

Impeachment charges against Holloway dropped

Barry Bowden
Managing Editor

Impeachment proceedings against Student Senate President Rich Holloway will be dropped by the senators seeking his impeachment. "We feel that he will be cooperative (with our investigation) and therefore we have decided to drop charges against Rich," said Phil Segal, vice chairman of the Student Senate's Finance Committee. "We discussed it and felt that it was in the best interest of all parties concerned. We intend to precede with the charges against Yocum and Hilliard." "I did meet with them but I made no agreements or concessions," said Holloway. "I will rot in hell before I will step down from presiding over the trial. I will preside over it in an unbiased manner."

As of yet no charges have been filed either with the Student Government Offices or Student Development Offices.

A meeting was held Tuesday afternoon between Evelyn Reiman and Sonja Beeton of Student Development, Wade Ritter, Attorney General, and John Nunnally, Steve Bullard and Mark Farbmán, three of the six senators who had signed a petition calling for the impeachment of Holloway, Student Body President Jim Yocum, and Steve Hilliard, Chairman of the President's Committee to Combat Student Apathy.

Reiman stated that during the meeting they discussed the matter of the charges being filed.

"At this time, we can still say that charges have not been filed," said Reiman. "We have no record of such charges either here or at Student Government."

"The Audit Board is going to meet (tonight). We are going to present this to the Audit Board to see what they think," said Segal. The senators will then decide whether to file the charges or not according to Segal.

When asked about the senators action of going to the press before filing the charges, Holloway said, "It was a poor way to go about it. It was an irresponsible way to go about it."

After the meeting with Student Development Tuesday, Farbmán told Technician that he was going to remove his name from the petition. No other senators announced any change in their status on the matter.

Another senator will replace Farbmán on the petition according to Segal. However, he did not name the senator who is to take Farbmán's place.

"Basically, the reason for the impeachment is because we weren't getting any cooperation from the Executive Branch," said Segal. "As far as political overtones go, we were trying to eliminate them." That is why charges have not been filed because, the senators want to insure that the charges are justified according to Segal.

Nunnally said that last Friday the senators delivered the ten day written notice required by the Student Government By-laws before an impeachment trial can begin. Holloway and Hilliard signed receipts for the letters but Yocum refused. Thelma Galloway, Student Government secretary signed Yocum's receipt according to Nunnally and Segal.

"What they delivered was an unsigned threat," said Hilliard. It doesn't fulfill the requirement of the ten day notice according to Hilliard. "I guess that is for someone else to decide" whether it fulfills the requirement or not.

The official stand by both Student Government and Student Development is that the letters delivered did not constitute ten day notice because they were not signed according to Holloway.

Yocum stated that he is considering civil court action on the matter. "I am considering it," Yocum said. Holloway also said that action was possible because they really had no charges against him.

The reason for the meeting with Student Development was to insure that "all proceedings that follow are both fair and appropriate," said Reiman.

"We are going to make sure this thing gets cleared up whether or not they file the charges," said Hilliard.

Loving faces 4th-ranked Heels

Pack blasts High Point, hosts Tar Heels today

Mike Grizzard
Sports Writer

Doug Davis and Tracy Woodson belted solo home runs and junior right-hander Mike Schopp scattered eight hits while going the distance as State upended High Point, 7-1, Monday at Doak Field.

The win, which followed a defeat in a slugfest at Georgia Tech Sunday, prepares the Wolfpack for today's 3 p.m. showdown with nationally 4th-ranked North Carolina on State's diamond.

Admission for the game is $2 for adults, $1 for non-State students and free for State students with a current registration card.

The Tar Heels boast a worksheet of 30-7 (8-0 in the ACC) following a 17-5 drubbing of East Carolina on Monday. Excellent pitching, timely hitting and late-inning rallies have been a trademark for this year's UNC edition as shown by comeback wins in the ninth inning of their last two conference games.

"They're off to a great start and are playing real well," Wolfpack mentor Sam Eposito said. "They have an excellent chance of winning the regular season, which is a great accomplishment."

State also reflects an impressive record with a 24-5 overall mark and 5-2 conference record after Monday's triumph over the Panthers. Solo blasts by Davis and Woodson in the second and third innings respectively proved to be all the runs Schopp needed for the win.

Woodson's shot pulled him within one home run of Bill Merrifield's ACC record of 20 single-season homers. Woodson's RBI total of 60 is also fastly-approaching Rick Lockwood's conference record of 67.

Schopp faced the minimum through five innings, despite three hits and a Wolfpack miscue. Davis gunned down two attempted steals and the State infield turned two double plays in that stretch.

"We came back from a long trip last night (Sunday) and we were really happy to bounce back today with a win," Eposito said. "I was quite pleased to see Mike Schopp pitch a complete game. He threw strikes and pitched well."

Tracy Black paced the Pack's run production with two doubles, a walk, and three runs scored. Freshman Alex Wallace raised his batting average to .435 with a 3-for-5 performance and Andrew Fava increased his batting average to .406 while knocking in two runs.

Woodson, batting .395 with an outstanding slugging percentage of .991, leads the nation in homers and in RBI percentage with a 2.1 per game average.

