Library Open Late For Study

D. H. Hill Library will be open until 1 a.m. Sunday through Thursday nights for the rest of the semester.

The decision to adopt later closing hours was a direct result of the Climate of Learning Conference, according to Isaac Littleton, Director of the Library.

"The group evaluating the lack of study space, that I was part of, made the recommendation that the library consider the policy of staying open later. We did, and are opening the library on a trial basis to see if student participation will warrant its continuance." Littleton emphasized the fact that preliminary results indicate that the students do want a place to study after 11 p.m., and that they will use the library.

The library facilities will be open for study only. The stacks and the main floor will be open, but there will be no checkout service after 10 p.m.

Phillips Moves To USC Post

David W. Phillips, Program Director of the Erdahl-Cloyd Union, has resigned to take a position directing the activities of the student union at the University of South Carolina.

This announcement was made last Thursday night by Henry Bowers, Director of the Union, at the Union Board of Directors meeting.

Phillips, a State graduate, assumed his duties as Program Director with the opening of the present Union building in September, 1954. He served as President of the Union as a student.

Until an official appointment is made, Lee McDonald, who now serves as Assistant Program Director, will assume Phillips' duties at the Union.

Chiplew Wins Sculpture Award In Fourth Student Art Contest

Tom Chiplew, a fifth year student in product design, has taken first and fourth spots in the Fourth Annual Student Art competition held here last week.

The first place winners in the other divisions were Dick Mandell of UNC-CH in painting, Earl Massey of ECC in drawing, and Barbara Satterfield of UNC-G in prints. The exhibit of all work is now being shown in the Union Gallery.

The only other State student to receive an award was Julian Parker who took 4th place in drawing.

Ray Kass of UNC-CH won third place in the painting division. Fourth place in painting went to Frank Faulkner, also a student at UNC-CH.

Campus Parking Plans Indefinite

Auto Spaces Limited

The many students who have voiced the opinion that the parking situation on campus is in poor shape this year will have little to look forward to in the fall.

There are few definite plans for the future at the present time, but there will be more spaces available on the South end of the campus according to N. B. Watts, director of student housing. Although present spaces will be lost next to the Coliseum and in front of Owen and Tucker dorms due to construction, there will be approximately 400 new spaces behind the Naval Armory and an unknown number of spaces built near Sullivan Dormitory.

At the present time there are 6902 cars registered on campus, said Watts, including 340 permanent vehicles. On the flip side of the proverbial coin there are approximately 5630 parking spaces on the campus. This leaves parking area for some registered cars unavailable.

On March 16, the Student Government made several suggestions about the situation.

One of these suggestions was that Freshman not be allowed to have cars on the campus.

This year, Watts added, there are 634 fresh cars registered on campus or 24.19 percent of the freshman class. This would appear to be a typical year as to the number of students having cars, he continued, and banning fresh cars might be a big step in the right direction.

The largest drawback in the situation is the lack of money, said Watts. The construction of parking decks on the State campus would cost about $2000 per space. The paving of the 400 spaces near the Armory will cost approximately $80,000. Surface parking, the cheapest, is still $200 to $400.

Parking fees will also be raised next semester, he announced. It is not known what the new rates will be, but it is fairly sure that the rise in price will be a fairly substantial one.

The whole parking problem was turned over to a nationally known consultant about eight months ago, and a Traffic flow survey is being made. Preliminary reports have been turned in to the Housing Office but the final results of the survey and the consultants suggestions will not be completed for several months. Final plans cannot be made until that time.

Go-Go Girls, Bikini Will Spice Carnival

Wanna chance to get even? Wanna win some prizes? Wanna have a ball and contribute to Campus Chest at the same time?

If you come to the Campus Chest Carnival Friday and Saturday, right here at State, you can do all of these things.

Release tensions by dousing Assistant Director of Student Activities Tom Stafford with a water balloon. Did you miss? Well, try again, this time at the nasty 'ol man who talked to you when you cut too many classes. Attendance Counselor L. L. Cross. These attractions are part of the booth sponsored by Theta Chi fraternity.

"Everybody wins at our booth," said Paul Mitchell, in charge of the booth for Theta Chi.

Correction

An error was made in announcing the deadline for Golden Chain applications in Friday's paper. The article said forms must be returned by today. Instead the deadline is next Tuesday.

All persons desiring to nominate rising seniors for membership may pick up a nomination form from the Union Main Desk or 214 Peele Hall.

