Hokies top Pack in Peach Bowl

Team disappointed by loss; not season

ATLANTA — He stood pressed in a corner deep within the innards of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, with only a cinder block wall between him and the locker room, which he indicated was full of the tears and disappointment of his players. Surrounded by a throng of sympathetic reporters, Coach Dick Sheridan — the man who made a three-time 3-8 football team into a nationally-ranked participant in the New Peach Bowl — was asked about the pass interference call that set up a game-winning field goal for all-America Virginia Tech kicker Chris Kinzer.

"I just don't ever really make any comment on the (officials') calls," an obviously disappointed Sheridan said. "I'll let 'em do that."

Okay, Offer accepted.
IT STUNK!! IT WAS TERRIBLE AND NOT EVEN CLOSE!!! WE SHOULD'VE WON!!!!
ARRRRRRH!!!!

Now that that is out of the way, what really happened on the play? Well, it was set up by a series of misfortunes and bad plays.

The first misfortune was on Virginia Tech's second offensive play as Wolfpack strong safety Chris Johnson dislocated his shoulder and was out for the rest of the game. His replacement, red-shirt freshman Brian Gay, had not played defensive back in any regular-season game. Gay filled in admirably, making five tackles and defending well on several pass plays. But the fact of the matter is that the Wolfpack just didn't play well in the second half. Not well enough to win. Two Erik Kramer fumbles led to a pair of Virginia Tech touchdowns. And State didn't make a third down conversion the entire second half.

State ran only eight offensive plays (including one punt) in the third quarter, compared to Virginia Tech's 30 plays. In the second half, the Hokies owned the ball for more than 20 minutes.

But State seemed to have the game wrapped up when all-ACC punter Kelly Holodick, one of the team's fastest runners, got a first down on a broken fake punt attempt. Holodick was supposed to pass, but the Hokies had the play well covered. Holodick changed directions and simply outran everybody to the first down marker.

Alas, State couldn't make another first down and run out the clock. Tech got the ball with just under two minutes remaining.

The Hokies went down the field. And down. And down. With :20 left, Tech was on the State 28, plenty close for all-America kicker Chris Kinzer to attempt a 45-yard field goal. Including a 46-yarder in the first half, Kinzer had made 10 of 12 tries from beyond 40 yards.

But outgoing Tech coach Bill Dooley wanted to be a little closer, so he tried another play.

State was expecting the Hokies to throw a short pass to get a few yards closer. Something short, to the sidelines so they could stop the clock. Taylor and Jones were playing close to the line of scrimmage. The secondary was in a man-to-man coverage. Gay, too, was expecting something short.

"It really surprised me," said Taylor, who was named defensive player of the game. "Really I thought they were going to throw it to my guy, because they had just done that."

But Tech threw long, and David Everett got behind Gay.

Men hoopsters go 5-1 during semester break

By Tim Peeler

Basketball, for the first time in more than eight years, wasn't really what was on the New Year's minds of most Wolfpack fans. Those alumni who normally only travel to the NCAA Basketball Tournament were even seen in Atlanta for the football team's showing in the Peach Bowl.

Fortunately, those in Atlanta didn't have to miss the basketball action. The athletics department arranged to have the State-Loyola of Chicago game, played on Dec. 30, piped into the Home Subscriber Network, which services the Atlanta Marriott Marquis, where most of the Wolfpack football contingent was housed for the Peach Bowl.

Partying State fans got to watch the Wolfpack down the Ramblers, 97-85.

It was only one of five wins since classes ended last semester. State lost one contest to Division II power Tampa, a game that Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano did not attend because of a viral infection.

State, ranked 18th nationally, faces the undefeated and 20th-rated Clemson Tigers tonight at 7:30 in Clemson's Littlejohn Coliseum. The Tigers, whose schedule thus far has been a joke, are 10-0 but have not yet played in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

State's only conference action was a 69-47 drubbing Saturday night in Reynolds Coliseum against struggling Maryland, playing under new head coach Bob Wade.

The only thing the Terps looked like was unfamiliar, as only two-year starter Derrick Lewis returned from a team that finished second in last year's ACC Tournament. But ever since you know what happened to you know who, the Terps have been lucky to even field a team.

Even Lewis wasn't expected to start because of a badly sprained ankle. But the 6-7 junior forward played all but three minutes in the game, scoring 11 points and grabbing five rebounds.

Wade used as much of a slow-down offense as he could with the 45-second clock to try to stop State. In the first half, it worked effectively and the Terps took a 28-26 lead into halftime.

But State reeled off 12 straight points to begin the second half and Maryland's semi-threat died after intermission.

The Wolfpack had four players in double digits, though no one really took charge and became designated "Star-for-a-Night." Bennie Bolton and Vinny Del Negro shared the team lead with 12 points apiece. Sophomores Charles Shackelford and Kelsey Weems dumped in 10 each and Chucky Brown added nine for good measure. Junior point guard Kenny Drummond played most of the game with a hurt back. "I thought that we played very well in the second half," Valvano said. "They did an absolutely great job of holding the ball in the first half."

With the exception of Tampa, all the other holiday games came out exactly as planned — State won handily although both Western Carolina and Duquesne gave the Wolfpack a not-reflective-in-the-final-score challenge.

In the Tampa loss, the Wolfpack learned that basketball is no good as a democracy. With Valvano back in Raleigh feeling poorly, his assistants tried to coach by committee. Dick Stewart joked before the game that Ray Martin was along to break ties between Stewart and the staff's other coach, Ed McLean.

But, they the Pack, in order to lose a less important game and establish a good non-conference record, couldn't stop Spartan John Jones, as the senior guard pumped in 30 points and grabbed eight rebounds.

The Pack held Todd Linder, last year's Division II Player of the Year, to only eight points, but couldn't control Jones.

