NCSU gets probation for NCAA violations

By Fred Hartman
Senior Staff Writer

The NCAA Infractions committee has placed the N.C. State men's basketball team on a two year probationary period for several violations of NCAA legislation.

On Dec. 19, NCAA Director of Enforcement Charles Smrt held a joint press conference on campus with Interim Chancellor Larry Monteith to discuss the committee's findings and penalties.

According to the NCAA's report, the committee cited violations in two specific areas. These included "the handling of complimentary admissions to regular season basketball games and Atlantic Coast Conference tournaments, and the manner in which basketball shoes were issued to the members of the team."

The report said that during the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1988-89 academic years, members of the athletic department and the basketball team did not exercise appropriate control in monitoring the men's basketball complimentary admission lists.

It said certain student athletes received as much as $150, stereo equipment and other items of value (totaling in excess of $1,000) in exchange for complimentary tickets to ACC conference games.

The report also said that during the 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, an excessive number of basketball shoes were made available to members of the men's team. Several of those team members, specifically from the 1984-85 and 1985-86 teams, either sold their extra shoes to other students or exchanged them for shoes and other apparel at local sporting good stores.

Smrt emphasized the problem was not of a singular nature. "The committee felt the university violated the provisions of institutional control and failed to monitor its athletics program in compliance with NCAA legislation," he said. No individuals were named in the report. For this reason, the case was considered serious in nature, he said.

Although this was a major case, the committee did not impose the stiffest penalties possible.

The NCAA membership gave the Committee on Infractions the authority to impose lesser penalties if it determined the case to be unique.

The committee cited the cooperation of NCSU and the acknowledgment of violations by the university to be the major reasons contributing to the uniqueness of this case. Therefore, the punishments levied against the program were less severe than they could have been.

In addition to its own penalties, the NCAA adopted three of the NCSU athletic department's own self-imposed penalties which had been initiated prior to the NCAA report:

- No off-campus recruiting and no official paid visits for the 1989-90 academic year.
- A limitation on grant-in-aids to 12 for the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years.
- A reduction of the coaching staff from five to four for the 1989-90 season and the 1990-91 season.

In addition to the probation, the

NCSU men's basketball probation period

The NCAA Infractions Committee cited violations in two specific areas of the Wolfpack program - handling of complimentary tickets and the handling of basketball shoes issued to the team. The committee placed N.C. State on a two-year probation. Below is a breakdown of the probation.

No Postseason Appearance in 1991

The committee ruled that NCSU would not play in the 1990 NCAA Tourney. State will be eligible in 1991.

Limited Scholarships Available

NCAA officials adopted NCSU's self-imposed penalty - limiting grant-in-aids to 12 in 1990-91 and 1991-1992.

Reducing Fundations for 1989

NCSU will not be able to recruit off-campus or pay for visits to the university in 1989-90.

Ex-student on trial for murder

2 others plead guilty

By Jimmy Bua
Staff Writer

Two former N.C. State students are testifying in the trial of a third former student in Elizabeth City for the July 1988 murder of Lieth Peter Von Stein, a wealthy textile executive of Washington, NC.

Christopher Wayne Pritchard, who is Von Stein's stepson, and Gerald Neal Henderson both pleaded guilty last week to aiding and abetting assault with intent to kill and inflicting bodily harm with a deadly weapon. Both charges are felonies that carry a maximum penalty of life in prison.

Pritchard and Henderson agreed to testify against James Bartlett Upchurch, who is charged with first degree murder. The trial began on Jan. 8.

Efforts to contact the attorneys involved in the case were unsuccessful Tuesday.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, Mike Adams, the news editor of the Washington Daily News, said Pritchard allegedly persuaded Henderson and Upchurch into committing the act and gave them a key and map to the victim's house. He said the three men became friends as a result of playing the fantasy game "Dungeons and Dragons."

Adams said the supposed motive for the murder was a $2 million

Wrestlers get jail sentences

Victims get nearly $100,000; one wrestler seeking new trial

From staff reports

Nine N.C. State students charged in connection with the Sept. 1 beating of another student, his wife and a friend were formally sentenced over Christmas break.

Seven of the nine students charged are NCSU wrestlers, one is a former wrestler, and one is the team manager. All received jail time and are paying nearly $100,000 in restitution to the victims.

The students on the team were suspended last semester pending results of their trials. All but one had pleaded guilty to various assault charges. Thomas Best, the wrestler who pleaded innocent, was convicted in November of one count of assault inflicting serious injury. He testified that he was never at the fight, and his lawyer, Richard Gusler, has filed a motion for appropriate relief.

Under this motion, Best is asking for a new trial because the other students can testify on Best's behalf, Gusler said. Because Best's trial was the first one, the men could not testify because they would have likely incriminated themselves.

Assistant district attorney Cynthia Baddour, the prosecutor, said she would appeal Gusler's motion.

In the attack, NCSU student William Grey, his wife Charlotte and their friend Rodney Bentley were severely beaten. Bentley's jaw and eye socket were broken, William Grey had facial cuts requiring stitches and Charlotte Grey's lip was cut, requiring seven stitches.

Because of his injuries, doctors had to install two pieces of metal around and near Bentley's eye.

All but Best agreed to make restitution payments of up to $12,500 to the victims. When Judge Joyce Hamilton sentenced Best and seven of the other men on Dec. 18, she ordered him to pay $1,600 to William Grey.

An attorney for team manager Garrett Boges told Hamilton at the sentencing that his client could not afford his share of the payment. Hamilton ordered the student to pay $7,500 in criminal restitution during the five years of probation she sentenced him to.

The student's families are paying most of the money, lawyers said. It is being split up among the victims based on the severity of their injuries. Bentley is receiving 65 percent of it, and the Greys are getting the remaining 35 percent.

Bentley told Hamilton his medical expenses had cost $6,000, and he needed $2,000 more for dental work. He said he needed new eyeglasses because blows to his head

Green Sheet ceases publication

By Amy Coulter
Assistant News Editor

The weekly Student Affairs Bulletin, commonly known as the Green Sheet, will not be around this semester.

The bulletin once provided information about upcoming meetings, announcements and activities of the Union Activities Board, Registration and Records Department, Career Planning and Placement Center, Campus Ministries, and other student affairs groups.

It was distributed to every residence hall room and was also available at the library, Information Center desk on the second floor of the Student Center, and various campus offices. Student Center staff members, including those from the UAB office, compiled the information into listings of organizational meetings on the front side of the Green Sheet and then printed a weekly calendar on the reverse side.

Cathy Bull, assistant director of the University Student Center, said the biggest question her staff members have concerning the Green Sheet is in determining how many people actually read it and how many people were affected by it.

Student Center Director Lee McDonald said the major problem with the Green Sheet was its limited exposure. Although the sheets were available upon request at several campus locations, they were distributed solely among residence halls, so only about 6,000 to 7,000 students were reached, Bull said.

Bull said the bulletin's lack of visual appeal was another drawback.

But there really is no way to determine the effectiveness of the Green Sheet in relating campus informa-

Unfinished parking deck opens

By David Honea
Senior Staff Writer

Finding a parking space on N.C. State's campus may get easier today as one section of the long-awaited Dan Allen Parking Deck is finally opened.

Construction of the deck, originally scheduled for completion in July 1989, has progressed far enough to allow for the opening of the East Tower, which contains 478 spaces.

