunities for students

by John Park
Features Writer

Two brand new Coronado 15-foot sailboats were delivered to State January 21, boosting the NCSU Sailing club's fleet of C-15's from three to five boats. This recent purchase, made possible by the Physical Education Department, will aid the sailing club immensely by providing more instructional and recreational sailing to its members.

Chip Darracott, assistant intramural director and coordinator of sports clubs, said the boats were bought with the students and faculty in mind.

"Most anyone may use the boats. However maintenance of the boats can present a problem. We like to know whether a person is experienced enough to properly handle the boats.

"We ask people who are interested in using the boats to join the sailing club," Darracott said. "Upon joining the sailing club, you are able to checkout the boats anytime you like after the club certifies you as a competent sailor."

If you don't know how to sail, you may still enjoy the benefits the club has to offer. On Saturdays, inexperienced members are encouraged to go to Lake Wheeler to learn how to sail under the guidance of an experienced sailor. This is usually done on a one-on-one basis.

With the five boats State now has, the sailing club will be able to host a SAISA (South Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association) north points regatta, the first ever held by State. This major event will set a precedent for State and this event will take place on Lake Wheeler, March 26. Teams such as Old Dominion, Davidson, Duke, University of Virginia and Carolina will be represented at this regatta.

Another aspect of the club is a regatta in which the hosting club provides boats for the visiting club to race. Within the club, there is a smaller club which is the racing team.

Last year, State's sailing team finished third for the season and qualified for the championships held at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia.

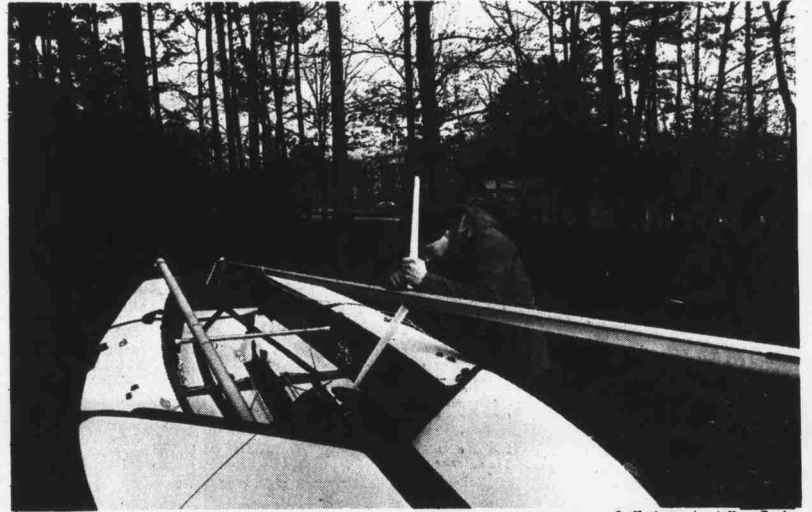

The club loves to travel. It organizes trips to Kerr Lake for a three day weekend twice in the spring and twice in the fall. A beach trip in the summer is always welcomed by the club.

Because of the competition involved, the racing team often goes on more trips than the club.

Last semester the club acquired a membership of approximately 50 members. Thanks to Richard Lehner, past commodore, John Vetter, past vice-commodore, and John Park, past fleet captain, working on the purchase of the boats jointly with Chip Darracott and Jack Shannon of the physical education department, more people may enjoy the pleasure of sailing.

The sailing club appreciates the cooperation of the Physical Education Department for enabling State to purchase more boats which will ultimately lay the foundation for a sailing course.

Editor's note: The Physical Education Department is always interested in helping new or existing clubs. Anyone interested in learning how to sail, gaining access to the University's sailboats or racing intercollegiate should be present at the first sailing club meeting (to be announced in the Crier).

Staff photos by Jeffrey Cooke

The sailboats are owned by the physical education department. Because of the work involved in maintaining the boats, the members of the Sailing Club spend a great deal of time with the boats out of the water as well as in the water. Pictured at left, one of the club's boats awaits to set sail at Lake Wheeler.

