Pageant kicks off Pan - African Festival

The 1987 Miss Pan-African Pageant officially ushers in the Pan-African Festival, an annual, week-long series of events. The pageant begins Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Stewart Theatre.

Pageant coordinator Iris Hunt said this year's pageant has the fewest contestants since the pageant began. Although a large number of applications were filled. Hunt said she believes abusive crowds the last three years caused low contestant turnout.

"A number of the girls didn't want to get up in front of their peers," she said. "Plus, the applications were given out during the Black History Month Talent Show."

Each contestant had to fill out an application and write an essay based on the theme — The Black Family and Unity. Hunt said the essay is usually used to limit the field of contestants, but due to the small number of contestants, agaçant officieals didn't have to use the essay as an eliminating factor.

Contestants in this year's Pan-African Pageant are Samantha Cook, sophomore chemical engineering major; Jennifer Elliot, sophomore pre-medical major; Tamara Jackson, sophomore aerospace engineering major; Chavonda Jacobs, sophomore pulp and paper science major; Lisa Wharton, junior computer science major; and Denise Sutton, senior textile management.

Hunt said this year's pageant will include a talent feature and a semi-formal competition. Contestants will perform a group dance to Melba Moore's "Lean on Me," featuring choreographer Veronica Harris, Hunt said, because "she has worked with the choreography of every pageant on campus."

The talent competition follows the group dance followed by a new category in the pageant, semi-formal wear. The contestants will then participate in an impromptu question and answer session. Escorts will accompany the contestants during their final walk to close out the competition. Gentleman's Choice will provide the escorts' tuxedos.

During intermission, Shellena Jackson and Ronald Tyson will provide musical entertainment followed by the Vorces of Love, from Clayton High School, who wardip sync several hits.

admission, Carl Hankins will emeee the pageant and Paul Atlas is the pageant's pianist.

Other Pan-African Festival events slated for Stewart Theatre are the Pan-African fashion show. Wednesday at 8 p.m.; the Pan-African talent show, Thursday at 8 p.m.; and DanceVisions dance recital, Friday at 8 p.m. and DanceVisions dance recital, Friday at 8 p.m. and Lander the Pan-African pienic, Student Center Plaza, 11 a.m. 4 p.m., Pan-African step show, Stewart Theatre, 5 p.m. and a dinner and dance in the Student Center Ballroom. The New Horizons Choir will close out Pan-African Week with a concert Student Student Stewart Theatre.

Students may buy tickets for the talent show and the step show at the Student Center box office for $1 and $2 respectively.

Residence Life assists search for off-campus housing

N.C. State students who still haven't found a place to live off-campus can go to the off-campus housing branch of Residence Life for assistance, Ruth Fuller of Residence Life said.

Fuller said students who need a roommate can fill out an application and then look into a directory listing potential roommates. But, students who haven't found a place to stay yet need to hurry. The market is tight and students should be prepared to dish out the cash.

Carpenter appeals elections

Scott Carpenter, a candidate for student senate president, is appealing the student government election, according to Election's Board-Chairman Brian Brauns.

Carpenter said he is appealing the election because of the many complaints about seniors being denied the right to vote. "Considering that I'm a senior student, the potential was there for lost votes," he said. In a semio student, the potential was a worker to said. Brauns said Carpenter trailed candidate Paul Briggs by 66 votes. The elections board planned to have a voting booth, near Williams Hall, to be manned by students of Agriculture and Life Sciences (ALS). "I was under the impression they were going to have it," Brauns said, "But the school council for ALS decided it wouldn't be necessary because not enough people were running for senate seats."

Carpenter said that since he is a student in ALS, the booth might have enhanced his vote.

People voting more than once was also a problem, Carpenter said. "Some didn't have their ID's stamped and I can provide evidence for that."

If Carpenter is granted his appeal, he will be placed on the ballot for

Students may find cars towed

Students who park in the lot on the corner of Hillsborough Street and Dixie Trail during classes may return to find their cars towed, according to Evelyn Reiman, director of student development. The student development office has received calls complaining that students' cars are blocking the delivery entrances to several businesses in that area and that towing was an option that would be utilized if the problem did not clear up, Reiman said.

