Homecoming Events Offer Parade, Dance

The 1965 Homecoming parade will feature 35 individual floats, according to Mac McGarity, chairman of the Homecoming Parade Committee.

The floats, which have been entered in three separate categories, will be on the theme "Pop Songs" and have no size or expense limitation. The competition will be divided into groups of residence halls, fraternities, and organizations, the winner in each group being awarded a trophy. Judging will be on the basis of originality, theme, and appearance. McGarity said. Winning floats will be announced at halftime Saturday.

Petition Drawn On Viet Nam War By NCS Veterans

The Veterans' Association at State is sponsoring a petition for the endorsement of U. S. policy in South Viet Nam.

A space with petitions present will be available in the basement of the College Union on Veterans' Day, Thursday, according to Gerald E. Flowers, president of the Veterans' Association. Signatures of students will be solicited at this time.

A resolution passed by the association says in part, "In view of the recent, somewhat alarming, trends among pacifist organizations both on and off campuses across the nation, the Veterans' Association... feels compelled to reaffirm its support of American policy in Viet Nam."

The resolution further states, "We, as students and American citizens, proclaim our support for the policy of the United States government in Southeast Asia in general, and in South Viet Nam in particular; and we extend our wholehearted thanks to our men in uniform all over the world."

The petition will be based on the resolution of the association and will be sent to General William C. Westmoreland, Commander of United States Forces in Viet Nam, Flowers said.

Flowers went on to urge all students to endorse the resolution "in order that our soldiers in the field know our feelings."

Apollo Club Sponsors Kilpatrick Lectures

Dr. Franklin P. Kilpatrick, nationally-known psychologist, is on campus for a series of 13 lectures sponsored by State's Apollo Club.

Kilpatrick is speaking on contemporary topics such as transactional perception in human relations, motivation, and the role of government in economic processes. He is giving several lectures, while many of his other appearances take the form of seminars.

Various schools, departments, and fraternities are sponsoring talks by Kilpatrick. His schedule for the rest of the week is as follows:

Tuesday: 10 a.m.—Macroeconomics—Dr. Jack Wilson; 3 p.m.—Kellogg Fellows—Ag. Economics Seminar—Prof. James Maddox; 6 p.m.—Apollo Club: "Man the Involuntary Gambler," or, "What Do You Know for Sure?"

He served as head of the Consumer Research Division and head of Research Development at National Analytica, Inc. in Philadelphia, where he planned and supervised social research projects for business concerns, universities, and the government.

Dr. F. P. Kilpatrick

Kilpatrick has written numerous books, monographs, and articles, most of them dealing with psychology and social behavior. Kilpatrick will address the Apollo Club Dinner at 6 p.m. tonight on the topic, "Man the Involuntary Gambler, or What Do You Know for Sure?"

Blue Key Picks Top 10

The brothers of the local chapter of the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity were a sleepy lot yesterday morning. To them fell the overwhelming task of picking 10 finalists from the 20 semifinalists in the Miss Wolfpack Contest.

Their decisions came after a coffee hour held Sunday at 8 p.m. Each member of Blue Key chatted casually with two or three of the contestants. No specific or tricky questions were asked of the girls; the entire hour was spent in informal conversation.

The Technician interviewed several of the girls at random. Dianne Davis, a sophomore here at State, is sponsored by Lambda Chi. She is studying sociology, enjoys dancing and acting. She is a cheerleader. Dianne, a native of Wilmington, felt cautiously optimistic about her chances in the contest.

Kitty Hardenburg, a Meredith junior, is majoring in history after having transferred from Duke. She likes records, as well as tennis and other sports. Kitty, sponsored by ASCE, was not nervous, but she was not overly confident.

Judy Atkins, a sophomore, is also a Meredith girl. Her hometown is Durham, but she lives on campus. She is studying Biology and is Secretary of the Student Government. She was not too confident, but she felt it would be an honor to be queen.

The entire atmosphere of the coffee hour was informal. Soft drinks and coffee were furnished by the Sifter Food Service. The refreshments were supervised by Blue Key with the assistance of Miss Karen Tennant, Student Dining Coordinator at Slater.

According to Blue Key President Jim Fulhum, the informal nature of the gathering would allow the girls to feel more at ease than would a formal question-and-answer session. In addition, it was felt that casual conversation with the girls would allow the Blue Keys to make a much fairer selection.