History may not repeat Reynolds Coliseum for an ACC matchup with State at close when nationally No. 1 ranked Virginia invades A year ago the Cavs came to Reynolds as the top-ranked team and on top of the ACC standings, similar to their present standing although undefeated at the time.

In that game it took a bad call to keep them from being upset. That horrendous moment in officiating history is known as the 'mugging at midcourt'.

For those who don't recall the incident it happened in the closing moments of the contest with State leading. Virginia guard Jeff Jones blatantly fouled State guard Derek Whittenburg. The official gave possession to Virginia, calling it a jump ball, and according to the arroyo it was Virginia's ball.

Derek Whittenburg later commented when asked if he had been fouled, "only from the waist up".

But that was in the past and goes down in the Virginia-State history books under 'believe it or not'.

Reynolds may look like a forest at the start this evening as a couple of trees, State's Chuck Nevitt (7-5) and Virginia all-American Ralph Sampson (7-4), will come to midcourt for the opening tap.

Sideline upperdeck seats should be a good place to be. Much of the action will be taking place at about that level — somewhere above the rim.

Virginia may be a little more prepared for the Pack this year than they were last, however. Last season the Pack was struggling to break the .500 level and the Cavs were riding high.

Now the Pack stands 17-5 while hanging on to an upper division position in the league. The Cavs have one loss against 22 wins.

Although the Cavs lost a couple of stars in Lee Raker and Jeff Lamp off last year's Final Four team, many believe the Cavaliers are a better team this year. Sampson is at his usual kit of domination and has been receiving help in the backcourt from Othell Wilson and up front from Craig Robinson.

"The Cavaliers certainly need no introduction," State head coach Jim Valvano said. "Right now, they're 22-1, have the Player-of-the-year in Sampson and boast the largest margin in scoring of any club in the country."

"They're awesome on offense, and they're equally awesome on defense."

Nevitt will have the biggest challenge of the season in facing the Virginia center but Sampson may be in much the same position. It is not often that Sampson gets to meet someone his own size.

State probably tops the Cavs in the rest of the positions but will depend on Nevitt to neutralize the big man.

"I think a major part of it will depend on Chuck Nevitt and Cozell (McQueen)," State's Thurl Bailey said. "We're going to depend on them to do a good job on Ralph. They've got a 7-4 all-America, all-nation, all-world or whatever."

"Our defense is really going to have to do it. Sid and the guards are going to have to dig in and try to strip the ball. I think we can win it; we have a really good chance."

If Sampson cannot be stopped it could be a long evening for the Pack. Even if the rest of the team is off, Sampson has the rare ability of being able to carry a team.

Tracksters sparkle in UNC Invitational

by Todd McGee
Sports Writer

State's men's and women's track teams geared up for this weekend's tri-meet with North Carolina and Clemson by receiving superlative performances from several individuals in the UNC Invitational held this past weekend in Chapel Hill.

"The meet was another low-key meet," State head track coach Tom Jones said. "Only about six teams ran, and no scores were kept."

State won numerous individual titles on both the women's and men's side, and had several other fine efforts.

"We had some good performances," Jones said. "Our sprinters ran well, again."

Perry Williams captured the 60-yard dash once again with a time of 6.25 seconds. Teammates Augustine Young and Juan Nunez finished second and third, respectively. Young was only .01 of a second behind Williams, while Nunez was only .01 of a second behind Young.

"Our jumpers did not have a very good meet," Jones said. "They, for some reason, were off just a little bit, but that happens. Hopefully they'll do better this weekend."

Also running well for the Pack was Mike Mantini in the two-mile, and hurdlers Young, Greg Smith, and Calvin Reese. Mantini's time of 9:13.1 earned him a first-place finish in his event, while Young, Smith, and Reese went 1-2-4, respectively, in the 60-yard high hurdles. Young's time of 7.4 was .1 of a second ahead of Smith. Reese's, fourth-place time was 7.64.

"Calvin ran well for being just a freshman," Jones said.

"We hope to have him under 7.5 by the end of the year."