Users of the deck will have to enter at the southeast corner, on Dan Allen Drive near the railroad bridge. The entrance is not yet paved, but should be soon, according to Jorge Quintal of Campus Planning.

"If the weather holds we will be able to finish paving over the upcoming long weekend," Quintal said. "That would be the ideal condition."

If the weather prevents paving this weekend, Quintal said an alternate plan would be arranged. "We will work it out to cause the least amount of inconvenience," he added.

Quintal said a second entrance to the East Tower should be open soon. Transportation officials do not know when the entire deck will be open.

"We'll have enough spaces in the East Tower for those who already have DD permits," said Parking Services Manager Sarah Smith.

Several hundred Dan Allen Deck permits were sold last spring in anticipation of the deck's opening for the fall semester. When the deck was not completed, the Harris commuter lot was set aside for those holding DD permits, and they were also promised partial refunds of their permit fee.

Smith said "The refunds will be a lump sum, based on three dollars a month (for each month the deck was not available). I believe it will be for five months for those who had permits for the entire semester."

Harris lot will once again be available for use by those holding commuter permits. As a result, the hold on issuing new permits has been lifted. To allow for the loss of

Public Safety relabels its police cars

By Marci Bernstein
Staff Writer

Vehicles on campus belonging to the police division of Public Safety are now designated as NCSU Police vehicles.

"This is not really a name change," said Director of Public Safety Ralph Harper on Tuesday. He said Public Safety has been considering the designation for more than a year.

There have always been two divisions within Public Safety, the police division and the life safety division, Harper said. By displaying NCSU Police on the police division's vehicles, the public can designate between which division these vehicles represent, he said.

"When people need an officer, they can readily identify the vehicle. The name is basically for clarification," said Harper.

The NCSU Police have always been certified through the state of North Carolina and have the same powers as a Raleigh police officer, Harper said.

Another change to Public Safety is the addition of two new cellular car telephones. He said the telephones will aid officers in special functions such as concerts.

The phones will link the NCSU Police with the Wake County Sheriff and the city of Raleigh police who use different radio frequencies than Public Safety.

estate Pritchard would have inherited had his parents died.

Henderson and Upchurch reportedly drove from Raleigh to Washington on July 25, 1988 where Upchurch allegedly stabbed and beat Von Stein to death with a baseball bat. Upchurch also is said to have stabbed Bonnie Lou Bates Von Stein. She survived the attack.

Adams said the three former NCSU students were arrested in June 1989.

He said District Attorney Mitchell Norton is seeking the death penalty, the maximum sentence, in Upchurch's trial.

The trial is expected to last two to three weeks and sentencing for Pritchard and Henderson has been postponed until a verdict is reached in Upchurch's trial.

The trial was moved from Beaufort County to Elizabeth City in Pasquotank County because of pretrial publicity, Adams said.

Smith said new commuter and resident permits were being issued, using a waiting list that began last fall. In addition, fringe permits that are turned in by those receiving the new permits are also being made available.

"We're probably one-third of the way through the waiting list, maybe a little more," Smith said.

Parking Services will maintain the waiting list throughout the semester and use it to distribute any additional permits that become available.

committee ruled the team ineligible for postseason play after the current season and instructed the university to "develop and implement a system for administrative control and monitoring to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation." The team will be able to play in the postseason NCAA tournament beginning next season.

Interim-Chancellor Larry Monteith and men's basketball coach Jim Valvano fully accepted the findings and penalties levied by the rules committee and will not appeal.

"I, as the chancellor and chief executive officer, will take the appropriate actions necessary to assure the public that we run a program with integrity," Monteith said. "It is clear to me that the university must make sure that it's entire athletic program is operating in compliance with NCAA regulations."

Monteith added the university has taken and will continue to take steps in the future to ensure "institutional control."

Valvano said "I concur with Dr. Monteith's statement that there is no basis for appeal. We accept the NCAA's findings and its punishment."

He added, "it is important to note that we have already begun implementation of policies and procedures to ensure that we will not have any recurrence of a violation in the two areas that were cited."

Few troubles hinder students' return

By Jennifer Ball
Staff Writer

Thousands of N.C. State students returned to campus Monday to get ready for school which resumes today.

Greg Cain of the NCSU Division of Transportation reported the usual traffic congestion and began posting officers at Harris lot and Sullivan lot Tuesday afternoon to maintain a reasonable turnover of parking spaces.

Public Safety reported no accidents or emergencies, yet some students encountered their share of problems moving in. Virginia Hsing, a freshman in Business was surprised to return on Monday at noon to find the elevators broken in one of the Tri-towers.

"You would think that knowing we're coming back, they'd have the elevators fixed," she said.

The rainy weather Monday and parking problems were additional hassles for Hsing. She said that after parking at Bragaw to move into the Tri-towers, her laundry fell off her dolly and into a mud puddle.

Jim Bundy, the university registrar, reported that because of TRACS, things have been going smoothly at Registration and Records.

"Looking over our business office and our lobby, I haven't seen more than ten or twelve to a line and those are moving quickly," Bundy said. This spring, NCSU has implemented the search feature into TRACS, thus allowing students to search for an alternate section for a class without dropping a course, eliminating the risk of losing both classes. Bundy said the search feature has increased the line traffic of TRACS but that is okay because TRACS' purpose is to help students to find the appropriate class without hassle.

Registration reported a large number of cancellations this semester, with the highest percentage from lifelong education students.

Despite the traffic line on Dan Allen from Hillsborough Street to Western Boulevard Tuesday afternoon, and a fire drill at a residence hall on Monday night, students are busying themselves getting books and supplies, and preparing for the daily grind of spring semester classes.

permanently reduced the vision in one eye.

Grey told Hamilton his medical care had cost $1,100 and he needed $1,600 more for plastic surgery.

According to witnesses at Best's trial, the incident started when two of the students exposed themselves to visitors at the Grey's home. The witnesses said William Grey asked the men to leave, and nine men then severely beat him.

Bentley was attacked when he came to help Grey. Charlotte Grey was punched in the mouth after she went to help her husband and slapped an attacker.

The convictions and sentences are as follows:

- Wrestlers Chris and Jeffrey Kwornik pleaded guilty to two counts each of simple assault. The brothers were sentenced to 14 days in jail to be served over seven weekends, 60-day suspended sentences and two years probation. They were ordered to undergo psychological and alcohol abuse assessments, to stay away from the victims and to pay $60 each to two witnesses whose cars were damaged in the incident.

- Boggs pleaded guilty to two counts of simple assault on Bentley and William Grey. He was sentenced to six days in jail to be served over three weekends, a 30-day suspended sentence and five years probation. He was ordered to pay $7,500 to the victims: $1,000 to Charlotte Grey, $1,625 to William Grey and $4,875 to Bentley.

- Wrestler Thomas Best was convicted of one count of assault inflicting serious injury on William Grey. He received 30 days in jail to be served over 10 weekends and two years probation. He was ordered to pay $1,600 to Grey.

- Former wrestler James Best, Thomas Best's uncle, pleaded guilty to two counts of simple assault. He received four days in jail to be served over two weekends, a 30-day suspended sentence and two years probation.

- Wrestler David Zettlemoyer pleaded guilty to assault inflicting serious injury on William Grey. He received 30 days in jail, a two-year suspended sentence and two years probation.

