

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM WINDS UP Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY

Cunningham Addresses Assembly Wednesday on Subject of "Material Things"

Bringing to a close the Y. M. C. A.'s program of Bible study dealing with the general theme of "The Sermon on the Mount," Professor C. C. Cunningham addressed the college assembly Wednesday in Pullen Hall upon the subject of "Material Things."

Especially appropriate was Professor Cunningham's speech, for preceding the address several men received their keys from the Pine Burr Honorary Society.

Speaking in a very forceful manner Professor Cunningham stressed the futility of searching for material things, declaring in turning to the Pine Burr men, that if the men received the emblems because of their efficiency in mastering material things the emblems are meaningless. The entire purpose of the address was to convey the thought that material things are really of minor importance, as compared with the great truths of life.

Professor Cunningham brought to a close a very successful program of Bible study. Other noted religious leaders to take part in the discussion were Dr. Elbert Russell, of Duke University, and Dr. W. L. Potat, President of Wake Forest College.

FRIENDSHIP COUNCIL HOLDS REGULAR MEET

The Freshman Friendship Council held its regular meeting in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Sunday, February 27, 1927. One of the year's most successful meetings was carried out, with Albert Ruggles, Cecil Mizelle, E. P. Bass, and T. E. Kiger as leaders in the discussion. Mr. W. N. Hicks led the devotional exercise, and gave some very interesting points on the subject under discussion, "Why Men Neglect to Bear Personal Testimony."

The Council is steadily going forward under its own power since the election of officers. Each member seems to realize the task ahead of the Council next September, and is taking every opportunity to prepare for it at the present time. There are now fifty-nine members of the Council, and all are life wires.

The subject for discussion tomorrow will be "How to Awaken the Indifferent and Self-Satisfied." Owen, Connor, Williams, Dixon, and Jones will have charge of the discussion.

WANTS BETTER SPEECH

To the Editor of The Technician.

Dear Sir:—The article in the last issue concerning the "Better Speech Week" attracted my attention, as I am quite interested in the subject. Personally, I am much in favor of the movement, although I doubt that it can hope for much success.

My observation has been that in ordinary spoken English of today, disregarding slang, idioms, and mispronunciations, the percentage of grammatically correct sentences is very small. Written English, although not as bad, is nothing to make us proud.

Let us take as an example the very article in question. In the first paragraph we find a common mistake, the use of "their" for "his." . . . to have every man, woman, and child in the city to exercise more care in their speech." The third paragraph begins, "There is little question but that," etc. What is the "but" doing here? The only use that I can put it to is to give it the meaning "except," "There is little question except that," etc. and we know from the context that this is just the opposite of what the author wishes to state.

(I don't even claim that this letter is beyond reproach.)

TEXTILE GRADUATES ARE MAKING GOOD

J. F. "Red" Byrd, last year's graduate in Textile Chemistry and Dyeing, took charge of the raw stock dyeing at the Eagle and Phoenix Mills, Columbus, Georgia, March 1. "Red" was formerly in charge of a like department at the Dan River Mills, Danville, Virginia. The Eagle and Phoenix Mills is a large concern, with over a million dollars capital. "Red" has a good position with this concern, and has made great advancement in the textile world since he left N. C. State last June. State College, and especially the Textile School, is proud of "Red" Byrd, and wish him continued success in his work.

Other features of the conference include an address by David Clark, publisher of The Southern Textile Bulletin, on "The Development and Future of the Textile Industry in North Carolina." W. Larkin, of the Fidelity Machine Company, will talk on "Knitting of Fancy Hose." Mr. Larkin is the inventor of a number of patents on knitting machines.

A dance is planned for one night during the exposition. Only textile students and their girls will be admitted. Just preceding this is to be an initiation of new members into Phi Psi, honorary textile fraternity.

L. M. Stuart, Circulation Manager, announced that he will take orders for extra copies of the 1927 Agromeck after March 10. Undergraduate students who are entitled to one copy by the payment of quarterly publication fees may purchase additional copies at $4 each. Members of the faculty and others will be charged $4.75 per copy, which is the regular price for one book. The actual cost of each copy of the Agromeck, according to official announcement, exceeds $11.50.

