

TRAMP-POET PAYS SHORT VISIT TO STATE COLLEGE

Riley Scott, En Route to Jacksonville, Fla., Stops Here For Night

Riley Scott, noted tramp-poet, paid State College a visit Saturday night. Traveling from Washington, D. C., he arrived here about three o'clock Saturday evening, and parked his car in front of South Dormitory. He remained until morning, when he then departed for Jacksonville, Florida, by way of Charleston, S. C.

Accompanying Scott was his faithful old bird dog and a tramp companion that he had picked up in Washington before beginning the trip. The trio were traveling in an old Ford housecar in which they ate and slept. Inside the car was one large cot for the men to sleep on, a small oil stove for cooking, and a shelf containing toilet articles. The floor was strewn with papers and magazines such as the "Mercury," a suitcase filled with poems and a supply of cooking utensils hung on the wall.

Riley Scott, as many will remember, remained on the campus for several days last spring selling the boys some interesting short, sentimental poems written by himself. This year he did not stay over to sell his poems, because, as he remarked, "I must be hitting it for the South, where it is warm."

Wilson Discusses Science-Religion in Lectures Here

man. All are affected by the universe; all have a sense of awareness. The important thing, according to the speaker, was the difference in the understanding between the animals of the universe. Man is a self-conscious being; he has a reckoning of time. Man's awareness of the universe is much more truthful, much more real.

Mr. Wilson defined science as knowledge. The degree to which man comprehended the things he saw, and the degree to which he wondered about the things he could not understand—such as his science. Science is a cumulative thing; it has grown since the dawn of man.

"The greatest learned men are those who perceive that which they do not understand. Religion is the totality of what we know and what we don't know," declared Mr. Wilson.

"This world of science has made possible a greater religion. Students have abandoned the sustenance of religion because they can no longer believe certain doctrines surrounding religion. A second-hand religion in the twentieth century won't do; you have got to have a religion of your own," said the speaker, in closing. The speaker was brought to State College under the auspices of the college Y. M. C. A. The State College Glee Club and the Shaw University Quartet supplied the added entertainment at the lectures. The lectures were well attended by townspeople as well as State College students.

Engineers Hold Celebration of St. Patrick's Day

members of the various departments in engineering. Closely following was the State College band and the students, who were bedecked in green symbolic of St. Patrick's Day.

G. P. Hall, of Elizabeth City and a senior in architectural engineering, was "St. Patrick" and was accompanied by his queen, Miss Lillian Hooper, also of Elizabeth City. St. Pat wore his high silk hat and an enormous green shamrock.

The float of the Mechanical Department was awarded the first prize as being the best of the six floats in the parade. The prize-winning float was made up of square and elliptical gears and also cams that traced the letters N. C. S.

The civil engineering float was awarded second place. It depicted the old and the modern methods of building highways.

The float of the Chemical Engineering Department was a display of the various chemical resources of the state, while the Ceramics Department's float exhibited old-fashioned brick making.

A model of the new liberal arts building, now under construction at the college, Peele Hall, was featured as the float of the Architectural Department; and a model of the Norwood hydro-electrical plant formed the Electrical Engineering Department's float.

Tau Beta Pi, the engineers' honor fraternity, featured in its float the badge of the fraternity.

P. E. Trevathan, a senior in ceramics, was in charge of the parade; A. M. Greaves-Walker, from the junior class, directed the fair, which began at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon; and Jeff Davis, a senior in electrical engineering, superintended the Grand Brawl, which concluded the annual celebration for the engineers.

Fair

At the entrance to the fair, Winston Hall, Tau Beta Pi, the engineers' honorary fraternity, was in charge of an information bureau. The first exhibit was that of the Civil Engineering Department, which is headed by Professor Carroll Mann. Displays of students' drawing and draftings and calculations held the attention, and in the highway laboratory the valuable equipment was to be seen.

