The North Carolina State Peace Oratorical Contest, held at Guilford College on the night of Friday, April 19, had a rather unique outcome. It was won by a speaker who was not given first place by any one of the three judges. This result was made possible by the variation of opinion among the three judges as to which of the seven speakers should have been the winner.

H. L. Hester, a student in the law school of Duke University, was declared the winner, with two second and one third. Allan Frew of Davidson College, who won third place in the national contest on the constitution last year, was given second prize.

J. H. McKinnon of Red Springs, a senior in industrial management, represented State College and made an excellent showing. His oration advocated an international contest backed up by a strong international police force as a means to world peace, and struck a note utterly different from the idealistic and pacifistic expressions of the other speakers. He was awarded first place by one judge, but another placed him sixth and thus threw him out of the running.

The speakers in the contest, in order of appearance, were: Allan Frew, Davidson College; H. L. Hester, Duke University; R. H. Johnson, Elon College; Clare Trueblood, Guilford College; J. H. McKinnon, State College; Webster Pope, High Point College; and Russell Hoffman, Lenoir-Rhyne College.

The judges were Professor Kimmel, of the North Carolina College for Women, Attorney Hohgood of Greensboro, and Rev. H. S. Fesperman, pastor of the Reformed Church of Greensboro.

Prizes of $60 and $40 were provided for the winners of first and second places by the Misses Mary and Helen Seabury of Connecticut. It was voted to hold the 1930 Peace Contest at Duke University.

Bull Sessions An Answer To Desire, Says Harry Bone

several others were made only to the working force of the Y. M. C. A. In the first lecture Tuesday night on "Sex Life of Youth" he declared that sex in its true sense is the most beautiful thing in life and the most sacred, and the only reason why people look on the subject as they do is because it has been repressed. In addition, he stated that this is an age of inquiry, and our emotional attitudes must be changed. If a man would get the most pleasure from his sex-life he must live according to the principles laid down by Jesus Christ.

Following the lecture many of the students remained to ask questions, and the meeting was not closed until 10 o'clock.

Thursday night Mr. Bone accompanied the old and new Y. M. C. A. cabinet, with others specially interested in "Y" work, out to Powell's cabin, where supper was served in the form of hot-dogs, onions, potato salad, ice cream, and coffee. There, following the meal, problems for the coming year were discussed at length and plans worked out.

POPULAR NEW YORK ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY HERE

Hal Kemp's Orchestra Will Furnish Music For Finals

Hal Kemp and his orchestra will play for the State final dances on May 31, June 1 and 3, according to an announcement from the finals committee of the Pan-Hellenic Council.

State finals are acknowledged to be the best dances in the State, and should be above par this year.

This orchestra, which originated at the University of North Carolina, is one of the most popular in the South, and is well known here, having played a number of dances for the college.

For the past two years Kemp has been playing at the Manger Hotel in New York. He has also been broadcasting from WEAf and WJZ and has made a number of Brunswick Records. Since the orchestra enjoys an enviable reputation throughout the State, the committee feels that they could have made no better selection for music, since this is the first time that Kemp's Orchestra will have played outside the city of New York for two years.

The dances, which will be held on Friday, Saturday, and Monday, will be run the same as before—with a tea dance and a night dance each day. The hours for these will be announced at a later date.

The finals committee is composed of the following men: Henry Young, Sigma Nu, president; Dan Hutchinson, Sigma Phi Epsilon, vice-president; Jim Black, Kappa Sigma, secretary and treasurer; Doc Elam, Pi Kappa Alpha; Bill Fitzgerald, Lambda Chi Alpha; and Stokes White, Kappa Alpha.

North Carolina Pupils Write Six Best Essays In Chemistry Contest

The six highest awards in an essay contest recently held by the American Chemical Society were won by students in North Carolina high schools, announced Dr. L. F. Williams at a meeting of the faculty held today.

