

N.C. State linguists publish book about Ocracoke Dialect

A book by North Carolina State University linguists Dr. Walt Wolfram and Dr. Natalie Schilling-Estes, tracing the history of the Ocracoke dialect, has just been released by The University of North Carolina Press. Hot Toodle on the Outer Banks: The Story of the Ocracoke Brogue provides a glossary and quiz of Ocracoke speech and records syntax, spelling, and vocabulary unique to the tiny island.

"We're studying dialects as they recede," said Wolfram, NCSU's William C. Friday Professor of English. "The Ocracoke brogue is gravely endangered. It probably will die out in the next few generations."

More than half of the world's languages are endangered or threatened, said Wolfram in California alone, during the last century. 25 to 50 Native American languages have died. Fifty percent of the proceeds from the book will go to the Ocracoke Preservation Society.

NCSU's College of Engineering to hold open house

NCSU's College of Engineering will host an Open House from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 19. Registration will take place under the north portico of Burlington Laboratories.

The event is expected to attract people from across North Carolina. Students and faculty will be on hand to explain to high school students, parents, and teachers the curriculum options offered by the engineering program at NCSU.

General information about entrance requirements, scholarships, and NCSU's academic and student life also will be available as well as literature regarding specific engineering programs.

The event will include tours and high-tech demonstrations in computer science, electrical, nuclear, industrial, civil, and mechanical engineering. Visitors will have the opportunity to see a nuclear reactor firsthand and to participate in question-and-answer sessions.

For information about Open House 1997, call Bill Babcock at (919) 515-2342, Robert Turner at (919) 515-3263, or Kay Leager at (919) 515-9669.

Faculty Senate shelves arena resolution

In a close vote, the Faculty Senate indefinitely tabled a resolution regarding the proposed arena.

By K. GAFFNEY
 Staff Writer

Put that thought on hold. On Tuesday, that is just what the N.C. State Faculty Senate did with a resolution about the proposed athletic arena.

The resolution suggested that NCSU reassign funds being directed toward the arena into an effort to renovate Reynolds Coliseum.

Just minutes after Vice Chancellor of Finance and Business George Worsley and Athletics Director Les Robinson spoke to the senate, the proposed resolution was tabled indefinitely by a vote of 15 to 12.

The motion to table the issue was proposed in order to let the senate gain more information, and until "the attempts of the administration are thwarted by outside groups," according to Senator Philip Carter, who brought the motion to table to the floor.

Worsley appeared at the senate meeting having just come from a city council meeting. He, along with Student Body President Robert Zimmer, had been summoned by the mayor to discuss the proposed arena with the council.

Worsley expressed the opinion that it was time for the university to make clear to the public its intentions to move forward, and that the arena was a perfect way to express that sentiment. He also expressed some significant concerns about Reynolds Coliseum as it currently stands, and about the possible renovations that have been talked about lately. A major concern was the problem of traffic and accessibility to events at Reynolds. Worsley argued that the set-up of the roads on the main campus make it difficult for people off campus to get to games.

Also on Worsley's list of concerns about Reynolds was the women's facilities, both for the athletic teams and the public facilities, as well as the problem which parking presents during home basketball games at Reynolds.

Addressing concerns over the profitability of the arena, Worsley assured the senate that any loss in revenues would be picked up by the authority which is handling the arena proposal.

According to Robinson, the arena would mirror the growth that the area has seen in recent years.

"We are the largest area in North Carolina, and the second largest in the south," Robinson said. "We need a place that shows that."

Robinson told the senate that the arena would not only benefit the men's basketball program, which would probably use the building for 16 games during the season, but also other Wolfpack athletic programs.

If the men's program was to move out of Reynolds, the women's program would be able to enjoy a place to themselves, Robinson said. He named UNC-Chapel Hill's move into the Dean Dome as support for this. The Tar Heels' women's basketball program is currently housed in Carmichael Gymnasium, where the men used to play, and has that gym all to themselves.

NCSU kicks off huge scholarship campaign today

A campaign to raise scholarship money will begin today at Chancellor Larry Monteith's house.

By DANIELLE STANFIELD
 Staff Writer

Future and current students at N.C. State will benefit from an $80 million scholarship endowment campaign headed by a group of NCSU backers.

"Approximately $48,740,693 has already been contributed to the campaign," N.C. State Chancellor Larry Monteith said.

