This year's Commencement ought to be quite colorful with all the brilliant colors on the graduating caps.

Have you thought over the idea of having candidates for office next year make stump speeches before spring elections?

We don't like the idea of continually printing only four-page papers; but please remember the size of the paper is controlled by both the news and the advertising, with the latter by far the more important.

Do your best to help fit the band out in a nice-looking uniform next year, boys. Sign the papers that are being carried around. Next September is a long way off and by then, you know, you will want to see everything in tip-top shape.

EXPENSIVE ECONOMY

Coolidge-Republican economy has taken hold of the budget commission of North Carolina since this State went in the Hoover column last November. The policy of Tar Heel budgeteers this year has been to slash off here and there various sums considered necessary by heads of state institutions and departments. Running the state without an extra assistant attorney-general may slide us through all right; if, in the opinion of the General Assembly, the office were unnecessary, then they were right in doing away with it. The taxpayers of the commonwealth will always give the glad hand to any administration that reduces their payments.

On the other hand, we wish to see the General Assembly if it could get along with its business, do its job as it should, if, at all, were clerical help of both houses to be taken away and the printed bills before each member had to be copied from one read by the speaker or the president?

Such a procedure, in fact, has been taken against North Carolina State College and the University of North Carolina by action of the budget commission lopping off the library appropriations for the two state institutions.

How can teaching be carried on without sufficient equipment? Is not such economy about the most expensive course that could be taken? Forty thousand dollars were spent recently in publication of a picture book of the state in an attempt to excite in nonresidents a desire to live in North Carolina. Is it economy to go to such extremes as these two incidents show? The libraries of educational institutions are the most vital parts, because in them is stored the knowledge of past years.

BOOTLEG

The council has backed up the suspension of a student sent home last year for dealing with whiskey. Thus the purveyor of the liquid refreshment is again attacked. With this action we heartily agree—State College cannot afford to graduate bootleggers from its halls.

Yet is there not another phase of the affair? We think there is also something to the attitude taken in some circles toward the national prohibition law, to the effect that not only the seller, but also the buyer of illicit liquor should be prosecuted.

If there is to be 100 per cent enforcement of the Volstead Act, then both parties to the transaction should be made equally liable in the eyes of the law. In no other way can the dignity of the Eighteenth Amendment be maintained.

Why should this attitude not be adopted in collegiate circles? The college communities have themselves defined their own code of morals by which members are to be judged. If such indulgence is against the morals of the group as a whole, then why not take steps to enforce the rulings made to protect the morals? If it is not the attitude of the group, then there should be a change in the regulations.

If State College is to be entirely "dry," the only enforcement method we see possible—and the same would apply to the whole United States—is that of making the buyer and the seller of liquor equally liable for the results of their acts.

Public opinion will act to change the morals and standards set up by the group. What is the group going to do about it?

OUR RIGHTS

It has been said the essence of love is quietness; that two lovers, by the lovers' code, can converse. How divine such a thing must be!

It has also been said silence is golden. To me it is equally true that boisterousness, coarseness, rudeness, and vulgarity are brassiness. Brass is something that shames, if you please. Bass horns and many other nerve-shattering things that blare are usually made of brass. Incidentally I have heard that cuspidors are made of brass also.

I have often wondered if more significance should not be put upon the word "courteous" when one speaks of a man as: "That man is a gentleman. He is courteous." To me courtesy is the greater of those genuine qualities that go to make the gentleman.

Courtesy is politeness, civility, and complaisance. This is contrary to the belief of the egotistic intelligentsia of this campus, who think that rudeness, boisterousness, vileness, and viciousness are the virtues of a gentleman. Which brings me to my point.

Although it may excite much mirth to relate the fact, I want to say that I study occasionally. I have yet to sit down to study that some unhitched being did not disturb me. Now, although they are near that point at this writing, my nerves heretofore were not shattered. Therefore my complaint is not on that basis, so I write freely. There is no more order and quietness kept in the dormitories at night, or at any other time, than there is in an ammunition plant when someone yells, "Fire!" To recite here all that is done in the dormitories to make noises would consume the space of all THE TECHNICIAN for months to come.

I have recently used up all my "pleases" in the endeavor to stop some of these ungentlemanlike practices, but all in vain. Gentlemen don't carry on in such ways.