Lynd And Welch Send Refusals To State YDC

By Jim Kear
Technician Editor

Staughton Lynd has followed Robert Welch, head of the John Birch Society, in declining an invitation to speak to the State Young Democratic Club this spring.

This leaves only Community Party USA Chairman Gus Hall and North Carolina Klansman, Grand Dragon Robert Jones of Granite Quarry, on the list of speakers approved by Chancellor Caldwell and his speaker study commission under the amended speaker ban law. The only word from both Jones and Hall so far has been telephone replies to various news media that they intend to accept the YDC invitation, but no official word has been received by YDC President Leonard Farris.

Lynd, who had his passport revoked by the State Department in December for an unauthorized trip to North Vietnam, replied with a form letter to the YDC in which he expressed regret for using such a formal method of reply.

"I find I cannot accept every invitation and still be a responsible teacher and father," said Lynd in the letter. "I'm reluctantly declining your invitation to speak."

The Yale professor had been asked to speak on "A Reappraisal of U. S. Policy in Vietnam Based on my Conversations with Ho Chi Minh." Lynd opposed U. S. involvement in the Southeast Asian dispute and made the trip to the Communist portion of Vietnam in spite of a State Department ban on travel to North Vietnam, Red China, North Korea, and Cuba. His passport was revoked when he refused to give the State Department assurance he would make no more such trips.

Recently the State Department issued a temporary 90-day passport to Lynd in order that he may fulfill speaking engagements in England and Norway. This special passport is in addition to his original permit which remains revoked.

Robert Welch, the founder of the John Birch Society, declined earlier in a cordial letter to the YDC expressing the fact that he has a full schedule of speaking engagements planned for the spring and cannot commit himself to the invitation of the local club. He had been asked to speak on a topic giving "evidence of a Communist infiltration, and the role of the John Birch Society."

Dates of engagements with the remaining speakers cannot be set until some word of acceptance is received. Jones has been asked to discuss "the mission of the Klan, especially its role in the North," and Gus Hall was asked "in what ways and to what extent have recent Supreme Court decisions influenced the goals of the Communist Party USA?"

Hough Makes Plea To Juniors

Next year's senior may be missing out on a costly advantage if they fail to have their pictures made in the Union before May 6, according to Agromeck Editor Frank Hough.

In addition to missing a chance to be included in next year's annual, seniors may have to spend a considerable amount to have portraits taken for interview and placement services next spring. The arrangement with the photographers taking the yearbook photos guarantees a copy for the annual, said Hough, and a copy to be placed in the student's file in the placement center, to be used during job hunting before graduation.

"This two-fold advantage is something seniors seem to be unaware of," said Hough. In a statement to The Technician, Ron England, President of the Senior Class, restated Hough's plea, saying, "As President of the Senior Class, I want to remind each of my classmates that individual pictures are being taken . . . you are encouraged to go have your picture taken not only for the Agromeck office . . . during job placements." Of the estimated 1400 seniors next year only 200 have been photographed.

Hough emphasized further that so few appointments have been scheduled that students may at any time come to the studio area on the second floor of the Union and have their photos taken. A coat and tie is the proper attire for men and an appointment is not necessary. No retake will be made next fall.

Underclassmen are also being handled just as the seniors, without the need of appointments. Individual orders will be available for students desiring personal copies. Extra photos will also be provided for underclassmen for use by administration.

The studio at the Union is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. each weekday until Friday, May 6. Individual portrait sittings are available to any currently registered student free of charge.

Playboy Voices View Of New Generation

By Mary Radcliffe

"Sex has to fulfill our being — sex is something we are, not just something we do," stated Paul Brant in a debate on the Playboy philosophy Sunday night.

Brant, a University instructor and resident of Raleigh, presented the negative approach to the controversial Playboy philosophy Sunday night at the Bar-Jonah. The student who was to have presented the pro attitude was not present, but the audience provided many willing substitutes.

Brant laid the foundations for debate with a statement of Hugh Hefner's guiding principles. "The place of the Playboy is to fill the void not filled by any philosopher yet. Playboy is the voice for a new generation, the new contemporary man," stated Brant in summing up some of Hefner's principles.

"Hefner jumps on Freud's bandwagon. He believes that by philosophy. "Hefner's emphasis on the enlightened self-interest and the rights of the individual are much too selfish for today's world," said Brant. "His women are viewed as accessories, for man's pleasure, with no emotional entanglement."