Women's Fest planned today

A Women's Fest will be held on the Student Center Plaza today featuring a series of booths and displays on different topics pertaining to women's issues. The event, sponsored by the UAB women's board Student Health Services and several other organizations, will run from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and will emphasize health, career and educational issues.

Kensington, Wakefield, Parkwood among best for students

When choosing an apartment, students look for several qualities before choosing the apartment complex they will call home for the upcoming year.

The qualities students look for in an apartment include reasonable rent and close proximity to campus or bus service. Several apartment complexes listed below within the N.C. State area provide these features.

Kensington Park offers three pools; volleyball, tennis and basketball courts; on-site laundry facilities and cable television. The complex is one mile from campus and students can ride the Wolfline to campus. Prices range from $350 to 450 for a one-bedroom apartment to a three-bedroom townhouse with three levels. A deposit is required.

Sumter Square offers students cable televi-sion and on-site laundry facilities. The complex requires a deposit with both its six month and 12 month leases.

Wakefield Apartments off New Bern Avenue provides free bus service to NCSU every half hour. Studer's can enjoy the complex's baskethall or volleyhall euris or they can take advantage of the indoor pool any day of the year. Prices range from $341 a month for a one bedroom apartment to $382 a month for a two bedroom apartment A $200 security deposit is required for sech-anatement.

Weather halts weekend hang gliding

TIM

PEELER

KITTY HAWK — I expected hang gliding to be the most fun I could have on the beach without getting sand in my underpants. I never got to find out.

The Union Activities Board Outdoor Adventure Committee planned this trip to world famous Jockey's Ridge, the largest sand dune on the East Coast, so any students who wanted to learn about this sport could do so for the mere cost of $55.

Not a bad idea, but we had one slight problem. The weather.

Our group of 11 pulled out from the Student Center on Friday at 4 p.m. in a university van. We hadn't got 50 miles out of Raleigh before the heavy rains came.

It was all right then, though, because the rain made me drowsy. That, and one chapter of A.

hotel in Nags Head, perhaps the corniest of all lodging names — The Sea Oatel. We arrived to find that the entire area was being alerted from the National Weather Service about a tornado watch. There were already huge water puddles all over the parking lots at The Sea Oatel, and I nearly drowned just trying to get down to the beach on Friday night.

Saturday morning, we were by guder for two divides and the structor, asked us questions about how to fly the thing.

Not exactly what you'd call.

Not exactly what you'd call.

After this, we were supposedly ready to hit Jockey's Ridge.

But the winds were blowing a steady 23 miles an hour, with gusts over 30. Put it this way — the sand was whipping off that dune fast enough to sand blast Tammy Bakker's face completely clean.

We wondered why we couldn't fly, despite the wind.

"I thought it was a perfect day for flying with all the wind," said one of our flyers.

So did I. Seems to me that if the wind is blowing, you have a better.

chance of staying in the air.

But Bill, our instructor, squinted his eyes and said something about terminal velocity of the hang glider and winds over 15 mph. I know enough vocabulary to know that "terminal" means death, so I didn't pre-s the matter.

Of course, high winds cancelling flights isn't a usual happening.

"For it to be completely blown out is a rare occurrence," said Bill Vaughn, a three-summer veteran instructor. "I'm hoping it will lighten up this evening, but I'm not holding my breath."

After they told us we wouldn't be able to fly on that day, we saw another film called "Hang Gliding Around the World." So now I've invested 55 bucks and all I've got to show for it is two movies and a little passport that says I've been "ground trained."

Tracy so we could be the next Orville and Wilbur Wright. We ended up being Siskel and Ebert.

To try to make amends, the group went over to the Wright Brothers National Memorial at nearby Kill Devil Hills, a dinky little place that began aviation history.

Actually, I don't see all the fuss over Orville Wright's 'Man's First Flight' on Dec. 17, 1903. It only last 12 seconds and 120 feet, Granted it was 120 feet that changed history, but think about it.