- Wrestler Steve Pagliughi pleaded guilty to one count of assault on William Grey. He received four days in jail over two weekends, a 30-day suspended sentence and five years probation.

- Wrestler Robert Boyer pleaded guilty to two counts of simple assault. He received four days in jail over two weekends, a 60-day suspended sentence and three years probation.

- Wrestler Michael Norton pleaded guilty to assault on Charlotte Grey. He received four days in jail over two weekends, a 90-day suspended sentence and two years probation.

All were ordered to stay away from the victims, and all but Zettlemoyer were ordered not to drink alcohol during the first two years of their probation.

Change marks the '80s

Victory in Panama. Violence and executions in Romania. Continuing freedom in East Germany. And NCAA basketball probation in Raleigh, N.C. As 1990 rolls along with all the optimism and anticipation of a new decade, it gives us the opportunity to look back on a year that ended with a lot more excitement than fall semester exams.

Wherever you spent Christmas vacation, it was unlikely that you either avoided or ignored the headlines. Amid an onslaught of "The '80s in Review" news programs, we saw that world events don't even stop long enough for adequate analysis.

We witnessed the Iron Curtain continuing to fall in Europe while the traditional lighted ball hailed the new year for thousands in Times Square. We listened at first with surprise and later with vested interest for news from Panama, where American troops, including North Carolina's 82nd Airborne, sought President Manuel Noriega.

And we breathed a sigh of relief (amid angry mumbling) as the NCAA wrapped up its investigation of the N.C. State basketball program and passed its probation sentence.

As news media and world leaders attempt to gather last decade's events into some sort of organized textbook, it is obvious that we cannot yet understand them completely. Although January constitutes the end of the '80s and the beginning of the '90s, it cannot be the boundary that will clearly separate periods of history.

History isn't that neat. It isn't that clean. The '80s will blur into the '90s, and the '90s into the next century.

Who can predict what the next decade has in store for us? It seems that all we can do is read the headlines, tune in to the television news and just look around.

The same things we did ten years ago.

Do not pamper Noriega

The morning silence shattered as Army planes roared toward their target. In the predawn gray over Panama, troop planes unloaded their cargo. The invasion of Panama was underway.

As almost everyone must know by now, the invasion was a success. Pop-ups were quick, bloodshed was limited, and the citizens of Panama were liberated. Granted, it took some time to lay hands on the head honcho himself, Manuel Noriega, but in the end, the United States won again, and Noriega will be brought to justice.

Or will he? Noriega is known to be one of the world's most notorious drug lords, and the invasion was the culmination of years of work by the U.S. government. The whole object of the project was to see the dictator brought to trial and punished for his crimes. And it seems that the scales of justice are tipped in favor of the U.S.

Still, the U.S. justice system is frequently inept in dealing with the likes of Noriega. Sit back and think about the likely outcome of the situation.

Noriega will be brought to trial here in the United States. That is as it should be. However, in order to get him here we had to promise not to execute him. Something is wrong with that. Very wrong.

This man has been directly responsible for the deaths of thousands of people in his own country, and indirectly responsible for thousands of others worldwide by his drug smuggling activities. He undoubtedly deserves the death penalty.

Further, if he is convicted, the logical assumption is that he will be imprisoned for life. If anyone is undeserving of support by American tax dollars, Noriega certainly is. Besides that, he will likely be confined only to a medium-security complex with most of the comforts of home. Hardly fit punishment for a murderer.

Of course, tax dollars will not have to support Noriega for more than a few years. After that, he will surely be paroled for good behavior. That makes a lot of sense, doesn't it?

The bottom line is that Noriega should not be tried in the U.S. The justice system of this country is by its very nature a lenient one, and those of Noriega's ilk deserve no such treatment.

Moreover, as the majority of Noriega's offenses were against the people of Panama, he should be sent back to Panama to be tried by those who will see swift justice done. At the very least, he should be tried in a world court.

Noriega is unrepentant of his crimes and, in short, does not merit the consideration of the U.S. justice system.

Pre-game prayers offend religious minorities

David Cherry

Opinion Columnist

The recent decision by a school superintendent in Thomasville, NC to ban pre-game Christian prayers in high school football games has brought narrow-minded, ignorant Christians out of the woodwork. This superintendent should be commended for making a wise, if very unpopular decision. Allowing prayer before public high school games is wrong because a school would then be endorsing Christianity over other religions.

The superintendent in Thomasville was advised by the school board's attorney to end pre-game prayers because of the similarities to a recent case in Georgia. A Court of Appeals in Georgia determined that praying during public high school football games violated the First Amendment right of freedom of religion and separation of church and state. Furthermore, even the conservative Reagan-backed Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal made from the fundamentalist-dominated school system.

Predictably, the fundamentalists in Thomasville have become very emotional over this issue.

First, they claim that Christian prayer should be allowed in public high school games because this nation was "founded on Christian principles." True, this country was founded on certain moral values that do coincide with Christian principles. However, these ethics are also common to all major religions.

Second, conservative Christians proclaim that banning pre-game prayer is a form of "religious persecution" and suppresses the rights of the Christian majority for the sake of the non-Christian minority.

However, the only form of persecution that relates to pre-game prayer at public high school football games is forcing atheists, Jews and other non-Christians to pay taxes to support an event which endorses Christianity. Having a few pay taxes to support a football game with a Christian prayer is just as outrageous as having a Fundamentalist pay taxes to support the door-to-door missions of Jehovah's Witnesses and Mormons. The conservative Christians would certainly not stand for paying taxes to support those religions so why should they think anybody else should have to support theirs.

In addition, the fundamentalists have forgotten that this country was founded by religious minorities who were persecuted by their homeland's majorities. The Founding Fathers wanted a country where people could practice their religion freely as long as it did not affect others.

However, high school football games are played for by everyone, regardless of creed, and should not be a showcase for a religious majority. The religious minorities should not be forced to go along with the Christians by praying at football games. Likewise, 25 years ago the same fundamentalists probably thought their rights as the majority were being infringed upon by forced racial integration.

Obviously these Christians are not respectful of other people's religious views. Yet if these same narrow-minded, ultra-right Christians lived in a predominantly Catholic area, they would probably be banging down the door at the local office of the ACLU if there was a pre-game mass during the local high school football game.

Finally, in light of all the recent hypocrisy and immorality of some Christian evangelists, has the religious right become so insecure in their beliefs and abilities that they now need the government to be an advocate of Jesus Christ? I am a Christian but I don't think Uncle Sam should be doing my work at the expense of non-Christians.

Having any form of religion during public school events is simply wrong. The government is not supposed to play the role of the clergy. Any religious group, from fundamentalists to Satan worshippers, has the right to assemble wherever they choose as long as taxpayers are not supporting it. So, fundamentalists please finish up your dinners a little bit earlier and say your prayers for the hometown team before you go to the game.

African-Americans moving toward more positive identity

In the November 29th issue of the Technician, Christina Cowan asked a very serious question. She asked why people are not simply African-American anymore, rather than African-American or Euro-American.

Since Africans were first kidnapped and brought to America, we have been trying to develop a name for ourselves; one we can identify with. Since we first encountered Europeans, they have called us "brutes," "savages," "negroes," and "blacks" - none of which adequately describe our rich ancestry.

This is, in part, why we have incorporated "African-American" as a title to describe those of us of African ancestry in America. It establishes some cultural linkage to our true heritage.