Chemical

In Winston Hall, also, was the exhibit of the Chemical Engineering Department, headed by Dr. E. E. Randolph. Here students demonstrated various "stunts," including the making of liquid air and nitric acid from air, the "singing flame," etc. Among the interesting displays were the precision and control instruments in chemical industries and the complete outfit for water purification. There was also exhibited the complete industrial analyses of the principal surface waters of North Carolina. Labeled "Auld Lang Syne" was a complete still. All the desks in the Chemical Engineering Department are equipped with water, steam, gas, compressed air, vacuum, and high and low voltage direct and alternating currents.

Ceramics

The ceramics exhibit was held in Ceramics Building, Professor A. McK. Greaves-Walker is the head of this department. On display here were pressed and cast art ware made from North Carolina materials, all the work of students. Beautiful pitchers, vases, book-ends, paper weights, and the like formed the display. Also, there were lovely plaques, porcelain, enamel work, and glassware to be seen. In the ceramics laboratory the dry pressed products and enamel-ware formed the chief exhibits.

Electrical

An elaborate exhibit was featured by the School of Electrical Engineering. Professor W. H. Brown, Jr., heads this department. J. H. McCain of Asheboro was in charge of the electrical exhibits, all of which were illustrative of the machines and devices which the students in electrical engineering study and test. Most of the displays demonstrated regular laboratory exercises and were arranged to bring out some special feature of operation. All of the demonstrations, as in the other departments, were arranged by the students. Quite a number of amusing stunts were put on by the boys in charge, showing the wonders of electricity. Such things as frying eggs on ice, the making of fire-ware, generating electricity by kissing featured. Thirty-eight separate exhibits were featured in all.

Mechanical

In Page Hall was exhibited the work of the Mechanical Engineering Department. Professor L. L. Vaughan is head of the department. A large room devoted its walls to the display of mechanical drawings and machine design. In the Shops Building all kinds of furniture made by the students was shown, including tables, cabinets, radios, lamps, and various types of shop work. The foundry, forge shop, and machine shops were also open for inspection.

Architectural

The architectural exhibit lined the walls of a room in Page Hall. Ross Shumaker is head of the architectural school. Effectively displayed under shaded lights were rendered designs, including pen and ink, water-colors, oils, and Chinese ink. C. Z. Bailey of Elizabeth City was in charge of this exhibit. On display, too, was the prize-winning model of the State Capitol building and the silver trophy cup it won in the parade of departmental floats of the engineering school last year. In another room were charcoal drawings and freehand ornaments. Of great interest was the blue-print room, operated under the joint supervision of the Schools of Architecture and Mechanical Engineering.

Souvenirs appropriate for each department were given the visitors as they looked over each exhibit.

Twelve freshmen from the engineering school were initiated into the Order of St. Patrick, as companions, preceding the dubbing of seniors and faculty members as knights. The freshmen are: Architectural—J. G. Ashe, Jr., and W. R. Dixon; Electrical—L. C. Vipond and T. H. Ward; Chemical—C. C. Holloman and L. R.

Mercer; Civil—R. W. Leonard and W. H. Johnson; Ceramics—E. G. Crouch and J. E. Rankin.

Faculty members who were taken into the order are L. E. Wooten, F. B. Wheeler, J. D. Paulson, J. M. Foster, and R. R. Brown.

The students who were dubbed knights of the Order of St. Patrick are: Architectural—C. Z. Bailey, W. A. Cox, Jr., G. P. Hall, H. L. Sullivan, E. W. Kearney, and S. V. King; Ceramic—J. E. Body, F. S. Hardee, W. L. Stafford, D. L. Stuckey, and P. E. Trevathan; Chemical—R. W. Haywood, Jr., and J. R. Sechrest;

Civil—W. A. Blanchard, W. L. Daugherty, Jr., and J. E. Moose; Highway—J. G. Hart, J. S. Morris, T. N. Inghram, J. E. Powers, and G. S. Rowe; Electrical—J. B. Barnes, D. B. Branch, W. H. Brown, T. E. Brown, Jr., L. G. Carson, J. C. Davis, T. C. Farmer, H. T. Ghesling, J. M. Klugore, Jr., J. H. McCain, P. D. Thomas, and W. C. Leary; Mechanical—F. C. Davis, R. M. Person, B. A. Turner.