That's only four first downs, which isn't even a good touchdown drive.

I guess I can't complain about the weekend. I got a nice 30-hour trip to the beach (100 of which was spent riding, eight sleeping, and 12 waiting), and ground trained.

If you're interested, the UAB is sponsoring another trip next weekend to go hang gliding. Hope the weakher's better.

Me, I think I'll stay at home and bite my toenails.

CARY — Raleigh radio is a wasteland. The rock stations reek of Huey Lewis, Bruce Springsteen, Genesis (bad, Phil Collins Genesis) and a pretentious attitude that "they" know what rock music is. If I hear another station play U2's "With or Without You." Tm going to puke I remember calling up radio stations in this town and asking to hear "Gloria" by U2'back in the early '80s. The stations (including WQDR and G-105) claimed that nobody in this area really cared to hear U2.

Varn. who carried the ball 12 times for 67 yards, closed out the scoring for the red team with a three-yard run later in the game.

Coach Dick Sheridan played six quarterbacks during the scrimmage and recognized three — redshirt freshman Preston Poig, junior Joe Hollowell and sophomore Shane Montgomery — for playing a good game.

Poag completed nine of 15 passes for 113 yards, Hollowell three of 10 and Montgomery six for nine. Poag and Hollowell, the early candidates to succeed all-ACC quarterback Erik Kramer, divided time direct-sing the first team while Montgomery directed the second team.

"I always have a feeling of relief when we get through the last practice without any injury."
Sheridan said. "So, regardless of what happened, I feel good.

Yellow Jackets drop Pack 10-8 as State rally falls short

By Bruce Winkworth Associate Editor

Billy Parham hit a two-run home run, his 13th of the season, in the bottom of the sixth inning, and furth-ranked Georgia Tech sweated out a four-run, ninth-inning rally by State to down the Wolfpack, 10-8, in an Atlantic Coast Conference baseball game yesterday.

State had tied the game at 4-4 in the top of the sixth on Bill Klenoshek's two-run homer, his ninth of the season, but Tech, behind Parham's blast, scored three in the sixth, two in the seventh, and one in the eighth to put the game out of reach.

Not that the Wolfpack didn't take its cuts in the ninth. Brian Bark and Mark Withers sandwiched RBI-singles around Alex Waliace's two-run double, but the rally was too little and far too late.

Bark making his fifth pitching appearance of the season, allowed nine runs in six and two-thirds inninga. He walked four and struck out nine. Freshman Sam Drake started for Tech and went six and one-third innings, yielding four runs on seven hits. Drake walked four and struck out six.

Jim Poole came on in the seventh and pitched out of a one-out jam. striking out Bark and inducing Wallace to ground out, both with runners on second and third.

Saturday, the Wolfpack split a double-header with eighth-ranked Clemson, winning 7-6 behind ace righth-ander Jeff Hartsock and losing 15-5. Hartsock, making his first appearance in two weeks because of a sore elbow, went the distance, scattering eight hits to pick up his sixth win in as many decisions.

Clemson jumped all over freshman starter Preston Woods in the second game, scoring four runs in the first and driving Woods to the showers with a six run third. Brad Rhodes relieved and was roughed up during a five-run fourth.

The two losses in the three weekend games dropped State to 22-5 overall, 43 in the ACC. The Wolfpack hosts the Evil Empire from the University of North Carolina tomorrow at 3 p.m. at Doak Field.

Men, women netters take dual match from Virginia

By Trent McCranie Staff Writer

The men's and women's tennis teams swept the Virginia Cavaliers in a chilly wind-blown dual match at the Wolfpack Tennis Complex Sunday afternoon, concluding the regular season.

The men's 6.3 victory improved their record to 10.9 overall and 2.4 in the conference, while the women's victory, 7.2, upped their season record to 10.6, 2.4 in the conference.

Sunday's victory marked the men's second straight conference win since ending a 32-game ACC

The men nearly swept the Cavs in the singles taking five of the six matches while UVa won two out of three doubles matches.