Two others on the men's team captured individual titles. Shotputter Ernest Butler and quarter-miler Bryan Burns took first in their respective events. Butler tossed a personal best 55-4 in winning the shot, while Burns time of 50.6 won the quarter. Frosh Kevin Elliot leaped 6-10 to capture third in the high jump, while pole-vaulter Alvin Charleston vaulted 16 feet in the pole vault.

The women did not garner as many first-places as the men, but they did set two school records in the process. Shotputter Angela Hutson, broke her own school record in the shot by putting the weight 51.9.

"Angela just keeps improving every week," Jones said. "She's getting better and better."

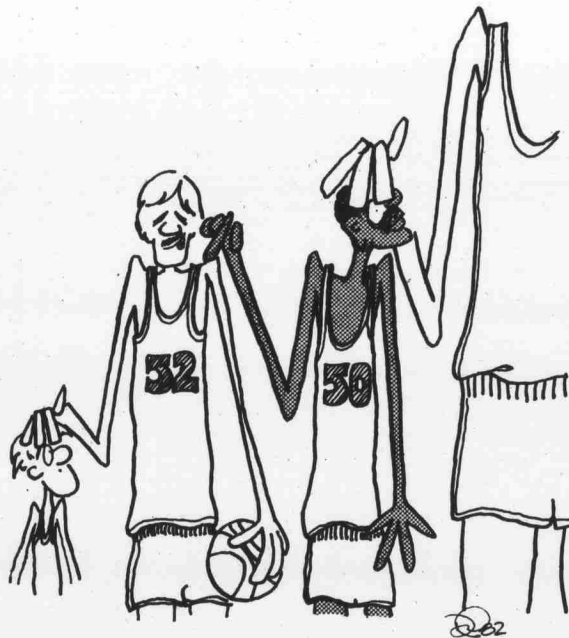

State's distance medley team of Kim Sharpe, Barbara Smith, Sande Cullinane, and Suzanne Girard set a new school record in the 2.5 mile event. Yvonne Heinrich captured the high jump with a leap of 5-8.

Jones pointed to the upcoming meet with a wary finger.

"Clemson will be tough," he said. "They have some good jumpers and sprinters. They also have great, great middle- and long-distance runners. They will be very, very tough."

He was not as concerned with the Tar Heels, though. "They have some good distance runners," he said. "Todd McCallister made the finals of the NCAA last year. They also have a great vaulter in Chris Mann. He and Alvin will be going at it all day."

Pack matmen take down Virginia

by Bray Teet
Sports Writer

This past Sunday State's wrestling team captured its fourth ACC victory with a 32-11 victory over Virginia. The Pack stands as the only ACC team to be undefeated. State will try to keep that unspotted mark intact as it takes on North Carolina for the second time this year. Earlier in the year State won by a score of 21-13.

The Wolfpack, 7-1 and ranked in the nation's Top-10, fell behind early, but rallied to win the match in the heavier weights.

Sunday's match started off with All-America Chris Wentz scoring a major decision over Rob Ruland, 10-1, in the 118-pound class. Wentz usually wrestles at 126. Wentz' victory gave his team a 4-0 lead over the Wahoos. His victory gave State a 4-0 lead.

State's Craig Cox and Duke's Ted Van Dyk make eye contact in preparation for physical contact.

Virginia got on track as their next three grapplers captured the next three bouts. Virginia's first five wrestlers are considered among the best five in the conference. Jim Pagano defeated Rick Fragnto in the 126-pound class by a 10-1 major decision for their first victory. The defending ACC 134-pound champion Chris Xarelis defeated Vince Bynum, 16-8. Xarelis controlled the match from the start for their second victory. ACC champion Buddy Kerr defeated Steve Koob, 2-1, in a very close match for their third and final victory. Kerr's victory gave Virginia 11-4 lead.

In the 158-pound class Frank Castrignano, a NCAA quarter-finalist, defeated former ACC champion Tim Wagner, 9-4. Castrignano improved his record to 4-1-1 and helped pull the Wolfpack within 11-7.

Chris Mondragon pinned John Torres 1:16 into the bout to put State in the lead for good, 13-11. From the very beginning of the match Torres seemed to be out-matched. The pin was his first of the year. Mondragon leads the team in victories with thirteen.