Freshman Bud Loving will be in search of his sixth win in seven outings in today's contest against UNC. Loving has amazingly pitched six complete games in six starts and carries a 2.84 ERA into the ACC clash.

His previous loss came at the hands of the Heels in the first meeting this season in Chapel Hill. He pitched a five-hitter in the 3-1 loss.

Carolina sophomore lefthander Tim Kirk will be making his first college start today. He is 4-0 coming out of the bullpen this season with two saves. He carries a 2.39 earned run average into the game.

The Heels are led at the plate by catcher B.J. Surhoff, who bats .452.

Carolina bats .345 as a team, while State hits .346.

The meeting is the 81st between the arch-rivals, and the Heels lead the series 47-33.

Bonfire today

Staff reports

A bonfire and party will be held on the brickyard today at 5:00. This event, in recognition of the anniversary of State's victory against Houston to win the National Basketball Championship, is Student Government sponsored.

Perry Woods, Chairman of the Senate Communication and Information Committee, is in charge of the project. "We're not looking for the emotional frenzy of last year, we just felt the occasion was worthy of a party," he said.

Woods went on to comment, "Originally we had hoped to have the flag raising ceremony for the team's 'Never Say Die' spirit at this time. Unfortunately due to delays, that had to be postponed." If it is raining at 4:00pm, the event will be cancelled.

Wolfpack netters falter in league play

State's Elder gets low for the return against Duke Tuesday. Elder, the No. 2 player, dropped the match to the Blue Devils' Mayor 6-2, 6-3. The Wolfpack lost the match, 8-1.

The team of Leslie Lewis and Kerri Kohlema scored a come-from-behind 1-6, 6-4, 7-6 win over Julie Leveering and Ruth Englander in the No. 1 doubles match, but the Wolfpack women's tennis team was blitzed in every other match to fall to Duke 8-1 Tuesday at Lee Courts.

The men's team also had its woes in the ACC as it was whitewashed by Clemson 9-0 Monday at the Pack courts.

The Pack women fell to 5-8 overall and 1-5 in the ACC, while the men fell to 6-7 and 0-4.

Lewis and Kohlema battled back from a 5-2 deficit to score the win, their 10th against three losses. The duo increased its ACC record to 3-2.

No. 2 Gretchen Elder (8-5 overall, 2-3 in the ACC), No. 3 Amy Maddox (4-7, 1-3), No. 4 Kerri Kohlema (6-7, 1-3), No. 5 LeAnna Lewis (4-9, 0-6) and No. 6 Susan Carpenter (3-10, 1-6) also fell in singles action.

In men's singles play, No. 1 Clint Weathers fell to 7-5 overall and 0-4 in the league with a 6-2, 6-1 loss to Lawson Duncan.

Also suffering setbacks were No. 2 Tony Baker (3-9 overall, 1-3 in the ACC), No. 3 Scott Stanford (3-7, 0-4), No. 4 Joey Cirvello (3-6, 0-3), No. 5 Mark Blankinship (3-6, 0-3) and No. 6 Brian Mavor (0-2, 0-2).

The No. 1 doubles team of Weathers and Baker fell 7-5 and 0-4.

Horde rocks the World

Wares DeBeef
Entertainment Writer

It was a boring, windy night in March when I received a call from Technitrim. But this was no ordinary call, however. Unlike those dozens of calls from the "Big T" to cover entertainment events such as concerts by Loverboy and Quiet Riot, this was THE call.

I had been assigned to interview perhaps the hottest heavy metal band on the east coast. You guessed it: Infrared Horde. Quickly I packed my bags and headed out to meet the boys in the band. Shortly after arriving at the band's headquarters in west Raleigh, I met the Horde's guitarist, Dub Autry. Autry's appearance is most unlike other heavy metal guitarists. He is just too, well, big to be a rock-n-roller. Yet, after hearing him play, my doubts were quickly erased. This guy can jam.

As Autry played in a makeshift studio in the headquarter's conference room, I heard the familiar voice of lead vocalist Tim Ellington as he entered the lobby. After being introduced I found Ellington to be affable, neo-charming and an overall good guy. And yes, in person he sounds just like he does when singing with the Horde. We chatted for half an hour or so until the final member of the band arrived.

Just a few days ago several girls told me that Infrared Horde bassist Tim Tew was their raison d'être. They also mentioned whips, chains, barbed wire and Mazola, but that's a different story. After meeting him, I must say I was not as impressed.

Don't get me wrong, I was impressed, but whips, chains, barbed wire and Mazola never crossed my mind.

According to Autry, plans for the Horde call for a new album and tour. I also inquired about the recent parting of the band's drummer. "We're getting by without one, since we aren't doing any shows right now," Autry stated. Tew added, "We are looking for one, and hopefully we'll have one soon."

In addition to the album, Infrared Horde plans to produce two or three high-budget videos. Ellington feels that videos "can make or break a group. You have to be careful and produce a video which will contribute to the goal of selling your song." "And selling the song is what it's all about," interrupted Tew. "Artists can say that they are making music just as a means of expression. Don't hand me that crap. We're only in it for the money."