At this point in the presentation, there were several persons in disagreement. Statements from the audience included: "Hefner sees nothing wrong with entanglement." "What Hefner views as the role of woman is as a human being, not as an object of man's play. In any arrangement, it is by mutual consent."

Brant's second point of disagreement was "the unrealistic promise of something that is not there. Hefner oversimplifies both the nature of man's drive and especially his sexual drives. Of course, no one has the complete answer to this," stated Brant.

"He reduces sex to something much simpler than it is. Anything less than using sex as a whole part of you is unrealistic."

Brant's final point of disagreement does not fulfill. "It doesn't provide for happiness; it denies the complete necessary of accepting responsibility."

The evening wasn't finished with the conclusion of Brant's presentation of the "con" approach to the philosophy. The audience broke up into small discussion groups which talked and debated far into the evening on the pros and cons of one of today's best read and most studied philosophies.

86 To Live And Learn In Berry

Freshman Experiment Planned

An experiment in "living and learning" has been established in Berry Dorm for the fall semester, according to N. B. Watts, Director of Housing.

Eighty-six incoming freshman, chosen at random from the Schools of Engineering and Liberal Arts, will be the participants in the program which is designed to "enhance the student's educational experience by bringing him into more intimate contact with members of the faculty and staff, by encouraging him to avail himself of the many cultural activities sponsored by the University, by urging his active participation in intramural athletics, and most of all, by stressing the necessity of independent thinking."

The students who participate in this program will live in Berry Dormitory. The plans call for two students per room with a maximum of 24 on the floor. Counseling offices, a lounge, and a classroom will be on the main floor, academic counseling and classes will be conducted in the residence hall.

An outstanding feature of the program will be the evening dinner seminars conducted by University faculty and staff members. These seminars will be designed to deal with many aspects of college life such as cultural events, academic problems, contemporary issues, and academic opportunities.

Another feature of the program is the provision for freshman English and freshman orientation to Engineering to be taught in the dormitory.

The students selected for this experiment will be participating in a summer orientation program. Preregistration for the fall semester will be accomplished during the orientation.

James B. Walker, of Engineering and A. Sidney Knowles of the English department will be the advisors to the experiment.

The only restriction placed upon the residents will be the postponement of pledging a social fraternity until the sophomore year. The expectation of this experiment in living-learning is that "the intimacy of this arrangement in a small residence will create a climate of learning," stated Watts.

The student art show demonstrates that students have a "Whale" of talent. West Coast whale, by Tom Chiplew, won first place in sculpture and is priced at $200.

Big Blast Misses Mark

A star-angled, first-class, luxury taxed, effervescent, mink-lined, and helter-skelter weekend is upon us in the form of All Campus Weekend. It is only a shame that amidst all this social fiery the original intent and purpose of its planners has been lost.

Albeit, the planning and execution of this array of activities has been worthy of the praise of its sponsors, (the Union, student government, and various school councils) and it must be admitted that the weekend rivals any such function in the State for its size and variety. Unfortunately, the weekend itself does little to remedy the "suitcase-itis" that plagues the student body and frustrates those organizations which try to function on behalf of the student and the climate of learning.

The weekend is an outgrowth of a plan evolved by the Union's Social Functions Committee and has enlisted a thousand dollars worth of aid from SG. The appropriation carried a stipulation that other groups (i.e. school councils) be approached to help. Student body President Jackie Mitchell says the idea was to set a good example with a trial weekend of this sort in hopes that other organizations would expand other weekends. This would offer more inducement to the student to remain in Raleigh between Friday and Monday classes. So the upcoming weekend was planned to offer so much inducement that a student could not help but stay, and this much of the plan will undoubtedly succeed.

The fact remains, however, that getting the traveling student to light in Raleigh for this one three day period will do little to keep him here the following weekend, the preceding one, or any other during the year that does not feature a football game or some limited event in his school or sphere of interest.

Had the five or six thousand dollars that this coming weekend is costing the students been spread over two, or even three weekends, a much greater good would have resulted. As it is with All Campus Weekend, the Fair, and Campus Chest Carnival all taking place at one, the student is bound to miss something and events will find themselves competing for attention.