Now, after all, I came to college to study—as strange as it may sound. I am paying to come here to school and I am paying for the room I occupy. A few rights are mine. There is no very obvious reason why I should have to move off the campus in order to study without annoyance. Whether it is the college authorities or the student leaders, I appeal to you to govern this situation. I am looking to you for its correction, and I do hope I may, in a short time, see your good results.

Shall it be a yell-stomp-beat-brassy hell, as it is now, or shall it be a place where only gentlemen abide? A place of LOVE for fellow man. A GOLDEN place. TOM S. STUART.

dressed band in the south, Elam explained.

"This band has shown us on and off the football field that it is one that deserves all the honors that can be bestowed upon it. The men in the band have bought their uniforms with their own money, and it seems that the school should be willing to give fifteen hundred dollars to equip them in grand style," declared Holden. "We have no doubt the best bandmaster in the south in Diddy Ray. The uniform he wears was given him by the Northwestern University, where he was bandmaster a few years ago, and now we ought to equip our band the same way," he further stated.

John Lepo, captain of 1929 football eleven, also said a few words, expressing his desire to see it go into effect.

This movement is being backed by Blue Key on the campus, and it was decided at the meeting to pass sheets around, getting all men in favor of it to sign their names.

And when the collegian came to the railroad crossing and saw the sign, "N. C. LAW, STOP," he immediately removed his arm from around the girl's neck.

"T is an ill wind—that attracts no attention on Meredith campus.

"It's a matter of Life and Death," said the Insurance agent. "Well, Honesty is the best POLICY—come on in," the victim replied.

"All that glitters is not gold," said the collegian as he viewed the head of "Doctor Charlie."

"Where can you buy 'Poetic License'?" asked the Freshman.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your circular letter of June 29, be informed that your sample packages were received. With them I received the pamphlet describing your product, which I was able to enjoy reading because there was not in the circular matter the usual distasteful sales talk which makes the recipient of a sample package feel obligated or uncomfortable of giving you prospect a sample and then letting him make up his own mind will gain you many more customers than will the usual modern sales practice of pushing the product down the prospect's throat. As a matter of fact, since receiving your sample and your advertising matter I smoked up the sample package and have since purchased a number of cans from neighborhood dealers, all of whom carry this tobacco in a city of this size.

I have found Edgeworth to be a satisfactory blend at a very reasonable price, and although my past acquaintance is brief, I look forward to a long membership in the Edgeworth Club.

Great states from wheat seeds

IT was unprofitable wilderness, most men thought. But James J. Hill had faith that it could grow wheat and so he built his railroad. Settlers turned the waste-land into wheat-land, the wheat into wealth, the wealth into great western states. Faith in the economic future still points the way. Right now men in the Bell System are planting the seeds of vast possibilities for even better communication. Out of the belief that the public needs a broader use of the telephone is growing a constantly improved long distance telephone service. Like the railroads of an earlier day, this service is now tapping and helping to develop rich new territories of commerce.

FRESHMAN BASKET TOSSERS DEFEATED BY TAR BABIES

Woodard Stars for State in 27-20 Licking; First Defeat in College Competition

Carolina Freshmen Tar Babies gave Doc Sermon's Techlets a 27-20 licking over in the Tin Can Tuesday night. It was the first defeat the baby freshmen have met this season by a college quintet.

The State freshmen started off like they meant business and victory. Throughout the greater part of the first half they led the Carolina five, but towards the last of the first period Carolina forged to the front and remained that way, never to be headed by the visiting five again.

Two Carolina tossers, Green and Sachs, by name, were the high lights for their tossers. These two chaps collected nineteen of their team's 27 points, Sachs getting ten. Not only were these men good shots at the basket, but good in every other department of the game.

State found its star of the game in Woodard. Although tied by his teammate, Brown, for scoring honors at 7 all, Woodard's all-round playing was the best on the floor for State.

Marley Elected General Superintendent Annual Textile Show in April

A. R. Marley was elected general superintendent January 23 of the annual Textile Show, to be held in April, K. C. Loughlin being chosen as his assistant.

R. A. Fields was elected foreman of yarn manufacturing, with A. T. Quantz as his assistant. The foreman of the weaving and designing department for this year's show is to be Al Allwood, assisted by J. H. Weatherspoon. Geo. Howard was chosen foreman of the dyeing section, with Floyd Isom as his assistant.