It is a shame, Ms. Cowan, that you choose not to identify with your and Irish heritage. You are denouncing a large part of who you are.

But at least you had that choice. My ancestors were brought here against their will and any attempt to identify with "mother Africa" resulted in a severe beating or even death! While you have willingly relinquished part of your heritage, my people were stripped of their identity through 400 years of slavery!

Ms. Cowan also referred to Africa as "impoverished." That is simply untrue. Africa is rich. The gold jewelry many people wear comes from Africa. Most of the world's diamonds come from Africa.

Macho military men make much mayhem

On the morning of December 7 making my way across campus, I noticed a group of individuals (some in military uniform, some not) standing on and around the bell tower socializing. For some reason unknown to me there was a rope enclosing the whole area.

As I proceeded to step over the rope and continue my walk home, I was approached by a young man in uniform who mumbled something about a ceremony and that I was not supposed to be inside the rope.

I began to leave the area when a valiant, intelligent gentleman (this one not in uniform) asked me, "What the ---- is your problem was. I told him that his was public property and that I was just following the walkway. He hastily walked down the stairs Africa is rich in minerals, oils, and natural resources. African labor is the very foundation upon which this beloved country of yours is built!

I suggest that people stop looking at so much television and quit accepting the views of the media. Ethiopia and its starving masses are not the only inhabitants of Africa.

In closing, interest in pro-Africa articles helps us to develop an image and identity of our own. It will hopefully lead us away from African-American to the most positive identity of all, African.

RON BURNS

After reading articles in Technician I have become outraged. My anger is directly related to the word "black."

The African-American community has made diligent efforts to bestow upon ourselves a title with dignity. This dignity has been found by most of the intellectuals within the African-American community in the nomenclature African-American. I would like to believe that since time, effort, and pride have gone into selecting a name of prominence it will be used.

I would also like to address Christina Cowan in reference to the name African-American.

You have the right to call yourself whatever you wish. You do not have the of the bell tower and began to approach me in a hostile manner.

I asked him if violence was the only way that he knew to solve his problems. I was told that "That's the way we do it in the Marine Corps," while receiving more violent threats. His fellow Marines (even one in uniform who appeared to be a superior officer) had no objections to these statements or his actions.

I don't think the fact that the person was 6' taller than I and weighed about 100 more pounds had anything to do with his actions! He had every right to do these things.

In fact I commend him. It is intense bravery and macho actions in situations such as these that make our great nation what it is today. I now see the light!

I once viewed pointless hate such as this as a result of a troubled childhood or insecurity. I know now that senseless violence is a virtue. Forget that hogwash right to call a race of people whatever you wish. In the history of African-American existence we have been forced to respond to names given by others (i.e. nigger, black). You are correct in stating that African-Americans have no pure African in them, but choosing to be referred to as African-American does not mean that pure African is needed.

I would like to believe that you, like other Americans, will not choose to be ignorant all of your life. The title African-American identifies for the African-American community a sense of pride and a tie with a culture. Our existence did not begin in America as slaves but in Africa.

Africa is not impoverished. Africa is the richest continent on the planet. One example is gold. If you are wearing gold, it came from Africa. Please do not tell the African-American community how to spend their money. The paraphernalia that African-Americans wear is display of their pride in their heritage and culture.

In conclusion, individuals should deliberate a little further before opening their mouths to show their empty minds. It would greatly benefit society because it will leave time for these individuals learn the truth.

about brotherly love and peace. This world is much better with institutions such as the United States military to teach our troubled youth what life is all about. In fact, I'm about to shave my head and go down to the recruiting station right now. Long live "the land of the free!"

Rowan hits Center Stage

PineCone and Center Stage host the Nashville Bluegrass Band with Peter Rowan Saturday night in Stewart Theatre.

Rowan, who previously has worked with Jerry Garcia, David Grisman and Richard Greene, has written hits for such stars as Ricky Skaggs and George Strait.

Starting in 1984, the Nashville Bluegrass Band has carried its "New Traditional" music to audiences across the country and around the world.

They've appeared at major festivals throughout the United States and Canada, and were the first bluegrass band to appear in the People's Republic of China.

The group's music is a mix of blues, ballads and gospel tunes.

"Be My Valentine, Charlie Brown"

Charlie Brown is in love. And he is anxiously awaiting the arrival of a Valentine's card from his infatuation. You will have to rent this video to see whether or not that little redhead delivers.

Other lovers are crazed too. Sally is after Linus. Lucy is still trying to play the right keys with Schroeder. And there is much, much more. Due out today.

"Children in the Crossfire"

Julia Duffy, Charles Haid, David Huffman and Karen Valentine star in this drama about four young, Irish natives who take advantage of an offer to spend a summer in America. This is a great opportunity to get away from the religious prejudice in their native land.

Once in America, these kids unite with opposite Irish natives who are on the other side of the Northern Ireland conflict.

These two groups soon learn to enjoy each other's company and have a great summer. However, when it is time to go back to their homeland, they are challenged with keeping their differences aside.

This story is based on real activities of a group called the Children's Committee 10, which is a non-profit organization. It has brought hundreds of native Irish kids to the States. Due out today.

Psychedelic Furs prove great music did survive the 1980s

By Joe Corey
Staff Writer

A couple of months ago, I was innocently asked by a young kid if the Psychedelic Furs were an Acid-haus band. Normally I would have hit this mopey. But, with a kinder and gentler spirit of the '90s, I merely explained that the Furs had nothing to do with the polyester-paisley-power scene.

The Furs, are one of the best English bands that have survived the '80s. Their first album, aptly called "The Psychedelic Furs," is not the work of some '60s bound revivalists, but a pursuit of Weill and Brecht-minded realists.

Lead singer Richard Butler's raspy chain-smoking vocals were so powerful that I always found myself looking for ashes collecting in the woofer. The start of "India," creates a lull as the guitar passively rests on a flanger induced ruff. But the dream atmosphere is ripped away with distorted guitars and a big drum sound.

Butler's sarcastic and cynical lyrics attack all that surrounds him. He tries to hold no sacred cows. "Words are all just useless sound/Just like cards as they fall around." Butler sings on "Sister Europe." But even with his hardness, he is not a complete nihilist as he offers some hope.

Their next album, "Talk Talk Talk," featured their big hit "Pretty in Pink." Yes, it was the song that inspired Molly Ringwald to her greatest acting job. Of course, Molly's character has nothing much in common with the Caroline in the song.

Butler does not believe in the happy endings that John "The Factory" Hughes put in the film. Butler would have had Jon Cryer and Andrew McCarthy accidentally kill Molly or just forget about her. This record also contains my favorite song from them, "All of This and Nothing."

Butler lists the leftover items from a departed lover and tries to gain meaning from their sum. "Now I'm left with all of this/A roomful of your trash," he concludes.

"Forever Now" brought forth the almost sentimental "Love My Way" with its xylophone beat. "Mirror Moves" was an all right record, but hinted at a creative slip-page.

"Midnight to Midnight" really bit. The first key to how bad off the Furs were was the fashion conscience outfits and hairdos on the cover. They looked like some horrible heavy metal band bound up in leather and gel. This was a band of rag tag cynics wearing shabby clothes long before R.E.M.

The music was equally putrid, as it became too stylized for its own good. Luckily, the Furs overcame this death wish and on their best of collection, "All of This and Nothing," only "Heartbreak Beat" survived. The new single on the LP "All That Money Wants," showed that they were not continuing their "Midnight to Midnight" sound.