The Campaign for NCSU students will more than triple endowment funds for need and academic based awards. In addition, the campaign is expected to generate over 2,000 scholarships and 25 fellowships.

The main goal of the campaign is to provide NCSU with the resources to attract a full range of students to the university. With the campaign, NCSU will rank higher in competition with universities like Georgia Tech and Penn State.

"Too many of our state's best students are being lured away to other states by high scholarship and fellowship offers," Monteith said. "This campaign will allow us to strengthen merit scholarship and fellowship programs at N.C. State and assure a bright future for our students, our university, and our state," he said. The kickoff celebration for the campaign begins today at the chancellor's residence. Monteith said the kickoff is to thank all the volunteers and pledgers to the campaign.

"This is a volunteer-driven campaign," he said. "The celebration will bring all of the volunteers together so we can say thank you."

In addition, the festivities will consist of a symbolic check signing featuring the million dollar scholarship pledgers. Recipients of the scholarships will be recognized as well.

The endowment campaign for NCSU students will be in effect for the next five years. Even so, the money that is donated will last much longer.

According to Edward E. Hood, co-chair of the campaign, "By focusing on endowment gifts, this campaign creates a self-perpetuating legacy."

One unique aspect of the campaign is that the endowments grow with the rising costs of tuition.

"This way, we are able to say to the students that they will have a scholarship for four years that will stay with the rises in tuition," Joseph Sanders, associate vice chancellor, said.

The priority of the campaign is students.

"We are focusing on the single most important objective that we need to accomplish for N.C. State University, and we're asking our alumni and advocates to get on board to meet this objective," Hood said.

Student arrested for assault

Alleged incident leads to injury

By PHILLIP REESE
 News Editor

A N.C. State student was arrested last Friday in the assault of a Meredith College student.

Brian Niemczyk, a sophomore in communications, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon after an alleged incident east of the Lambda Chi Alpha house on Fraternity Court resulted in the hospitalization of a woman he was supposedly arguing with, Public Safety Officer Richard Whitlow said in a crime report.

Three eye witnesses said Niemczyk entered his car after an argument with the alleged victim became heated, the crime report stated. The alleged victim, the witnesses said, then jumped on the hood of Niemczyk's car in order to stop Niemczyk from leaving. Niemczyk then supposedly pulled out of his parking space and began to drive away. The witnesses said Niemczyk accelerated his car quickly and then slowed down considerably to make a turn, reportedly throwing the victim off of the hood of his car as he slowed down, stated the crime report.

The alleged victim was transported to Rex Hospital, the crime report stated. She sustained injuries to her head and reported pain in her ribs and lower spine.

Niemczyk returned to the scene of the supposed incident soon after Officer Whitlow arrived. Niemczyk stated he did not know what had happened to the alleged victim, said the report.

Niemczyk appeared to be intoxicated, according to the report. "While talking to Niemczyk, I noticed a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage emanating from his person and asked him if he had been drinking," Niemczyk said he had had a six-pack earlier in the evening," Whitlow stated in the report.

Whitlow escorted Niemczyk to Public Safety's Fieldhouse. Another Public Safety officer waited at the scene of the alleged inci-

Israeli consulate visits NCSU, brings message of encouragement

The road to peace in the Middle East is very bumpy.

By NICOLE BOWMAN
 Managing Editor

The Middle East conflict may be seen as a thing of the past 40 years from now, said Israeli Consul Zvi Vapni. Vapni, one of nine consuls for the State of Israel in the United States, spoke to a small crowd in 212 Caldwell Hall Monday about the peace process between Israel and Palestine.

Both sides are working towards peace, he said, partly because the conflict has been going on for over 100 years.

"Everyone is tired of the whole thing," he said. "The conflict is becoming a dying process."

While the Middle East conflict may be dying, it may not come to an end quickly or peacefully.

"It is a laborious and complicated process," Vapni said in a pre-speech interview. "[Negotiators have] crossed the main boundary in the fact that each side is talking to each other."

Due to daily acts of terrorism, each group is taking the peace process slowly.

"People want to be cautious," Vapni said. "It is a very sensitive issue."

Besides the peace process, Vapni discussed how the media was treating the Middle East conflict.

He said Israel is a victim of misconception. He also stated that the Palestinian movement has deliberately used information given out by the media to pressure Israel.

"We have to [handle the peace process] very carefully," he said. "On a personal level, the Middle East conflict affects everyone, Vapni said. "People listen to the radio to see what happens on a daily basis."