Fate of Season Depends on Showing of the Pitchers

EXPECT TEAM WILL BE BEST HERE IN YEARS

New Infield Shows Hitting and Fielding Strength—First Game Here With Lenoir-Rhyne March 31.

(By E. H. Roberts)
As go State's pitchers so goes State's team. At least this seems to apply to Chick Doak's baseball team now training on Riddick field.

Mr. Charlie has watched anxiously the warming sun and its effect upon the arms of his pitchers. He has lots of material. But just what this material will prove to be three weeks hence is what is worrying the coach. John Kidd has been called in from the outfield to see mound duty. Kidd is right-handed, has a good arm, and should be of great service to the corps of hurlers.

Allgood is a pitcher from last year. In training his slow ball does not seem to have lost its cunning. His curves break wide and the ball is a year getting to the plate. Hunsucker, absent from last year's staff the greater part of the season on account of injuries, is taking his turn on the mound during practice. If George can find his control he should be able to cause somebody trouble. Other pitchers who are making the scramble for mound duty are Shore, Harris, Mast, Rowe, Williamson, Adams, Linville, and Freeman.

The infield is 100 per cent new, but despite this fact Chick has the utmost confidence in it. In fact, the infield is expected to do the long-distance hitting in the spring race. Catching is well fortified. Eatmon is the kind of catcher Mr. Doak has been looking for. Other catchers are Plonk, Adams, Cooper, and Silver. Speak of catching and Mr. Charlie smiles.

First base will be a battle between McDowell and Matthews. McDowell demonstrated last year that he was capable of holding down the first installment. Broadwell is showing up well on second. Short is a merry scamp between Woodworth and Spring and no tennis courts. Twelve plots of ground laid off in three levels is the nearest semblance of a tennis court we have. Graduate Manager Tal H. Stafford and Mr. Allen, the college landscape man, have conspired to have the courts fixed, but to date there has been no improvement. When we ask you, will the courts be fixed? The students are raising all kinds of sand about the matter. If there is no money for the building of courts why not say so, and let some of the students go out and work a bit on the courts, that they might have some place to play?

Spring is here and we have with us track and baseball. Johnny Miller is even promising some inter-company swimming.

Coach Doak is working daily to better the 1928 Tech nine. Coach Tebell had 87 men out for his baseball team for yearlings. "Doc" Sermon reports nearly a half-hundred men out for his track team. We could not reach Coach Brennan, the freshman track coach, to find out how many men had reported for his yearling track team.

The April Fool issue of THE TECHNICIAN and the first baseball game of the year make their appearance on the same day. Neither comes on the first day of the month, at which time they would be appropriate. These "first game" affairs are always foolish.

Notice the name of the writer of the feature story on baseball. This young man is telling you just what kind of baseball team we are going to have this year—barring accidents.

Five paragraphs and still no tennis courts. What about it? It is getting to be critical when a college the size of the far-famed North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering cannot have a decent tennis court. Will Rogers would call such slowness "Senatory."

Track candidates are doing their stuff now that it is warm. Doc Sermon predicts a good season this year with eight meets on the schedule. Watch the high jumpers do their stuff. Watch the distance men, but don't criticize the sprinters the first time they make a mistake. They are all new men at this varsity track proposition.

Gus actually had so many men out for his freshman team that he could not even give them three strikes each at the bat, which constitutes a legal try. However, it was not so bad Thursday afternoon. The number had reduced to about eighty-six (eighty-seven started). This optimistic coach predicts a good season, also, or rather says he has some good material.

FIFTY CANDIDATES IN TRAINING FOR STATE TRACK TEAM

Fifty men out and the practice going forward in fine shape is the condition of the budding track team at present. Practices have been in progress for the past week or two, but the cold weather has hindered the men in their workouts.