This leads us to "Book of Days," which could be termed a comeback, or at least a come around. Joey Lockwood at Nightwave on WKNC seemed to have liked it as I recall.

Should I mention here that the Furs will be in concert at the Raleigh Civic Center on Saturday Night? Of course. The Furs -- exciting group to see live.

At least they were when I went to them back in 1984, during their "Mirror Moves" tour stopover at Duke's Page Auditorium. It frightens me to think that it has been six years since then.

The highlight of the night was when they performed "Imitation of Christ" just a few yards from Duke Chapel. I was just waiting for a lightning bolt to hit Butler as he revolved around without stretched arms.

I do have a big question about the validity of radio stations sponsoring concerts in connection with this show. WRDU is supposed to be sponsoring it, but they never play the Furs on a regular basis -- at a minimum.

WUNC could have sponsored the show in this case. What is this telling us about the station? A station will hype a concert 'tween them any regular air time?

Psychedelic Furs will perform in Raleigh's Civic Center Saturday night.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. General admission tickets are $15.50 and may be picked up at the Civic Center box office. For more information, call 831-6060.

San Francisco Girls Chorus to open new year at Reynolds

By Dan Pawlowski
Entertainment Editor

This weekend Reynolds Coliseum will once again host a winning performance. But instead of the Wolfpack performing, the San Francisco Girls Chorus will take center stage.

This spectacle, which is being put on by Friends of the College, will be a must see. Reason: This chorus has received successful reviews internationally, particularly in Europe and Hungary.

During a recent competition in Hungary, the July 1988 Bela Bartok International Competition, the chorus received excellent marks.

In fact, they only finished two points below the winning Hungarians. Quite an accomplishment, since they were the only troupe representing the United States.

Today, the girls have made available some of that competition on vinyl. "Jubilate," is the group's third recording which was taped live at the Bela Bartok Competition.

Under the direction of Elizabeth Appling, the Girls Chorus specializes in music that is composed specifically for the young female voice. And the girls make their talents available in an annual subscription season.

This year the girls will continue to perform with the San Francisco Opera, including "Mefistofele," "Otello" and "Die Frau ohne Schatten."

This chorus, which was founded in 1978, will appear this Friday and Saturday nights in Reynolds Coliseum at 8 p.m.

This will mark the group's first east coast appearance.

N.C. State students can get in free and bring a guest by picking up their tickets at the Stewart Theatre box office. Be sure to present your AllCampus card.

"The Marx Brothers in a Nutshell"

Woody Allen, Dick Cavett, David Steinberg and Robert Klein discuss their associations and feeling about the famous brother act.

In this documentary, several clips from Marx Brother's movies are shown. This documentary also includes an unreleased Marxian stage release of "The Theatrical Agent."

This work was taken from censored outtakes from Groucho's television show "You Bet Your Life." Due out today.

"Paperhouse"

Starring Glenn Headly, Ben Cross, Charlotte Burke and Elliot Spier this thriller is compared to "Nightmare on Elm Street" films.

A little girl draws a house on a piece of paper while sick in bed. And in her sleep, she dreams about this house. Soon after, she discovers she can alter her dreams by altering the picture. Oooh.

Later, the girl gets lost in her imagination as she cannot tell the difference between reality and the nightmares. Due out today.

"Pink Cadillac"

Starring Clint Eastwood, Bernadette Peters and Timothy Carhart this comedy follows the escapades of Eastwood who has been assigned to follow and track down a white-supremacist's wife who is driving, what else, a pink cadillac.

Eastwood runs into trouble as he discovers he is not the only one looking for Peters. Seems some thugs want to kill Peters because she knows too much. Eastwood's disguise and impersonation talents are bound to come in handy. Due out today.

"Wonderland"

Starring Emile Charles, Tony Forsyth, Robert Stephens and Clare Higgins this thriller follows the antics of two life-long friends who have grown up in Liverpool. Consequently, they want to spend some time seeing the world. Only problem is when they get out they witness a gang hit.

And they spend the rest of the film trying to escape with their lives. Good luck. Due out today.

"Eddie and the Cruisers II"

This sequel stars Michael Pare, Marina Orsini, Bernie Coulson and Matthew Lawrence.

After two decades of an unexplained disappearance by lead singer Eddie Wilson, the Cruisers hit it big on the airwaves with a so-called lost tape that is finally discovered. After the buck, a small band with some of the original members of the Cruisers start touring to make some noise. Due out tomorrow.

"Forbidden Sun"

This thriller stars Lauren Hutton, Cliff DeYoung, Renee Estevez and Robert Beltran. Hutton and DeYoung run a summer school for gymnastics on the isle of Crete.

This is not your average couple, the husband is a bore, and the wife is crazed over the subject of Cretan mythology. And things are never boring as one of the students is raped and a ritual dance is a disaster. Due out tomorrow.

"Night Terror"

This horror flick follows the trials of a nightmare plagued dreamer played by Jeff Keel.

In order to solve his nightmare fixation, Keel checks into a clinic for treatment. Only problem is he now dreams that his orderly is going to kill him. This film also stars Guy Ecker, Jon Hoffman and Lloyd B. Mote. Due out tomorrow.

"Signs of Life"

Beau Bridges, Arthur Kennedy and Vincent Phillip D'Onofrio star in this flick about average people in an average town.

Easthasset, Maine to be exact. These working people seem to be bored with their blue-collar lives. They live in a fishing community and often wonder if life offers anything besides fins and tails.

Surprise, the next 24 hours offers a string of occurrences that are sure to fill the voids in their world. Due out tomorrow.

"Women of Brewster Place"

Starring Oprah Winfrey, Mary Alice, Olivia Cole and Robin Givens this drama follows the lives of seven black women.

Each one of these women have shared similar experiences of poverty and racism against them. Winfrey also performed as executive producer of this film. Due out tomorrow.

Newcomer Lolita Davidovich stars as stripper Blaze Starr in "Blaze."

Davidovich heats up the screen in 'Blaze'

By Marci Bernstein Staff Writer

The fine governor of the great state of Louisiana has come across trouble. And her name is Blaze Starr.

Governor Earl K. Long is a feisty, old politician with lots of friends but even more enemies. His political views raised a few eyebrows in the late 1950s. His personality and cunning won the elections for him. The press hates him, but the people love him.

Blaze Starr (alias Fannie Belle Fleming from the back hills of West Virginia) is the burlesque queen of the New Orleans French Quarter. Her mother warned her about men who say "trust me" and with Earl Long, that was one thing she did not have to worry about.

Governor Long, who frequents the striptease bars of the Quarter, meets "Miss Blaze" in 1959. She was a feisty, flashy dancer with a reputation to match. Thus began this steamy relationship.

Governor Long's progressive ideas and outrageous campaigns are not helped much by his rela

Laughter still the best cure for school stress

Head to Charlie Goodnight's for food and fun

By Dan Pawlowski
Entertainment Editor

Laughter is the best cure for school's stresses. And the best place in Raleigh to get cured of these textbook blues is Charlie Goodnight's Comedy Club.

Located at 861 W. Morgan St., good times are only a stroll away from campus. Here comedic celebrities such as Jay Leno, Jerry Seinfeld, Dennis Miller and Emo Phillips have entertained Capital City audiences with their unique brands of humor.