Vapni has been a consul stationed in Atlanta since August. His job is to act as a liaison between Israel and southern U.S. universities, churches and media.

Arena

With the new arena, other teams, such as the gymnastics and wrestling teams, who currently use Reynolds, could have more accessibility to that Coliseum as well.

"Any basketball coach would rather stay in Reynolds," Robinson said, responding to a question about the preference of the coaches. "But I can also guarantee that there are eight other coaches in this league that would put up $10,000 a piece toward this new arena if it meant that they didn't have to play in Reynolds ever again."

dent until officers of the City/County Bureau of Investigations (CCBI) arrived. The CCBI officers took photos of Niemczyk's car and of skid marks that were left in the parking lot.

Based on the witnesses' and victim's statements, Niemczyk was placed under arrest and was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the report stated.

Niemczyk declined to comment on the alleged incident.

ACC Tourney twice as nice for tennis teams

• State wins over UVa. the first round of the ACCs.

SPORTS STAFF REPORT

On Thursday the No. 8 Wolfpack women's tennis team handed No. 9 Virginia their 10th loss of the season with a 5-3 win in the play-in game of the ACC Championships.

The Pack split the doubles matches with Virginia, winning the No.3 seed but dropping the No. 2 match.

The team of Marissa Gildemeister and Laura Cowman beat the Cavaliers' duo of Christy Pomeroy and Pam Carton without too much trouble, 8-4.

State's No.2 team of Brie Glover and Francie Barragan did not fare as well against Paige Boiko and Kendall White, falling easily 8-1.

The No.1 seed match was suspended due to inclement weather.

In singles play, State claimed victory in four of the six matches. The Pack's No.1 seed Blair Sutton fell in three sets to Virginia's Koike, 0-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Nena Bonacic' capitalized in her No.2 match against Stacy Ginhold, Shaun Thomas and the Pack look to keep things rolling today against Duke in the quarterfinals of the ACC Championships. State earned the right to face the No.1 seeded Blue Devils after their 6-0 sweep of the Maryland Terrapins on Thursday.

however, winning in three sets 5-7, 6-1, 7-5.

Other winners for the Pack were Cowman at No.4 (2-6, 6-1, 6-2), Barragan at No.5 (6-0, 6-3), and Glover in the No.6 seed (6-1, 7-5).

Up next for the women's tennis team is a quarterfinal matchup against top-seeded Duke this afternoon.

The win pushes State's record to 9-14, while the Cavaliers fall to a 7-10 mark.

• The men's team continues its dominance over Maryland.

SPORTS STAFF REPORT

For the second time in less than a week, the men's tennis team defeated the Maryland Terrapins, this time in the play-in round of the ACC Championships. The Wolfpack shut out the Terps 6-0.

The Pack claimed two out of the three matches in doubles play, with the duos of Roberto Bracone-Shaun Thomas and Dave Bolick-Hayes Calvert winning their respective matches 9-7 and 8-3. The team of Jeff Smith and Devang Desai fell 8-6 in their No.3 doubles set.

State was unstoppable in singles play, winning all five matches in straight sets.

Bracone, who is currently ranked 82nd in the Rolex Collegiate Tennis Rankings, had no problems with Maryland's Dale Cathell. He dispatched the Terps' top seed easily with scores of 6-3, 6-2.

The ACC's regular season champion in the No. 1 flight, the win increased Bracone's overall record to 18-5, with a 6-2 record in conference play. He is the first No.1

flight champion for the Pack in 18 years.

State's No.2 seed, Devang Desai, followed suit with Bracone's straight-sets victory over Colin Parker. Desai struggled in Sunday's match against Florida State, falling in straight sets 6-2, 6-2, but showed no ill effects in the first round of the Championships. He defeated Parker quickly, 6-1, 6-3.

One of the singles matches was not held, the No. 5 seed match between Shaun Thomas and Maryland's Karim Emara. Smith downed T.J. Klier in No.3 singles, 6-2, 6-3, while Keith Slamon took the No.4 match up, 6-3, 6-1 over Jay Kimmel.

Hayes Calvert had little trouble finishing off the Terrapins No.6 player, winning, 6-2, 6-0.

By winning the play-in game, State earns the right to face top-seeded Duke in the quarterfinals today at 3 p.m.

The Blue Devils had their way with the Pack earlier this month, handing them a 6-1 defeat on April 2.