Copies of any group pictures made by the Agromeck photographer will be available early next term, according to Henry Weedon, Business Manager.

ferent from other governments that the usual rules for recognition would not work, that the very wording of the Constitution shows that the Soviet Government does intentionally interfere with other governments. Mr. Britt also said, "Just because other nations have opened their doors to these horrible conditions in Russia is no reason the United States should do so."

The result of this debate puts Pullen on the upward climb toward winning the year-round contest, although Learz is slightly in the lead at present. Pullen may continue to rise, and in the last inning, as she did last year, win the year-round contest.

Gamecocks Drive State Out Tournament By 32-26 Score

Red Terrors Meet Defeat at Hands of Gamecocks in First Day of Southern Conference Basketball Tournament at Atlanta; South Carolina Defense Holds State Scoreless for Fifteen Minutes

In the second contest of the Southern Conference Tournament, the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina eliminated the N. C. State Red Terrors by the score of 32-26 on the first day of play, which was Friday.

The Terrors entered the fray the favorite by a win over W. and L., who defeated the Gamecocks later in the season, but South Carolina's five-man defense was too much for the State quint to solve. They were unable to advance the ball near enough the goal to get a good shot, and were forced to take long shots, which were far from effective.

The Gamecock defense held the Red Terrors scoreless for the first fifteen minutes of the fray, while White of State took advantage of four free shots before Spence caged a pretty shot. McDowall and Goodwin followed suit. At the end of the first half the Gamecocks were in the lead to the count of 14-10.

In the second half the Gamecocks scored ten points in rapid succession. During the closing minutes of the game the Terrors launched an attack that netted two field goals by Brown.

The Fighting Cocks, representing the Poultry Science Club, have made a clean sweep of the club and society series, and reign supreme in that department of intra-mural athletics. They have also made an enviable record with high school and independent teams throughout the eastern part of the State. They have not lost a game to a high school, and only two to independent teams.

COMMENTS

Chi Tau won the championship of the first two groups, and from all indications the league championship, Sigma Tau Beta and Alpha Gamma Rho went the route without a defeat, Alpha Gamma Rho losing her first game in the play-off to break the tie in Group C. The game between Sigma Tau Beta and Pi Kappa Phi to determine the champions for Group C was played off Thursday night. The final game will not probably be played until after the Tournament.

Borrowed Bits o' Bull
Our botany and zoology classes are now studying wild life.

An esteemed contemporary suggests that if the Governor of North Carolina makes an ass of himself only one day in the week, he is still considerably above the average in his profession.

"Julius Caesar" has been arraigned in Greensboro court on a liquor charge. Somehow we always thought booze was mixed up in that little fracas with Brutus.

Certain Senators have long gone in for snappy dressing. This session has been featured by plain and fancy spats, cuts, and fisticuffs.

Two hairless African sand dogs, their hides identical in color to the human skin, have been brought to London to propagate their species for the benefit of an English shoe factory.

The Twig couldn't wait for April 1. It waxed foolish before February could escape.

We regret that we have to wait two more days before sharing our beds with others.

Come all ye faithful and let's give the high school boys the biggest time that we have at our disposal.

We are sorry, Carolina, that you failed to win out in the tournament. And, incidentally, we are sorry that we failed to win out.

A group of Harvard students had a little difficulty with the police. Students are the same, the world over. So are policemen.

We suppose all that excitement in Bladen about cock and bull fighting is a direct result of Mexican propaganda to civilize the United States.

According to The Twig, the Meredith Seniors have won the loving cup. We should like to enter a State team.

Major Early trusts to no mistakes. He puts up the "No Drill" flag, even though the ground is out of sight by a margin of 18 inches of snow.

Mrs. McKimmon states that a sense of humor is a prerequisite for a woman who is to be married to a man. She should also have a sense of pity.

We like to speak in superlatives, therefore we shall probably brag about "the biggest snow I ever saw." It will get deeper with age.

Frank Chedester announces that the official car of THE TECHNICIAN has spent the week in cold storage. He is too late. The process of decomposition has already started.