Dr. Williams served as state chairman of the contest, which was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Garvan in memory of their daughter, Patricia. The winners were: Leroy Lumpkin, who wrote "Chemistry in Industry," of 2109 Queen St., R. J. Reynolds High School, Winston-Salem; S. E. Gaither, "Chemistry in Agriculture," 1511 Ann St., New Hanover High School, Wilmington; Emily Micky, "Chemistry in Health and Disease," 104 Belevs St., R. J. Reynolds High School, Winston-Salem; Vera Falls, "Chemistry in the Nourishment of Life," Kings Mountain; Amazia Parker Smith, "Chemistry in National Defense," Chapel Hill; and Alene C. Crews, "Chemistry in the Home," Mary Potter School, Oxford.

Writers receiving honorable mention included: De Etta Almon, Asheville; Fred Michalove, Asheville; Worthly Perry, Durham; Eugene H. Williams, Durham; C. P. Gorman, Wilmington; and Edwin S. Hodge, Charlotte.

Twenty-four schools were represented, their students submitting 87 papers, said Dr. Williams. The most popular subject was "The Relation of Chemistry to Industry," closely followed by "Relation of Chemistry to Health and Disease." In 1928, "The Relation of Chemistry to National Defense" was widely used. The 1929 essays, said Dr. Williams, were better, as a whole, than those of 1928.

Awards Offered For Essays On Aviation By Aircraft Company

Sixty-two per cent of the applicants for the Eaglerock awards for 1929 have chosen the scholarship in a questionnaire recently sent out by the Alexander Aircraft Co., Colorado Springs, Col., donor of the awards. This company is offering a scholarship to entering commercial aviation. On the other hand, those indicating their choice of the Eaglerock airplane expect to use it as a nucleus of an operating company, or to earn sufficient money to continue their education. Alexander Klein of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics, New York University, is chairman of the scholarship awards committee. Another group will make the Eaglerock awards.

ALFRED E. SMITH TALKS WITH VOICE OF STUDENT

Fake Hook-up "Gladdens" Heart of Local Booster Democratic Candidate

"Since the last election I have been asked where I had the largest and most cordial reception, and I am very pleased to state that it was in Raleigh, North Carolina, and that the State College Democratic Club, of which Milton A. Abernethy is president, was responsible for the warm reception."

Apparently, with these words the Hon. Alfred E. Smith, ex-governor of New York and one-time candidate for President on the Democratic ticket, ended his speech at Quebec, Canada.

Abernethy was informed Wednesday afternoon that the ex-governor was to speak that night over the radio. So that evening he was among those present to hear the speech.

The speech went off fine, but it seemed that the announcer's voice and the ex-governor's were very similar. This can be explained by the fact that they were the same person. It is doubtful if Alfred E. Smith was in Quebec Wednesday evening, but Abernethy thought so. The speech had its birth in South Dormitory, and only one radio picked it up, because the speech was sent by a direct wire from room No. 10 to room No. 11. J. P. Rabb was the chief announcer and the honored speaker also. The reception came over the radio of Tom Stuart, and was so real that some of the listeners that were in on the hoax could hardly believe that it was not real. Paul Whitman and his orchestra furnished the music for the occasion by means of a victrola and one of his records.

After the speech Abernethy was in high spirits and he let the whole campus know of the fact, being quoted in his exuberance by a local daily.

were tendered a theatre party through the courtesy of the National Theatre. The first regular business meeting opened Friday morning in Odell Memorial Hall, with a welcome by Dr. Turrentine, president of G. C. The rest of the meeting was taken up with committee reports, appointment of committees, and a short talk by Dean Addison Hibbard of the University.

Through the courtesy of the Pilot Life Insurance Company, the delegates were given transportation in the company's busses to beautiful Sedgewick Inn, where a luncheon was given by N. C. C. W. The speakers were J. Maryon Saunders and J. A. Gawthrop.