Craig Cox, who has been on a tear since the beginning of the season, scored a 13-4 major decision over Jim Baranik. Cox controlled the match until the end when Baranik scored his first points. This victory gave Cox one of his best records as a Wolfpack wrestler at 12-4.

Greg Fatool defeated Chris Musmanno to record his eighth victory of the season. Fatool, who splits time with 1980 NCAA champion Matt Reiss, led throughout the match, before defeating Musmanno by a score of 8-5. The victory increased State's lead to nine points, 20-11.

The Pack recorded pins in its next two events. ACC champion Jerry Rodriguez scored his fourth fall of the year by pinning Dave Dillon in 2:08. Rodriguez, who is one of the nation's top wrestlers, increased his individual record to 11-1.

Heavyweight Tab Thacker picked up the next win by pinning Reggie Royester in 1:48. Thacker, also an ACC champion, recorded his sixth pin of the year. State's final victory margin was 21 as the Wolfpack won 32-11.

State takes on arch-rival North Carolina tonight in Chapel Hill at 7:30. This will be the second meeting between the two nationally-ranked teams. State won earlier in the year by defeating the Tar Heels, 21-13. All of the Tar Heel wrestlers are healthy and want to avenge their earlier loss. North Carolina has five wrestlers ranked in the nation, including All-Americans Bob Monaghan, Dave Cooke and C.D. Mock.

State tracksters romp

A few Pack thinclads are questionable for the meet. "Eric Towns and Dee Dee Hoggard have slight knee problems," Jones said. "That is not unusual when you run on boards, though. Alston Glenn is also still trying to recover from a cold. But otherwise, we're in good shape."

This marks the Pack's first meet of the year in which scores will be kept.

Wolfpack women cagers open tonight's ACC twinbill

by Devin Steele
Assistant Sports Editor

Before making plans to arrive at Reynolds Coliseum tonight just prior to State's basketball game with Virginia, look at your schedule card under women's basketball. Notice the 6 p.m. starting time for the Wolfpack women's contest with Duke.

The State-Duke women's clash will surely fill the Coliseum with just as much ACC action.

The Blue Devils, 10-10 overall and 2-4 in the conference, will invade Wolfpack Country with a four-game win string, which includes an 80-63 upset over highly-regarded Virginia.

Stacy Hurd leads Duke, which lost a 70-53 to the Pack in a December bout in Durham, with a 13.2 scoring average. Center Jennifer Chestnut, who tallied 19 in the earlier matchup, scores at a 9.1 clip and snares a similar number of boards as well.

The Devils' other starters Claire Rose, Jo Nell Harlow and Maura Hartzog, average over seven points an outing.

"Right now we're playing real well," Duke head coach Debbie Leonard said. "Our main problem, though, is inconsistency. We have an excellent game one day, like we had against Virginia, and turn around the next day and not have a good game. That's because we're mainly a freshman and sophomore team."

After a bitter loss at the hands of a riled-up East Carolina team Sunday, State dropped from sixth place nationally to eighth place. The Pack owns a 19-3 overall record and 4-0 mark in league seeding.

Arabian Nights theme in Lakeside's LP

by James Nunn
Entertainment Writer

Fantastic Voyage is a big album for the group Lakeside. It is Lakeside's third and best album, and disc jockeys play the single "Fantastic Voyage" everywhere from Edward's Grocery to WKNC-FM.