Duke has eliminated State from the tournament for the last two years.

What's the deal?

• Just because you go to college, doesn't mean you understand everything.

Supposedly in 22 days, this university will see fit to give me, not one but two diplomas certifying my academic achievement for the past four years.

The only solace I find in this bleak concept known as the real world is I will be accompanied by 6,000 of my not-so-closest friends. Just because I have successfully, let's just add an almost in there not to irk the gods of graduation, completed college that doesn't mean I understand it.

Actually, full comprehension could be the furthest thing from the truth. Over the course of 8 a.m. classes, 10-page papers and sleepless adventures of burning the midnight oil there have been quite a few things to escape my grasp.

For those of you so caught up in the basketball recruiting excitement and the ACC Tournament success, did you know that once upon a time, as the popular song goes, when we were merely freshman, football was the king of Brick U.?

That's right. There were seven straight bowl games, five consecutive wins over North Carolina and enough fourth quarter comebacks to choke John Popper. Sadly, before you could say, "two turn-tables and a Louisville slugger", the program has shown the roughly the same amount of progress as a Tel-Aviv peace accord.

But the football program, and the direction it's going (think Tomi Basil's career), is only one aspect of N.C. State I do not understand. Since you asked, here are the rest of the campus' mysteries:

Student Government
I'm not saying that it doesn't do anything. I just don't know what it is. I know there are an inordinate amount of meetings and a number of people act like Student Government is the last line of civilization.

I also know that when the university decided to raise the tuition, it didn't matter how loud the Student Government yelled, dear old dad had to shell out a few more pesos.

Non-revenue teams
Specifically, this refers to the women's basketball and men's tennis teams. If you want exposure for your sport, don't whine when it's critical. I believe that men and women deserve equal treatment.

That means you take the good with the bad. If you lose to a team by 20, don't expect me to raise the pom-pom and ring the fight song. If your record is 0-9 against every ACC team but Maryland for the last three years, deal with it on your time. Don't write letters to the ACC commissioner or yell at student sports writers.

C.A. Dillon and the pep band
Bless Mr. Dillon's soul for being the Voice of the Wolfpack since the automobile was invented, but I will never understand why he gets so excited when an opponent scores. "Shammond Williams for three!" The scream will register above the boozing crowd at Reynolds. Then, no less than five seconds later, Damon Thornton could rip down the rim and there is a considerably calmer tone.

As for the band, in the past four years I've heard "Louie, Louie,"

• The Pack Nine hopes to extend its ACC win streak against Clemson.

By K. GAFFNEY
Sports Editor

Two out of three would do it again.

Last year, N.C. State's baseball team took two out of three Atlantic Coast Conference regular season games against perennial power Clemson. If the Wolfpack was to do the same again this weekend, when it faces off against the Tigers, it would push the ACC win streak to 10, tying a school record.

State will have to bounce back from a 4-3 loss to the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington. The loss cut the Wolfpack's 14 game win streak short, and State looks to start another with victories over the league foe.

The Seahawks scored in the bottom of the 12th inning Wednesday night to down N.C. State, 4-3 in baseball.

The final run was scored by Derek Williams when Wilmington senior infielder Chris Luther singled up the middle.

State jumped out to an early lead, scoring all three runs in the second and third innings.

Lead-off man Tom Sergio, Craig Lee and Matt Postell all drove in runs, as the Wolfpack picked up just eight hits.

The Seahawks scored three in the bottom of the eighth to tie the game, and then held off the Wolfpack, to push the game into extra innings, which is only the second time that has happened this season for the Wolfpack.

Even though the Tigers are the two-time defending NCAA Regional Champions, this year's Clemson team features a slew of young players, including 23 freshman.

The Tiger pitching staff lists 12 of these newcomers, making up close to two-thirds of the staff.

One of the Tiger's biggest losses from last season was pitcher Kris Benson. Benson won all of the national player-of-the-year awards and was drafted in the No. 1 spot after last season. Benson was not only the ACC Player-of-the-Year, but also the ACC Athlete-of-the-Year.

The Tigers have pushed their way up to fourth place in the ACC already this season despite their youth.

The Wolfpack Don- State goes head-to-head with the Clemson Tigers tonight at Doak Field. The three-game series continues Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. The Pack took two out of three from Clemson last year at Tiger Field.

LeCroy is currently batting .339, with 64 RBIs and nine extra base hits.