Officers were selected for the Tompkins Textile Society at the same time. K. C. Loughlin was re-elected as president of the club, followed by the re-election of A. R. Marley as vice-president, Sam Quantz as secretary and treasurer, and Ed. Spier as reporter.

The educational and practical values of the Textile Show have attracted attention all over the State, and many mills sent representatives to the show last year. Many new ideas of great value are brought forward and shown by the Textile School each year at the show and have proved valuable to the many mills having representatives at the exhibit, both in and out of the State.

College R.O.T.C. Unit Praised by Col. Cox For Work In Parade

Albert L. Cox, commander of the American Legion in North Carolina, last week wrote Major C. C. Early, commander of the R.O.T.C. regiment at State College, in appreciation of the work done by the cadets in the inaugural parade of Governor O. Max Gardner. His letter follows:

Dear Major Early:

Permit me to express to you, and through you to the State College Regiment, my personal and official thanks for the participation of the Regiment in the inaugural ceremonies. I have seen few R.O.T.C. units that could compare in appearance and address with the showing made by the college outfit on Friday. I congratulate you and your associates on the results that have been accomplished.

With warm personal regards and with every good wish,

Very sincerely,

Chi Alpha Sigma and Sigma Psi Winners In Interfrat Basketball

Chi Alpha Sigma and Sigma Psi shared honors Monday night by winning the opening games of the Interfraternity Basketball League from Lambda Chi Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha by respective scores of 11-1 and 9-5.

The Interfraternity Basketball League is an annual affair and has proved to be the most successful of all intramural leagues attempted by the Department of Physical Education, and for this reason it has been supported to a considerable extent by the department.

A new dormitory league will be started next week and the students of the respective dormitories are asked by Instructor J. F. Miller to cooperate in putting this league across. So far only three dorms have registered up.

Due to the fact that the gymnasium is in use so much of the time by the varsity and freshmen basketball teams for practice, for physical education classes, and by the wrestling team, the department cannot find time to give to other intramural leagues.

A number of teams desired entrance this year, but because the schedule had already been completed they were unable to get in. All fraternities wishing to enter teams next year must enter them before the schedule of games is completed.

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK WILL BE HEARD SUNDAY AFTERNOON OVER RADIO
Harry Emerson Fosdick's sermon, broadcast from New York City, will be given to State College students Sunday afternoon at 5:15 through a radio placed in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Following on the idea that students on the campus need to be in touch with outstanding men, H. C. Green has suggested to the "Y" that a radio be used for such purposes whenever thought advisable. The result has been that one will be put on trial in the "Y" Sunday afternoon, and if it seems to make a hit will become a permanent fixture at the most popular gathering place of the students.

In addition to getting the speeches and sermons from different great men, throughout the week musical programs, games, etc., will be transmitted through the loud speaker placed in the "Y."

It will be placed in the hands of a competent man, so that care in handling it will be obtained, and the privilege of listening to programs will be extended to all interested.

Those who are interested in Harry Emerson Fosdick's sermons are requested to come to the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at 5:15 Sunday afternoon for the initial program.

NEW PLAN FOR STUDENTS GIVEN LITERARY SOCIETY BY THE FORENSIC COUNCIL
A new stimulus is to be given to the work of the two college literary societies, Leazar and Pullen, by a plan which has been worked out by the Forensic Council for the second and third terms.

The membership of each society has been divided into groups for the conduct of the weekly meetings—three groups in Leazar and four in Pullen. The member of each group who makes the most helpful contribution to the society during each term will be awarded a copy of a book containing a collection of excellent modern speeches. The award will be based on the following factors: First, excellence in a piece of work done on a regular weekly program; second, regular attendance at meetings of the society, and third, general interest and activity, including committee work, the encouragement of attendance at meetings, and solicitation of new members. The winner in each of the two societies will be determined by a committee composed of Professor Cunningham, chairman of the Forensic Council, the president, vice-president, secretary, and critic of each society, and the leaders of the groups.

The membership in each of the two societies during the first term was the largest in years, but there has been a decline in interest in the internal work of the societies. It is hoped this system of awards will improve the work of the literary societies in its most important phase—the regular weekly meetings.