Joe Shuford is most versatile. Waking up to find the campus deep in snow, he promptly gave the janitor two bits for the use of his rubber boots during each time as the snow should last.

Possession is nine-tenths of the law. A milk wagon drove leisurely down the narrow channel in the snow on Fayetteville street, giving each drug store and delicatessen its quota of milk, while a long line of automobiles barked at him from the rear.

THE BUSY LEGISLATORS

The General Assembly of North Carolina draws to a close, and in so doing writes "finis" on the final act of one of the greatest sources of amusement, entertainment, and instruction that the average State College student numbers among his extra-curricular activities.

We have been impressed with the doings within the walls of the State Capitol, and have watched the proceedings with considerable interest.

It is useless to deny that we have been denied the privilege of the full measure of amusement that was ours at the General Assembly two years ago. It was at that Assembly that we narrowly missed setting out to prove, along with Tennessee, that we are not, nor ever have been, related to monkeys or other undesirable ancestors.

On the whole, the present Assembly has shown an almost unbelievable amount of common sense—common sense mixed with personal gain, party and local politics, to be sure, but common sense just the same.

There has been a tendency to kill bills, and that is a commendable general policy. We have already more laws than can be enforced, and we should go slow in making new ones. We have in mind the anti-evolution bill, the anti-parking and petting bill, and the anti-contraceptive bill.

Those who watched critically the football season were impressed with two things: First, that the men were not in the state of training that they should have been.

The basketball season has just closed, and the team has left a record that we can well be proud of. But even here there was a lack of that indefinable "something" which characterizes unity within a team.

The changing of the date for buying automobile license plates was of little consequence one way or the other.

Perhaps the greatest mistake that the legislators have made was in the passage of the bill giving the Highway Commission the supreme power in routing our highways.

We were asked to state why the basketball team failed to scale the heights that lay in their pathway at the beginning of the season, we should unhesitatingly say that it was because there was a lack of that complete spirit of unity and fellowship that characterizes all highly successful teams.

It is difficult to place the blame for this situation, but we unhesitatingly refuse to lay it at the door of the coach. Coach Tebell is a gentleman, a good athlete, an excellent coach, and a "hail fellow well met" cause to appropriate money for the use of the State Prison.

The Australian Ballot Bill has caused quite a bit of debate. We have been amused at hearing some of the Assemblymen call it "The Woman's Bill," leaving the impression that the women were the chief sponsors of that bill.

The School Equalization Bill is hanging in the balance at the time of these musings. We doubt that it will pass in its entirety. But before we can have uniformity of preparation in our first-year college men, we must have an equalization fund and other machinery for setting equal standards among all the schools of the State.

A LACK OF HARMONY

The season of another major sport is over, and the time has come for a general review of what has transpired, with a view of using the experiences of the past toward building a firmer foundation for future seasons.

While we have been keenly interested in everything that pertains to the athletic teams, their successes and their failures, the nature of our work has been such that we could get only a slightly better view than the average student of our athletics in all its various ramifications.

In the first place, we have been puzzled about the close parallelism of the enthusiasm of the student body with the winning ability of the teams. We have been puzzled to know which is cause and which is effect.

During our four years here we have watched developments with our best attempt at having an analytic mind. Our conclusion is that the teams are in large measure the result of the athletic spirit of the student body as a whole, and of the teams as units.

Too many students think of college spirit and athletic spirit merely as lusty voices diligently applied from the bleachers at the games. Since early in the football season we have had that type of spirit in abundance, and we commend the cheer leaders and the student body for it.

But there is another type of student spirit. It is this type of spirit that we are, and have been, sadly lacking in. It is the lack of this spirit that causes the students, as individuals, to slip the athlete a drink of "hootch," keep him up late at night, and seek to foster in him a spirit of jealousy and petty superiority over his fellow athletes.

It is this kind of spirit that looks at the team as several individuals, rather than as one whole. It is this type of spirit that causes the stands to go wild when one man is sent into the game, while another is only politely cheered when he goes in.