The fact that Infrared Horde is extremely popular is remarkable, since the band has only one record to its credit, a self-titled EP. Thanks to relentless touring and a great rapport with their audience, Infrared Horde has built a tremendous following.

That following of loyal followers will surely grow as tentative plans call for Infrared Horde to tour with the recently reunited Boston later this year. Look for 1984 to be the year of Infrared Horde.

Satan parties at The Club

It's about time decency through law won out in America.

I'm talking about, of course, the closing of the Culture Club, that there hangout of weirdos, that subversive den of underworld sin that had lured so many of Raleigh's precious and naive youngsters to its doors. Everyone knows it's a place of the devil himself, and I'm glad someone's finally struck another blow against Satan.

I'd like to congratulate the Raleigh Police Department on its thorough job of making sure that the Culture Club was punished for its demonic audience and its equally devilish music. The good Lord don't want us to hear no songs but those that rejoice in His name - well, He told me He didn't mind a little Wayne Jennings every once in a while though. If God had wanted us to listen to punk rock, he'd have given us all spiked hair. Hardcore sounds like pornography to me, which automatically makes it a big sin. And it isn't like I don't know what I'm saying either. I saw it on that MTV channel. Punk rock bands like Duran Duran and that bar's namesake, The Culture Club, are on that station, and believe me, these folks is strange. The other day I caught my daughter looking at them videos instead of watching the good folks at the PTL Club and I slammed her upside the head for doing what God didn't want her to do.

I do have a complaint, though. That there club's been open since at least October. That's about HALF A YEAR. Why such slowness? Do you realize that all that time our good children have been being taken into the ways of the devil himself? Besides that cost me - the taxpayer (that's you too) - lots of dollars that we could've given to Jimmy Swaggart. Why not close it down after the first complaint of loud noise? It would have saved Raleigh more money and trouble.

Then there was the Polaris drug raid. I knew them there weirdos had to do something to make 'em so strange. While the police were doing their job of cleaning out all them drug fiends, they did a thorough job by strip searching some young ladies - and get this - them girls actually complained. Don't they know weirdos have no rights? Good gosh, this is America.

But the selling alcohol to minors got owner Frank Thompson good - took away his beer license. But he still didn't close. Just the other night, after that there rock-n-roll concert at Memorial Auditorium - don't the city know that the policemen keeping them youngins in check shouldn't have to listen to that junk, so why book bands with strange names like The Alarm or The Pretenders? Well anyway, a lot of them punks was there that night. He's letting 'em brown bag their own beers in there.

Well, rumor has it that that fancy-schmancy Mr. Thompson got his Entertainer's licence taken away.

MOORE L. MAJORITY

Entertainment Writer

Thank my Lord. Just in time too. Next week a band from California - anything west of Georgia's bound to be funny - called Black Flag was supposed to play there, but I guess that Satan will have to find other tramping grounds, won't he? Anything west of the Mississippi loves to be weird.

Someone told me that they play record albums by bands like XTC, X and U2 there. Their's bound to be code names for the devil. Them U2 boys are from Ireland. They said they was Christians, but they can't be cause I heard 'em say they ain't never even killed one Catholic.

If that there Culture Club - isn't that Boy George fellow strange? - goes back into business, I sure will be a heap upset. If the devil triumphs, my church is gonna write a big long letter to the good Senator Helms and also get Rev. Falwell to get Ronald Reagan to declare it a threat to the country. That'll show 'em - we'll send in the Marines. This is America and there ain't no place in my country for people who are different.

THE SERIOUS TRIM BOX

Possessed!

Wayne Kerr, formerly of hardcore punk rockers No Labels, is believed to be possessed by demons. This possession is attributed to his frequent visits to Raleigh's Culture Club.

Kim Wilde and Pete Townshend visit their pal Craig Dean at the Technitrim costume ball. The bullet holes testify to the event's atmosphere.

Townshend crashes

Bob Frapples
Entertainment Writer

The annual Technitrim costume ball, held Saturday night in the Packhouse, started out in a normal enough fashion, but some unexpected gate crashers turned the night into a memorable one for all who attended.

The crashers were Pete Townshend and Kim Wilde, two of England's most famous music personalities.

Guests were both surprised and delighted that Wilde and Townshend had shown up at the bash.

When asked how they knew about the party, Townshend said, "Craig Dean told us. Where is he anyway?" And with those words, Townshend set off to look for Dean, who had told everyone he'd be dressed as Fred Fresh, just as he did on Halloween.

For some reason, however, Dean was dressed as a big red worm, so the two didn't get to join together for a while.

After finally finding each other, Dean, Townshend and Wilde shared old memories. Even the appearance of partiers took their Mafia costumes a bit too seriously and shot a few holes in the wall didn't damper the festivities.

Around 1 a.m., Townshend said he was a little too old to stay up all night long, so he retired to his room at the Radisson Hotel. Shortly after that Dean and Wilde were seen arm in arm, heading back to Sullivan Hall for a nightcap.