There is an equal excess to be avoided in spreading such an attempt too thin, say by pouring six thousand dollars into a series of Saturday night combo parties which would certainly die the first year. Fraternities have discovered for themselves that weekly combo parties become a waste of money quite quickly. Students can build up a resistance to anything in time.

If the sole aim of this weekend is to outdo the German's Weekend at Carolina, then is a sure-fire success. But, if the hope is to encourage students to collect dust on those battered suitcases, then it is a bust. One big blast can have no more effect on the five-day student than Homecoming weekend. What is needed still is a habit-forming series of multiple activities with which to recondition the commuters.

This year's bundle is spent. It should be the concern of those involved to see that next year's is spent a bit more wisely and a whole lot less quickly.

Loaf With A Purpose

The obvious signs of spring fever burst forth this weekend with the invasion of the tennis courts, the marked increase in the number and quality of girls riding through campus in Daddy's car, and the spontaneous collections of students at various places looking for a little excitement. In this coming period of balmy days and leisure time, study becomes a millstone and a student often forgets the many escapes open to him.

For the students who have managed to stop one of the young ladies who ride through the campus long enough to start a friendship the world looks bright. Absolutely free are some of the most attractive grounds in the city through which to walk, and talk. Where? The place is the old campus area surrounding Holladay, Watauga, and Leazar. Decked out for another week at least in thousand of beautiful azaleas, dogwood blossoms, and budding trees, the area from the tower to the stadium is source of pleasure above the skill of man to create.

Another less natural, but equally as free, resource for both the dated and dateless is the series of twilight outdoor concerts each Wednesday on the terrace of the Union which combines both the fine music of State's musical organizations and the informal atmosphere of a reclining, grass-stained audience to present a rare moment; one of contentment and escape from the academic rat-race.

Watching sporting events has yet to lose attractiveness and a good crowd can always be found around the baseball diamond or even in the stadium watching State's now victorious rugby club in action.

And for the seekers of Elysian fields there remain the uncluttered areas south of the campus, from the forest of the cross-country trail to the meadows of the blind school, in which to wander lost in thought.

All in all, there remains awful lot to do for those people who care to do nothing on spring weekends.

Robert Shelton Defends The Klan

(Editor's Note: This article is a reprint from the February issue of The Fiery Cross, the official publication of the United Klans of America. The article was written by Robert M. Mikell of Huntsville, Alabama, and is to be included in his next book.

The article is the first in a series to present both the pro and con sides of the Ku Klux Klan for the benefit of students who may have a chance, in the near future, to hear Robert Jones of Granite Quarry, head of the North Carolina segment of the United Klans of America, speak on this campus.

This article is a presentation of the viewpoint of the Klan itself from its own organ of communication and is intended to be followed by an opposing viewpoint from an outsider. The information contained is from an interview with Robert Shelton, the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America, Inc. The bold-face emphasis is an addition of the editor not part of the original.)

dislike was with those that continued trying to destroy the American way of life by disobeying all the laws they dislike.

"I find it hard to say, or pin point any individual, but there are those who will seek out the erosion of our social and political morals of the American way of life, which can only result in the Communists taking over this land. These types of individuals can be found in the civil rights movement."

When Shelton was asked about the growth in number and influence of his Klan organization, he commented.

"Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee in his statement of November 9, 1965, revealed that there were about a dozen different Klan organizations operating. The hearing shows that the Klan strength is considerably greater than was estimated at the time of our investigation."

"It was the Un-American Activities Committee's belief that the Klan membership was about 10,000. Now, it is the committee's present estimate that the actual figure is 4 to 5 times the original number."

"I respectfully decline to challenge the chairman's estimate, because after all the Un-American Activities Committee has the command of all the resources of the FBI, CIA, the IRS, and the Department of Justice."

When asked how he was chosen as the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America, he stated that the Klan organization government structure was patterned after the methods of achieving the representative form of government that was set forth by the founding fathers of this nation. Delegates are selected by the popular vote of the membership at large. These elected delegates lead in a convention to elect the Imperial Officer.

"I was elected and re-elected Imperial Wizard simply because the majority of the delegates voted for me," Shelton commented.

Asked why the Klan had been repeatedly described as advocating a white and protestant and gentle South, Shelton answered that he had no knowledge of such information and could assure that this did not exist in his organization.

Robert Shelton was asked if he or any member of his organization had taken part in the Birmingham bombing, in which little children had been blown into shreds in 1964.