Leading the Pack will be junior right-fielder and current ACC player of the Week Jake Weber. Weber, a New York native, earned the honors after batting .650 last week, hitting 13-of-20. He scored ten runs and batted in 13 others, and Weber also had four doubles and two triples. Weber is hitting .408 for the season, with 69 hits and 51 RBIs. Lead-off hitter Tom Sergio is leading the Pack in the numbers race as well. The second baseman is currently batting .424 for the season, and Sergio recently set school career records in base hits and runs scored.

Pitching for the Pack this weekend will be Kurt Blackmon, Brent Black and Bubba Scarce. The three have been the Pack's most consistent performers, each having made over 11 appearances for State.

Tonight's game kicks off at 7 p.m., as will Saturday's. On Sunday, the Wolfpack and the Tigers will play at 1:30.

State wins Big Four, again

SPORTS STAFF REPORT

This past weekend, N.C. State came out on top once again in the Big Four Sports Day competition.

State hosted the event, which matches up the top intermural athletes from State, Duke, UNC-Chapel Hill and Wake Forest.

For the men, the win bumped State's total up to 29 individual championships, with two co-championships, the women now lead the victory race, now having gathered 18 overall championships.

The NCSU men posted a score of 35 points, way ahead of second place finisher Carolina, who scored 24 points. Wake Forest came in third with 16 points, and Duke finished last, scoring 14.

The men took first in the badminton, basketball, cross-country, swimming, and table tennis events, while grabbing a close second to the Tar Heels in

I applaud your efforts and hours of practice, but I'm quite sure its time to put another dime in the jukebox.

Take my bicycle

It's just hit me what I can do with my post-graduate life, heist Trek's and sell them on the Triangle's black market. This is the only explanation I have for where all the bicycles go.

In the past year, I've had two bicycles stolen. Lord knows why, there weren't exactly Tour de France material. Apparently there is a huge demand for bicycles ripped from college students.

Sons and daughters of the Confederacy

This is one thing about the South I have failed to comprehend. One-hundred and 32 years ago, General Robert E. Lee surrendered at the Appomattox Courthouse in Virginia.

That's my first clue that the South, brace yourself for this, lost the War of Northern Aggression, or whatever you want call it. If the North had lost the war, which for a refresher it didn't, I would try come to grips with the fact and get over it.

The Wolfpack women also grabbed a convincing win, with a score of 31, again followed by Carolina, Duke and Wake, respectively.

State had little trouble in the badminton, bowling and swimming events, as well as taking first in racquetball and table tennis. The State streak in bowling now stands at 13, while they have won the past seven swimming events.

State had won the event for the past four years.

Ben Affleck and Joey Lauren Adams in Kevin Smith's Chasing Amy

'Chasing Amy' is story of love in the '90s

■ "Clerks" director grows up with "Chasing Amy."

By KEVIN RING
STAFF WRITER

It's not often that a film makes you question your ideas about life and love. "Chasing Amy" is one of those films. After making audiences laugh at his characters and themselves with his first two features, "Clerks" and "Mallrats," director Kevin Smith has taken his new film in a very different direction.

Lifelong friends Banky Edwards (Jason

Lee) and Holden McNeil (Ben Affleck) draw an immensely popular comic named "Bluntman and Cronik," based on two familiar stoners, Jay and Silent Bob. They meet fellow artist, Alyssa Jones (Joey Lauren Adams), at a panel discussion led by Holden's friend Hooper (Dwight Ewell). Hooper, a gay black man who plays the militant while promoting his comic book, has one of the funniest roles in the film, while also serving as a confidant and adviser to Holden. Holden is immediately smitten with Alyssa. He thinks that the feelings are mutual, that is until he finds out she's a lesbian.

"Chasing Amy" is similar to its predecessors in its foul-mouthed nature. However, unlike Smith's first two movies, this one has the heart that the others lacked. "At the core, it's just a love story," said producer Scott Mosier. "It's a love story that brings to the foreground many issues that have been taboo in the past. There are candid discussions of just about everything that makes eighth graders giggle and parents cringe."

The dialogue is the same rapid-fire style that marked the first two films, but with "Chasing Amy," Smith moves most of the discussions from talk of hockey games and the boundaries of the food court to the true anxiety that is dealt with when you fall in love and the boundaries of that love.