Opinion Technician

A paper that is entirely the product of the student body becomes at once the official organ through which the thoughts, the activity and in fact the very life of the campus are registered. It is the mouthpiece through which the students themselves talk. College life without its journal is blank.

Technician, vol. 1, no. 1, Feb. 1, 1920

Soviets suck dead dogs to thwart the American way

Following in the true spirit of former Secretary of the Interior James Watt, Technitrim is appalled by the apparent choice of 'rock and roll' bands for the two major campus-wide concerts, Central Campus Craze and West Campus Jam.

The bands that will most likely be playing the next two Saturdays will be playing one form of evil or another, whether it is heavy-metal, funk, new-wave, punk, or beach. It is all anti-American propaganda that is directly supported by the Russians.

Many liberals think that musical freedom is a God-given right. This is not the case. In this great land of ours, you have a God-given right to choose from any of the three superlative American artists: Don Ho, Liberace or Wayne Newton. Don Ho is as American as coconut pie. Liberace's and Wayne Newton's sartorial splendor surpasses that of any Soviet entertainer. The Soviets have failed in many attempts to showcase radical left-wing acts such as The Beach Boys and Michael Jackson. Goddess groups such as these are not patronized by real card-carrying Americans.

The Soviets have attacked our youth through music using backwards masking on Wayne Newton records. Phrases such as, "Death to the American Imperalist twinkle manufacturers," and "The great unwashed Soviet Horde is your friend," are heard when Wayne Newton is played backwards. Upstating American youth are subliminally forced to disregard safe volume levels, thus endangering their precious bodily fluids.

Where will the Soviet Union stop? Well, they won't stop with just Afganistan. They won't stop with Central America. They won't stop until every member of the Daughters of the American Revolution has been brutally raped and forced to drool on pictures of our Glorious Forefathers. And that won't be nice.

What about the Salvadors?(Did you know that means "let the dog eat"? ) The Salvadoran government is doing a commendable job initiating democracy in their country. They personally talk to people that don't agree with the government in a friendly manner, and then remove all their vital organs. The United States should encourage this type of democratic debate. And you know, ain't democracy a fine institution? What other form of government allows for free expression of one's anxieties on less fortunate people?

And speaking of less fortunate people, don't you think dogs really need collars when they are in the city? We think they do.

University Dining poisons students

Once again, the University is seeking to push its own ideas of what is acceptable student behavior. The vehemence of this conservative clique shows its utter contempt for the progressive majority on this campus. I feel I speak for all students when I say that the recent revelation that University Dining has been mixing saltpeter into its food is indefensible and morally outrageous.

This policy of biological hegemony must cease immediately. Countless female egos have been severely damaged by this tyrannical act of libidinous assault. Female students were justifiably angry when they realized they were not at fault for their male friends' listless behavior. However, tarring and feathering the University officials by the mob coeds formed may have gone too far. Save these guys for us. Once we have fully detoxified from the saltpeter and remember what it was we didn't give a damn about.

JAMES WALKER

Editorial Columnist

University officials had best run for the hills. Furthermore, University officials have shown a lack of good faith by refusing to have the 100 pound sacks of saltpeter removed from the kitchen's storeroom. This could have a pacifying effect on the angry mob who have been picketing the Dining Hall since the discovery of the saltpeter late Sunday evening.

Helms, Jackson join forces

Washington — At a news conference today in the rotunda of the Capitol, Sen. Jesse Helms and the Rev. Jesse Jackson announced that they would run together on a national ticket — Jesse and Jesse in '84. They said that the ticket will be the ultimate national unity ticket.

Jackson said it will bring the oppressors and the oppressed together. Helms said it will bring good Christian white men and "Freds" together.

Helms was believed to have dropped out of the Senate race because of the incident involving one of his staffers last week. Thomas Paul DeWitt, an employee of Jefferson Marketing—the advertising arm of the National Congressional Club, took down the license plate numbers of cars at a Republican fund-raiser at the White House. Included among the license plate numbers was that of President Ronald Reagan's limousine.

DeWitt's explanation of the incident was that all those attending the fund-raiser were closet liberals anyway. When asked if that included the president he said yes.

As a result of the incident, Helms' funding was cut off by the Republican Senate Campaign Fund. The incident also caused quite an embarrassment for Helms in North Carolina. Helms, who was pulling even with Gov. Jim Hunt, fell 20 points behind because of the incident.

As for Jackson's reason for joining Helms on the ticket, it is because he wants to include racists in his rainbow coalition. "I tried to get Glen Miller of the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, but he wouldn't talk to me," Jackson said. "Helms is the highest elected racist in the country, and I believe we could get the Klan's votes."

What effect will this have on the current race for the Democratic nomination? Obviously it means former Vice President Walter Mondale will get the nomination.

Right now there are negotiations between the Mondale people and the Hart people over a national ticket. Hart said he will not serve on the national ticket. He said he prefers a woman on the ticket. There has been some talk of having Dolly Parton on the ticket. The proposed slogan is "Fritz and Tits in '84."

In the Reagan Bush camp, there has been talk of trying to regain the bigot vote. One idea is to open the national Republican Convention in Dallas with a combination cross-burning and pig-pickin'.