This year the track men have eight meets before them. The state meet at Greensboro is not included among the eight. The Southern Conference meet will be held at Birmingham this year.

"We will have a fairly good team this year, I think," was the statement made by Dr. Sermon, the track coach. "There are several weak spots that will have to be strengthened, but in the end it will be a fairly good team."

The high jump will probably be the strongest single event. The broad jump will be good also. Jack McDowell will be back with all his cunning, and then there is Vinson, Young, and Woodside to furnish the second, third, and fourth places. McDowell and Young are both good broad jumpers.

The weak spot on the team will be the dashes. There is only one man from last year varsity who is back for the dashes and that is Fred Crum. Jordan, Koons, Morean, and Silver will assist Crum with the 100 and the 200.

For the 440-yard dash there is Hoyle, Crum, Jordan, Silver, and Mulaney. Baker and Ottinger are showing good form on the half-mile. For the mile and the two-mile there is some promising material. Ralph Brimley, captain of the cross-country team last fall, and Redfern, Ford, Smith, Truesdale, Alexander, and Stovall are doing the distance in fairly good time.

For the pole vault Johnson and Gaston are doing the high turn each day. Patterson, Vaughn, and Rush are handling the shot-put in creditable manner. Patterson and King are the leading candidates for discus. Young and Kilgore are throwing the javelin. At the hurdles Coach Sermon has

LARGE NUMBER ANSWER CALL FOR FROSH NINE

Tebell Optimistic Over Prospects as Eighty-Seven Report For Practice

Eighty-seven freshmen was what Coach Tebell had to contend with when he started the first practice for the 1928 edition of the State College freshman nine. This number has been considerably reduced since the first day of practice. Coach Gus put the pruning axe to work, and now there are about fifty out. By the first of the week there will be about thirty-five.

Coach Tebell is optimistic over the outcome of the season. He has found several men who, from a first glance, have the makings of ball players. He has singled out the first stringers from the second stringers and is giving all of them the same careful consideration that none might be overlooked.

The leading candidates for the outfield are: Atkinson, McQueen, Biggestaff, Herring, Thompson, and Hargrave. The leading first basemen are: Clark, Mast, and Tadlock. At second there is Kerr, Wilson, and Smith. Mead, Furtado, Edgondson, and Mitchell are doing duty at the hot corner. Gatlin, Page, and Rudsell are trying out for the short place. The five leading backstop candidates are: Haynes, DiMeo, Bethea, Turner, and Richmond. The pitchers are Averette, McLawhorne, Hampton, Booker, Smith, Turner, O'Berry, Seasons, and Caravan.

Captain Gorham, Weltmer, Swain, and Griffin.

With such a promising array of material that is already experienced there should be no doubt in the minds of State College students as to the outcome of the team this year.

The schedule is as follows:
March 31—Davidson at Davidson.
April 3—Carolina at Chapel Hill.
April 7—V. P. I. at Raleigh.
April 14—V. M. I. at Lexington, Va.
April 16—Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va.
April 21—Clemson at Raleigh.
April 25—Duke University at Durham.
April 30—University of South Carolina at Raleigh.

Paragraphics

After the storm, a lull; and so it is here.

The Engineers' Fair was up to the standard set last year; the parade was not quite so good, but the "Grand Brawl" was far superior to last year's.

The freshman cap problem is a burning question, and we mean that literally. It is believed that under the present conditions the caps should be abolished.

No cigars have been distributed as yet for the purpose of campaigning, but according to reports frame-ups are in the making for the coming student body elections.

A much-needed improvement is being made on the driveway in front of Pullen Hall. The street is being widened about ten feet, all the way to Watauga Dormitory. More signs of progress.

Much interest is being shown in the "Best Dressed Man Contest," which is being conducted by Huneycutt's London Shop. Every student should cast a vote for the man he thinks deserves this distinction.

Since it has become a practice nowadays for some persons to sell college diplomas, we wonder if the time will ever come when State College students will be able to buy and sell points which will go toward graduation.