At 3 o'clock the assembled delegates addressed by Nell Battle Lewis, of the Raleigh News and Observer. Miss Lewis spoke of the work of the columnist, declaring that it was the last refuge of the writer of personality and originality. She added that there were but three newspapers in the state containing the element of personal journalism, these being the News and Observer, the Chapel Hill Weekly, and the Elizabeth City Independent, edited by W. O. Saunders, North Carolina's H. L. Mencken. Later in the afternoon a tea was held at Odell Memorial, followed by a banquet at the King Cotton Hotel. Mayor Jeffress of Greensboro, the chief speaker, who is editor of the Greensboro News, spoke on the trials and tribulations of newspaper men. Following the banquet, the Carolina Theatre entertained with a theatre party.

Saturday morning was taken up with a general business meeting, discussion groups, election of officers, and an address by Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly. Mr. Graves gave some valuable advice to those of the delegates who were planning to enter the weekly newspaper field.

Following the awarding of prizes, the assembly moved to the Jefferson Standard club rooms, where they were entertained at a luncheon by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company. Julian Price, president of the company, was the chief speaker. The convention adjourned after the luncheon, members departing to their various institutions, while the majority of the State delegates stayed over to visit friends in the city.

It was decided to hold the next convention at Lenoir-Rhyne College, at Hickory, since this college was the only one that asked for the meeting.

The Chronicle, of Duke University, was awarded the prize for the best newspaper, through the courtesy of the Winston-Salem Journal. The Technician won second place, while

OUR AIMS

The question is naturally arising as to what will be the aims of THE TECHNICIAN for the next nine months. Let it be understood first that this is a student publication and the aims of THE TECHNICIAN will be the aims of the student body, as long as we feel that the student body is headed in the right direction.

We are going to try to give State College the best newspaper it has known for a long time, and advertisements that will prove worthy. All of the interests of State College will be considered, and its traditions kept. We will endeavor to prove the true worth of this publication by showing State College that she could not do without it.

The second aim of this paper is to become a semi-weekly, beginning next fall. We believe State College has become so large and so important to this State that the people of the State, as well as the students, should have news sooner concerning the college. When THE TECHNICIAN becomes a semi-weekly it will at the same time become the second largest college paper in the State, and will rank among the most important college publications in the South.

If we are to do this we must have the cooperation of the student body. This is no mere bunch of words. It is a fact that the student body of State College seems to forget at times. Two or three men cannot get this paper out. There has been a noticeable lack of interest as well as cooperation during the last few months. Will you come out and help put this across, or will you be satisfied to plod along in the same old humdrum way?

Next year's action as to the semi-weekly will be largely determined by the interest and cooperation the student body shows in the paper for the rest of the year.

Wake up and get busy, fellows!

CHANGE DEBATING RULES!

On its face, the 1929 debate season was a decided failure, if success is to be judged by the number of contests won. The State College speakers came out victorious in only three of their eleven contests.

The forensics council has no apology to make for this showing, for, as a matter of fact, the debaters worked harder than ever before, and in the quality of work surpassed that of other seasons.

The chief cause of the disastrous outcome was the fact that, for the first time, State College met the representatives of the best colleges and universities of the South. By joining the Dixie Debating League, contests were made possible with such institutions as Emory University, the outstanding forensics institution of this section, Birmingham-Southern College, and the state universities of Florida and Alabama.

Moreover, the rules of the league permitted the using of postgraduate students—men with many years of undergraduate experience in contests. One school sent against a "green" State College team a senior in law with five years of experience and a graduate student in theology. Another opponent was a paid instructor in public speaking, conducting business men's classes in one of the largest cities of the South. Another was a graduate student in history and political science, and several were graduate students in law and theology. In such company men majoring as bona fide undergraduates in business, science, vocational agriculture, engineering, and textiles were obviously outclassed.