Seven or eight of the girls were from State. Fulhum indicated that this trend may eventually lead to the restriction of the contestants to State women. The consensus of the Blue Keys was that the coffee hour was a success. However, it is doubtful that they could possibly make anything other than a successful choice with the material they had to work with. State, regardless of the judges' decision, will have a gorgeous Homecoming Queen!

SPE Hurt Confusion Delays Help

By HAL HARDING

Headline: "City Watches While Man Stabbed." Incidents like this have happened several times in the big cities, but not here.

No? Well, on Nov. 1 a comparable event on a smaller scale occurred on State's intramural field. Bill Young, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, smashed his head against a Theta Chi opponent and immediately had a seizure. Art Hoch, intramural director and several other players helped keep the boy from choking on his tongue, while still others went for help.

A lighter, which now bears the boy's teeth print had to be inserted in his mouth to keep him breathing.

Trustees Consider Speaker Policies

CULLOWHEE—The Board of Trustees of Western Carolina College, meeting Monday at Cullowhee, adopted the speaker policy recommended by the Speaker Ban Study Commission.

Western Carolina thus became the first of the state's eleven tax-supported colleges to adopt the new policy. The policy says visits by communist speakers will be... "Infrequent, and then only when it would clearly serve the advantage of education."

The policy also directs the school administration to formulate rules governing the appearance of speakers who are known communists or who have pleaded the fifth amendment in loyalty hearings.

The Speaker Ban Study Commission... under the threat of action against the academic accreditation of state-supported schools... recommended last week that the Speaker Ban be amended. It said the amendments should return control of visiting speakers to the trustees of the various schools.

Student reaction to the Britt Report on the Speaker Ban Law has been unanimously favorable since it was released Friday.

In the report, the Britt Commission recommended that control over visiting speakers be returned to the universities through their boards of trustees. The plan, as outlined in the report, calls for each board of trustees to adopt a statement acknowledging their responsibility for any and all visiting speakers on their campuses.

Jackie Mitchell, President of the N. C. State Student Body, said yesterday that he was "very pleased" with the report. "I hope the legislature will carry out the recommendation of the Britt Commission to the letter," Mitchell said, "and if they do it will be a giant step towards restoring the University to its former stature."

UNC-CH Student Body President Paul Dickson III expressed a similar sentiment, as did every other student leader contacted on the State, Chapel Hill and Greensboro campuses.

Friday afternoon, after the report was presented by commission chairman David Britt, Governor Dan K. Moore called a special session of the General Assembly to convene in Raleigh at noon on November 15. As Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina, Governor Moore also called for a meeting of the board to be held in the Hall of the House of Representatives in the State Capitol building at 11 a.m., Friday, November 12.

Hearings Thursday On Parking Proposal

By BOB HOLMES

Student Government Investigations Committee will hold open hearings Thursday on proposed parking plans which would eliminate campus parking accommodations for first semester freshmen.

The plan, to be aired between 1 and 5 p.m. in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union and introduced by SG Senator Louie Carter also would require upperclassmen to have a 2.0 average in order to park on campus.

The bill points out that completion of Sullivan Dormitory on the west end of the campus will bring the number of students there to 2,500.

The construction of new dorms north of Owen and Tucker and south of Lee will reduce parking spaces in that area. It also stated no plans are being presently considered to replace parking eliminated by construction of dorms and other facilities.

point average is 2.0 or better.

Section 3. Exceptions to sections one and two are as follows: a) married students, b) any student who must commute to and from a job more than one mile from campus, and c) students whose permanent home is in Raleigh or Wake County.

Section 4. Any attempt by any student to register a motor vehicle under false pretenses or in the name of a person other than the regular operator or owner of the vehicle will be considered a direct violation of the Honor Code and will be subject to appropriate action by the Honor Code Board.

Czech Orchestra To Appear In FOC

The Czech Philharmonic Orchestra, with Karel Ancel conducting, will appear here on Thursday and Friday, November 11 and 12.

The concert, second in a series sponsored by the Friends of the College, will feature works by European and American composers.

given in the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum at 8 p.m.

The Friends of the College is the largest concert series in the United States, with a membership stretching across 18 counties in central North Carolina and a membership of more than 16,000.

The Czech Philharmonic is one of the oldest orchestras in Europe. It was founded by the members of the National Theatre Orchestra in 1894. It performed its first public concert in 1896. The orchestra came under state subsidy in 1945.