The comedy club, located on the second floor of the three-story building, holds about 200 patrons. So, if you are planning on watching one of the up-and-coming comedy acts, make your reservation far in advance. If you plan to watch the comedian after dinner, there is a separate charge for the show.

Generally, $3 student discounts are available on Tue., Wed. and Thurs. nights — phone first, and you must present your all-campus card. Show prices usually are $6 for Tue., Wed. and Thurs. shows. Prices go up on weekends though. Friday shows generally are $8 and Saturday shows are usually $9.

However, prices due change occasionally when a big-draw comedian hits the club. Phyllis Diller, who will perform on Jan. 21 and 22 for two shows each night, will cost patrons $17.50.

Other shows scheduled are Marc Price (Jan. 18-20), George Wallace (Jan. 30-Feb. 3), Kevin Meaney (Feb. 18 and 19), Jeff Altman (Mar. 4) and Michael Winslow (Mar. 18 and 19).

And for some of the best Mexican creations in the area, go downstairs. Here you will be greeted by tarantulas, snakes and lizards. But do not worry, they are locked up in glass cubicles. Food is filling and reasonably priced. Entrees start around $6 and the menu includes tacos, enchiladas, tostadas and burritos. All are served with savory rice and beans.

For an appetizer, challenge the 1-Alarm chili for $2.75 a bowl. And while you are waiting for your chili, you can munch on the complimentary nachos and hot and spicy dips — make sure your waiter or waitress is close by with plenty of ice-cold water.

And do not forget to indulge at the bar if you are of age. It is one of the only establishments in the area that has a real big-city atmosphere.

'Blaze'

tionship with Blaze. Even with the pressure from his assistants, he refuses to end it with Blaze. Consequently, his popularity dwindles and he loses his position as governor.

The unlikely pair become engaged and Earl's political career seems to be finished.

With Blaze's cunning, she convinces Earl to run again and take over Washington.

The campaign takes off and it appears that Earl will influence politics again. Unfortunately, things do not always work out so well.

"Blaze" is a different kind of love story. The movie shows how two opposite people from opposite worlds can come together and fall in love, despite the troubles that may come around.

This idea has been told upon in many stories like Romeo and Juliet, but this film takes a unique view of this sort of love affair.

Paul Newman is perfectly cast as the exciting governor and Lolita Davidovich is great as the sexy stripper, Blaze Starr.

One good thing about this film is that the casting is right on.

This romance between the New Orleans stripper and the fine governor of Louisiana is based on a true story.

It is hard to believe that this story could have actually happened, but the filmmakers present the 1950s as an era when anything in government could happen.

I liked this film. It is a story that has been retold many times, but with Blaze Starr and Earl Long, things are just a little more exciting.

Barry Anderson (left), Ray Agnew (above) and the rest of the Wolfpack defense held Arizona to 50 yards rushing in the Copper Bowl. The Wildcats had averaged 240.6 yards per game during the regular season. Arizona managed only 130 yards in total offense on the night.

Big plays turn Copper Bowl Arizona's way

By Lee Montgomery

Assistant Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz. — If you didn't see the final score, you would've never believed Arizona beat N.C. State 17-10 in the inaugural Copper Bowl on New Year's Eve.

The Wolfpack out-gained, out-defensed and generally outplayed the Wildcats at Arizona Stadium, but two big plays turned the game Arizona's way and left State with a 7-5 record and its fourth straight loss. Arizona finished at 8-4.

The first big play was a 37-yard touchdown pass from Wildcat quarterback Ronald Veal to Olatide Ogundidimi late in the first quarter.

"It was a great throw and a great catch," said Wolfpack senior cornerback Barry Anderson, who was defending on the play with Jesse Campbell. "It's just one of those things you have to take with the game and try to understand and deal with it."

Anderson later said he thought the ball was going to be overthrown and Campbell said he never saw it.

The second big play was Arizona free safety Scott Geyer's 85-yard interception return for a touchdown midway through the second quarter for a 14-0 Wildcat lead.

"They jumped into a man coverage and blitzed," Wolfpack senior quarterback Shane Montgomery said. "They got a lot of pressure on me. I was trying to throw it over Todd (Varn's) head out of bounds. But as soon as I threw it, I got hit and made the ball go on its side."

"It seems like the last five or six weeks there's been a bad break against us. I probably shouldn't have thrown the ball. It's something that happens, but it hurt us and probably cost us the game."

State had one final shot late in the game. Down 17-10, the Pack got the ball on its own 25-yard line with two minutes to play. Montgomery passed State to the Arizona 41, but was faced with a fourth-and-four situation.

Arizona blitzed, but tailback Chris Williams had broken behind the Wildcat secondary and was open. Montgomery lofted a pass to Williams, but it was an inch or two too long. That was enough.

"I was getting one-on-one coverage whenever that happened," Williams said of the blitz. "I was open but the ball was just out of my reach. I don't know if it went off my fingertips or came loose when I hit the ground. All that mattered was that I didn't come up with it and that was our last chance for a win."

Montgomery said he knew the pass had to be perfect.

"They were sending a lot of people and we couldn't get out as many receivers as we wanted," he said. "That was a play where it was either hit or miss. If I could have got it to him, we would have had a touchdown."

"I knew I had to put some air under it — I just put too much."

With that play, the "could-have-beens" were over for the Wolfpack in 1989. It was a particularly frustrating loss for State's defense, which held the powerful Wildcat running game (240.6 rushing yards per game) to a paltry 50 yards on 37 carries.

The yardage was a season low for Arizona. Also, the Wildcats could only muster 130 yards of total offense on the night.

"I don't know if I've been around any finer effort than what we had," coach Dick Sheridan said. "We played hard, we played with a lot of enthusiasm, we played smart."

But it wasn't enough. To a man, the Wildcats were bigger than the Pack, but Arizona's offense resembled a Pop Warner football team.

"We knew this was going to be a defensive battle," State senior defensive tackle Ray Agnew said. "We weren't worried at all. We had played people bigger than us all year. We can play anybody."

"We stopped them in every phase except that pass. It's frustrating, but we play as a team."

Other mistakes were costly for the Pack. Twice State got inside the Wildcats' 20-yard line, only to come away with nothing. Anthony Barbour fumbled at the Wildcat eight-yard line in the first quarter and Montgomery threw the interception to Geyer. "Facing a defense like Arizona, we knew we had to play without mistakes and we didn't do it," Sheridan said. "We got down in scoring position a number of times and wasted those opportunities by turning the ball over."

Montgomery, Pack disappointed by outcome of final game of season

By Lee Montgomery

Assistant Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz. — Shane Montgomery walked off Arizona Stadium's field on New Year's Eve with a nice, big trophy.

Unfortunately it wasn't the one he wanted. Montgomery tried not to look disappointed as he walked through the throng of Arizona fans. It didn't work.

"Even if I didn't win offensive player of the game, I'd rather win the game," Montgomery said. "At the same time, if somebody feels I played the best offensive game, it makes you feel good. But there's so many times when I got us in the wrong place."

"And there were so many times when I could've made big plays and I hurt us." Montgomery was awarded for throwing for 222 yards and one touchdown on a 21-for-46 night.

He wasn't the only one trying to shoulder the blame for the Wolfpack's defeat.

"It starts with me and I have to take responsibility," Pack coach Dick Sheridan said after the game. "The players) deserved better and they didn't get it."