State committed 27 turnovers and shot just 27 percent from the field in the second half, blowing a 41-33 halftime lead.

State's next home contest is this Saturday against Georgia Tech, beginning at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum. Student pickup for the game begins Thursday at 6 a.m. and continues through Friday.

Miracle season ends with 25-24 VPI win

ATLANTA The luck ran out for Coach Dick Sheridan's Cardiac Pack New Year's Eve as Virginia Tech beat State 25-24 on a 40-yard field goal in the last four seconds of the New Peach Bowl.

The Wolfpack had come from behind with incredible finishes all season, the most incredible being the Kramer-to-Peebles touchdown after the clock had run down in the South Carolina game.

After that game, Sheridan said the odds were against winning games like that. He said that finish was lucky.

Apparently he was right. The Wolfpack's luck didn't hold out.

"Of course this game didn't turn out as good as could be for us," Sheridan said. "But for one play, we'd be feeling great right now."

You just can't count on an all-America kicker like Kinzer to miss a 40-yarder.

"Everybody was expecting a real close game," Sheridan said. "I don't guess it could get much closer."

Tech tailback Maurice Williams ran for 77 yards on the Hokies' first play from scrimmage and two plays later, tailback Eddie Hunter made a one-yard run over the goal line for the game's first score.

Tech could not pick up a first down on its next possession and was forced to punt from its own 15-yard line. State cornerback Derrick Taylor, later voted the outstanding defensive player of the game, blocked the punt and defensive tackle Brian Bullock recovered the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. Senior Mike Cofer's kick tied the game at seven.

"It was exciting," Bullock said. "It was my first score in college. I didn't really think about it, it just happened."

The Hokies retook the lead on their next drive as Williams and Hunter traded carries to bring Tech within Kinzer's range. Kinzer connected on a 46-yard attempt with a minute left in the quarter.

Wolfpack free safety Michael Brooks ended the Hokies' first drive in the second quarter at the 50-yard line by intercepting quarterback Erik Chapman's pass.

The interception set up a scoring drive that ended on a 25-yard touchdown pass to flanker Nasrallah Worthen.

Taylor set up another touchdown by intercepting Chapman at Tech's 46 on the Hokies' next drive. Quarterback Erik Kramer, voted the game's most valuable offensive player, dumped off to tight end Ralph Britt in the end zone while Tech had three men covering Worthen. Cofer's PAT was good, giving State a 21-10 lead at the half.

The third quarter belonged to the Hokies.

"They controlled the ball in the third quarter, a critical time in the game," Sheridan said.

"I told the squad at the half that I thought we could win if we could cut down on the mistakes," Virginia Tech coach Bill Dooley said. "The two interceptions in the first half really hurt and so did the blocked punt."

Tech drove 50 yards, but could not capitalize on its first drive.

But State's offense stalled without making a first down, and the Hokies took over again.

Then Hunter fumbled on Tech's 40-yard line and State recovered, but the Pack got off only two plays before Kramer fumbled the ball and Tech's Carter Wiley recovered at the 28.

Tech cashed in Kramer's fumble with a 72-yard touchdown drive on the strength of Hunter, Williams' running and Chapman's 29-yard pass to Hunter at the one-yard line. Williams took the ball over the goal line on the next play.

Dooley decided to try a two-point conversion, which failed, leaving the score 21-16 in favor of the Wolfpack.

The fourth quarter was perhaps the most exciting the Pack has had in a season of heart-stopping fourth quarters. Wins over Wake Forest,

• For more coverage of the New Peach Bowl, see Pages 2, 3, 4, and 5.

North Carolina and South Carolina — all last-second wins — come to mind.

It began with Kramer fumbling the first play on the Tech 41 and Tech defensive end Victor Jones recovering.

Again Williams, Hunter and Chapman combined for a touch-down drive, this one 59 yards. Again Dooley called for a two-point attempt, and again that attempt failed.

Still, the drive gave the Hokies the lead at 22:21 for the first time since the second quarter.

Kramer then put on his comeback kid uniform and drove 40 yards before seeing two passes to the end zone called out of bounds and settling for a Cofer field goal to take a 24-22 lead.

After a Hokie punt midway in the quarter, the Pack drove from its own 14 to Tech's 40 when the real excitement began.

Punter Kelly Holodick faked a punt and ran five yards for a first down at Tech's 35.

At this point, Tech linebacker Jamal Agemy decided it was time to stop State. First he tackled Mal Crite for a one-yard loss, then sacked Kramer for a loss of seven to take the Pack out of field goal range.

State was forced to punt after an incomplete pass.

"It's difficult to single out players on the defense," Dooley said. "But I do know that Jamal Agemy played one whale of a game."

Then Chapman pulled out a comeback shot of his own and led the Hokies to State's 28-yard line.

Tech was penalized 10 yards on the next play for holding and taken out of field goal range.

But State couldn't resist a last-second finish and was penalized 15 yards on a questionable pass interference call against Brian Gay.

"It seemed like a case of see-saw penalties there at the end," Sheridan said.

The last penalty gave Kinzer a 40-yard field goal attempt to decide the game.

All-Americans don't miss very often, which is why they're all-Americans.

Kinzer's kick was good and Tech walked away with its first bowl win ever, 25-24.

Dooley, who became Virginia Tech's winningest coach earlier this season, declined to comment on his last day as coach and athletics director.

"Forget my personal feelings about this game and let me just say how proud and happy I am for the players," Dooley said. "Their goal was to be the first Tech team to win in a bowl game and they did it."

Pack takes players' honors

ATLANTA — Cornerback Derrick Taylor was named Defensive Player of the Game and quarterback Erik Kramer was named Offensive Player of the Game for their performances in the 19th annual Peach Bowl.

Not to take anything away from Kramer, a two-time all-ACC selection and the league's player of the year in 1986, but for our money, the offensive player of the game was Virginia Tech's Maurice Williams.