"As a sincere Christian or an individual that is working to maintain segregation of the races, I certainly do not justify the taking of life, regardless of race, creed or color."

"This is against the principles of our organization and certainly it is not of best interest of all individuals concerned."

"I was one of the first to contribute when the rewards were being issued and the money was collected in Birmingham, Ala., in the name of the United Klans of America, for the amount of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties. We will also donate $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties connected with the bombing in Charlotte, North Carolina."

Shelton was asked if there were any individual Negroes he personally had respect and regards towards.

"Yes, I have, and not being strange, but being a Southerner, I do have many Negro friends, for whom I have both respect and regards."

When asked if he knew of Negroes who were in agreement with the Klan views, he stated, "There are many Negroes who are in agreement with the Klan views."

There are many that have stated that they are in agreement with ideas and purposes of my organization."

When asked if these Negroes would qualify for membership in his organization, Shelton answered, "No, and I don't imagine that I would qualify as a member in various Negroes' organizations."

Shelton was asked about the basic aims and goals of his organization and where they hoped to move in the future. He commented that it was their hope to bring about a unity they considered necessary.

One of the Klan goals is to bring about an educational program broad enough for the citizens of America to understand the basic bone of conspiracy that is attempting to destroy this great nation.

The Klan organizations are attempting to bring together the individuals that are interested in maintaining the principles of Americanism and a government that is operated under the Constitution founded by the nation's earlier leaders.

When asked if his organization records were accessible for review by the IRS or any duly constituted government body, he stated, "Yes, we are an incorporation that meets the qualifications of chartering such as any other incorporation."

"From my office each year, I fill out the commonly known form 1120, and have since 1961. These forms are on record with the federal government."

Asked if the Un-American Activities Committee paid his expenses to Washington during the Klan investigation, he stated the committee had paid the grand total of $149.12.

When Shelton was asked how the Un-American Activities Committee investigation of the Klan got started, he stated, "First of all, the main purpose of the investigation against the Klan by the committee was for political power."

"The liberal element has gained control over the committee and it is their purpose to utilize the Klan and force the Klan to join forces with the liberal, as well as the Communist groups, in bringing about destruction of the committee within itself."

"Certainly, anytime there is a stumbling block in the path of the administration, they always try to remove the block. This is one of the means and methods of the Johnson administration. The Klan has created much concern with the administration on some of their policies, where the United Klan is strong."

"Therefore, by utilizing the Un-American Committee, the administration hopes to break the back of the Klan organization. The committee is completely out of its scope of investigation powers."

"The committee has not asked any questions in regards of

by Robert M. Mikell

There are those who say that Robert M. Shelton, the far famed Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America, Inc., the largest Klan group, is the supreme voice of hate in the land.

There are those who claim that he controls something called the Invisible Empire, holding power which cannot be overruled.

There are those who say that he is the Imperial Wizard of America is not to be confused with the general discussion of the Ku Klux Klan. It is true that within the framework of the Klan organization, we wear regalia. In meeting the outside public, we wear no mask, and we don't maintain secrecy in our identify with the organization.

"Any member has the opportunity if he deems necessary to identify himself as a member of the United Klans of America; but on the other hand if other persons do so by telling their identity, they would be violating the oath of the organization."

"The United Klans of America is not a secret organization, but has been expressed as being secret by the news media."

Asked, since the United Klans of America was not a secret organization, was it a terrorist organization?

"The United Klans of America is not a terrorist or communist organization," Shelton said.

"We are an organization of individuals who believe in Americanism and maintaining the Christian ideas and principles of our forefathers have given us on a silver platter," Shelton stated.

When Robert Shelton was asked if he had heavy hate or dislike toward any group, he replied that he hated no man, woman, or child, or any group of citizens. He stated that his Lacking the cohesive efforts of the faculties from all parts of the Consolidated University, the messy situation has evolved to the point where the Chancellor has had to stick his neck out for you. But it's still not too late for you to organize and influence the politics of this state. Certainly you could support the Chancellor's action through resolutions or affirm your support through your congressmen.

After all, you are still tax-paying, legal residents of North Carolina and, as such, members of the body politic. Arise ye tired liberals!

Maybe I am the joker in a deck of cards, and everyone wants to play bridge.

Pictures of people and things fill me, and confuse me, course through my brain like hot steel wire; who am I and if I am here why or when will it end?