Politics Head Elected To SPSA Presidency

Dr. Preston W. Edsall, Head of the Department of Politics at State, has been elected President of the Southern Political Science Association for the 1966-67 academic year. The Association held its meeting in Atlanta on November 4, 5, and 6.

The Southern Political Science Association is comprised of members from political science departments all over the nation, professional political scientists, and legislators totaling approximately 400 members. The group, according to Dr. Edsall, promotes interest in political science, meets to discuss and study problems of political science, cooperates with the American Political Science Association and regional associations to discuss problems of the United States and world affairs.

As President-Elect Dr. Edsall will assume the responsibilities of the Presidency when the Association meets again in November of next year. "I regard it as an honor, both personal and to this institution," stated Dr. Edsall. He is the first State faculty member to be elected to this position.

Dr. Edsall is a graduate of New York University and received his Ph.D. at Princeton. He has taught at Emory, Princeton, Rutgers, and New York University and has served eight years under the Department of Justice in the National Archives and the U.S. Civil Service. He has been at State since 1945 where he has been head of the department of History and Political Science until the department separated last February.

Campus Crier

The Student Government legislature will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Erdahl-Cloyd Union ballroom.

The N. C. State Women's Association luncheon will meet Wednesday at noon in Room 258 of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union. It will be a social meeting.

The Air Force Officer's Qualifying Test will be held Saturday, November 20 at 8 a.m. in Room 107, Harrington Hall. This test must be taken before anyone can be accepted into the Advanced AFOTC program either on a two year or four year basis. One must sign up before the test in the AFOTC Department with Captain Robinson in Room 145 of the Coliseum.

calling from the cage in the gym basement, said the campus operator wouldn't give him an outside line to call an ambulance, but rather connected him with the infirmary, saying that "in cases like this" they usually referred people to the infirmary. Riggins called the operator again and demanded that she get him an ambulance. The operator did so this time.

Fred Fletcher, another player, called the infirmary and asked Dr. W. I. Pricter, then on duty, to come over to the intramural field. Fletcher said then my help?" After talking to Fletcher, Pricter said he called Rex and had a room and surgeon reserved for Young. He also said that he did go to the intramural field, but by the time he got there, the ambulance had come and gone.

Art Hoch stated that he had understood that it had been a policy of the infirmary for the doctors not to leave. Dean Stewart, however, talked to the infirmary shortly thereafter and has had their policy clarified. Doctors will be allowed to leave if an emergency arises.

In Near Perfect Game

Wolfpack Clobbers Devils

By BOB HUDGINS

With an almost perfect performance on both offense and defense, the State Wolfpack downed the Duke Blue Devils by a score of 21-0 Saturday.

In the first quarter, neither team could mount a sustained drive. State took the ball on the State 47-yard line and had moved it to the Duke 47 when the quarter ended.

As the second quarter started, State moved to the Duke 41 where the Duke defense held. Harold Deters then tried a 47-yard field goal. It was short and Mike Shasby of Duke elected to run it out of the end zone. He was stopped on the seven. The State defense held Duke and forced them to punt. Gary Rowe called for a fair catch at the 50. With Page Ashby at quarterback, the Wolfpack marched the 50 yards for a touchdown in ten plays. Ashby ran around left end for four yards and the touchdown. Deters kicked the extra point to make their score 7-0, State.

On the next series of downs, Tony Golmont intercepted a Duke pass on the 49-yard line of Duke and returned it to the State. State moved in for the score in nine plays. Shelby Mansfield crashed over from the one for the score. Deters kicked the extra point to make the score 14-0, State, with 1:43 left in the first half.

The third quarter started with Duke kicking off to State. State could not move, and had to punt. The State defense kept the Duke offense bottled up until Gus Andrews hit Jay Calabrese so hard that he fumbled. Bill James fell on the ball for State on the Duke 25-yard line. State moved the ball to the one on the running of Mansfield. Fullback Dan Golden then crashed over for the score for his first touchdown for State. Deters kicked the extra point to make the score 21-0, State, with 6:51 left in the third quarter. At this time, Duke had made one first down in the game.

Duke got the ball back on their own 34 and marched to the State eight. There, another intercepted pass, this one by Golmont, stopped the Duke attack cold. State then ran out the clock to preserve the victory.