It is hoped those who happen to get a write-up in the All Fools' issue next week will not take it seriously. However, the staff will take no chances and is making preparations to have a bodyguard after this edition is released.

The School of Science and Business should give a high grade for the efficient manner in which registration was conducted this term. If the other schools will follow a similar plan registration will be much easier and faster.

We notice some very peculiar things going on around the college. An example of this was demonstrated when the trees and vines around Holladay Hall were sprayed recently to insure them against any disease or insects, and in less than a week they were all cut down.

We heard the latest one on Will Rogers this week. Some lady, while traveling on a bus, made the remark that she was unable to appreciate the high-class singing of the noted humorist. More proof that women believe all celebrities are singers.

A senior remarked the other day at class meeting that everything here had been moved except the Y.M.C.A., and that had been remodeled during his four years of college life. Progress has helped to kill the idea that a tombstone or monument should be erected in honor of every graduating class.

APPROACHING ELECTIONS

Now that spring is here and the "big guns" in national politics have been barking for some time in preparation for the quadrennial event, it is time for college office-seekers to be made public and demonstrate their qualifications for an office. Students who elect men for their representatives in government and various other activities should know the candidates intimately and pass judgment upon their qualifications (as compared to opponents) before the day of election. It is for the best interests of the college, as well as their own, that this be done.

Next week the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes will elect men to represent them in student government next year. These offices are important, but to make the statement that the goodness of our student government rests upon these men who are to be elected is too broad in its scope. However, with active members and cooperative student body, government here is unquestionably sure to become better. These two factors work in conjunction toward making better government on the campus of State College, but one without the other may be compared to a building that has suddenly had its foundation withdrawn.

With the view that our student government and activities should be raised to a higher level from year to year, the members of the student body should seek to put into effect not merely the most popular men, but conscientious and qualified workers—men who will make an effort to better State College in every conceivable way; students who will support the good of student government to the last inch. Until such is the case no improvement can be expected. In making this statement we do not wish to infer that any of the present members do not measure up to the qualifications that such a position calls for, but to impress upon the members of the student body the importance of selecting good leaders.

In past elections held here students rarely ever investigated the qualifications of candidates for student positions until the day of election, and as a result the opinion of a politician was taken by many voters who acted without any serious deliberation toward bettering the college. This gives the politician an excellent opportunity to collect a large vote.

It is not our policy to condemn the politician, since good service may be rendered if energies are directed into the right channels. When qualifications are disregarded and considerations of friendship enter into the political frame-up, much harm may result through the election of an incompetent office-holder. However, if politicians will back men who are the most influential and are really competent for the position, they may render a valuable service to the college.

Upperclassmen will remember the steam roller methods that were tried last year, and how utterly they failed. It is hoped such will not be the case this year. All schools should pull together in an effort to put into office men who have demonstrated by their work that dependence may be placed in them with the satisfied feeling to all that the best man has been selected for the office.

Pangborn, Ward Crane, and Senna Owen in the principal supporting rôles.

Clara Bow is a manicurist in her latest picture, "Red Hair," which comes to the State Theatre next Wednesday for a three days' run, and she manages to carry on three flirtations simultaneously. Here she depicts the latest methods of "gold-diggers" with all the charm and personality possible. The happy ending proves the "digging" process needn't hamper an artist when she meets something worth while.

In the supporting cast are William Austin, Jacquelin Gadsen, Lawrence Grant, and Claude King, and Lane Chandler plays opposite Miss Bow.

Several technicolor sequences are used to prove that Miss Bow's flaming red hair can really captivate.

"Twenty Years Behind the Footlights" might be the title of a diary written by Hayden Stevenson, for he has spent that length of time with the spoken drama. Stevenson, who is now appearing in "On Your Toes," the new Reginald Denny picture opening at the State Theatre Saturday, says that this experience has only confirmed him into loving the screen, where an actor can be unlimited in the originality of his character creations. Barbara Worth enacts the leading lady in the Universal picture. Others in the supporting cast are Frank Hagney, Mary Carr, Gertrude Howard, and George West. Fred Newmeyer directed from the story by Earle Snell.