Now I am a head, lying on a railroad track and here comes the train; am I cleaved in half?

communist affiliation or its involvement in any way. It has all been a spectacular in trying to make the leadership of the Klan appear to be a bunch of hoodlums and thieves, stealing money and other convictions of that nature."

He was asked what brought about the recommendation for the contempt of congress citations against him and six other Klan officials. Shelton stated, "It was on the basis that the committee was in the contention that a person couldn't protect himself on any constitutional amendment as long as he was an officer in an incorporation, in regards to turning over records to the committee."

"The committee has no charges or legal framework for any perjury against any member of the organization, simply because there have been no members of the United Klans of America that has given any information other than his name, rank, and serial number."

"The committee is making the recommendation for the contempt of congress because I refuse to turn over any records pertaining to my organization. My refusal in turning over these records is due to my interpretation that the committee is completely out of its scope of jurisdiction in trying to force an individual to turn over records belonging to a fraternal organization."

Robert M. Shelton said approximately 50 officers in his organization have already been called to Washington to appear before the investigation ends.

Shelton stated that he would estimate the investigation of the Klan by the Un-American Activities Committee has cost the American taxpayers close to one million dollars, including the facilities of the Internal Revenue Service, the FBI, the Justice Department, and various other governmental agencies in connection with the investigation.

And so it goes. The Ku Klux Klan is getting a million dollars of free advertising being paid for by the American taxpayers. The strength of the Klan has risen to 50,000 in the nation, besides perhaps additionally 75,000 sympathizers being drawn into the Klan philosophy.

by Bill Fishburne

Illogic

Dear Fish, 15 April, 1966

One day last year I was boppin' along, just knowing everything was gonna be all-right, when suddenly it was April 15th and the cat on KIX says, "Be sure to file your income tax report before midnight tonight."

Doomsday.

The great oblivion was upon me, and I was found wanting. Income tax? Man, like I went to school all last summer, and N. C. State took all my money. My father had just gone bankrupt, my car burned while I was getting a haircut, I had bounced 42 checks at five local (and one out of town) banks, I sold an engine for $85 (I paid $200) and some rat stole my tennis racket. For this, I have to pay income tax!

Oh yes, I did earn some money that summer. On weekends for $2 per hour. Each weekend I worked 10 hours, thus earning $20. During this time I was commuting, I replaced engine bearings twice, ran through two sets of Sears & Roebuck tires and broke an axle. On the personal side I lost two teeth in an unfair contest with a steel pipe and received a cut on the right arm which required 10 stitches, and three doctors, to close.

For this I should pay income tax?

At or about 2400 hours I began filling out my form 1040A (for those who earned less than $5,000). I looked for a form for people who spent more than $5,000, but they don't make any. Using my W-2 forms, I arrived at the following income figures:

Earned, from job A-1:	$200.00	Purchasing auto	$175.00
from job A-2:	$300.00	Auto insurance	$175.00
Total income	$500.00	towing fees	$ 45.00
		bearings, tires, etc.	$125.00
		obstructing traffic
		tickets	$ 40.00
		food	$200.00
		lodging	$100.00
		miscellaneous	$200.00
		Total expenditure	$1,060.00

So, after listing the above information in the section for "other personal exemption" and, after subtracting on the other side of the card, I billed the government $560 for my losses during the summer. (Naturally, since I had parental support during the winter months, I figured the government and my parents would work that out between them, and therefore I didn't bill them for that.)

Well, they didn't accept my report and I had to re-file according to some silly rules listed on the instruction sheet. Seems you can't bill the government. You can sue, but you can't bill.

The point in all this is that I decided there had to be a way to beat the tax racket. Everything else can be avoided in one way or another, so why not taxes?

So, Fish, I'm writing now to tell you all about the sure-fire method I found to avoid paying federal income taxes. Join the Army, or Navy, or any branch of the service and volunteer for Vietnam.

Any income earned while in the armed forces under hostile fire is tax free. Isn't that great?

Pardon me--gotta run now.

State Tops Tigers In Last Inning, 7-6

League leading Clemson came to the Raleigh area this weekend and lost two games to Carolina and State, ending a thirteen game winning streak.

After a 6-1 loss at the hands of the Tarheels Friday, the Tigers, last year's champions who are favored to repeat, dropped a second game Saturday to State.

The Wolfpack jumped off to an early lead in the first two innings, but had to scramble in the ninth to get the 7-6 victory.