However, it is doubtful that either party can stop a Jackson/Helms ticket. The powerful combination of bigotry and brotherhood is appealing to the conflicting sentiments in the country. It fulfills the ultimate dream of Simon Legree and Uncle Tom joining together in a common goal.

Also it could do the country much good by starting a major third party — the Jessecrats. Although the North Carolina Democratic Party has already renamed itself the Jessecrat Party, it needs to go nationwide. Such a party could do the other two parties a lot of good by making them more responsive to the people.

Jesse Jackson and Jesse Helms is the ultimate unity ticket. It brings together the left and the right, and cuts out the wishy-washy middle. It cuts out the old arrangements and definitely wipes away the politics of the past. It is the political movement of the '80s—Jesse and Jesse in '84.

Yocum plans mass executions, overthrows government

I'm writing this forum letter to express my distaste of Student Government. This is the untold story that concerns the impeachment trials.

The Election Board cancelled runoffs this week due to political unrest caused by insurgency in the Senate. Student Body President Jim Yocum, Student Senate President Rich Holloway and Election Board Chairman David Heller announced late Sunday night that elections will be postponed until the spring of 1985 at an unscheduled press conference Tuesday.

The Election Board insisted Yocum as Student Body Emperor presiding over the entire student body and Student Government. David Heller stated, "Since we're postponing the elections indefinitely, I feel that there is no better choice than Jim when it comes to dictatorship."

Yocum responded, "The runoffs are like a choice between Hitler and Stalin. I thought that I might as well hang around some more and run things the way they should be run, with an iron fist."

The "coup", code-named Operation Zebulon, began Saturday at a "Politics Suck" party sponsored by Marold Kama, student body treasurer. Trouble erupted when Yocum threw a mixed drink in Kama's face. Kama said, "You'll rot in hell, you sinner. Like the faggots."

Yocum then signaled his student patrol officers to detain any politician not vowing a pledge of service to himself and satan. Yocum said, "I'm in control here. And I'll be in charge for a long, long time because no one parties like the devil."

Yocum said, "Since all these allegations of scandal are being said about me, I figured I might as well start acting corrupt. Starting today, I will misappropriate funds, lie my head off and then kill some people. I'm really looking forward to it."

Upon producing firearms, the student patrol officers bound and gagged any dissenting senators. Yocum then ordered the immediate execution of three senators. Bill Rankin, John Nunnally and Phil Segal, and Kama for crimes against State. "They just didn't want to play hardball," Yocum said.

Kama was taken into custody Saturday night and hasn't been seen. Rankin retreated to Greensboro for a good hullabaloo. Nunnally has been committed to Dorothea Dix for psychological observation after a mental breakdown in the finance committee meeting. Segal is reported to be hiding in Robert's Rules.

A 6 p.m. curfew was ordered by Yocum for the campus and student patrol officers are told to "shoot first, ask questions later."

Yocum named his new party the Red Socks party. He named it in light of the school colors and as a symbol to bloodshed.

The press conference was attended by armed press secretaries and aligned henchmen. Selected members of the press were admitted but were told to ask no questions.

Yocum proclaimed a new government and a modified constitution. When asked what constitutional revisions were invoked, Yocum said, "My word is the law and no more questions. Have that reporter shot." The reporter was taken into custody.

"I'm assuming control of all media, WKNC, Technician, Agromeck and even Windhover. We must resistance at the Technician offices which were heavily armed with automatic weapons supplied by Editor-in-Chief Jeff Bender. We've got him arrested though. He'll pay. Right now, he's in our special debriefing room in the dungeons of the Student Center."

"I'm tired of not having the power to kill with intent. Now, I've taken it. I've studied the masters like Idi Amin and the Shah of Iran, and I think I can do a good job. The student patrol officers are zealously enforcing my new policies. I love it. I've always said that if the boot fits, lick it," Yocum said.

Public Safety officers have reported that 2,000 students have been arrested for questioning. All presidential candidates are being sought.

"I'm really after Michael Parker. He's been messing with my women," Yocum said. During the last senate meeting, Parker allegedly harassed a female senator and said, "You smell like female; I like female." "Plus, he's sooo fat," Yocum said. ("How fat is he? He's so fat that whenever he goes anywhere, he has to make two trips.")

"We've got Steve (Hillard) cornered in his office, but he won't give up. I'd get him even if I have to use napalm," Yocum said.

"Welcome to my nightmare," Yocum said. Let's get the story straight, guys.

Students write physical fitness book

Watermelanie Vaporub
Feature Editor

College can be a fattening experience for many students. Slim and trim high school figures transform into hefty, bulgy shapes within a period of only four years.

Two State students have recently devised a plan to avoid this weight-gain phenomenon and have published this plan in a book: Technecize.

Technecize, the latest fitness book on the market, was co-authored by two student writers, Melanie Vick and Kim Davis.

"We saw a need for a student-oriented exercise book," Vick said. "The exercise books that were on the market did not take into consideration the diverse lifestyle of a college student."