The world's premier showing of Harold Lloyd in "Speedy," at the Palace all week.

Harry Langdon in himself is funny enough; Harry Langdon in a whizzing comedy that fairly broad-jumps from laugh to laugh without in any way losing the thread of an intrinsically amusing story—that is the equivalent of a sure stitch-in-the-side.

That's Langdon's latest laugh epic, which comes to the Superba Monday and Tuesday. Wherever it has been shown this newest Langdon opus has proved one of the comedy sensations of the year, and its initial exhibition here will be an event.

When two confidence workers attempt to fleece a big wealthy man from the West and are out-smarted by a modern young miss, strange consequences often result.

That's what happens in "The Rush Hour" when Marie Prevost and Senna Owen clash in a Parisian cafe and are urged by a crowd of students to fight a duel on the field of honor. This is one of many humorous incidents in this production, Marie Prevost's latest starring vehicle, which comes to the State Theatre Monday and Tuesday next. the perfect Langdon vehicle is the opinion of all the critics.

"The Prince of Headwaiters," a powerful comedy-drama of father-love and made by the director of "Flaming Youth," which starred Colleen Moore, is the feature photoplay at the Superba Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

The story involves the love of a father for his son, the love of a stern father for his daughter, and finally the unselfish love of a childhood sweetheart for the youth.

Lilyan Tashman has an outstanding part as the adventuress and gold-digger, and Ann Rork, remembered for her picture debut in "The Blonde Salm" and "The Notorious Lady," has a big part as Beth, the childhood sweetheart.

While no attempt has been made to have the usual fashion show, there are two sequences in "The Prince of Headwaiters," in which fashions of the day in milady's fineries are emphasized.

"The Wagon Show," a western picture with a circus background, a story combining the thrills, romance, daring stunts and trick riding of the two, is Ken Maynard's latest feature, which comes to the Superba Theatre Friday and Saturday.

This unusual departure from the regular western picture fulfills a long standing ambition of Maynard, for he spent many years as premier stunt rider with Barnum and Bailey, Ringling Brothers' circuses, and ever since he made his entry into pictures he has wanted to make one dealing with the circus and his people. "The Wagon Show" is the result, and so far has it surpassed even Charles R. Rogers, the producer and First National expectations that it has been released as a Ken Maynard Special.

Prof. R. J. Saville Makes Tax Survey Among N.C. Farmers

Professor R. J. Saville, agricultural instructor, has recently returned to college, after making a tax-survey among the farmers in the counties of this state.

Other graduates and former students of this school who are engaged in this work are W. E. Carpenter, Bill Spain, F. D. May, G. E. Jones, H. L. Shelton, George Crist, and George Deadmon.

Professor Saville reports that these men are doing some very valuable work for the state. This is, however, a new survey of North Carolina and it is expected that the survey will give some very valuable information as to the tax conditions in rural districts. The work is supervised by Dr. G. W. Foster, head of the department of agricultural economics here at State College.

Shuford Says That School of Education Best at N. C. State

"The School of Education is the best school at State College," says C. F. Shuford, former student of Northwestern University, in a statement made to Stuart Robertson, the head of the department of journalism in State College, last Friday. Mr. Shuford speaks from experience, as he has been a member of the Engineering School here and of the School of Business Administration both here and at Northwestern University.

Two years ago Mr. Shuford registered at State College in the School of Engineering. For some reason this school did not come up to his expectations, and in the fall of 1926 he registered in the School of Science and Business. At the beginning of this school year, seeking a bigger and better college, Mr. Shuford became a member of the student body of Northwestern University, registered in the School of Journalism.

After this broad experience he has returned to State College and has become a student in the School of Education, with the belief that it is the best to be had.

What Shakespeare says about Coca-Cola

"Halloo your name to the reverberate hills, and make the babbling gossip of the air cry out!"

The Bard of Avon gave much good advice. And this piece certainly has been followed by Coca-Cola:

Dr. Dennis was brought here for the State Teachers' Convention by Professor T. E. Browne. He is one of the speakers on their program in Raleigh this week.