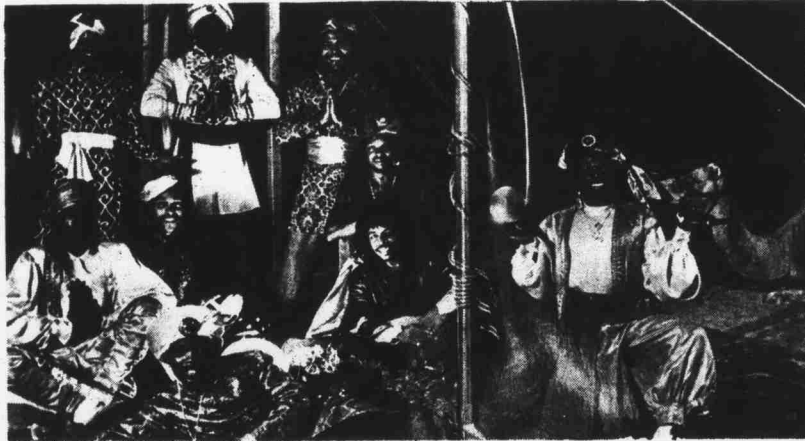

Lakeside currently has two new albums on the market. Releasing two albums at the same time is quite unusual. The two records are released under two different company labels. It has something to do with contracts.

The one on the new label is called Your Wish Is My Command. The album sports an Arabian Nights-style theme with a magic carpet, a lamp and even a white, winged stallion. This is all in support of the title track on the album, which is a long party number, much like "Fantastic Voyage."

Surprising diversity

The other songs on the album are surprisingly varied, considering that the group's reputation

Lakeside's most recent album Your Wish Is My Command, has a theme which includes the Arabian Night's picturesque scene of a magic carpet, Aladdin's lamp, a mirage of camels and a white-winged horse.

rests on its songs that are played in bars. Cuts like "The Urban Man" and "I'll Be Standing There" reflect the serious side of Lakeside.

The album features eight songs, seven of which were penned by members of the band. The eighth song is a John Lennon/Paul McCartney song that everybody knows, "I Want to Hold Your Hand." The Lakeside version is slowed down to a slow dance beat. This proves to be quite an interesting use of an old Beatles song.

There are two other ballads, but the rest of "Your Wish Is My Command," including the entire first side, is devoted to the dance-beat songs for which Lakeside is known. These songs are showing up on the air and in local bars. "I Want to Hold Your Hand" and "Something About That Woman" are bound to be successful singles.

"Something About That Woman" is a Stephen Shockley song. Shockley has written number-one songs for three groups, including The Whispers' recent hit, "It's a Love Thing."

With lyrics written by various band members, Lakeside's songs span a variety of themes. The group manages to put a few thoughtful words to a good beat. "The Urban Man" delivers an anthem for the city, as well as an interesting thought: "In this land of milk and honey, you can't taste if you don't have money." The second new Lakeside Album is called Keep on Moving Straight Ahead. Evidently, the second album was required by a contract, and if Your Wish Is My Command is any indication, then Keep on Moving Straight Ahead is probably good.

Your Wish Is My Command should be considered Lakeside's newest album, however.

Entertainment Briefs

The musical play titled Carousel will be presented at the Village Dinner Theatre and will run through March 14. This dramatic production is about swaggering amusement-park barker who marries a girl of gentle character. He attempts to pull off a robbery and commits suicide when he is trapped by the police. In his after-life, he returns to earth to see his daughter and whisper affectionate words long unspoken to his wife.

Wendy Stanley plays Rose Murrant in the Meredith College production of Street Scene that will be held on the women's college campus Friday, Saturday, and Feb. 19 and 20 at 8 p.m. in Jones Auditorium. Tickets are $4 general admission and $2.50 for students and senior citizens. For more information, call 833-6461, ext. 338 or 339.

See Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Wild Bill Hickok, assorted politicians and their victims — including Sitting Bull and Geronimo — all at Theatre in the Park in Arthur Kopit's Indian's. Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show is center stage as the conquest of the west is re-enacted. The spectacle shows Friday through Sunday and Feb. 19-21 at 8:15 p.m. Prices for tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Call 755-6058 for reservations.

Playboy: an American institution

by Tom Alter
Entertainment Editor

Entertainment

and women

Playboy — Entertainment for Men
Here is a publication that claims to be entertaining. The now world-famous magazine reaches more men in America than perhaps any other periodical.
Why is this so? Didn't this infamous "piece of trash" begin as Hugh Hefner's attempt to corrupt men's minds and exploit women's bodies? The fact is that Hefner continues to use much style and grace in not overstepping society's "bounds," while at the same time creating something innovating and interesting.
The current issue of Playboy magazine is thoroughly entertaining. The word "magazine" seems like an understatement, because of the way Playboy more than adequately covers all departments of entertainment: books, fashion, feature articles, movies, music, travel and whatever else turns you on.