Just like wildfire, appeals concerning recent student government elections are running rampant.

Last Thursday, student body presidential candidate Billy Maddalon's appeal was upheld by an appeals board set up by student body attorney general John Nunnally. Another student body presidential candidate, Joe Elvis Corey, withdrew his appeal. Student senate presidential candidate Scott Carpenter is also appealing the election. If his appeal is upheld, Carpenter will be placed on the ballot for this week's run offs, which will be held tomorrow and Wednesday. Carpenter's appeal has several valid points. Points which if substantiated should uphold his appeal. Carpenter said many seniors were not allowed to vote. Carpenter is a senior, so this may have cost his candidacy several ballots. He also claims that a polling booth planned for Williams Hall, for students in the School of Agricultural and Life Sciences (ALS), was not set up. Since Carpenter is a student in ALS, this could have cost him votes, too. Furthermore, Carpenter (and many others) made allegations that students' IDs were a) not properly validated after voting, or b) not even checked. Either case allows for multiple voting.

So there are three areas where Carpenter's candidacy could have been damaged, or his opponents' tallies could have been inflated. Now, if Carpenter had run several hundred votes behind the other candidates, these irregularities would probably make no difference. But according to Elections Board Chairman Brian Brauns, Carpenter was only 66 votes behind fellow candidate Paul Briggs. That's less than three percent of the total vote cast. The potential for a 66 vote swing exists (the way elections are dragging on, voters might say to hell with it and totally reverse their vote).

We feel the judicial appeals board should seriously consider Carpenter's appeal. If the allegations are true, he should be listed on the run-off ballot.

Manning election polls

Free and fair elections are crucial to the smooth operation of any true democracy.

For almost 200 years, Americans have fought for the right of all citizens to vote, a fight culminating with the passage of the Voting Rights Act.

Philipinos used the ballot box abuses of Marcos as an excuse to over-throw their unpopular leader.

And in Nicaragua, accusations of unfair elections have come from across the political spectrum.

Although no one would say NCSU's student government has problems, recent student government elections have been marred by a certain amount of confusion at the polling places.

Lack of organization at Link polling station meant polls did not open until 2 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday, instead of 8:30.

The Williams Hall polling station did not open at all, although students who wanted to vote had only to make a short walk to D. H. Hill Library.

These factors combined, the Student Body President race results are far from clear. In fairness, 3rd-place finisher Billy Maddalon has been included in the run-off. His vote total was so close to 2nd-place finisher Perry Woods that the confusion at the polls may have affected the result.

Last year similar confusion affected the race for treasurer between Bryan Kay and Brenda Flory.

Student Government has money in its budget to hire a group to manage the polls. This year two groups, Greeks United and the Pan-Hellenic Council, volunteered to do the job for free.

Perhaps Student Government should contract the job to a group without any interests in the results, and at an early date. This would help ensure that such a group would understand how much effort is needed and prevent the possibility of conflict of interest.

Can't have it both ways, folks

Billy Maddalon, after finishing third in the first round of student body presidential elections, has managed to work his way into the run-off. Although I do not support Maddalon, I am glad NCSU students will have a chance to examine some of Maddalon's recent actions and decide just where they stand.

The statement of objections Maddalon submitted to the appeals board was unquestionably fraught with racism.

The statement named two black groups and claimed they passed out what he called "black slates" at the Student Center poll. The accusation was so unfounded, poll. The accusation was so unfounded, the board dismissed it out of hand.

the board dismissed it out of hand.

Apparently, Maddalon has a problem with black groups organizing and endorsing black candidates. Maybe someone should point out that black groups all across the South have actively supported and endorsed black candidates ever since passage of the Voting Rights Act. Some of these groups even pass out "black slates" on election day. These groups have been instrumental in putting black candidates into office and no one, short of Billy Maddalon, is saying any election has been compromised.