Not, mind you, for anything he did on offense, but for simply being offensive. Williams is the guy who pulled the stunt of being "injured" when Tech had the ball fourth and three on State's 32 yard line with :20 left in the game.

Williams' stunt stopped the clock and gave the Hokies a chance to think about their options for a good long time. Tech coach Bill Dooley decided to go for it on fourth down instead of bringing out all-America kicker Chris Kinzer for a 49-yard field goal attempt.

The next play, Hokie quarterback Eric Chapman completed a nine-yard pass to Steve Johnson for the first down. Two plays later, Kinzer booted a 40-yarder to win the game.

Williams admitted after the game that he played possum. Too bad this is your last year of eligibility, Maurice. We would have welcomed you graciously to Raleigh in two years when the Hokies come down to play the Wolfpack.

Just be careful if you ever drive on North Carolina roads. We all know what happens to possums around here.

Mal Crite's 101 yards rushing was probably the first time a Wolfpack fullback has gained more than 100 yards since tailback Joe McIntosh did it after eating a big meal. For his effort, Crite was named as the USA Network's Player of the Game.

Don't let it be said that Wolfpackers don't know how to party — even the wounded ones. The first person to get on the dance floor at the Lighthouse on the Peach Bowl excursion was fullback Steve Salley, who happened to be on crutches.

The orange shorts at Hooters... Unbelievable...Unprintable, too.

Danny Peebles' favorite part of the entire week was the hayride at Stone Mountain on Sunday night... just ask him.

Nasrallah Worthen revealed that he was named after a Kentucky Derby winner his Dad took a liking to... Worthen wasn't sure which Derby winner. Worthen, one of the trio of colorful receivers on the Wolfpack squad, had another interesting story to tell. Seems that last year during summer school, he was in a sociology course and the teacher was playing around with some "future-telling" shells and a Ouija board.

Naz, asked the teacher if the Wolfpack would go to a bowl game. Everytime the teacher "asked" the shells and the Ouija board, they said "Yes." Not putting his luck, the 57 flanker from Jacksonville, Fla., didn't ask who would win.

Salley wasn't the only rug-cutter in Atlanta — offensive coordinator Ted Cain and his wife Susan get our vote for the best. Shag Couple this side of Myrtle Beach for their performance at Studebaker's Monday night. These two rocked 'em and rolled 'em all night long.

Where did these two get so proficient at the beachside bop? Back in 1963, or 1959, in Cain's hometown of Aiken, S.C., also known as the cultural hub of the universe.

And speaking of Studebaker's, it seems that the club has some prime surfing surfaces that Technician Sports editor Tim Peeler, David Kivett, former student assistant at State's Sports Information office, and photog Marc Kawanishi just couldn't resist.

Chancellor Bruce Poulton was seen swiping a placematting at the Players and Coaches Luncheon Tuesday...to give to head coach Dick Sheridan, of course. It is not known if Sheridan needed any towels from the Marriott Marquis where the Wolfpack contingent was staying.

Speaking of the Players and Coaches Luncheon, emcee Lee Corso, former coach of Indiana and the Orlando Renegades of the USFL, had a little trouble with Wolfpack names. He called coach Dick Sheridan, "Coach Dick Sherman." Sherman is not a good name to call anybody in Atlanta.

Then Corso, who did the color commentary for the USA Network broadcast of the game, repeatedly called Chancellor Poulton "Chancellor Bolton." If he does any Wolfpack basketball broadcasts, listen for a couple of baskets by "senior forward Bennie Poulton."

Tuesday night before the game, the Marriott Marquis transformed into a 45-story Carter Finley Stadium. Fans on the hotel's two lobby levels cheered "Red...White...Red...White." The chant travelled loudly up the open center of the 1,648-room hotel.

They repeated the feat New Year's Eve, chanting "Wolfpack" loud enough to disturb the Hokies at the Hyatt across the street, whose paltry cheer of "Go...Hokies...Go" was barely audible.

Two Tech starters fail random steroid tests

ATLANTA — Virginia Tech was missing two of its regular starters in its 25-24 win over the Wolfpack because of positive drug tests.

Offensive lineman Jim Davie and defensive end Morgan Roane were suspended by Hokie head coach Bill Dooley, although Dooley would not explain why.

Later, Davie admitted that it was because they had failed their drug tests.

"I did it this summer while I was at home," Davie said. "The last time I took one was late June, early July. It was a very minute bit. I'm pretty disappointed about the whole thing."

Both Davie and Roane were team statistical leaders. Davie, a 6-3, 261-pounder, started all 11 regular-season games at offensive tackle. Roane, 6-6, 255 pounds, led the team in pass rushing with a team-high five hurried passes and was in on five sacks.

The Peach Bowl was one of 10 post-season bowl games that were tested for drugs under the NCAA's rigid new testing policy. Six bowls had, at least one, player suspended for positive drug tests. Altogether, almost an entire team — 21 players, including a pair of two-time all-Americans — failed drug tests and were not allowed to play in their teams' bowl game. Almost all the suspended players were ousted for using anabolic steroids, which are used to increase strength.

The new policy, adopted last January and put into effect in August, will eventually test every player on every bowl-bound team and a majority of the participants in other NCAA-sanctioned post-season events.

But this year for football, the 22 players who had played the most minutes and 14 randomly chosen reserves were tested from 20 teams playing in 10 of the major bowls. The NCAA had hoped to test teams from all 19 bowls but couldn't because there simply weren't enough top quality labs in the country to process the large number of specimens.

It is not known whether any State players were suspended for drug use. Wolfpack head coach Dick Sheridan has a policy of not making disciplinary decisions available to the public. But no State starters were missing from the lineup.

Dooley, though he continued to evade questions about the two players in question, said he supported the NCAA's drug testing policy.