The Wolfpack rushed for 208 yards and hit on nine of 15 passes for 54 yards. It was penalized 18 yards. While doing this, they held Duke to 73 yards rushing, and 125 yards passing on 12 of 25.

Duke coach Bill Murray said that this was the strongest State team that he had ever faced.

State has made 12 interceptions in the last three games. Also in the last three games, State has given up only seven points against three of the best offensive teams in the conference. State has given up an average of only 73 yards rushing in the last three games. This team was last in the conference in defensive before the three-game win streak started.

Resolution

After two and a half years of delay it was quite refreshing to observe the speed with which the Governor reacted to the Britt Commission report on the Speaker Ban Law.

Although part of the text of the report filed by Representative Britt was nothing less than odorous to the University, it is overall a very satisfactory thing. The Britt Commission was faced with a difficult task when it was formed, and the members have done an outstanding job in evaluating charges made against the University and answering them. The statement of policy proposed for adoption by the state supported schools is not completely satisfactory but it is a remarkable improvement upon the status quo, where no responsibility for speakers is allowed to them other than enforcing a law.

If the several trustee boards adopt this statement it will be nothing more than a re-affirmation of their known responsibilities, and it will enable the legislature to consider the proposed bill with assurance of compliance by the universities should it pass. It is difficult to see why it should not.

An Old Story

The little scenario played over and around the tragedy on the intramural field last week brings again to light several sad truisms. First, it always seems to be the case that a tragedy must occur before faulty regulations or facilities are corrected. Second, it also appears that one man's fellow human beings do not necessarily feel obligated to come to his assistance in times of need (as earlier proven by the several incidents in New York City). Third and finally, Murphy's Law (if anything can possibly go wrong, it will) is very much in effect at NCSU.

The facts of this particular case are very simple. It is the human element that makes the situation complicated. A student was hurt during intramural competition, and quite obviously was in serious condition. One of the competitors did the most obvious thing and headed for the nearest doctor—at the infirmary. Another went to phone for an ambulance. The student's appeal to the infirmary was incoherent at best, but the doctor could not be budged by any plea—he refused to leave the premises at first effort. The student phoning for the ambulance first encountered a reluctant attendant at the PE department equipment cage and then a reluctant university switchboard operator. The plight faced by each of these students must have seemed tremendously frustrating. In any case, red tape and disbelief certainly did not help the injured party on the intramural field. Finally, after considerable effort on the part of the students and Art Hoch, the intramural director, the injured student was transported to Rex Hospital.

The after-action of this situation does little to relieve the rather disquieting knowledge that such a circumstance could ever take place. Dean of Student Affairs J. J. Stewart has arranged a clarification in the university regulations so that the infirmary physician is now allowed some leeway in emergency situations. In addition, all of the reluctant parties in this case will not be wary of similar circumstances. All of this must be very comforting to the student in Rex Hospital. Had the injury been more severe, he might not have needed hospital services at all. It also must be very comforting to the rest of the students that each of them might be forced to lie seriously injured for 45 minutes while their fellow human beings disentangled themselves from the red tape of their positions at the University.

Although the difficulties affecting this one incident appear to be rectified, it is probably quite possible for a similar tragedy to occur in some other field. The moral of this story seems to be: If you must be injured, let it happen somewhere other than on the N. C. State campus.

Professor On Trial

by Art Buchwald
from the New York Herald Tribune

There seems to be trend in universities these days to have college students rate their Professors. Some schools are even setting up student boards to decide whether a teacher should get tenure or not. If it continues, we can well imagine the following scene.

A board room with three somber students studying a dossier. There is a knock on the door. "Come in," one of the students shouts.

Enter Prof. Higgins, nervously biting his lip. The three students study him for almost a minute. Then the chairman speaks: "You can smoke if you want. Professor, this report does not look very good. It says you slur your words, have a very annoying habit of clearing your throat, and your handwriting on the blackboard leaves much to be desired."

"All I'm asking is another chance," Prof. Higgins pleads. One of the other students says, "Higgins, I would like to remind you that your parents went to a great deal of trouble to make you a professor. Is this how you repay them?"

"I'm sorry, gentlemen. It's just that I've been writing my book on Antarctic philosophy and I haven't had enough time to look on my lectures."