German Club Dances
Final arrangements have been made for the annual German Club Easter dances, which will be given in the Frank Thompson gymnasium, according to the schedule. ### SIX STATE MEN ATTEND PHI PSI CONVENTION

Textile Fraternity Will Meet
Next in South, Probably Charlotte

State College was well represented at the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Phi Psi textile fraternity, held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia, March 16, 17, and 18. J. C. Cobb, J. M. Dunn, Z. B. Mangum, R. A. Fields, and A. T. Spurlock, members of the local chapter, and H. J. Watson, a special student in textiles, made the trip.

The trip was made by motor, and the party arrived in Philadelphia Thursday evening, March 15, after crossing the states of Virginia, District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware, and a portion of Pennsylvania.

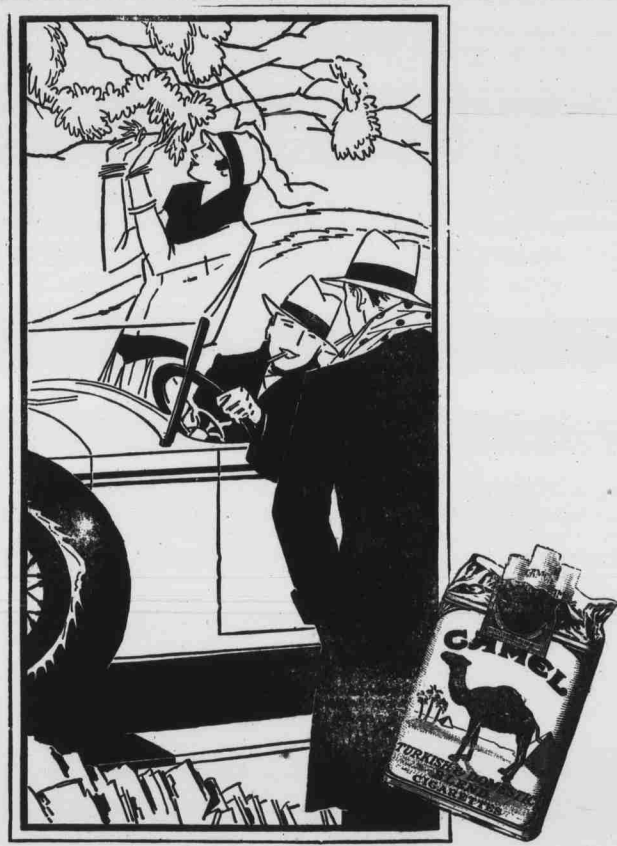

Friday morning the party went through the Philadelphia Textile School, which is the oldest textile school in the country. Only practical textile work is taught at the school, and most of the students there have completed at least one or two years of college work before entering. The large variety of machinery and equipment was of much interest to members of the party.

The business meetings of the convention occurred Saturday, at which time A. R. Thompson, of Charlotte, was elected the new president of the Grand Council of the fraternity. A banquet was given Saturday evening.

Through the efforts of the local chapter, which is the oldest chapter of the fraternity in the south, the national convention has been secured for the south next year. It will likely be held in Charlotte, under the auspices of the local chapter.

Lambda Chi Dance
The members and pledges of Lambda Chi Alpha, fraternity will entertain at a house dance this evening from 9 till 12 at their home at 2706 Vanderbilt Avenue.

Orders are now being taken at the Student Supply Store for 1929 rings. Orders placed now will be ready for delivery during registration next fall. All Juniors should place their orders now in order that rings may be here at the opening of school. Don't wait.
1929 RING COMMITTEE.

Here's some "inside stuff" on smoking

SOMEWHERE in the neighborhood of your center of gravity there's a spot devoted to smoke appreciation. We could describe it more fully, but this is no organ recital. The point is: Light a Camel, pull in a fragrant cloud of cool joy—and listen to your smoke-spot sing out—"Haleeloooya!" As the noble redskin puts it—we have said!