Pass interference call questioned

"He just ran an up-and-out." Gay said. "I didn't expect them to throw long. He was a few steps behind me, so I just ran and I just tried to stay as close to him as I could and try to read his eyes to know when the ball was coming. I just put my arms up to knock the ball down."

"I thought I might have put a hand on him. But I really thought I made a clean play. Everybody said so anyway."

Taylor said: "The only thing they could have called was Brian having his hands up in the receiver's face, and in college that's legal. It isn't in the pros. But face-guarding is legal."

But the flag went down just as the ball hit the ground. Ten yards ahead on the State 23 with :04 to go, Kinzer calmly stepped up and booted a 40-yarder.

There was little chance he would miss.

"I didn't think he was going to miss it," Taylor said. "I felt the only way we were going to win the game was if either I or Nelson or anybody blocked it. We just barely missed it."

"When he got it off, I knew it was good."

Make it 11-for-13 from 40 yards and out for Kinzer during 1986. Give the Peach Bowl crown to Virginia Tech.

"Personally, I was hoping that we would get the ball back so we could pull another South Carolina," Taylor said, "but it didn't work out that way."

There would be no miracles this time. Unless, of course, you count the fact that the Wolfpack — after three straight 3-8's and a coaching change — was in a bowl game in the first place.

State celebrates season of surprising successes

ATLANTA — The 1986 8-21 football season was a surprise to Pack fans who had become accustomed to 3-8 records.

The season opened with a 38-10 come-from-behind victory over East Carolina in front of 38,850 fans, the most ever to watch a football game in North Carolina. Senior cornerback Derrick Taylor sparked the comeback effort with two second-half interceptions, which both set up Wolfpack touchdowns.

The Pack again came from behind against Pitt, reducing the Panthers' 11-point lead to nothing in the final five minutes of play. Senior placekicker Mike Cofer set a school record in the game, scoring his ninth and 10th consecutive field goals. The 10th came on a 49-yard attempt with only :55 remaining to knot the final score, 14-14.

In State's first conference contest against Wake Forest, senior quarterback Erik Kramer led yet another second-half surge, running for two touchdowns and passing for two more to lift the Wolfpack to a 42-38 win over the Deacons.

A key confidence builder for the Pack was the 28-16 win over defending conference champion Maryland, which had not lost an ACC game in 17 contests. Flanker Nasrallah Worthen caught nine Kramer passes for a school-record 187 yards.

State suffered a major setback when they traveled to Atlanta to face Georgia Tech. The Yellow Jackets ripped the Pack for a 59-21 loss. Kramer passed for 207 yards, but State was unable to stop Tech's offense.

First-year coach Dick Sheridan identifies the North Carolina game as a key to the season. Not only was the Wolfpack able to overcome conference rival Carolina 35-34, they were able to regain the positive momentum lost in Atlanta. North Carolina's David Truitt touched his knee to the ground on an off-balance pass on a two-point attempt and the ball was whistled dead preserving the win for the Wolfpack.

State scored in the first quarter for the first time in their 27-3 romp over eventual conference champion Clemson. Senior split end Haywood Jeffries scored in the first quarter on a fourth and goal pass and again on a 62-yard reverse in the third quarter.

Kramer, who had sprained his ankle earlier in the game, connected with sophomore split end Danny Peebles in the endzone with no time left to give State a 23-22 win over South Carolina. Junior tailback Bobby Crumpler rushed for 107 yards and was awarded the Dick Christy award for his outstanding play.

Freshman quarterback Cam Young replaced Kramer in the starting lineup for the Virginia game, but was not able to lead the Wolfpack to a win over the Cavaliers. Taylor scored on an 88-yard interception return and Cofer kicked a field goal to give the Pack a 10-7 lead at the half, but State lost ground in the second half and lost the game.

Against Duke, State's defense forced nine fumbles, recovering six, in the Pack's 29-15 win over the Blue Devils. Crumpler scored two touchdowns and Cofer kicked three field goals in the game. Kramer passed for 211 yards to break the 4,000 yard mark for career passing.

The Wolfpack capped off the season with a 31-18 win over Western Carolina. Jeffries caught seven passes for a career-high 164 yards. Kramer's final touchdown pass to Peebles was his 384th completion, another school record.

After the game, State accepted a bid to the 1986 New Peach Bowl in Atlanta on New Year's Eve.

Players, coaches, fans and media enjoy week of festivities sponsored by the New Peach Bowl

Katrina Waugh
Assistant Sports Editor

ATLANTA — Even though the alleged motive for traveling to Atlanta over the winter holiday was the Peach Bowl game, Wolfpack fans, coaches, players and the press took the opportunity to indulge in many of the activities sponsored by the New Peach Bowl.

The New Peach Bowl? Well, last year, after almost folding because of lack of ticket sales and lack of support in the Atlanta community, the Peach Bowl was turned over to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, which renamed the event The New Peach Bowl. So it's sort of like Purina making a new and improved Dog Chow.

The New Peach Bowl Festival began Friday evening with a welcome reception for both teams at the Marriott Marquis. The party featured complimentary hors d'oeuvres, peach ice cream, and the New Peach Bowl hostesses, who accompanied the players through out the festival.

Saturday the Atlanta Falcons hosted a barbecue and gave the Wolfpack a tour of their impressive training complex in Suwanee. Coach Dick Sheridan and several players gave a clogging demonstration at the Falcons complex. Mal Critie, who had obviously practiced up, and Haywood Jeffries showed the most promise, although Jeffries' rendition of clogging had a touch of funk to it.

Saturday evening, the Limelight night club hosted a private welcome reception for both teams. The players left onto the dance floor by injured Steve Salley, took the opportunity to show off some of their better moves for the host esses. Most of the hostesses were unimpressed. Most... not all.