Going into the theater, I had little faith that Smith could top his grainy, credit card financed, first effort, "Clerks." He has, and then some. In a time where tornadoes and volcanoes are the central characters in movies, it's refreshing to see a film where the leads are humans.

"Chasing Amy" tells the story of love in the '90s the way it is. If everyone would treat love in real life as seriously as Smith does in his film, I imagine that the world would be a better place to live.

New book looks at southern hardships

■ Georgian author offers sentimental account in her fourth novel.

By CHRISTINE OLDHAM
ASSISTANT FEATURES EDITOR

Most college students don't get much of a chance to read for fun. However, with dead week coming up, you just might have a chance to fit in a book other than those on your required reading list.

If you do get that chance, I recommend Janice Daugharty's "Earl in the Yellow Shirt." She is the acclaimed Southern author of "Dark of the Moon," "Necessary Lies" and "Pawpaw Patch."

Daugharty was born in Echols county, Georgia, where she has lived for 50 years. Second in a family of seven children, she graduated from Echols County High School, and several years later attended Valdosta State University as an English major. She began writing fiction in 1982, and has had short stories published in various literary journals. She is a writing consultant at Valdosta State University and has won star reviews from both Publisher's Weekly and Kirkus reviews. Her novel "Dark of the Moon" is currently in production as a Hallmark film.

Her latest novel, set in the backwoods of Georgia, is a haunting portrait of a poor family in crisis. The impoverished Scurvey family — residents of a white-trash community — must somehow raise the money to hold a proper funeral for their mother who died giving birth to a baby girl. Care for the child falls on 16-year-old Loujean Scurvey, while her three brothers find themselves enlisted by the town's corrupt bigwig to run a moonshine distillery in order to afford a proper burial for their mother.

Back Scurvey, the eldest of three brothers, breaks rank with a generation-long feud and approaches a local moonshine runner to earn the money to bury their mom. Pee-wee, an intoxicated Korean War veteran, means well but can barely care for himself, much less provide for others. The youngest is Alamand, the sensitive boy whose exceptional artistic ability makes him incompatible with his backwoods community, and who after realizing this fact, withdraws into a poignant, soul-searching retreat.

Intertwined with the Scurvey family is Earl — a gangly, chivalrous suitor who is looking to win Loujean's heart through his simple goodness and sacrifice. Dressed up in his yellow shirt, Earl searches for a way to land on his feet and repair the dysfunction that surrounds him.

Written in Daugharty's powerful Southerner's voice, "Earl in the Yellow Shirt" is narrated in alternating chapters by each of the main characters, each of their voices echoing different nuances of hope and despair with the occasional flash of humor. "Earl in the Yellow Shirt" is a touching novel in the Southern tradition and is a detailed tender portrait of one family's times and troubles.

NCSU students honored

■ Several N.C. State students receive top awards.

TECH TOO STAFF REPORT

In the past few weeks, several N.C. State students have received awards of merit and scholarship monies. Many illustrious honors have been placed upon deserving students on campus.

To begin with, three NCSU undergraduate students have been named as recipients of the 1997-98 Goldwater Scholarship Awards. The three students selected to receive this national scholarship are Jennifer Buzzard, Erik Nyström and Ryan Vinroot.

Buzzard, a second-year student pursuing degrees in forest management and international environmental policy, is the daughter of Cynthia Bell and Thomas Buzzard, both of Raleigh. Nyström, a third-year student pursuing a degree in computer engineering, is the son of Perry and Elizabeth Nyström of Raleigh. Vinroot, a third-year student pursuing a degree in mathematics and a minor in physics, is the son of Robert and Pat Vinroot of Charlotte, N.C.

All three Goldwater Scholars were selected on the basis of academic merit from a field of more than 1,150 mathematics, science and engineering students who were nominated by the faculties of colleges and universities nationwide. Scholarships were awarded by the Board of Trustees of the Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship and Excellence in Education Foundation to 282 students nationwide. One hundred and sixty of the Scholars are men, 122 are women, and virtually all intend to obtain a Ph. D. as their degree objective.

The one and two year scholarships will cover the cost of tuition, fees, books and room and board up to a maximum of $7,500 per year.

Also of merit, Phi Eta Sigma, an honors society, recently awarded $500 scholarships to three State students. Recipients of the awards are: Daniel K. Edge from Clinton, N.C., who is pursuing degrees in zoology and poultry science; Stephanie E. Gillis from Charlotte, N.C., who is a biochemistry major earning a minor in genetics; and J. Zack Hall, from Reidsville, N.C., who is pursuing degrees in zoology (pre-med) and biochemistry.