The Wolfpack players all agreed they out-played Arizona.

"For the most part, we played a great game," said cornerback Barry Anderson. "We controlled their offense because they were pretty much a one-dimensional team."

"I felt that we were the better team out there tonight," senior defensive tackle Ray Agnew said. "It hurts."

"I thought we were the better team out there," tailback Anthony Barbour said.

The game mirrored the last half of the season as the Wolfpack went on a four-game losing skid. State also lost five of its last six games, despite out-gaining four of the five teams it lost to in 1989.

"(This game) reflects the way the last half of the season went," Montgomery said. "We moved the ball well and we out-gained all the teams. But when we got down inside the 20 or 30, we didn't put it in. A lot of that goes on me."

State had 310 yards of total offense against Arizona and held the Wildcats to 130 total yards.

Asked if he was satisfied with the season, Sheridan said, "We're used to measuring success with championships, so I would say this season could not be called a success."

Montgomery's roommate, senior wide receiver Mike Kavulic, could not hang his head.

"It's tough for me," Kavulic said. "We've worked real hard and had a good year. We had a good time this week. Being a senior, I kinda look back and ask, 'Is there something I could have done for us to win?'"

"The hardest thing to swallow is that we lost our last four games. It's harder for the seniors. You work so hard and you spend so much time with these guys. One of the biggest things is that you realize you'll never play with these guys again."

Montgomery said he'll also miss the Wolfpack players.

"Next semester when I'm just in school and getting ready to graduate — I don't have too many classes — I'll probably miss it," he said.

"I'm motivated to win," said freshman forward Bryant Figgins. "It's like playing high school ball without being able to go to the state championship. It makes you want to work that much harder to prove yourself."

Valvano summed up his own outlook on the future.

"I have a commitment to my young people here and to the department," he said.

"We have made it through a very difficult time and this team has had to handle a great deal of adversity. They have handled it extremely well and I would expect them to continue to do so."

Wolfpack quarterback Shane Montgomery was named Offensive Player of the Game at the Copper Bowl. Montgomery was 21-for-46 on the night for 222 yards. Montgomery and his teammates felt they outplayed Arizona but lost on the big plays.

Pack basketball players ready to turn attention to future

By Fred Hartman

Senior Staff Writer

Head coach Jim Valvano and his N.C. State men's basketball team have become a very close-knit family over the past year.

Now that the NCAA saga has finally concluded with the two-year probation ruling, the team members feel as if a heavy burden has been lifted from their backs and they can get on with the business at hand.

"We're pumped up and excited to continue with the season," sophomore forward Tom Gugliotta said after the NCAA ruling was announced Dec. 12. "I think the penalties are fair, but I also think we've got to put the whole thing behind us and look ahead to the future."

"We have other goals to accomplish," added Gugliotta. "Namely, we want to win every game we play."

The Pack is highly optimistic about the future and would prefer not to look back at the past.

"We don't want to dwell on the past," said junior point guard Chris Corchiani. "We have to take a negative and turn it into a positive."

Neither Valvano nor his team is beyond taking blame for the incident. Valvano himself insists he will stick around to make sure the Wolfpack program gets cleaned up and headed on the right track.

"I told you a long time ago and I'll say it again," Valvano said. "Being part of the problem and being part of the solution is always important to me."

"I'm not going to run from anything," he added. "It is incumbent for me and my staff to ensure that these violations do not take place in the future."

The players echo Valvano's sentiments and stand behind him one hundred percent.

"We can't condone what we have done," Corchiani said. "We are the ones to blame and ultimately we will suffer in the end."

The players emphasized their support of Valvano.

"Coach V is a real strong coach," said senior guard Mickey Hinnant. "He always prepares us for the worst. We'll be okay but we've got to put it behind us."

"Coach V doesn't worry us at all. We are going to stick behind him all the way," Gugliotta said.

Now-suspended senior Avie Lester called Valvano "a great coach," adding "Coach V seems relieved to have all of this behind him."

The Wolfpack now prefers to talk about the upcoming games as opposed to the whole NCAA affair. They have clearly outlined their goals of approaching every game as if it were an NCAA tournament contest.

"We're going to be hungrier and hungrier to win each game we play," Corchiani said.

Pack upset by ETSU, beats UNC-Asheville

By Tim Zettel
Staff Writer

The N.C. State men's basketball team suffered some post-exam blues against East Tennessee State but came back to rip UNC-Asheville two nights later. The Wolfpack was upset Dec. 19 at Reynolds Coliseum by East Tennessee State 92-82. State recovered on Dec. 21 to dispose of UNC-Asheville 110-70.

The Pack got off to a slow start against the Buccaneers and could never catch up.

East Tennessee State surged ahead by 26 points in the first half. State managed a comeback, but the closest the Pack could get was within five points.

Rodney Monroe led State with 19 points and eight rebounds.

It did not take long for the Wolfpack squad to take out its frustration on an outmanned UNC-Asheville team.

Monroe again led the Pack in scoring with 31 points. Senior Mickey Hinnant had a career-high 17 points and Tom Gugliotta added 16 points.

Chris Corchiani totalled 15 assists while freshman Kevin Thompson produced eight rebounds.

Gugliotta's shot beats Clemson

By David Honea
Senior Staff Writer

Brian Howard came alive in time to help the Wolfpack overcome an off-night from its guards and Tom Gugliotta knocked in the game winner with seven seconds to go as State beat Clemson 79-77 on Jan. 3. The game, played in Reynolds Coliseum, was the ACC opener for both teams.

Howard, who had been bothered most of the season by illness and ankle problems, entered the game averaging 10 points and shooting just 43% from the field. Against the Tigers, he showed the form many had been waiting for as he hit 12 of 17 from the field for a career-high 29 points.

Howard scored 15 of those points in the first half, but Clemson held Rodney Monroe scoreless in the first half to take a 39-34 halftime lead.

State trailed by as much as nine in the second half before going to a smaller, quicker lineup in an attempt to stop Clemson center Elden Campbell, who finished the game with 29 points. The move paid off as State converted several Clemson turnovers into a 13-3 run to take the lead 53-52.

The teams traded leads before Gugliotta's shot broke a 77-77 tie and Clemson's half-court shot at the buzzer fell short.

Mickey Hinnant came off the bench to score 16 for the Pack. Monroe and Chris Corchiani each had season lows with 11 and five points, respectively, although Corchiani did contribute 12 assists.

Pack beats Temple to get fifth-straight victory

From staff reports

The N.C. State men's basketball team captured another close victory Saturday as they defeated Temple 74-71 at the Atlantic City Convention Hall in Atlantic City, NJ.

The win was the Pack's fifth straight and improved the team's record to 11-2 on the season.

State, ranked 17th nationally, has won its last three contests by a total of eight points.

Against the Owls, Wolfpack guard Rodney Monroe returned to form, burning Temple for 33 points on seven-of-13 shooting, including five-of-eight from the three-point range. Monroe showed he was going to have one of those games early on, scoring nine of the Pack's first 11 points and leading State to a 43-37 halftime lead.

Monroe's first-half total of 20 was supplemented by the strong play of center Brian D'Amico, who had 10 points and four rebounds in the half.

The game, televised nationally by CBS, featured ten lead changes as well as highly physical play by both squads. Monroe hit 14 of 15 freethrows, including six in the last two and a half minutes, to ice the victory for the Wolfpack.