We do not like to admit it, but we have that type of athletic spirit. It is contagious, and has passed from the student body into the teams themselves.

Those who watched critically the football season were impressed with two things: First, that the men were not in the state of training that they should have been.

The basketball season has just closed, and the team has left a record that we can well be proud of. But even here there was a lack of that indefinable "something" which characterizes unity within a team.

The changing of the date for buying automobile license plates was of little consequence one way or the other.

We were asked to state why the basketball team failed to scale the heights that lay in their pathway at the beginning of the season, we should unhesitatingly say that it was because there was a lack of that complete spirit of unity and fellowship that characterizes all highly successful teams.

It is difficult to place the blame for this situation, but we unhesitatingly refuse to lay it at the door of the coach. Coach Tebell is a gentleman, a good athlete, an excellent coach, and a "hail fellow well met" on all occasions. He has the confidence and admiration of the student body and the faculty.

Leaving out the coaches, we have only the student body and the members of the teams themselves to blame for the lack of unity of spirit among the team-mates.

There have been occasions when there was a lack of complete harmony between athletes. In such cases factions of the student body have been quick to take up the insignificant differences and keep them aggravated, instead of trying to promote harmony and good feeling.

The athletes themselves have failed (at least some of them have failed) to be broad-minded enough to drown any personal likes or dislikes in a confidence in, and a love for, the whole team.

We have seen the results. Teams that have enjoyed much confidence at the beginning of the seasons have failed to come up to expectations.

Let us lay aside petty differences, petty pride, and petty snobbery, and devote our full strength to the services of unified teams.

ORIENT and OCCIDENT

A. Laurance Aydtlett

Several instances of slight forgetfulness, or perhaps thoughtlessness, have recently been shown in respect to the library. The State College Library is the one beautiful work of architecture on the campus, and should by all means be protected in all possible ways.

Thumb tacks have been stuck in the plaster walls at the book desk without thought, perhaps, that when they should be pulled out a scar will be left that will be practically irradicable.

When such a building as we possess has been so widely recognized as an excellent piece of art work, we should do all in our power to protect it and to keep it looking as nice as possible.

The library was a place of great artistic ability in another sense last year when it became the scene of a musical concert. A group of women from the State College Women's Club took over the reading room on the north side as a temporary meeting place.

During the afternoon, while the students were supposed to be hard at work in the building, they were treated to musical numbers until about 5 o'clock. The librarian was asked to obtain a piano to furnish the accompaniment to the songs.

The piano in the auditorium was moved over to the near-by building. It has been said that campus organizations tried to obtain the piano that it could not be moved without an order from the Board of Trustees of the College.

We wish we had the feminine way of obtaining what we ask for, rather by resort to tears or by other means. It is one of the greatest assets a person can have in the present-day world.

Perhaps a little co-operation and forethought on the part of all people dealing with the college will help make State College a bigger, better, and more forward institution. We should all work with this object in view.

Uncle Dudley's Opinion--

When the police of Raleigh have to resort to the use of freshman caps in making a raid on bootleggers, it is time for the justice of the law to stop and consider what justice really is.

It is a shame on the college, and especially the freshman class, if places the freshmen of State College in the limelight of things that are against the college rules and of which very few are guilty.

The article in the "News and Observer" leads the public to think that the freshman cap is a regular password to the bootlegger.

Even if a few are guilty, it gives the police department no right to abuse the name of the freshman class. The college authorities should see that such a raid as was made last week by two of the Raleigh policemen never occurs again.

If the police department cannot arrest the bootleggers from its own means of authority, but has to allow two of its force, or men capable of getting a new force, or men capable of handling the executive position of the police department who were responsible for this "brilliant" plan.

Professor Zip says-- EACH lank and lounging lizard dug ditches through the blizzard, 'round his door; through wind and storm he waded, with manner dark and shaded, mad and sore. The 'fessors cut their classes, the students skipped in masses, while they slept. Each walker slipped and slid, with Mother Earth collided, when he stepped.

how they even secured them. There is still another source connected in this, for the city officials could not buy the freshman caps, as the sellers of these can distinguish any day a freshman from one of the police force.