Sunday, the Wolfpack visited Stone Mountain, the world's largest granite mountain, where they enjoyed a cookout and a hayride with the hostesses. Some players enjoyed the hay more than the ride and at least one hay-spitting horse was buried in hay.

Sunday evening, Hooters night club, advertised as "delightfully tacky," held a party for the media covering the Peach Bowl. The bash featured not only food and drinks, but also "Some of the loveliest ladies in the South" wearing some of the smallest orange shorts in the universe.

The party was well attended by members of the press, coaches, and representatives of the departments of athletics and sports information from both schools. Fun — and Hooters' Sports Illustrated-like calendars — was had by all.

The Players Awards Banquet, Monday evening at the Marriott Marquis, featured the swimsuit and evening gown competitions and the crowning of the New Peach Bowl Queen. Both head coaches recognized their coaching staffs, praised their opponents and presented their senior players with New Peach Bowl watches. The guests, including the governor of Georgia, were then treated to a painful rendition of "Georgia On My Mind."

The Players and Coaches Luncheon, hosted at the Hyatt Regency, featured a video rap by the Hokies and several loud performances by both schools' cheerleading squads. Bill Zieburz, chairman of the luncheon, announced that the cheerleaders were there to keep the guests awake through all the speeches. It worked.

Tuesday evening, the cheerleaders had yet another opportunity to stretch their lungs at the New Peach Bowl pep rally. The rally was both teams' final appearance before the game.

You know, the Peach Bowl game. The reason everyone went to Atlanta, right?

At NSA,
You Needn't
Ponder
Tomorrow's Technologies.
You Work
With Them.

Electrical / Electronic / Computer Engineering, Computer Science and Mathematics Majors

Simply put, no one is better equipped than NSA to give you a career on the frontier of communications. And there's good reason.

We're the National Security Agency and the work we do does a job for every American. We safeguard our nation's vital communications. We analyze foreign transmissions. We secure the government's massive computer systems. It takes twenty-first century technology to grapple with these tasks. It takes people like you to "mind" the technology.

Electrical / Electronic / Computer Engineers sometimes specialize, oftentimes opt to investigate a vast range of electronic information technology. You could engage in small to large system design and prototype development testing and evaluation, field installation, or operations support.

Computer Scientists exploit a huge computer facility in their work beyond the limits of finite state machine development and applications.

Mathematicians get a full measure of technological support as well, in developing vitally important practical applications for mathematical concepts in areas such as cryptology.

Here, your tools-of-the-trade will be the tools of tomorrow. With them comes a rare degree of flexibility—a near insistence on exploring new options along your career path. Rapid advancement, early responsibility, competitive salaries and enticing benefits—it all adds up to a career you can live with. And with our location between the vibrant urban centers of Baltimore, MD, and Washington, D.C., you'll be living well.

Bring yourself closer to tomorrow's technologies. Schedule an interview with your College Placement Office. Or write to the National Security Agency.

NSA will be on campus January 21st interviewing graduating seniors.

It wasn't Carter-Finley, but not bad for a bowl

ATLANTA — Football in December. What I thought may exist only in other parts of the South and involved only big-time teams. I came to realize New Year's Eve that, hey, there really is such a phenomenon.

The New Peach Bowl provided over 22,000 Wolfpack backers the opportunity of enjoying again what had become a distant memory from the '70s. After seven years of watching and coming to expect the Pack to pack away its gridiron gear in early November, I wasn't about to miss this chance of participating in something I'd only heard recollections of from long-time supporters.

So it was off to the big city for a peachy New Year's Eve Extravaganza. Armed with a bag of tailgate supplies and rooting materials, I set out to enjoy this bowl day, regardless of the outcome of the game.

With several autograms of mastering the Art of Tailgating, I was ready to take south what has become a big pre-game party production. With all my supplies loaded, I boarded one of several school busses that would take fans from my south-Atlanta hotel to Fulton County Stadium.

The 30-minute trip saw traffic grow packed but fast-moving to Virginia Tech bumper sticker-to-State bumper sticker slow-moving proportions as we neared the stadium.

"Yo, bums," I yelled from my window, motioning the Pinto full of

But our pain was soon resolved when we remembered where we were last New Year's Eve.

Gobbler fans to roll down their window. "What the hell's a Hokie?" "It's a castrated turkey that feasts on Wolfpack meat," answered the driver, wearing a turkey's head on his baseball cap.

Now I don't know about you, but if I were a Tech fan, I probably wouldn't have enough of what a Hokie lacks to admit what one is. But whatever was to follow, he brought that stuffing on himself.

"At least our mascot has some," I spewed back, save the euphemism (it rhymes with walls, kiddies). In the meantime this game of school spirit had picked up on the other side of the bus. For the next several minutes, it seemed that no Pack fan was contented until he got in the last barf.

"You'll never get in the ACC... Hokie hoser... Gobble this... You beillin'..." etc. You get the picture.

By the time we arrived at the stadium, our bellies, reaching high levels of acidity, begged for anything other than the cool suds we insatiably quaffed at The Lighthouse the night before. Parked amongst other school busses and MARTAs, we were destined to breathe refreshing bus fumes and enjoy our tailgate party on the attractive concrete parking lot of the Atlanta Braves stadium.

The last time I enjoyed such a picturesque tailgate atmosphere was the last time I was in Atlanta — for a Georgia Tech game. It was a wondrous sight of the city from inside the Tailgate Dome suitable for everything except a game of catch with a football. Kind of makes you wish they would cement Carter Finley's lot, huh?

But back to the howling lanes. With 40 minutes remaining before kickoff, we quickly spread our Wolfpack blanket and served brunch, beginning with hot thermos coffee we paid $4.50 for from room service. The Bill of Fare of course consisted of sliced turkey breast with tomato and mayo on nutritious all-wheat bread, which incidentally became charcoal-colored once it confronted air. Nothing like bus exhaust to spice up a meal. Yum, yum.