According to Vick, most fitness books apply to people with a set work schedule: the nine to five worker. This group of people will find it easier to fit an exercise and fitness program into their daily routine because their routine does not change drastically from one day to the next.

The college student, however, rarely has the same schedule from one day to the next. There are early classes one day, followed by late afternoon classes the next and studying in between — this makes any type of fitness program hard to incorporate.

"We tried to structure our fitness program to work around this scheduling problem," Davis said. Instead of the conventional programs that suggest at least 30 minutes of exercise three times a week, our program is based on small quantities of exercise every day that can be done wherever the student may be.

Among some of the exercises highlighted in Technecize are "the library lunge, the Patterson press, the Thompkins thrust, the Harrelson hurdle and the Winston walk."

"These exercises are great to keep students awake in class as well as to strengthen and tone up muscles," Davis said. "The student can go through his normal day's activities, uninterrupted, and exercise at the same time."

TECHNECIZE

A GUIDE TO FITNESS FOR STUDENTS BY STUDENTS

WRITTEN BY

KIM DAVIS AND MELANIE VICK

These class exercises are just a part of the whole Technecize program. "These exercises help to maintain muscle tone, but they don't do much for the cardiovascular system," Vick said. "For this reason, we have also developed an aerobics program, outlined in the book, that we hope will soon be offered as a P.E. course here at State. We are also in the process of signing a contract for an aerobics album." Weight lifting is still another angle of fitness that Technecize deals with. Some females tend to shy away from weights due to the fear of building large, masculine muscles. "This fear is unfounded unless she were to spend several hours a day everyday in the weight room," Davis said. "When used with our program, weight training is an excellent method to tone and firm muscles." Men who follow the Technecize weight training program will see rapid results in muscle definition and tone as well as in building strength.

One final aspect that Technecize outlines is diet. "This is the most difficult area for students to control, and we attribute this to the strange hours college students keep," Vick said.

If a student eats dinner at 6 p.m. and does not go to sleep until 1 a.m. or 2 a.m., it's time for another meal. This is where late night pizzas and late night calories take their toll to add unwanted pounds. Technecize tells how to avoid these late eating binges.

Vick and Davis said that their book will be arriving soon at the campus bookstore and that they will hold an autograph session in the Student Center lobby when Technecize arrives.

Woodson collects 16 RBI

Divin Steelebtrim

First baseman Tracy Woodson provided all of State's runs with four grand slams, an NCAA record, as the Wolfpack baseball team hammered High Point College, 16-1, Monday in a tune-up game for today's ACC clash with nationally 4th-ranked North Carolina.

Woodson, who leads the nation in home runs with 24, got his bases-loaded roundtrippers in the first, third, fifth and eighth innings as the Wolfpack increased its record to 25-5.

3-for-3 as the Pack blasted out 26 hits.

"I think everyone turned down trim last night," 18-year State coach Sam Esposito said. "I've never had a performance like this by any one player or any one team. Maybe now they'll turn down down the bush league until after the season. When they coach, they can play in it every night."

Woodson's blasts gave State leads of 4-0 in the first, 8-0 in the third, 12-0 in the fifth and 16-0 in the eighth.

High Point's lone run came in the ninth inning on State lost its first game this year with the Tar Heels, 3-1 at Cary-Boshamer Stadium in Chapel Hill.

"You will die, Heels," Esposito said.

Huskers to replace Pirates

William Picka Cherry
Sports Writer

State Director of Athletics Willis Casey announced Sunday that the Wolfpack football program is dropping East Carolina from its football schedule and replacing the Pirates with Nebraska.

"We want to be as competitive as we can be as fast as we can get there," Casey said in a rare but brief statement to a group of reporters standing outside a chilly Case Athletics Center. "We feel the only way to improve our program is to play the best."

"To be the best, you have to play the best. Look at Notre Dame, they finish 6-5 every year and get a bowl bid just because they play Alabama, Penn State, Southern Cal and Pitt, and they've got an alumnus on the Liberty Bowl Committee. We've already got Pitt and Penn State on our future schedules. Now all we have to do is get (sophomore defender) Reggie Singletary on the Aloha Bowl Committee."

East Carolina responded angrily to the report that its 14-year series with the Wolfpack would be scrapped. A crowd of angry Pirate fans stood outside of Central Prison chanting "Kill him, Kill him." It was later learned that Casey was visiting a relative within.

Casey made the decision after a 12-hour meeting between himself, Chancellor Bruce Poulton, head football coach Tom Reed and three coaches representing Nebraska's Committee for an Undeclared Season. The decision by Casey overturned an earlier motion by Poulton to extend the series.

Several Pack football players sobbed openly after spring practice when told of the Pirates' demise. One player commented before departing for the showers, "That's the last time they'll beat our s--" The Pirates were always the underdog to State in the series and the Pack, feeling they had nothing to gain but everything to lose, put an end to the last remaining scrap of ACC-ECU rivalry.

Nebraska officials said they would schedule the Pack just before their fall break and then vacation a week in Chapel Hill following the game. When asked, "Why Chapel Hill?" Nebraska Sports Information Director Don Bryan said, "We want to get as far away from major college football as we can."

