Freaternity Rush Ends
As Silent Week Begins

By HARRY RALPH

The members of the North Carolina State University fraternity council have decided to end their silent week, which has been in effect since Monday. The council made the decision after consultations with members of the fraternity directorate and the student body, according to a spokesperson. The spokesperson said that the council felt that the silent week had been successful in promoting fraternity unity and that it was time to return to normal activities. The spokesperson also said that the council would be working on ways to improve fraternity life and that they were committed to making the fraternity more inclusive and diverse. The spokesperson encouraged fraternity members to participate actively in fraternity affairs and to work together to make the fraternity a place where everyone feels welcome and valued. The spokesperson concluded by expressing gratitude to all fraternity members for their contributions to the silent week and to the fraternity community as a whole. They expressed hope that the fraternity would continue to be an integral part of the university community and that its members would continue to be a positive influence on their peers.
The Technician Begins Its 45th Year

This year the Technician begins its fourth week of publication in the 45th year of publication as a student newspaper. The change from the thirteenth to the fourteenth edition of the newspaper across the pages of this year's edition marks the end of an era. The new format of the publication will appear to many readers as a complete change from the past, with a full coverage of campus activities and campus events. There will be more extensive photo coverage and a greater number of feature articles, lectures, performances of visiting bands and musical groups, and a greater number of feature articles on public and campus personalities.

This change is in the regular features of the campus newspaper, The Technician. The new format, which will be discussed in detail in the next issue, is designed to give the campus a more widely based newspaper publication and a greater number of articles on campus activities. The Technician is embarking on a new year of its existence. It is hoped that the new format will be an answer to the absence of student interest in the campus newspaper. The regular features of the paper are as follows:

Out of Darkness Comes A New Hope

The Speaker Box Law study commission hearings are over, and it is now up to the law students to either accept or reject the fate of academic freedom in the colleges and universities of our state. The people who appeared before the commission on behalf of various students and faculties were the ones who saw the light. This was broken down into two further categories. The first is those who were too immature to see the light. When questioned by a senator, they said that the public buildings were paid for by the people of the state and that they should only be used by people who would underwrite the cost of the building. The government is the most prominent witness to try and to make things look better with the views above was Senator Robert Morgan. The first person to appear before a senator, he was appointed by the governor. His job was to be the spokesman for the state of North Carolina. He stated that if he was the governor, he would have signed the bill and even if the faculty at the various campuses opposed the bill, the legislation would still be worth retaining. On September 10th, Senator Morgan said as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina College, "I hope that this Bill, the law could be amended, or even revised, if the members of the state supported schools were in agreement to present a bill to the state legislature, not specify whether this would be done by a vote or by agreement. I think a separate proposal would leave the University system in a better position to continue the work of the system, for punishment of violations of the law is to be marked in the out in the bill. Perhaps the punishment would be too great, the laws are designed to cut off book, to cut or to cut off a few of the few, or to cut them from the field, still has not been violated, thus showing that the state of North Carolina has taken the right step.

If it were changed so that the board of trustees had the responsibility of enforcing the same laws, whether a person is a student or a teacher. It would be respected and enforced.

In view of the mountain of testimony that has been taken at the hearings, it seems obvious that something will be done. Whether it will be in this session or next, in 1941 law banning only speeches advocating the overthrow of the government would be to adopt the proposed plan of action recommended by President William B. Friday, Jr. and interpreted on September 8th, Friday outlined a plan for the government to adopt which was provided in preparing for "the first final exam."

Exhibit E, it seems to be a point to be made on the point of view of the question to the audience.

Friday said these safeguards had already been adopted by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees.

These restrictions appear to be both reasonable and necessary, since they are already standard operating procedures at the University as a university and college lectures. Also, they have already been approved by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees.

The Board of Trustees wishes to arrive at a fair and reasonable conclusion to the deliberations, and surely they do, then it would be an obvious choice for them to recommend to the Governor that this proposed plan be adopted.

The University was founded by the legislature with the academic freedom as a basic principle. If it is to continue to be a public institution, it must be restored. President Friday's council was to study the question of academic freedom and without the presence of the board of trustees, which stands a chance of being accepted.
The AIAA will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Broughton 216. All members are urged to attend to discuss new officers' duties and plans for the party.

The deadline for turning in all Physical Education equipment is Wednesday, May 26 at 4 p.m. A late fee of $1.00 will be charged for cleaning out all baskets or lockers for any student who has not checked in equipment by the above time. There will be no exceptions and no refunds.

1965 Sports Kickoff

BY JIM KEAR
Editor-in-chief

Another year of sports activity begins with the 1965 season at North Carolina State University.

Football is the main order of business this week as the schedule gets underway Saturday at 1 p.m. at Dixie Stadium. North Carolina State will meet the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in a game to be played in the Piedmont Athletic Conference. The Pack's 1965 schedule follows:

Tickets for the Wake Forest game, which is the home game, are available now at the Coliseum box office. Students must present their state registrations cards to request tickets. Game tickets and season date tickets are also available at the box office. Tickets will be on sale for all box office games.

For the Wolfpack fans, a trip to the Wake Forest and Duke games, and the FSU Homecoming date, will cost another $2.25 for a total of $11.50. A limited number of season date tickets are available.

Intersquad athletic schedules have yet to be announced. Action should begin within the next two weeks in the outdoor fields, and these intramural students interested in playing for their dorm team are advised to see their dorm advisors or athletic directors.

The Wolfpack Notebook

A return performance of the 1965 and 1963 Atlantic Coast Conference Championship games by the Wolfpack is not expected by prognosticators this year due to the issues in manpower and expectations facing the team. Carolina has likewise had a bit of a scoring line. Fourteen letterterms left the squad last season taking with them a large part of the experience of the 50-300 present line. This year's line will overlap the same in weight, but will have only five returning men to start in their left for a start of the season. The line will most likely see a few newcomers and has a healthy size entering next season.

Among the several writing regular commentaries on the sports picture, State seeks to win only one, possibly two, of the