The awards were presented at the annual induction banquet held on April 8, when over 400 first-year NCSU students, all of whom had earned grade point averages of 3.5 or higher, became new members of Phi Eta Sigma. All three students have also been nominated by the NCSU chapter to be considered for scholarships which will be awarded by the national chapter of Phi Eta Sigma: one of last year's NCSU nominees, David R. Higgins, an environmental engineering student from Charlotte, N.C., was named as the recipient for this year.

This past week, the Order of Omega held its Greek Award Ceremony. On April 17, awards were presented for most outstanding service project, most outstanding fundraiser, most creative non-alcoholic event, most outstanding new member program, new members of the year, most improved sorority and fraternity and sorority and fraternity members of the Year.

The Order of Omega is a leadership honor society for members of Greek letter organizations. It encompasses the top 3 percent of Greek members based on character, service and leadership.

Substation is practical

■ New substation offers more power during peak electric usage.

With all of the technology being realized here at this university, it's time that we face a very important fact. The wonders of technology require an energy source to make them work. They need electricity, and they need a lot of it. With the many new developments and additions around campus, that technology is going to need a lot more, and soon. The new Sullivan substation is an easy and practical solution to this dilemma. Its installment will provide a new lifeline for the overworked Bragaw substation, as well as free parking spots for next year. True, these spaces won't be waiting after the summer session and a new substation is going to involve all of the hassles of construction. However, the fact that the situation has been handled with speed and efficiency thus far, proves that only a minor inconvenience is involved.

How much does a little inconvenience matter? Unless NCSU students are willing to go without the luxuries that technology affords, a new substation is the only route. The Bragaw substation is already working beyond its full capacity to meet the electrical needs of main campus. Try spending those hot summer months from July to October, the peak months of output, without air conditioning, fans or refrigerators. It makes a little construction seem pretty worthwhile, doesn't it?

The Sullivan substation is the most sensible way to solve the problem of electrical needs. A university that is moving into the future cannot be held back by outdated systems and equipment. Besides, the additional parking that will eventually come about because of the new station is long overdue. The new substation kills two birds with one stone.

Extra money helps

■ Scholarships help to attract high quality students to N.C. State.

With rising tuition rates on the mind of virtually everyone, the additional money that has been donated for scholarships will be put to good use.

The extra scholarship money compiled by generous benefactors of this university will help attract top notch students to this campus. Over the last several years N.C. State has been at a disadvantage when it came to attracting certain students. Duke and UNC-Chapel Hill have succeeded in drawing prospective students to their universities by offering large amounts of scholarship money to them. The addition of these monies to the university's scholarship program will help to attract the cream of the crop academically to this university. The money will not only benefit incoming students, but those who are already here as well.

Due to the never ending tuition increases that seem to pop up every year, the money has come at the right time. Prospective students who might be leaning toward another school could be persuaded to come here instead. The addition of these students will bolster this already high academic record that N.C. State has worked so hard to achieve.

On behalf of the students here, a round of applause is in order to the people who worked so hard to bring this money to us.

Scholars program provides many incentives

Hope Broadway COMMENTARY

Textile Management and in MDS. The aim of these programs is to provide students with both technical degrees and with a working knowledge of human affairs.

USP students live in Sullivan Hall at least their first year on campus and they have the option of staying there as upperclassmen. Most of the residents in Sullivan are USP students. Sullivan Hall is equipped with a Unity Computer Lab, a TV lounge, the Scholars Lounge and a classroom. The Scholars Lounge is the only area reserved for USP students only. The Scholars Lounge is on the first floor of Sullivan Hall. It has sofas, work tables, magazines, fish, and an air conditioner. It is also equipped with a file cabinet full of past tests from a wide range of courses. The Scholars Lounge also has a reference library with reference books and magazines. The lounge is maintained by the Scholars Council.

The Council is a group of 30 USP students elected by the USP. The Council meets every other week to discuss business. It is responsible for planning USP events and trips and maintaining the lounge, among other numerous things. The Council splits into committees through which the USP projects and activities are planned.