Moreover, it seems Maddalon wants to great lengths to mobilize the fraternity and sorority vote. One of his campaign managers, Donna White, is former president of the Pan-Hellenic Council. Considering his qualifications president of the Pan-Hellenic Council. Considering his qualifications and platform, without the fraternities and sororities, Maddalon would have finished well behind Joe Elvis Corey. It seems Maddalon could allow black groups that same right.

Even if one dismisses Maddalon's statement as the act of a desperate man making a last-ditch effort to save his NCSU political career, a comment he made before the elections board is too serious to take lightly.

If you remember, last Tuesday morning a couple of Maddalon's fraternity brothers were given Campus Appearance Tickets at the free expression tunnel for objecting to Joe Nguyen's efforts to paint a sign supporting candidate Perry Woods on top of a sign supporting Billy Maddalon. Apparently Maddalon's brothers thought Nguyen was being a little too free with his Nguyen was being a little too free with his expression.

At any rate, at the meeting Maddalon referred to Nguyen, who is an American citizen of Asian descent, as a "Chinaman." Nguyen, who was at the meeting, jumped up and turned over his chair. At this, Nguyen said Maddalon told him not to be offended, "It is just a way to describe vou."

you." By this rationale, "nigger" would be a proper way to describe a black person, while "fag" would describe a black person, while "fag" would describe a homosexual. So here we have a SBP candidate who gets riled-up when black groups try to organize around a cause they deem important and, the same day, hurls a racial slur at an opponent's campaign manager.

racial slur at an opponent's campaign manager.

Out of human decency: students should make every effort to insure Maddalon is not elected. What a shame it would be to undo all the positive steps the university community has taken toward racial harmony by electing such a poor example of an NCSU student.

The writer, former Technician managing editor, is a junior majoring in MAA.

Qualified Maddalon

My sincere grafttude goes out to Technician for all your interest in student government elections. With approximately 2,370 students voting, the record high was at least within reach. I am sure all the recent controversy over the candidates, Billy Maddalon in particular, attributed to student interest in voting.
However, it is sad that Maddalon, student body president candidate, had to suffer because of the political ploys of then-Technician editor John Austin. Let me prove my accusation:
In Technician endorsements, the editor endorsed Charlle Helms because of his business-like style. He endorsed Kevin Howell for his refinement and ability to display," a very diplomatic style in dealing with controversial elements." He endorsed Perry Woods because of his experience in student government and ease in taking a stand on controversial issues.
"The rest of the field," as Austin put it, lacked communication skills, experience, sincertity, or proper motivation for running the office.

Billy Maddalon has shown excellent com-ease in taking a stand on controversal issues.

"The rest of the field," as Austin put it, lacked communication skills, experience, sincerity, or proper motivation for running the office.

Billy Maddalon has shown excellent communication skills, not only in the past, but throughout this election. In fact, Maddalon is basing part of his campaign platform on his communication abilities. Woods, one of Austin's choice candidates, is thought by many to hinder communication between student government and the university administration. Billy Maddalon has proven his experience in student government other than committee positions gained through his status as WKNC's general manager. Knowing Billy Maddalon. I am supporting him in this campaign because of his sincerity, honesty, concern and desire to work for the student body. Yet, all the tacky campaigning that I have heard and read about makes me question the sincerity and promage metastion of some of the other candidates. The tide accustons made by other candidates. The tide accustons made by other candidates toward Maddalon were either not proven or proven wrong in all cases, they were irrelevant to this election. Technician lowered itself to the "bowels of journalistic taste"

of journalistic taste"

Technician has overstepped the boundaries of journalistic taste many times, but the April 1st issue of Technician shows that the paper's leaders are truly tasteless and lack any sense of professionalism. Not only did the writers slur a fellow student (Gary Mauney), but they also included other respected individuals in the insenseless articles. The ridiculous Heritage Herald was a stupid and malicious attempt to mock Christians, God's word and the cross of Jesus Christ. The articles were an obscene example of an April fool's joke.