The publicity of the whole affair was brought to the eyes of the public through the columns of the "News and Observer," but there is no blame on the paper. It is their duty to publish all news, and they are especially "loyal" to State College.

The whole affair shows the judgment and capability of those that were successful in securing the caps and making this intelligent arrest. I am not taking the bootlegger's side, but if our wise officials of Raleigh wish to disguise themselves in catching the "liquor salesmen," and wish to pull a detective trick, why not dress in civilian clothes, as they should, and keep the name of State College free from any such underhanded tricks.

There is evidence that points to a person connected with the college who made the purchase of the caps. Perhaps the caps did not come through this source, but whoever helped the officials get these caps are very unloyal to the college, and use very poor judgment. There should be some statement to the students as to the authority of using the caps for this purpose, when the student body adopted the cap to eliminate hazing and to this use only.

Of course, the party should be lauded very highly for assisting in the heroic capture of the law-breakers. Such minds as these should go in the detective business in some larger city. Raleigh is too small for such wise and capable men.

Let us hope that these men who framed such effective plans will rid Raleigh and the vicinity of the liquor by their shrewd means, and then there will be one community in this country that can say that prohibition is a total success. It will all go down in history as being an outstanding feature in North Carolina.

ed very highly for assisting in the heroic capture of the law-breakers. Such minds as these should go in the detective business in some larger city.

JOINT STOCK LETTER FOR SAVING TIME

Saturday Morning.
Dear Mary:—Yes, I wish you could have seen our Terrors in action too, for more than one reason.
Since I wrote you last we have had some mighty bad luck and some mighty good luck.
To begin with, our Terrors didn't bring us the championship, as we hoped, although they did do mighty well.
The first of this week it turned cold and snowed. All of Raleigh was blocked up, and lots of the fellows couldn't keep their dates about town. I could not have seen you anyway, so I didn't mind that so much.
You should have seen the way the upper-classmen snowed the poor freshmen coming from dinner.
On the whole, however, the snow was good luck, 'cause lots of professors couldn't get to their classes and we had lots of fun running around in the snow; laughing when other people fell down and cussin' when we fell.

Maybe you have learned the worst; but if you are right you only know half of it, for I know someone who will be heart-broken if you are a "spinster," and his name isn't Dick or Harry.
Glad you had a good time at the party, and thanks for those thoughts and luck during "daminations."
Yours always,
TOM.

Mary's Answer to Tom

Dear Tom:—I sure was glad to learn that the Terrors came out on top again. I wish I might have seen them in action.
Well, Tom, I've learned the worst. I slept on a piece of wedding cake for three nights and nary a man entered my dreams. The truth of the matter is I didn't even dream. But now that I know Fate has consigned me to a life of single-blessedness I have enrolled in "Olivia Kathies Training School for Spinsters," and am working hard at my profession.
We had quite the party here the other night—a co-ed dance. Every girl had a "man" and there were programs and punch and everything. Some of our girls made regular sheiks—the fact that they were only "she-men" didn't in the least detract from the hilarity of the party.
You know, Tommy lad, I'm thinking of you all through those exams, and wishing you the best of luck.
Always yours,
MARY.

"Don't Tell the Wife," which comes to the SUPERBA Theatre next Monday for a two-day run, is fantastic, its mazes filled with the unreality of dreams, yet so human and tender. It is laughable throughout and calls to mind many incidents that have happened to you.

As the star of "Let It Rain," showing at the SUPERBA Wednesday and Thursday, Douglas MacLean appears as the happy-go-lucky marine who ambles along till he meets the girl of his heart.

Ride 'em, Indians! To see one thousand Indians racing over Montana hills on fleet Indian ponies is a sight in itself worth seeing. There are a dozen such scenes in "The Devil Horse," which comes to the SUPERBA next Friday and Saturday.

"Nobody's Widow," which shows at the STATE next Monday and Tuesday, is an excellent stage entertainment. As a screen play its interest is vastly increased because of the ability of the star, Leatrice Joy. Charles Ray, Phyllis Haver, and David Butler are featured members of the notable cast.