One of the major benefits USP students get is being able to register earlier than the rest of their class. A freshman USP student can register a week early, a few days after the sophomores, and a sophomore gets to register a few days after the juniors. Juniors and seniors in scholars don't register early. This is a good thing because as we all know, in our first two years of school, when we register we must have five or six schedule options planned because we never get the courses we want. They fill up too quickly. So to be able to get all their classes, USP students in their early years register with the class ahead of them. The courses they register for are sometimes honors or scholars courses. These courses are taught by the cream of the faculty and the number of students are limited so that the professor/student ratio is lower. This means the class is more personal, the discussions are more intimate, and there is more attention given to the students. The learning environment leads to higher levels of learning, which is nice since scholars have to keep their GPAs above a 3.0.

Scholars students are required to go to cultural programs throughout the semester. This includes lectures, plays, concerts, dinners, and anything else that could be a cultural experience. USP students are required to attend approximately eight programs, at least four of which are their choice. Since they are required to attend, free tickets are available for them in the USP office. So USP students get to go to plays, concerts, dinners, and multicultural events for free.

USP students live in Sullivan together, in a sort of USP community. They go on trips, have parties and go to plays. Incoming freshmen are placed in an environment where there are people with whom they have much in common. They have classes together, can go to plays together, go to the dining hall together, study together, and even surf the Net together. It is a family atmosphere. The pressure to meet people and make friends is lessened because there is a wealth of people right there who do the same things and have the same interests.

USP gives students many opportunities. They can live together in a community environment. They have their very own library available to them for studying, as well as texts to look over to prepare for their examinations. There is a council of people dedicated to planning parties and trips just for them. They get to experience other cultures and have the opportunity to see the arts for free. And they have a good reason to study hard and keep their GPA's up. This program is a good incentive for incoming freshman and students already in the program.

Education is a seller's market

Every year since I first came to N.C. State as an undergraduate, no one has voted in student elections, and Technician has printed an editorial afterwards asking the rhetorical question "Why?"

When is Technician going to stop diluting its self-perceived power as the student body voice with whining about the obvious? Nobody votes in the student elections, because the student government has no real power.

It is NOT because we are apathetic, it's because we don't care to take the time to stuff someone else's resume, which is pretty much all that getting into student government is going to do for anyone.

What examples does Technician cite for the urgent need for a high voter turnout? Tuition increases? The student body has never wanted tuition hikes. Every student government in the nine-odd years I've been here has opposed them. They come yearly anyway. Come on, Technician, try to think of better examples, like plus/minus grades... err... that went through anyway, too. Better yet, instead of berating the vast majority of the student body for NOT votin', why doesn't Technician try berating the deluded few individuals who really believe that we could have any power? The editorial should explain the simple economics like this:

"Education is a seller's market. If you don't like the system here, there will definitely be someone else who can stomach it. That is what drives policy on this campus. NCSU is a horrible bastardization of byzantine entrepreneurship and collectivized intrinsigence. The student body is merely the faces of the clientele this year. There will be a new clientele next year. Either take what NCSU offers or go."

That would be a worthy editorial when you are scrambling to find something to complain about this time next year.

Fraternities shed stereotypes

I am writing in response to the article published on April 14 concerning the community service award presented to Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity.

I first must thank Technician for publishing the article. Normally when a fraternity makes the front page, it is not for anything positive. My problem is with the opening paragraph of the article. The second sentence states that "But once a year, one fraternity at N.C. State does away with the kegs, dance music, and party animals associated with typical college parties." This is hardly a way to open an article about a fraternity receiving a community service award. Believe it or not, fraternities do not spend all their time partying and kegs have not been allowed in a chapter house on this campus in years. By reading this article, the reader assumes that a fraternity performing a service event is a rare occurrence. This is hardly the case. Fraternities perform volunteer work, donate money to local and national charities, and participate in food and clothing drives.

Fraternities on this campus are trying hard to shed the Animal House stereotype. This job is made even harder when the media only adds fuel to the fire. Next time a positive article is written about a fraternity it would be appreciated by all Greeks if the article was not opened with a negative slant. Thank you.

GIVE US TIME TO REPAY YOUR LOAN.

After just three years in the Army, your college loan could be a thing of the past.

Under the Army's Loan Repayment program, each year you serve on active duty reduces your indebtedness by one-third or $1,500, whichever amount is greater, up to a $65,000 limit.

This offer applies to Perkins Loans, Stafford Loans and certain other federally insured loans which are not in default.

And this is just the first of many benefits the Army will give you. Get the whole story from your Army Recruiter.