After quickly gobbling our brunch, it was now time for our after-dinner, pre-all-day-party drink — fuzzy navels, for sure. I mean this is the Peach Bowl. Those peach schnapps and vodka concoctions went well with our fur-lined mouths and did wonders at warming our thermostats and getting us in the right spirit for a ballgame.

But little did we know they would be our last drinks — of any sort — for a while. We discovered something inside the stadium that is a reality for most large-college students — lines. The shortest line we could find at a concession stand looked like the maze at the nearby All-American Scream Machine at Six Flags, complete with a sign that said "I hour from this point."

We all agreed the lines would be shorter later, and that the Pack would need every one of us rooting for it in the first half. We were wrong on both accounts. The lines grew longer as the game wore on, and the Wolfpack eased its way to a 21-10 halftime lead. If there were beer and drink hawkers at the stadium, they were avoiding our section for some reason.

In the meantime my dark rum was fermenting and we were all bubbling. At the half we combed the stadium in search of anything liquid but only came up with the bottom of the troth in the men's bathroom, so we were destined to find our pleasures by other means.

Incidentally, we did find something that caught our eye — a flier pasted with Coach V's mug proclaiming "Bronzoni Sano Buoni" containing a buy one, get one free coupon. Only in America!

Some of the most exciting moments of the game came when the Wolfpack half of the stadium waved pom-poms in synchronicity after a big State play. Now why don't they hand those things out at Carter Finley? They look awesome.

I also thought The Wave would be neat in a completely circular stadium, just like in the commercial. But that idea never materialized as stubborn Hokie fans refused to stand up and participate, sending the giant wave in the same direction it came. Of course, their team was trailing 21-10 at the time (Teh-eh).

In the second half, Wolfpack fans saw the type of finish developing that they have come to get used to — a close one with State in the driver's seat. Most Pack faithful, however, could sense a Big Mo swing as the Gobblers time and again stopped the Wolfpack while slowly creeping ahead 22-21. Still, State battled back, took the lead again 24-22. The fate of what was happening in the closing seconds seemed inevitable as the Hokies edged closer and closer to field goal range. The pain was tormentingly drawn out by cheating of No. 2 (gosh darn it) fell and got a bon-bon on his poor little knee, the same one he hurt in drama class.

We all know what happened next. The next few moments hurt. We hurried to the bus as Tech fans whooped it up in the stadium. But our pain was soon resolved when we remembered where we were last New Year's Eve.

Hey, Wolfpack, it's been seven long years, but thanks for the early (but long overdue) graduation present. You didn't hafta. Really. But congratulations on a remarkable season.

Former Pack slugger goes 9-11 one night

Hot Dodger prospect Tracy Woodson has hot outing in Puerto Rican league

Former Wolfpack all-America third baseman Tracy Woodson, playing for Santurce of the Puerto Rican Winter League, had a night to remember early in December.

That night (date unavailable), Santurce completed a suspended game from the night before and followed that with a scheduled double-header. In the completion of the suspended game, Woodson went 1 for 2. He followed that by going 4 for 4 in the first game of the double-header and 4 for 5 in the second game, making him 9 for 11 on the night.

Woodson, who was the third-round draft pick of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the June 1984 draft, was leading the Puerto Rican League in hitting at .361 through games of Dec. 14 and was second in RBI with 23. Jim Lindeman, a first baseman with the St. Louis Cardinals, organization playing for Mayaguez, was leading the league with 25 RBI and was second in hitting at .347.

After starting in the Puerto Rican Winter League All Star game at third base, Woodson continued his hot pace at the plate by hitting home runs in each of the first four games after the All-Star break. With the season ending this Sunday, Woodson reportedly has a legitimate shot at the league's triple crown (leading the league in home runs, RBI and batting average).

Obtaining statistics from the various winter leagues in Latin America is always difficult, according to Baseball America editor Allan Simpson, who said final stats from Puerto Rico should be available about a week from now.

Woodson, who won Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year honors for the Wolfpack in 1984 when he hit .373 with 25 homers and 77 RBI, batted .269 with 18 homers and 90 RBI for the Dodgers' San Antonio affiliate in the Double-A Texas League this past season. The Dodgers added Woodson to their 40-man roster at the conclusion of the 1986 season and have Woodson ticketed to play for Albuquerque of the Triple-A Pacific Coast League in '87.

Wolfpack baseball coach Sam Esposito begins spring practice tomorrow afternoon. Believe it or not, State begins its 1987 baseball season Feb. 21 and 22 with a pair of double-headers against Western Carolina.

Already burdened with having to replace four everyday players who accounted for 38 homers and 198 RBI from last season's 35-15 squad, Esposito may also be without starting pitchers Bud Loving and Paul Grossman and shortstop Alex Wallace, all of whom had shoulder surgery last fall.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed, but we're still in limbo," Esposito said Tuesday. "Alex has started soft throwing, and so has Loving, but Grossman still hadn't begun throwing at all when I talked to him. He had his surgery a few weeks later than the others, so it figures he'll be a little behind them in recuperating. We'll just have to go slow with those guys and hope they'll be ready to go. I know that's asking a lot, but that's what we're hoping."

Over at UNC, Tar Heel head coach Mike Roberts enters his second consecutive season without a pitching coach and with the spectre of Tommy John hanging over his head.

Roberts, never Mr. Congeniality among league baseball coaches, originally hired John last summer to replace departed pitching coach Howard McCollough, who left Chapel Hill after the 1985 season to accept a scouting position with the Boston Red Sox. John officially retired as a player after posting a 5-3 record and 2.93 earned run average last season with the New York Yankees. In 23 major league seasons, John compiled a 264-210 record and a 3.23 ERA.