"The Show," coming to the STATE Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, is the art of the theatre-maker's art.

With John Gilbert as a character out of the underworld and Renee Adoree as the girl who loves him and through her devotion brings down on his head the murderous jealousy of their world's most ferocious character, it bristles with romance and adventure that makes the audience tingle. The plot is laid in Vienna, against the background of a side-show.

Adolphe Menjou finds out in "Blonde or Brunette," coming to the STATE next Friday and Saturday, that anything that merely looks like gold costs money.

Mena tries a blonde marriage and doesn't like it so well. He then tries married life with a brunette, and—Ariette Marchal is the second lady; Greta Nissen the first.

Betty Caldwell, featured star of "Her Father Said No," which shows at the CAPITOL next Monday and Tuesday, claims that she has had an entirely different schooling for her movie career than most newcomers. Instead of starting as a bathing beauty, Betty began by way of serials.

"The Golden Cocoon" comes to the CAPITOL next Wednesday.

Helen Chadwick plays opposite Huntley Gordon in the leads. A notable cast carry their share of honors and add greatly to the entertainment which movie fans are able to enjoy.

It is the early bird that catches the worm, and an unlucky bird that fails to see Mary Pickford in "Sparrows," which shows only one day, Thursday, at the CAPITOL.

"And a hunger, not the belly kind, that's banished with bacon and beans, but the hunger of a lonely girl for a home and all that it means." Do you recognize the verse? Yes, that's it, and it expresses the thought the picture, "Cristiene of the Hungry Heart," which stars Florence Vidor, and comes to the CAPITOL next Friday.

Bob Custer comes to the CAPITOL next Saturday in "The Fighting Boob."

It is one of Bob's best, and in it he shows some rare Western riding.

"Bell's Hawaiians," entertaining on string instruments and playing varieties of Hawaiian music, are the added attraction at the CAPITOL on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

A forceful, entertaining comedy drama, "Fools of Fashion," comes to the PALACE next Monday and Tuesday. The story tells briefly of a young woman who hasn't the richest husband in the world, and is initiated into the art of wearing fine clothes by her husband's office friend.

Unlike that masterpiece of the screen, "What Price Glory," also a Fox production, "One Increasing Purpose," which starts at the PALACE next Wednesday, deals with the effect of the war on a group of characters after the signing of the peace treaty.

"Movies made me the wreck I am," says Ghost City.

Me
and the joy-friend...
Prince Albert

WHEN my father was in college, "Put that in your pipe and smoke it!" was considered snappy conversation. I'm ready to take this old line literally when the talk centers around Prince Albert. Because P. A. makes two of what I like in a pipe.

All wise-cracking aside, P. A. is the money when it comes to deep-down satisfaction in a smoke. It's got everything! Cool as the trail of the ice-man across the kitchen. Sweet as vacation. Fragrant as a pine forest.

Think up your own similes. You'll write them all in the column headed "Superlative Degree" when you learn the joys of a jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert. If you don't know this grand old smoke, come around to my room and I'll give you a load.

—no other tobacco is like it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and punch removed by the Prince Albert process.

MOST SNOW IN TWENTY YEARS HITS RALEIGH

Street Traffic All Stopped; Flappers' Charms Hidden in Big Rubber Boots

"The most snow that has fallen in one night in twenty years," many people say.

The whistles half-heartedly gurgled out the noon blast into the teeth of the bitter wind which was swirling the snow that was settling in a dense fog over the city.

Twelve o'clock; time for the roar of the motors and the din of the horns of the traffic bearing the throngs home to lunch; but no horns and no whir of motor was heard on Fayetteville street that day. The snow piled higher and higher, the only vehicle in sight was a nondescript old touring car, abandoned in the middle of the street; half of one of its fenders was gone and its ragged old top belled and flapped dismally in the gale, while the snow drifted higher and higher about it.

An ambulance came laboring down the street, plunging through the drift with its siren howling out a dreary monotone.

Twelve o'clock; at which time the Freshmen are wont to gather on Fayetteville street and admire the feminine grace of the throngs of pretty flappers on their way to lunch.