"A likely story," another student says. "If you ask me, you're probably spending too much time thinking about your wife and children. This is not a country club, Higgins, and the sooner you discover this the better off you're going to be."

The chairman says, "The report also states you give too many exams and rely too much on outside references. What do you have to say to this?"

"I don't want to complain, but the students are always picking on me. I just can't seem to do anything right."

"Higgins, I'd like to ask you this question. How many hours of television do you watch at night?"

"Two hours, maybe two and a half."

"Why don't you cut it down and shape up to your responsibilities? Decide what you want out of life, Higgins. We're here to help you, but we can't do it if you don't want to help yourself."

"I'm trying to," Higgins says, "but it isn't easy. There's so much pressure on a professor these days that I seem to lose sight of my goal."

"Don't you think it's a simple matter of discipline, Higgins? You've got to identify with your subject matter. Here in the report it says you're constantly quoting from your own books. Do you call that teaching?"

"Higgins," the chairman says, "I don't want to get off the subject, but it also says in the report you seem to concentrate on the coeds in the first row when you're lecturing. Do you have any excuse for this?"

"No, sir."

"What are we going to do with you, Higgins? What are we going to do with you?"

"Maybe I could take an aptitude test. Perhaps I'm teaching the wrong subject."

"If we let every professor teach the subject he was most qualified for, Higgins, where would the university be?"

"Higgins, we're going to put you on probation. We are going to assign a student to tutor you and you will report back in two months. If you don't show any improvement, we're going to have to ask you to leave."

"Thank you, gentlemen. I'll prove your faith in me. You won't regret it."

"We like your spirit, Higgins. Now let's see you measure up. Good day."

The chairman takes out a new dossier. "Who is next? Oh, no. Not the Dean of the Law School again?"

"Ugh!" shouted the students as they tasted their food. They groaned, they complained, they retched; and finally the campus food service heard about their unhappiness.

"Students are complaining," said one official of the Misery Food Service.

"Yeah, guess we'd better do something about it," said another. "Looks like pretty soon we'll get kicked off campus. Think of all the profit we'd lose."

They all shook their heads sadly. One or two broke down and cried. "But what can we do?" they lamented.

"Improve the food quality?" suggested one.

Everybody laughed. "You must be a radical or something, kid."

"Let's hire a student coordinator," he shouted.

"Hooray!" cheered the officials. "What's a student coordinator?"

"Well, a student coordinator makes everybody happy so we don't get kicked off campus and lose a lot of money."

"Great!"

So they hired a student coordinator. They chose, of course, the first well-qualified candidate.

"We need somebody that will, uh, sympathize with the students—be on their side, so to speak," they declared.

The coordinator they hired was, by chance of course, a beautiful blonde.

"Gorgeous," they agreed. "She'll get along real well with the students."

So she came to the campus. Her purpose was to give every student a chance to complain to her.

"Tell me how bad the food is," she intoned softly. I'll make sure something is done about it."

She introduced herself to Student Government officials. In the true democratic spirit of friendship in spite of criticism—SG had been nasty about criticizing the food service—she invited all the senators to a free steak dinner.

"Our compliments."

"Goody," said the senators, as they licked their chops.

Then she appeared in the newspaper office.

"After all," she smiled, "shouldn't I get acquainted with all the campus leaders, so they will know where to direct their complaints?"

"Of course," the newspapermen agreed.

"Tell me," she cooed as she sidled up to one of the co-editors, "don't you think it would help things if I got to know everybody on a personal basis?"

The co-editor looked into the depths of her wide, smoky-grey eyes. He saw sincerity and unmistakable honesty, on her fresh, rosy lips.

"Of course," he gasped.

And, in order to be able to explain fully his complaints and the newspaper's criticisms of the food service, he began seeing her more and more often.

They were seen together in the cafeteria every day. They were seen in the office together. They were seen together all over town.

"At last," she murmured in his ear, "I'm really getting a chance to know the students' complaints."

"Mm," he said.

"By the way, would you co-editors like to come to the free steak dinner with the student legislature? We'd sure love to have you."

"Mm," he said.

So peace settled upon the strife-torn campus. True, a few students still had the audacity to gaze upon her features, and complain. They knew she was on their side, though, and the complaints became fewer and fewer. Many began to praise the food. Some even began to eat it.

The Student Government was happy and well-fed. The few dissenters were, they realized, just jealous.