These regular meetings occur on Friday night, at 6:30, in the literary society halls in the Y.M.C.A. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of all classes to participate in this activity, and, by joining a group in either society, become eligible for these prizes.

SIXTY-FIVE FRESHMEN ENROLL IN FRESHMAN FRIENDSHIP COUNCIL
Sixty-five freshmen were enrolled in the Freshman Friendship Council at the initial meeting Sunday afternoon at 1:30 in the College Y.M.C.A. auditorium.

This number exceeds any previous record and those who have it in charge are highly pleased with the success of the first meeting.

The first program was rendered by members of the "Y" cabinet on the subject, "Entrance Into the Christian Life," taken from the book to be studied this year, "Introducing Men to Christ," by Dr. W. D. Weatherford.

Next Sunday the program will be rendered by freshmen belonging to the council and all other freshmen who are interested in this work on the campus have been requested by the "Y" leaders to make one visit, even if you do not become a permanent member.

DEAN BROWN LECTURES ON KELLOGG PEACE TREATY

Weak and Strong Points of the Treaty Discussed; Next Meeting Wednesday

"The greatest weakness of the Kellogg peace treaty lies in the reservations that were made when the different nations signed it," declared Dean B. F. Brown Wednesday evening in the Y. M. C. A., at the first of the forum meetings for the discussion of world problems.

"Each nation has the right to decide whether or not it is fighting a war of self-defense. This always leaves a loophole through which a nation can make war legal," he stated in his discussion of its good and weak points.

Those who are promoting these discussion groups on important topics of the day, led by outstanding men of the campus and city, were very agreeably surprised to see the large number of men that came out to hear the first discussion.

Mr. Brown went into a short discussion of the factors that led up to the interest in some methods of world peace, pointing out the weaknesses and advantages of the League of Nations.

The great weakness of the League is that it leaves a loophole whereby a nation can declare war legally in case it is not voted against unanimously by members of the League Council. Thus, if a nation wished to declare war, by getting control of one vote, an easy matter, after three months from the time that the matter was brought before the League, it could carry on warfare legally and without interference from the League.

Following a relation of the background for the pact, he went into the discussion of its good and bad points.

The pact contains two provisions and is very simple, namely, that the nations agree to renounce war as a national policy for settling disputes, and that it is not legal under any circumstances, and, second, that they agree to resort to peaceful means in all settling of disputes regardless of what they may be.

"These two agreements are all well and good with the exception that each nation made some reservation in its signing the treaty. For instance, France wanted the right of self-defense; England wanted certain exceptions with regard to the sea; and the United States agreed to it all with the exception that it should not interfere with the Monroe Doctrine."

"No one knows just what these exceptions will amount to, but it may be that they will not cause any serious trouble."

Other weaknesses pointed out were that it does not provide for machinery of administration, and that each nation has the right to decide what a war of self-defense is.

Good points of the treaty demonstrated were that it puts the people in favor of war on the defensive and they have the burden of proof; and, secondly, that it brings out the point that public opinion desires a world of orderliness.

A second discussion meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at 6:30 on a further discussion of world peace, and it is hoped that Dean Brown can be secured again, since he had such an interested audience throughout the entire hour.

A Boston councilman is charged with soliciting a bribe for working in favor of Sunday baseball. His New England conscience wouldn't allow him to vote for such a wicked thing unless he was paid for it.

Federal Official Pays Visit Campus and Makes Talk To Chemical Engineering Men

Through the untiring efforts of members of the Chemical Engineering Society and Dr. E. E. Randolph, students of State College and residents of Raleigh were treated to an interesting illustrated lecture by W. D. Collins, national authority on "Water for Industrial Purposes." Last Tuesday night in the textile building.

Mr. Collins is chief of the Quality of Water Division of the United States Geological Survey, and during the past 25 years has had charge of all the investigations and researches on industrial waters.

His lecture was on the relation of water to industries, and was illustrated by pictures, statistical and graphical charts. He showed how the manufacturing centers are in the parts of the country where the water is generally suitable for the purposes of the particular industries. He showed how manufacturing has shifted to other sections of the country, where the water is unsuitable for use in manufacturing, and hence has to be treated by certain methods to obtain the desired suitability. The various methods of such treatment were fully discussed.

Mr. Collins' charts showed that manufacturing has spread from its