Has the staff no respect for other people? Have you all no morals? Have you no conscience? During my four years at NCSU, Technician has repeatedly mocked and attacked what Christians stand for: I thought Technician had lowered itself enough by printing a cartoon last year showing a cross with a clothes hanger on top (depicting Christians' views on abortion). I was wrong. Technician has lowered listelf to the bowels of journalistic taste. Technician is a poor example of a newspaper and is a poorer representative of NCSU. Technician earns no respect for literary value and no respect from the student boddy.

Attacks on library are "hard to swallow"

Recently the Technician published a letter and an editorial cartoon addressing the issue about the noise level in D.H. Hill library. I must agree that it gets quite noisy in there at times. But, since I spend approximately four hours a day working at the Circulation Desk (much of which is spent at the Erdahl-Cloyd's Information Desk) I find the letter attacking the library and its inadequate service in handling the noise problem a little hard to swallow.

the noise protein a nine narci to swainow. First of all, one must realize that the library carries a great deal of traffic - at least every student has cut through the library or the Erdahl-Cloyd lobby at one time or another. Taking this into consideration, noise in these areas (and it is basically restricted to these areas (and it is basically restricted to these areas) should be where all the study tables are, the noise level gets a little high because groups of people gather to study.

Given these two areas (the lobby and the East Wing area) to be the noise makers, there are many solutions to the problem of not being able to study in such a disruptive environment. If one is willing to think about the possibilities and make some compromises, there are many quiet areas where a student may study. For example, example,

1.) In the stacks on every floor there are carrels along both sides, and on certain floors there are study lounges for the students' use.

2.In the Reserve Room there is a firm control on the noise and signs are posted to help maintain the quietness.

3.Downstairs in the Periodical section in the East Wing there are tables and carrels at which one could spread out and study in a quiet atmosphere.

agulet atmosphere.

And finally, it he noise is bothering a student in the East Wing, then the library assistant sitting at the desk will gladly go and sask the group to quiet down. (In the Erdahl-Cloyd wing it is tough to quiet down the whole front lobby, especially at a busy time like iunch.) At the Circulation Desk we have rarely if ever gotten a direct complaint about it. I am sure that someone would readily lake the time to go and address the problem.

I think the library provides an excellent service to the 20,000+ students, and we are here for you, and do our job quite effectively. To discredit the staff and the entire institution because of the noise level in certain areas at certain times of the day is doing D. H. Hill Library an injustice.

Let your old shoes do the walking all the way to D.C.

So you have a old pair of shoes? Don't throw them away — they may have one good walk in them yet. On April 25 in Washington D.C., thousands of people from across the United States are marching to demonstrate against the oppression of South Africa's black majority. As was the intent of the march in Washington in the sixties, the point of this demonstration is that permitting the denial of human rights is tratamount to sanctioning them. The show of support for this event lies with us: the people of our nation and the government responsive to us. However, many cannot afford to go to Washington and support the cause in person. There is a solution. An effort to collect pairs of shoes for delivery to the march is underway. They will be delivered and lined up en mass to attend. All shoes will be given to the homeless after the march. Show your support in this crucial event in a critical issue. The collection sites around campus are:

by Woods at forum

This letter is addressed to the countless John Does that are present at NCSU. More specifically, to the John Doe who feels no need to move beyond being a voiceless statistic to being an individual with input into campus affairs. Unfortunately, that category includes far too many four students.

Maybe it has yet to be realized that voting allows constructive expression of one's preferences. If this fails to stry you, consider that you have an obligation to society, to your university and to yourself to be informed and to give back to society. It is also our responsibility to make wise decisions. This does not include voting based on such trivialities as race or sex.

One service offered to make this choice easier is the dradidate forums. I specifically say service because these are not organized to allow the candidates time to practice their speeches. These are for our benefit as well. Everyone focuses on communication, but few seem to realize that communication precessities at least two naties. Candidates are useless.*

The insight gained at these forums can be quite enlightening.

At the forum held Thursday, I was truly disgusted. I attended the forum in an attempt to make a fair, unbiased choice. I found a candidate whose diplomatic and political prowess was excessively rude.

Yes, Perry Woods, the respect (or lack of) vote. Please note that I am by no means inferring that Mr. Woods' behavior was the only that was subject to score.