The campus newspaper staff members, particularly the leaders, were also happy. The underlings were, of course, a little discontented.

"You're just jealous," the leaders said.

The student coordinator was happy.

"Wonderful," she breathed huskily, with a sweet smile.

And, most important of all, the Misery Food Service officials were happy.

"Wonderful!" they exclaimed as they raked in their profits.

Bentley Wins Seventh Contest

Bruce Bentley, of 705-D Lee, is the latest winner in the Wolfpack Watchers Contest.

Of the 60 percent of the entrants who chose State over the Blue Devils, and the nine of these who also picked "the big M", Shelby Mansfield, to gain the most yardage for State, Bruce was the closest score-wise with the exact Pack margin of 21 points.

Bruce will be awarded passes for free bowling at Western Lanes for himself and his date unless Go-Go Radcliffe is busy that night, and two free admissions to the Varsity Theater.

Dorm Pigskin Semifinal Bouts Set

by Harry Anderson
Syme, Turlington, Alexander, and Lee #1 advanced to the semi-finals of the intramural football race this week.

With wins, respectively, over Bragaw North #2, Bragaw #1, Tucker #2, and Bragaw #2 the four teams clinched spots in tomorrow's round. The championship will be decided on Wednesday, November 17.

Syme won its fifteenth consecutive game over Bragaw #2, 19-7. Carter led the Symians with his two touchdown passes to Truette Martin and one to Gordy Jones. Bragaw scored on a pass from James Thorsen to Romsburg, Turlington broke up a close game by scoring twice in the fourth quarter to take a 20-0 win over Bragaw #1. Turlington's defense was the deciding factor as it kept the Bragaw team bottled up all afternoon.

In a great scoring duel, Alexander outlasted Tucker #2, 38-28. Both teams scored freely in the first three quarters, but settled down to a defensive battle in the last quarter.

Lee #1 upset previously unbeaten Bragaw #2, 19-12. Fox's run-back of an intercepted pass turned out to be the margin of victory for Lee. Their scoring attack was balanced with Gribble, Lyons, and Fox each scoring a touchdown. Holtshouser threw touchdown passes to Blythe and Lawrence for Bragaw.

In the semi-finals next Wednesday, Alexander meets Syme and Turlington plays Lee #1.

'Wolflets' Drub Duke Blue Imps Too, 42-20

by Bob Hudgins
Using a powerful running game, the State Wolflets pushed across 42 points to defeat the Duke Blue Imps by a score of 42-20 Friday night.

State struck early in the first quarter when Larry Dempsey, the Duke punter, fumbled to State on the Duke 10. Three plays later, quarterback Dick Schrippa went in from the one. Warren kicked the PAT to give State a 7-0 lead.

The Blue Imps tried to move the ball by passing, but State intercepted a pass and returned it to the Duke six. Bobby Ball went through the middle of the line from the one for the score. Warren kicked the extra point to make the score, 14-0 State.

Just one minute later, State scored again. Jim Jack Klebe took off on a 40 yard run for the touchdown.

Duke finally got on the scoreboard when Glenn Newman bulldozed his way over from the one. Duke then added another touchdown when Newman crashed over from the two. Newman kicked both extra points to make the score 21-14, State.

State then turned loose its running game, and marched for two more touchdowns in the second quarter. Leon Mason went 11 yards for the first one, and Mike Alford ran 25 yards for the second. Warren kicked both extra points to make the score 35-14, State.

In the fourth quarter, Henley Carter ran six yards for the last Duke score. Newman's kick was wide of the mark.

State roared back to get the next touchdown. Alford took off on a 75 yard race to the goal line. Warren kicked the extra point to make the final score 42-20, in favor of State.

WHY MITCHELL?

One might say, "Who the hell is Mitchell?" A friend might answer, "He's a candidate for the President of the Freshman Class."

What I will do for the Freshman Class seems to be a big question around campus. My platform is based on school loyalty, school spirit, and class unity.

Projects to support this platform? I will arrange for chartered buses to take freshmen who wish to go to the Wake Forest, Carolina, and Duke basketball games. There will be a place on campus where freshmen may purchase their bus tickets.

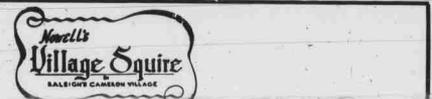

Also, I will try to have a mixer with Meredith, Peace, St. Mary's, and N. C. State's freshman girls with the N. C. State freshmen. Some freshmen seem to think there is a lack of activities for freshmen; so I say, let's get together with the girl's schools. If this is a success, then I will start planning a mixer with the UNC-G freshmen.