Brian Howard continued his strong play with 17 points and four rebounds. Monroe, Howard and D'Amico shouldered the scoring burden for the Pack, as the other five players who saw action contributed a total of 13 points.

The Owls' superior State by only one, 33-32, despite their rebound size.

State hosts Boston University tonight at 7:30 p.m. before traveling to Atlanta Saturday to battle ninth-ranked Georgia Tech at noon.

Women cagers get past Terrapins

Wolfpack rebounds from two losses behind Stinson, Lehmann

By Dwan June
Senior Staff Writer

MARIETTA, Ga. — The Wolfpack Women left the Cobb County Civic Center Wednesday night with many questions, but more importantly, they left with the answers right under their noses.

After suffering a 79-78 loss to Georgia Tech at the buzzer on Jan. 2, the Pack was soundly defeated by the Georgia Bulldogs 89-68.

Senior forward Krista Kilburn and junior guard Nicole Lehmann connected on six three-pointers in the first half to keep the Wolfpack close. At halftime, Georgia led 37-32.

In the second half, the Pack fell apart. The Bulldogs utilized a devastating fullcourt press, forcing seven Pack turnovers which Georgia converted into points.

Georgia also shut down the Wolfpack Women's perimeter game and clogged the paint. With the Pack unable to hit the outside shots and the middle clogged up, Georgia outscored State 52-36 in the second half and coasted to an easy victory.

Andrea Stinson, the Pack's leading scorer at 24.0 points a game, played only seven minutes against Georgia Tech and did not dress out against Georgia.

"We have to have an inside game to balance our outside game," Wolfpack head coach Kay Yow said. "Right now, we are a one-dimensional team. Who's our rebounder? Who's our scorer?"

The Pack obviously found the answers Sunday.

The Wolfpack Women entered Reynolds Coliseum Sunday afternoon in dire need of a victory.

The eighth-ranked Pack had suffered a reeling defeat against third-ranked Georgia Wednesday night in Marietta, Georgia after losing a thriller to Georgia Tech in Atlanta the night before.

Standing in State's way Sunday were the Maryland Terrapins — a team that had taken three straight from the Pack.

But the Wolfpack Women were not to be denied.

Stinson's jumper with nine seconds remaining gave the Pack a 77-76 victory against the Lady Terrapins in front of a crowd of 6,535, the second-largest crowd ever to witness a women's game in Reynolds Coliseum. The game was televised nationally on ESPN.

Stinson led all scorers with 26 points as the Pack avoided a three-game losing streak and a 0-2 start in the ACC.

"We needed this game more than Maryland did," Yow told the News and Observer of Raleigh. "We were looking at 0-2 in the ACC and a third-straight loss. We needed a good game to get back on track and restore confidence."

State's inside game, which disappeared against Georgia Wednesday night, resurfaced against Maryland. Senior Kilburn turned in another strong performance for the Pack by grabbing a team-high eight rebounds.

Centers Sharon Manning and Christa Hull and power forward Kerri Hobbs had seven boards apiece as State outrebounded Maryland 38-30.

State point guard Lehmann scored 20 points on eight-of-13 shooting, including four three-pointers. But the Pack also got 30

Michael Russell/Staff

Andrea Stinson had 26 points in State's nationally-televised win over Maryland Sunday. Stinson played all 40 minutes against the Terps after missing the Georgia game due to illness.

points from its inside game — a stat missing in the earlier game against Georgia.

"It was a tremendous effort from our inside people," Yow said. "We showed signs of being a three-dimensional team. We've been one-dimensional with our perimeter game but you need the inside game and the penetration too."

The Wolfpack Women travel to Durham tonight to take on Duke in Cameron Indoor Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

Cagers host Boston; Swimmers win again

The men's basketball team hosts Boston University tonight at 7:30 p.m. Student tickets will be distributed beginning at 5:30 p.m. at windows 3 and 4. Tickets for the Jan. 20 game against UNC will be distributed beginning Jan. 16.

The Wolfpack wrestling team lost to seventh-ranked Iowa State Tuesday afternoon at Cary High School by a 26-13 count.

State, 5-2 on the season, got wins from Mark Cesari at 142, Mike Lantz at 177 and Ty Williams at 190. Clayton Grice at 126 and Stephen Kinard at 158 drew with their opponents.

State's next matchup is the weekend at the National Duals in Hampton, Va. The Wolfpack faces second-ranked Oklahoma State Friday at 11:15 a.m.

The men's swimming team continued its strong early showing by downing Auburn 142.5 to 100.5 last Wednesday at Carmichael Natatorium. The Pack is 6-0.

Event winners for State included Dan Judge in the 200 and 100 freestyle, Jim Forrester in the 200 IM, Kurt Candler in one and three-meter diving, Steve Bradshaw in the 200 backstroke, Jason Heisler in the 500 freestyle and Adam Fitzgerald in the 200 breaststroke. The 400 medley relay team of Bradshaw, FitzGerald, Dave Fatzinger and David Fox also won.

The Wolfpack women's team lost to the Tigers by a 167-132 count, despite some outstanding individual performances.

State event winners included Niki Adams in the 100 backstroke, Laura Mazur in the 100 and 200 breaststroke and Kathy Littig in the 200 backstroke.

The team of JoAnn Emerson, Evita Paraskevopoulou, Liting and Crissy MacMillan captured the 400 freestyle relay event as well.

Both swimming teams will travel to Virginia Saturday.

The women's basketball team travels to Duke to face the Blue Devils tonight at 7:30 p.m. State hosts 12th-ranked Virginia Sunday at 3 p.m. in another important conference game.

The Virginia contest will be televised by WKFT-TV 40 as part of a six-game package. The station also carries the Kay Yow show Sundays at 6:30 p.m. HTS carries the show Wednesdays at 4 p.m.

The Wolfpack fencing team will compete in the Carolina Cup at UNC-Chapel Hill this weekend.

Andrea Stinson leads the women's basketball team in scoring with a 24.0 average, followed by Sharon Manning with 11.6 points per game. Nicole Lehmann rounds out the Pack players in double figures with 10.1.

Manning leads the team in rebounding at 7.5, followed by Krista Kilburn at 6.8. Stinson is the leader in assists with 58 and in steals with 36.

With five assists against Temple, Chris Corchiani became the ninth player in ACC history to reach 600 assists in his career. Corchiani has 603 assists and is currently second in the ACC with an average of 7.8 per game.

Rodney Monroe leads the conference in three-point field percentage at .580. He is second in scoring to Tech's Dennis Scott with a 22.8 points per game average.

State leads the ACC in team three-point field goal average at .503 and is second in turnover margin with 2.8.

Brian Howard, after shooting .398 during the Pack's first nine games, has shot .650 in the last four contests and .692 from three-point land. He has averaged 18 points in the last four games compared to 10.1 in the first nine.

The Pack's leading rebounder is Tom Gugliotta at 7.4, followed by Brian D'Amico at 5.9. Corchiani leads the team in steals with 44.

The N.C. State Ice Hockey Club travels to Ohio University this weekend for two contests. The team's next home game is Jan. 25 against UNC.

There will be a meeting of the Technician sports staff Wednesday, Jan. 17 at 5 p.m. in the Technician office. This meeting is to discuss winter and spring sports beats, basketball games and feature story assignments. If you can't make it, call Lisa at 737-2411.