ECU football coach Ed Emory was irate about the situation. "By golly if those chicken s-- ACC schools won't play us we'll go to Florida and play every d-- school in the state."

Emory hinted that the Pirates might begin the year with Florida's School for the Visually Impaired. (Monte Kiffin and Pat Dye contributed to this story)

Tad McGinn
Sports Writer

Linda Page, a high-scoring forward on State's women's basketball team, announced Tuesday that she will forego her senior year to join the newly-formed Women's Professional Basketball League.

The surprise announcement came after the Wolfpack Women completed a successful season with their third consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament.

scoring this year with a 22.6 average. She currently ranks third on the all-time scoring list at State with 1,674 points. She trails Genia Beasley (2,367) and Trudi Lacey (1,957).

"I know I could get that record next year easy," Page said. "All I need is about 600 points (actually 698) and it's mine. But why should I play here when I can get more money and shoot more in the pros."

Page was asked if she thought the decision to leave school early would affect her chances of making the Olympic squad, of which State coach Kay Yow is an assistant coach.

whether I deserve it or not."

Yow disagreed with that statement.

"She doesn't have nary a chance," an obviously upset Yow said. "No player who leaves my team early for money deserves anything."

"If she doesn't think I'm paying her enough, then I'm glad she's leaving. Who needs her anyway?"

The answer to that question is simple - State does. With practically everybody returning from this year's team (only forward Claudia Kreicker graduates from the starting lineup) the Wolfpack appeared ready to challenge for a national crown.

Pack's country boy returns to chores

Divin Steelehertrim
Sports Editor

Terry Shackelford, a 6-11 freshman center on State's basketball team, announced Tuesday he will transfer to High Point College this fall.

Citing a need to be closer to his mother, Shackelford said that Raleigh was not the place for a "country boy like me."

"You just don't know how hard it was for me to leave ma and all the chores behind to go to school in the city," he said at a press conference at the College Inn. "I used to lie awake at night and think about ma and Lady Bell (a pet cow) and how lonely they must be."

His Denton home is 25 miles from the High Point campus.

"High Point is the ideal place for me," he said. "That way I can help around the farm four times a week."

Shackelford, having showed marked improvement late in the season, was expected to battle incoming all-America Chris Washburn and three-year starter Cozell McQueen at the pivot next season, according to coach Jim Valvano.

"Terry demonstrated all the traits of an outstanding center when he practiced," the Pack mentor said. "When he really turns it on, he impresses me more than Chris and sometimes more than Cozell."

Shackelford will probably be used as a forward at High Point, according to High Point coach Marty Fletcher.

"Terry could start at the No. 3 position if he continues to progress," Fletcher said. "The center position is already locked up (by 7-2 Vladimir Hockshmier)."

Tab: Box office smash?

Mock Gizzum
Sports Writer

Wolfpack wrestler Tab Thacker, this year's NCAA heavyweight champion, flew to Hollywood, Ca., Monday to audition for a co-star role in a Warner Brothers movie.

Thacker, a 447-pound man-mountain, is trying out for the part of a body guard in the movie Cannonball Run II, which stars Clint Eastwood.

Thacker caught the eye of the movie's producers during the NCAA tournament in East Rutherford, N.J., last month.

"Tab's forte seems to be smashing people, and that's exactly what we're looking for," Producer Chip DeLong said. "We want someone who takes no prisoners, who asks questions later and who looks as innocent as a teddy bear. Tab I think fits the mold."

Thacker is expected back in Raleigh Thursday.

Players enjoy "The Ultimate Experience"

Scott Keepefeelingherass
Ass. Sports Editor

Head football coach Tom Reed, sporting a new-look Mohawk haircut and Mr. T attire, welcomed close to 100 athletes for the opening day of spring practice Monday. The daily sessions will continue throughout the next few weeks before climaxing with non-stop 24-hour workouts in preparation for the first-annual Alumni Game in Carter-Finley Stadium on April 28th.

The players participated in what Reed called "an extremely mild workout" during Monday's initial seven-hour session, including basic running and weightlifting exercises. But Reed, who is well-known for his mild manner and easy-going practices, clearly indicated that the drills would become increasingly more difficult in order "to separate the men from the boys."

The run, a 15-mile cross country trek, served as "a loosening-up phase" before the unit began the weightlifting session. Like the running jaunt, the barbell workout was nothing out of the ordinary, consisting of simple continuous super-sets of bench presses, upright and reverse curls, rowing, leg lifts, military presses, power cleans and squats.

"Each player has been following a similar program every single day since our season-ending 29-6 loss to Maryland," Reed said. "So they certainly weren't placed under any undue stress."

"It was a very easy practice considering the amount of work we have to do. The troops will be subject to much more rigorous training from here on out."

The players were also introduced to "Reederercise" — a newly-developed exercise program based on Cow Dung's ancient Chinese masochistic rituals. The program begins with body-slams in the sitting, standing, supine and blindfolded positions and ends two hours later with a group pile-on.

In between, the players enjoy such stimulating exercises as the hip-pointer special, groin grind, skin ripper, cranium crunch and everyone's favorite — the "Thack Smack."