Well written articles

If it's the written word you crave, Playboy contains many enjoyable pieces well-worth one's time. Some of the fictional selections include an adventure of a cyclist on the rugged Baja and, naturally, a love story.
Some of the more serious articles hit the hard-core subjects of gun control, the future limits of cable television and the video-game junkie. An interview with Louis Rukeysyer, the host of "Wall Street Week," is very insightful. TV's top journalist concludes that women are better at managing money than men.
The feature article of the March edition of Playboy is an interview with Patty Hearst. A bit long-winded, the interview is very interesting as the once debutante Hearst frankly told of the highly publicized kidnapping story that changed her life. There is also an excerpt from her book Every Secret Thing.
Perhaps the second-best reason that so many men buy Playboy is the comedy. The magazine is loaded with cartoons, jokes and satirical articles. Although this issue may not be one of the funniest yet, one article in particular "Three Horribly Unfair Jokes you Can Tell About Lawyers," is a real winner.

Although a fine magazine without any pictures whatsoever, Playboy stands alone as the publication that consistently shows taste and beauty with each issue's photographs.
This month's centerfold is Karen Witter. From Long Beach, Calif. — where else? — the 20-year-old Witters is absolutely stunning. All of her poses are done with aesthetics in mind, and not eroticism. The photographer realized that her radiant beauty was exciting enough.
The only problem with the magazine — surely its publishers don't worry over it, though — is the amount of advertisements. It seems that at least half of the magazine is ads. Not only is this uninteresting, but makes the magazine lack continuity — one always runs into "turn to page 189."
Like it or not, Playboy magazine has become an American institution. This is mainly because of its fine articles and photographs in every phase of the entertainment industry.

THE QUEST OF THE SECRET CITY SWEEPSTAKES

here's a city in Europe—you could travel there free. So unravel these riddles, and uncover its key.

TO PLAY THE GAME:
Answer each of the riddles that will appear here each week in February. Write your answer in the blanks below each riddle. The letters with numbers below them correspond to the numbered spaces in the master key. As you fill in the letters of the master key, you will be spelling the name and location of a secret city in Europe. Send us the solution, and you and a friend could win a trip there, free.

TO ENTER SWEEPSTAKES:
1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.
2. Grand Prize consists of two regular round-trip economy airfares to the secret city, 30-day Eurail passes, American Youth Hostel passes, two tickets and $1000 in cash.
3. Cut out master key for use as official entry blank or use 3" x 5" card. Print your answer along with your name and address. Mail to Secret City Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 6018, Norwalk, CT 06852.
4. The first 1,000 correct respondents will receive a poster as an entry prize.

Employees to pay overdue traffic fines

computer will completely process the traffic fines." The money received from parking fines will pay for the computer used for processing traffic tickets.

"Faculty, students and staff members may not see the results for a while to come," Ross said. "Since we will still have the manual system, mistakes should not be as great as in the past." Previously, the Division of Transportation did not issue parking permits to employees with outstanding traffic fines. Some employees, however, parked on campus without parking permits, according to Brooks.

The University transportation committee investigated methods to collect overdue fines in late 1980. The committee consulted with Claustin Jenkins, executive assistant to the chancellor, according to Brooks. "The committee devised this new policy as described in the 1981-1982 Parking and Traffic Rules and Regulations handbook," Brooks said.

Avantek's Next First... Will It Be Yours?

Avantek's unprecedented 15-year record of growth and state-of-the-art technological achievements stand as a testimonial to our success. We have introduced many new products since our inception in 1965, including more than 20 industry "firsts" in the microwave and telecommunications markets. With an average growth of 30% per year, we are moving aggressively toward becoming a $100 million company... but there is a lot more to be accomplished!

If you are about to complete your BS, MS or PhD in Electrical Engineering or an MBA with a technical undergraduate degree, we would like you to share in our success by considering our opportunities in Product Design, Product Development and Marketing.