Twelve o'clock; and there was only one Freshman to be seen. His face registered deep disgust at the fact that there was only one gay sheka in sight; and much of her charm was hidden in a pair of rubber boots as she floundered through the drifts.

DE-MAGNETIZE WOMEN TO BE CIVIL ENGINEERS

The University of Texas reports that for the first time in twenty years a woman has been given permission to enroll in the civil engineering department. Two reasons for the scarcity of women in this department are the clothing worn by the women and the bashfulness of the instructors. As an explanation of this, the following story is told: In 1905, two girls were enrolled in the department. While on a surveying trip it was observed that instruments would not work correctly when girls were near them. The professor said that he had heard that girls had some magnetism about them, but surely not enough to affect the compass needle. Further investigation caused the instructor blushing to inform the girls that their corset stays were causing the trouble.

The girls in 1927 do not have any effect on the compass.—The Virginia Tech.

SPARROW VISITS BAPTIST CHURCH AT WAKE FOREST

Enters Window and Stays For Entire Service; Evidently Attracted by Music

There was quite an unusual visitor at the Wake Forest Baptist Church last Sunday.

An ordinary English sparrow flew through the window and perched on one of the large chandeliers near the pipe organ. He was evidently pleased with the music, and decided to remain for the entire service.

All during the organ prelude and the opening songs, the bird merely flitted to and fro across the pulpit.

As soon as the pastor of the church rose and announced his text, the sparrow immediately ceased his maneuvers and flew to the center of the church, perched on the inside rim of the dome, and calmly awaited the sermon.

Not once during the minister's address did the sparrow move from his perch. When the closing hymn was announced and the organ began, the bird flew back to the chandeliers above the pulpit and continued his flights to and fro. When the music ceased for the benediction, the sparrow paused for a moment on one of the chandeliers. After the congregation was dismissed, he calmly flew out through the window.

Resists Corrosion

THIS picture, taken in the salt marshes near Kearny, N. J., shows two lines of 30-inch Cast Iron Pipe replacing pipe made of other material. The alternate exposure to the action of salt water and air is a severe test.

While the pipe shown in the picture is subjected to unusual corrosive influences, all underground pipe must be able to withstand corrosion to a greater or less degree. Cast Iron Pipe has this quality. It does not depend on its coating to resist rust; the material itself is rust-resisting. The first Cast Iron Pipe ever laid is in service today at Versailles, France, after two hundred and sixty years' service.

CERAMICS SOCIETY HOLDS ITS REGULAR MEETING

The Ceramics Society held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, March 1, in the Ceramics Building. Final plans were made for Engineers' Day, and the members were assigned to various duties during the Fair.

"Mac" Greaves-Walker was the principal speaker of the evening, his subject being "The Magnesite Deposits of Northeastern Washington." Greaves-Walker, who spent a summer on the Pacific coast and in Alaska several years ago, gave a description of the country in which the magnesite occurs, and also described the mineral, plants, and the processes by which it is prepared for the industries. He illustrated his talk with the balopticon, some of the most interesting pictures being of a typical western mining camp.

The meeting was attended by practically the entire membership. At the next regular monthly meeting in April the society will elect and install officers for the coming year. The members for next year's Engineers' Council will also be elected at that time.

The Lamplighter

GOOD old Leerie, the lamplighter, worked cheerfully to make the streets bright. And the lamps sputtered a friendly glow into the darkness.

The citizens of the country have taken Leerie's job. They are the lamplighters of today, and they spend 3½ cents of each tax dollar that their streets may be bright.

Good street lighting means more flourishing business sections, safe traffic, convenience, and protection.

Leerie, the faithful, has gone—but streets still need lighting. And in whatever communities college men and women elect to live, they should take a lively interest in civic improvements—including street lighting.

G-E products help light the world, haul its people and goods, turn the wheels of industry, and lessen labor in the home. Whether on MAZDA lamps, or on large or tiny motors, or on the multitude of other means of electrical service, you will find the G-E monogram wherever you go.

"For we are very lucky, with a lamp before the door, And Leerie stops to light it as he lights so many more."