In November, after less than two months on the job at UNC, John quit, citing differences with Roberts. John would not elaborate on those differences, saying he was under advisement not to say anything further at that time, but he left little doubt that the dirty laundry would be hung out to dry at some time in the future.

"I will (tell the story) some day so people will know what went on in the baseball department at UNC," John told a Durham Sports Club gathering in December. "I think they'll be amazed and shocked."

"I stayed in the major leagues for 23 years, partly because I didn't let a lot of things bother me. But after one month here, I was gone. People have called me and said, 'That doesn't sound like you, and they're right.'"

The controversy over aluminum bats in college baseball has been handed back to the bat manufacturers by the NCAA's Baseball Committee.

The NCAA has used aluminum bats since 1973 because of costs, but coaches have grown increasingly opposed to the metal bats because they significantly increase offense, despite ludicrous claims to the contrary by the manufacturers.

At the committee's December meeting, it drafted a statement asking the manufacturers to concentrate on making an aluminum bat that would "feature performance characteristics of wood bats."

"Non-wood bats should not be designed to produce a greater hit distance than would be available in corresponding wood bats of the same weight and length," the statement said.

"We're saying, 'You're the experts. Take our recommendations and make them work,'" said committee chairman Bob Hannah, head baseball coach at the University of Delaware.

The manufacturers have claimed for years that aluminum bats do not increase either the frequency or distance of hits, but anyone who coaches or even closely watches college baseball knows that such a claim is preposterous.

Baseball America has released its pre-season College Top 25 baseball poll, and the ACC's Georgia Tech was ranked No. 9 while Clemson was No. 14. Texas, pre-season No. 1 the past two years was No. 1 again, followed by Louisiana State, UCLA, Florida State and Stanford in the Top 5. Defending national champion Arizona was No. 15.

Following is the pre-season Top 25 by Baseball America:

1. Texas
2. Louisiana State
3. UCLA
4. Florida State
5. Stanford
6. Oklahoma State
7. Miami
8. Pepperdine
9. Georgia Tech
10. Loyola Marymount
11. Indiana State
12. California-Santa Barbara
13. Wichita State
14. Clemson
15. Arizona
16. Cal State-Fullerton
17. Georgia
18. South Carolina
19. Oklahoma
20. Michigan
21. Baylor
22. Oral Roberts
23. Hawaii
24. Old Dominion
25. Arizona State

Baseball America also handicapped the individual conference races and picked Georgia Tech to win the ACC, followed by Clemson, North Carolina, State, Wake Forest, Virginia, Maryland and Duke.

Gym addition nearing completion

Unique rock wall already finished

By Tim Peeler
Sports Editor

The much ballyhooed rock climbing wall is done — has been for quite some time — but the rest of the $10 million addition to Carmichael Gymnasium has yet to be completed.

Contractors are putting on the final touches, preparing for a preliminary walk-through with officials from the University and physical education department on Jan. 15.

A final inspection is slated for Jan. 22, and officials hope the new complex, which includes a swimming pool, 18 regulation size racquetball courts, and an indoor running track, will be ready for student use by the beginning of next month.

"I'd say if we don't have anything that is holding us up (after final inspection), I don't see why we can't be in there by the first of February," Jack Shannon, P.E. department facilities coordinator, said.

The project was scheduled to be completed by August 1986, but delays put the addition five months behind schedule.

Considering the magnitude of the building, the P.E. department is happy the project was not any Scale model of new gymnasium addition. If all goes well, the addition may open at the beginning of February.

further off schedule, Shannon said.

"Taking everything into consideration, we're pretty fortunate," Shannon said.

Especially considering other facilities in the area that were completed far behind schedule. The Liston B. Ramsey Center at Western Carolina University was almost two years behind schedule and the Dean E. Smith Student Activities Center at Chapel Hill was opened before it was finished, nearly a year after the projected completion date.

Editor's note: In two weeks Technician will publish a full-length feature story about all the features of the new complex, including everything from the new access policy to the dance studio to the indoor archery range.

Grapplers out-duel East Stroudsburg

Cesari, Schneiderman win Wilkes open

By Scott Deuel
Staff Writer

The Wolfpack wrestling team had a successful Christmas holiday, coming away with a 35-3 victory Dec. 17 at East Stroudsburg State.

The Pack also competed in the Wilkes Open, with Coach Bob Guzzo sending Joseph Cesari and David Schneiderman to the Decemoer 19-20 competition in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Both grapplers came away with victories in their weight classes, Cesari at 142 pounds and Schneiderman at 134.

Guzzo's squad lost just one weight class against East Stroudsburg State, with David Cummings losing a 10-6 decision at the 118-pound division.

At 128 pounds, Marc Sodano won by a fall over Matt Sloand in 6:58.

At 134 pounds, Schneiderman defeated Mike McConn decisively, 15-5.

Cesari had little trouble at 142 pounds, defeating Terry B... 6-1.

Also having no problems was junior Bill Hershey, competing at 150 pounds, who stopped Mike DiSora, 8-1.

Scott Turner, who usually competes at 150, did not wrestle in the event.

At the 158-pound weight class, Steve Cesari dealt Bob Scannell an 8-4 loss.

One of the closest decisions was freshman Mike Lantz's 8-6 decision over Rusty Amato in the 167-pound class.

The only pin came in the 177-pound class as sophomore Greg Linkner pinned Bob Shrouds in 4:06.

Competing at 190 pounds, freshman Mike Baker outmaneuvered Todd McClelland, 12-4.

In the heavyweight division, junior Mike Lombardo beat Jim Miller, 3-2, in the closest match of the meet.

The wrestling team faced Indiana last night at 7:30 at Lee County High School in Sanford, N.C.

The Pack will travel to the Virginia Dual Meets in Hampton, Va., Jan. 9.