"Thack", of course, refers to State heavyweight wrestler Tab Thacker, while "smack" is the sound made when the 447-pound teddy bear completes a diving belly flop on each player.

"I honestly feel that is our most popular event," Reed said. "At least I've heard no negative feedback from any of the players. It leaves them all speechless."

Following the lead of coach-businessman Jim Valvano, Reed now hopes to enter the exercise record market with his soon-to-be-released LP entitled "Reederercise — The Ultimate Experience."

"I'll be damned if I'm going to sit back and let radicals like Jane Fonda and Richard Simmons corner the market," Reed said while lacing up his black combat boots. "It's prime time for someone new, and I think I fit the bill."

Boy Georges replace Heels

Steve Pope Paul
Intriramals Editor

CHAPEL HILL - In a strange twist of events, North Carolina Athletic Director Johnny Swofford announced Tuesday that the 1984-85 edition of the University of North Carolina's men's basketball team will be replaced by the school's intramural champions, the Boy Georges.

"I don't want to say anything bad about this year's boys, but I really believe they would be more productive focusing on some other campus activities," Swofford said. "Plus, this will serve as a mild reprimand for them for choking in the NCAA's this year."

When asked to elaborate on the decision, Swofford said that members of the Boy Georges were "students first, athletes second."

"This is a great bunch of guys," he said. "I think they better represent this fine university than any of our current boys do."

"It will also give our (varsity) boys a chance to eat more of Ma D's fried chicken and give Michael (Jordan) more time to study his geography."

Swofford said that the Tar Heels' mental lapses late in some crucial games also led to his decision.

"If they were students first, they wouldn't do stupid things when the game was on the line," he said. "I mean you don't guard your own man when you're down by four with five minutes left. The Boy Georges are smarter than that."

Despite the drastic decision, Swofford said that head coach Dean Smith will remain at Carolina to coach the Boy Georges next season.

"Dean is God here, and God is Dean," he said. "He knows his Xs and Os, but Omnipresent Doherty held teammate Jordan scoreless for five full minutes in a recent game. Such late-game antics led to Swofford's decision to replace the Heels with the Boy Georges.

with the B.G.'s, he won't have to do diddly-squat. They run their transition game to a tee, alternate their defenses very well and can go to a cat-and-mouse game at the blink of an eye. Dean can still coach without really coaching. It will be sort of a semi-retirement for him."

Swofford, who witnessed the Boy Georges championship victory over Delta Gaiz fraternity, said he is optimistic about the team's chances against NCAA competition.

Lowe's cousin commits to State

Quentin Jackson, a 6-0 senior point guard at DeMatha High School in Hyattsville, Md., announced Tuesday he will attend State on a basketball grant-in-aid this fall.

Jackson continues a 10-year DeMatha-State connection that has included Kenny Matthews, Hawkeye Whitney, Sidney Lowe, Derek Whittenburg and Bennie Bolton. He will be the second point guard from the high school to ink with the Wolfpack. The first was Lowe, who led State to the NCAA title last year.

Log rolling will be added as a varsity sport at State in the 1985 lumberjack season, Athletics Director Willis Casey said in a press conference Monday at Case Athletics Center.

"Log rolling is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation and I am proud that we had the foresight to add it," State Chancellor Bruce Poulton, who also attended the press conference, said.

Casey and Poulton hope that the addition of log rolling will help lend credibility to the ACC as a conference.

"In the past, State and indeed the entire confer-

Jackson, a distant cousin of Lowe, averaged the exact number of points as Lowe as a prep senior (12.1), the exact number of assists (7.8) and the exact number of steals (5.4).

"He looks so much like Sid, I sometimes call him that," DeMatha coach Morgan Wootten said. "He's the coach on the floor, the player I can count on to carry out the game plan."

State coach Jim Valvano said Jackson should provide immediate help.

"Quentin is the player every coach dreams about," he said. "He knows what the deal is, just like Sidney. Playing for ence has been bogged down with basketball and football and other Mickey Mouse sports," Casey said. "But now with our addition of log rolling and Duke's addition of competitive fan violence, the conference will finally be recognized as the tough conference it really is."

Casey named Eric Ellwood as head coach of the team. Ellwood, currently the dean of forest resources, has been a lumberjack for years and received his start in the Great Sierra National Forest in Nevada.

"We have a great location here for a sport like this. There's a lot of talent on this campus and with our forestry program, re-Jackson is expected to draw as many raves as cousin Lowe did. Morgan, he is very accustomed to our style of play. I expect him to start soon in his career. I don't want to say he can give us everything Sidney did, but if his backcourt mate (Donald Whittenburg) signs, we have the potential of winning the national championship at least two out of the next four years."

cruting will be as easy as downing a giant stack of flap-jacks," Ellwood said. "It's time we put these resources to use."

The loggers will hold their home matches in Lake Jordan and, like other varsity sports, students with current registration cards will get into the matches free.

"If they ever get tough enough to offer it, we will definitely be able to beat Carolina in this one," Poulton said. "And you can believe that sh--!" Ellwood said.