Finally, I think a lecture on the Viet Nam situation would be appropriate. Most of the freshmen at State are of drafting age. This lecture would really open some eyes about the world situation in Viet Nam.

Now, how am I going to get the money for these projects? At present, the Freshman Class has quite a substantial amount of money in the treasury. To further increase this amount I will urge all freshmen to pay class dues and purchase freshman blazers. If all freshmen pay class dues there will be no money problem in the freshman class.

I would like to compliment the Freshman Class on their turn-out in the primary election. A total of 52% of the Freshman Class voted last Wednesday, as compared to 22% last year. This indicates the interest in the political aspect of the Freshman Class this year's class has.

To end I would like to urge all Freshmen to get out and vote on November 10, 1965.

Ten Local Collegians Compete For NCSU Homecoming Crown

Four State co-eds, five Meredith College students, and one Peace College student were selected as finalists in the 1965 Miss Wolfpack contest Sunday evening by the members of the N. C. State chapter of Blue Key National Honor Fraternity.

The selections were made following an informal coffee-hour conducted by Blue Key at which interviews were conducted with the twenty semi-finalists selected the previous week.

"It was difficult to make any decisions after having the opportunity to talk with the girls, but some elimination had to be accomplished," lamented Jim Fulghum, president of Blue Key. According to Fulghum, the selections were based on the conversations with the various contestants, photographs submitted for the preliminaries, and information sheets which each contestant provided.

The ten beauties will attend the Friday night pep rally and will each be provided a convertible for Saturday's Homecoming parade in downtown Raleigh. The finalists will also participate in halftime activities during the State-Florida State Football game Saturday.

The student body will make the final decision on the Homecoming Queen tomorrow in the final fall elections. The Queen will be announced at halftime of the Homecoming game.

The finalists are: Judy Atkins: 19-year-old biology major (psychology minor) at Meredith College from Durham, N. C. Sponsor: Student Better Relations Committee. Activities: Secretary, Meredith Student Government, Meredith Coordinator of State-Meredith Student Better Relations Committee, Civitan Citizenship Award, Parent's-Teacher's Citizenship Award.

Carolyn Caudle: 19-year-old math education major at NCSU from Charlotte, N. C. Sponsor: Sigma Kappa Sorority. Activities: Sigma Kappa Sorority.

Sarah Copeland: 20-year-old religion major at Meredith College from Enfield, N. C. Sponsor: Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. Activities: freshman counselor, choruses.

Dianne Davis: 19-year-old sociology major at NCSU from Wilmington, N. C. Sponsor: Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. Activities: Cheerleader.

Mary Harper Freeman: 19-year-old sociology major at Meredith College from Kinston, N. C. Sponsor: Pi Kappa fraternity. Activities: Sociology Club, Granddaughters Club, Astrotek Society, International Relations Club, Kinston's Representative to 1964 Azalea Festival.

Kitty Hardenburg: 21-year-old history major at Meredith College from College Park, Maryland. Sponsor: Student Chapter American Society of Civil Engineers. Activities: Duke University—Honor Council, Student Union, School of Nursing Beauty Queen, Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority; Meredith College—Astrotek Society, Oak Leaf (school annual).

Sally Hough: 19-year-old liberal arts major at Peace College from Charlotte, N. C. Sponsor: Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Activities: Orientation Committee chairman, Elections Committee.

Julia Lassiter: 18-year-old liberal arts major at NCSU from Raleigh, N. C. Sponsor: Alpha Phi Omega Service fraternity. Activities: First runner up—Miss Raleigh 1965, First runner up—Miss Consolidated University 1965, played Ismene in Antigone—Frank Thompson Theater, played Nellie in Summer and Smoke—Raleigh Little Theater, acting and scene design awards—Junior Carolina Playmakers, most outstanding student award—Radio and TV Institute at Chapel Hill for high school students.

Blue Key members Jim Fulghum, Ed Brodihurst, Bob Holmes, Jim Ferguson, Jackie Mitchell, and Bob Self celebrate making the final selections in test. Also present Sunday night but not pictured are Blue Key members Stu Cooper, Henry Turlington, and Jim Miller.