THE STUDENT SUPPLY STORES WISH YOU A HAPPY NEW YEAR

There is nothing more American than making New Year's resolutions. Add a few more to your 1987 List of Resolutions by deciding right now to save time and money at the North Carolina State University's Students Supply Stores.

These New Year's resolutions will save you money not only at the beginning of the semester, but throughout the year as well. And what other resolutions will allow you to visit after graduation for a trip down nostalgia lane?

RESOLUTION #1: SAVE ON TEXTBOOKS

Keeping this resolution is easy at the Students Supply Stores. We stock a wide selection of quality used texts, all at tremendous savings over the corresponding new book prices. Regardless of your course or interest, we either have the book for you, or we will find it. There's a hidden benefit to the New Year's resolution: Not only do you save time and money in January, but the Stores' buy back policy throughout the semester may rebate you additional dollars.

RESOLUTION #2:

DISCOVER SUPPLIES & SERVICES

The Student's Supply Stores are more than bookstores. they are also central service centers for students like yourself. These "university department stores" offer a wide range of supplies and services including:

- Top-of-the-line computer hardware and software
- Art & engineering supplies
- Check cashing up to $40
- Film processing
- Gift Certificates
- Notary Public
- Engraving and Laminating

In addition to these outstanding services, you can beef up your New Year's resolution with a selection of thousands of spirals, packages of filler paper, and notebooks. You'll be ready with the start of the new semester.

RESOLUTION #3:

 RE: Your Centennial Agromeck
 This year's Agromeck promises to be an exciting one which recaptures the University's past, recognizes our present, and reconfirms our future with its theme "100" in honor of our centennial celebration.
 I encourage each of you to invest in this year's Agromeck. You will cherish the moments it captures, and while this centennial issue will be a special edition for everyone connected with the University, you are more a part of its pages than anyone.
 The 1986 Agromeck is here! Pick up or buy your copy Monday, January 12 through Friday, January 17 by the Information Desk on the second floor, University Student Center between 10:00 am to 2:00 pm.

Women suffer loss after hoopy holidays

By Jeff Cherry
Staff Writer

A 75-57 thrashing by the nationally fourth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers in Charlottesville ended a busy but successful holiday season for State's women's basketball team on a sour note.

Coach Kay Yow had the 15th-ranked Pack making sweet music in earlier road wins over Clemson and 12th-ranked Ohio State, but first-half shooting to the tune of 29 percent combined with 21 turnovers led to a 35-19 halftime deficit, and State could get no closer than 11 the rest of the way.

Trena Trice's 18 points and game-high 11 rebounds were not enough to overcome a 25-point effort by Cavalier guard Donna Holt.

With the loss, State's record stands at 9-3, with a 2-1 mark in conference play.

Yow said her team's inability to stop Virginia's guards was a major factor in the loss. Virginia's starting guards combined for 35 points against State. No other Cavalier scored more than eight.

"We totally lost our chemistry in the Virginia game...I just got out of what we do best as a team, and even then we played them 38-40 in the second half," Yow said.

Both of State's conference wins were over Clemson, by 18 points on Jan. 3 in Raleigh and by 12 at Clemson on Dec. 17. State shot almost 60 percent from the floor in both contests, including a 31 point, 18-for-17 effort by Trice at Clemson.

In that game, State fell behind early, trailing by seven midway through the first half, but rallied for a two-point advantage at the half.

State pulled away in the second half and led by as many as 22 percent from the free-throw line.

It was at the Buckeye Classic on Dec. 19 and 20 in Columbus, Ohio that Yow says her team played "some of our best ball of the season. They played very well defensively and as a team."

State crushed Tennessee Tech 89-63 and then upset the Buckeyes 70-65 on their home court.

Against Tech, State jumped to a lead of 15-0 and was never threatened. Eleven players scored as the lead reached 33 in the second half. Treway led scoring with 24, while guard Carla Hillman added 10 assists.

Treyway again led the way against Ohio State with 24 points. State staked out a 10-point halftime margin and then held on in the second half.

State again did well against a frontcourt-oriented team. Ohio State's guards combined for only seven points, and starter Geneva Sanford fouled out.

On Dec. 13, the team got an early start on Christmas by unwrapping UNC-Asheville, 101-56.

The Bulldogs committed 30 turnovers and shot 40 percent from the field.

Twelve State players saw action and all scored, with Trice and freshman Adrina Crichtlow high scorers at 23 and 15 points respectively.

With important conference games against an 11-1 Georgia Tech team at home and always dangerous UNC in Chapel Hill next on the schedule, Yow said better play at the guard position is important.

"Many turnovers have occurred when (the guards) try to play beyond their ability," Yow said. "We need to regain some of that chemistry we lost in the Virginia game."

Big Big Big Changes for TECHNICIAN Classifieds

TECHNICIAN Classifieds wants your business!
DISCOUNTS now are offered for EXTRA WORDS and EXTRA DAYS.

The minimum is now 6-10 words for $2.50. BUT after 10 words RATES GO DOWN every five words, so the longer your ad is the CHEAPER it is. Also, the LONGER your ad runs the CHEAPER IT GETS!

THEREFORE YOU CAN REACH A LARGER AUDIENCE FOR LESS MONEY

Words like "is" and "a" count the same as "unfurnished" and "uncomplicated." Words that can be abbreviated without spaces, such as "wadi" or "AC," count only once. Extra numbers, street addresses and prices count as one word. See Rate Table below.

Deadline for ads is 5 pm two days before ad will appear. All ads must be prepaid.

Rate Table	1 day	2 days	3 days	4 days	5 days	6 days	per day zone 1 (to 10 words)	2.50	4.84	6.60	8.48	10.20	11.76	(.90)
zone 2 (10-15 words)	3.00	5.76	7.65	9.72	11.55	13.14	(.65)