It should be borne in mind also that in all except two contests the State College speakers, by the fortunes of war, were compelled to advocate the abolition of trial by jury—the side of the question which lost overwhelmingly in the nation-wide discussion of the subject. In fact, the two victories scored by our teams in nine debates in advocacy of trial before judges was a percentage much higher than prevailed generally in the South.

It would seem that intercollegiate debating should be made strictly an undergraduate activity if interest therein is to be fostered widely among college students. The forensics council of State College should advocate the adoption by the Dixie Debating League of rules of eligibility similar to those of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

FREE RIDES

Do you thumb rides? You may or you may not—nevertheless, it is being done every day by State boys. Whether it is wrong or o.k. is left entirely to the individual's own opinion. Some institutions deny the students this privilege. We are not deprived of this chance, therefore let us realize that when we "hop" a ride to town we are riding at the expense and responsibility of the driver.

When asking for a "lift," add the word "please." After your destination has been reached the words "Thank you" will fit in nicely. Be polite, be courteous, be friendly, be thankful. It won't hurt a bit and not a cent will be lost by it. If the driver does not see fit to pick you up, he knows his business, so let's eliminate the blankety-blank and try the next fellow.

There are approximately 1,711 regular students registered in our institution. Now, suppose that the average student takes a trip to town at least once a week by the means of catching rides. This means that this free transportation has saved the student body $256.65 per week (figuring that street car fare is 15 cents to and from town). Now, for instance, let's take the local boys. There are approximately 50 students living within the city who depend absolutely upon this so-called free transportation. This means that four rides a day are caught by each of the fifty students (not including rides to and from evening classes). So this privilege, which we do not seem to appreciate, is saving the fifty city resident students approximately $45.00 per week, or $1,720 per school year for transportation.

Now, fellows, let's bear in mind the favor that is being done us by the school, and by the passers-by, and if we do not want to help add to the capital of Mr. Carolina Power & Light, let's not forget our manners.

R. D. STALLINGS.

WAYS TO IMPROVE STATE COLLEGE

No institution, corporation, or firm is greater than its leaders. In order to maintain an honorable institution, such as State College should be, this principle applies itself very strikingly.

Just one thing that happened at the recent meeting of the student body brings out very clearly the fact that a reform in many undertakings is needed. For instance, the cruel, brutal, barbaric "gauntlets" was abolished last year. We now have some who are so narrow as to want it reinstated. That is not anything for any college to be proud of; it is a disgrace to any institution. Someone may say that he had to "run the gauntlet" when he was a freshman; probably he did. If he did run it there was nothing about it to make him want to do so again. Such a process could run on and on forever, and the "gauntlets" would still be a part of the campus life. Instead of taking the attitude that so many upperclassmen seem to have, let us consider it a thing of the past. There were other things considered at the recent meeting that are just as ridiculous as the "gauntlet" proposition.

Some say that the freshman cap should be abolished, while others strongly oppose it. Personally, I favor abolishing the caps. Just because I have worn my freshman cap this year does not cause me to want to embarrass the freshmen who enter the College next year. In the first place, the citizenry of the State has to pay for this wastage—and it is nothing but a waste of approximately a thousand dollars every year. The caps are not worn by anyone, except when he is compelled to wear it. In the second place, it is a thing of the past in the modern colleges of today, and a col-

TICKS & POLITICS

We will not slide on the oil of the Republican party; we will not bow down to the bray of the Democratic donkey. We fear not the fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan. The lash of the Anti-Saloon League will not whip us into their line of thinking. The ears of your columnist are dumb to the squawking of the W. C. T. U. We will not be influenced by the soft words of any church or organization. OUR OWN MIND IS OUR OWN COLUMN.

"The Tecco Echo" says that State College is not the only college where Governor Gardner's pet ballot is used. The campus officers of E. C. T. C. have been elected by the use of the Australian ballot for the past three years. Hats off to you, E. C. T. C.!