State scored twice in the first with a walk by Fred Combs, a double by catcher Jerry Price and a single by Tommy Bradford.

In the second inning Wendell Coleman and Combs got on base with infield hits and Parmer walked Price and Bradford, forcing in the third run. Barlow knocked in one run with a single, and, on a grounder by shortstop Don Donaldson, Ad-

Couch Voted Best Frosh

The Monogram Club voted wrestler Mike Couch the Outstanding Freshman Athlete at State on April 4.

Couch, who is from Mooresville, won the 145 pound division wrestling championship of the North Carolina Amateur Athletic Union this year. In addition to wrestling Mike carries a 2.9 average in engineering. He was undefeated in his senior year in high school, winning the Western North Carolina High School championship in the 137 pound class.

kins made an error at second and two more men came home. Parmer was shifted to left field in the third inning, and thereafter State made no headway against Nelson Gibson and Bill James, Clemson's right-handed relievers.

In the top of the sixth Clemson pushed across five runs, beginning when Watson scored on a triple by Dantzier. Dantzier then scored on a sacrifice. Barbary and Parmer hit singles and Sutton finished the inning with a two-run homer out of left field.

In the ninth Clemson's Rusty Adkins homered to keep alive a two-year, 32 game hitting streak, and tied the game at 6-6.

Eddie Biedenbach walked and stole second. Pitcher Johnson singled him in for the slim victory.

Johnson is now 4-1 in four starts and has gone the distance each time. The team is 2-1 in ACC play, and the loss dropped the slugging Tigers (28 homers in 15 games) to 6-2, still tops in the conference.

Support Big Four Day May 4

SPORTSCRAPS By Harry Eagar

Host school Wake Forest seems to have done a good job of organization for the twentieth annual Big Four Day Intramural-Intercollegiate competitions to be held in Winston-Salem May 4.

Each of the Big Four schools will field teams in 12 events: badminton, bowling, handball, horseshoes, golf, table tennis, tennis, softball, volleyball, archery, skeet, and riflery.

None of the athletes will be varsity players in their sports, so the competition is between students who have participated in sports for enjoyment, without the letters and scholarships the superathletes get. Don't be fooled, though, the men who compete at Big Four Day are fine athletes—many could probably make varsity teams if they tried out for them.

In fact, at State the school's representatives are chosen from the champions of the individual week in most of the sports. The softball and volleyball teams will be made up of the best players from the teams that participated in the intramural tournament, not the team that actually won the tournament.

Only those men who have participated in intramurals this year are eligible for the squad that will go to Wake, and membership on the squad is considered quite an honor. And also something of a reward, in that it's a chance to prove one's self against the best of State's chief rival schools.

State Takes Third Place In Smallbore

The Atlantic Coast Conference Smallbore Rifle Championships held here Saturday resulted in a third place finish for the Pack marksmen.

State in the sectionals last month, won the championship handsily with a team score of 1336. Second place Virginia was far behind at 1265, and State finished with 1239.

The scorers for State were Les Aldrich, 261; Tom Eaves, 255; Joe Elikes, 253; Bruce Allen, 234; and Alma Williams, 236. High for the meet was Scott of Clemson with a 273.

Co-captain Tom Eaves has won the range championship this year with a high card of 268.

State Tanker Wins First At AAU's

Sophomore Steve Rerych won the 100 yard freestyle in the National AAU championships at Brandon, Florida, beating Don Schollander, winner of four gold medals in the 1964 Olympics.

Rerych, who placed fourth in the NCAA 100 freestyle event at the Air Force Academy last month overcame a poor turn to beat Schollander to the wire.

It was actually the second time in as many days that Steve had beaten Schollander. The previous day his surge in 400 yard freestyle relay overcame a Yale lead, and gave first place to the North Carolina Amateur Athletic Club.

At the AAU, swimmers from State, Carolina, and Raleigh's Enloe High School competed under the NCAA banner.

The victory over the record-holder Schollander makes Rerych the top ranked sprinter in the world. It also gives him a spot on the U. S. squad that will go to Moscow this summer for an international meet.

Although it was the first time this year that Rerych and Schollander had met, the two had originally been scheduled to meet each other three times this season. However, State did not attend the Eastern Intercollegiate and Yale did not go to the NCAA finals, because of a dispute between the Ivy League and the NCAA over a rule that athletes must have a 1.6 grade point average to compete.