The whites seemingly have given way to the blacks. Our new Republican congressman, George M. Pritchard, of Asheville, was assigned an office next to his political but colored brother, Oscar De Priest. Congressman Pritchard gave up his office. De Priest kept his. But why should a southern gentleman give up his office when he was elected on such a platform? Was that political strategy or a Hoover blunder?

Naturally, it was unfortunate for State College, last week, when one of the brightest students was shipped. Some say he was shipped for cutting hair. Some say he was shipped for not being "yellow." Some say he was shipped for violating the probation rules. But, nevertheless, he was shipped. Does the Student Council consider scholarship when they expel a student, or do they just consider the ever so petty crime? Do the "Fourteen" think they are capable of making a decision which will possibly ruin the life of a student?

We boast of a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. What kind of government do we really have? Do the senators and congressmen vote according to the will of their constituents? Have you ever known of a case when the Anti-Saloon League cracked its whip and the senators and congressmen did not jump through the hoop?

There are a lot of strikes in North Carolina. What is the cause of such unrest among the mill workers? Is it work of the Communist party, or just a jest at the so-called Hoover prosperity?

Conditions are becoming serious! The members of North Carolina State College R. O. T. C. Regiment had better get their shoes shined and their uniforms pressed, for they might be called out at any time.

In President Hoover's "Law Enforcement" address there is a very interesting statement: "If a law is wrong, its rigid enforcement is the surest guaranty of its repeal." It would be fatal for the Eighteenth Amendment if it was rigidly enforced, for the American people like their drinks too well to give them up for water and sweet milk. At present the Eighteenth Amendment is safe, for the enforcement is not rigid—people can get all they want to drink. But just let the Government give us "air-tight" enforcement. The "vote-dry but drink wet" crowd, which is a majority, will rise up on their hind legs and force the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Let's have some rigid enforcement!

lege that still clings on to the old idea is considered backward.

A few upperclassmen seem to have the idea that the freshman caps and the "gauntlet" cause the freshmen to respect the upperclassmen more. For me, it is a hard task to attempt to respect a group that contains drunkards, thieves, liars, and those others who go to make up a group of that type. By this I do not contend that all the men are of that low type, but a high per cent of the number are not what they should be. On the other hand, there are some of the highest class and most cultured people of the State who are attending the college.

Personally, I feel that the time is at hand when the authorities of the college should offer their assistance and in every way try to force their influence on the officials of the student body and in that way attempt to improve the existing conditions. Not for one minute do I favor the return of the military rule, and I do not wish to make that impression. To me it seems that the solution is for both the students and the authorities of the college to get together, and in every way attempt to prohibit the poor conditions that are now prevalent throughout the whole institution. In the place of the conditions which are now found on the campus, let the more modern methods be substituted. To make sure that the college is not keeping pace with the more modern colleges of today, not a single one of the higher institutions tolerate the freshman cap or the "gauntlet."

Still another solution which is practiced in many of the higher institutions is to place a limit as to the type that will be accepted and allowed to enter. A student who is not mentally and morally fit to enter is barred. At

Speaking of Dance Revivals—

State no one is barred, apparently. Some who are none too well prepared to enter high school are allowed to enter at State. To make the situation more ridiculous, no restrictions whatever are placed on a person's moral fitness. A rogue is allowed to enter, and, from all indications, is just as welcome as the person representing the highest type of character. Of course there are a few of the professors who ridicule such persons, but these are not numerous.

It seems to me that the time is at hand when our leaders should be more concerned about the real problems of life—those that would benefit the students—than the minor and worthless things to which a great deal of time is devoted. If the time that is devoted to the petty and trifling things could be utilized in some valuable way, a remarkable change would be noticed almost overnight.

A vision come true

In a part of Africa little known to the whites, where obscure trails ran, Cecil Rhodes dared to envision a railroad. He lived to build it.

The railroad itself was part of a vaster dream, a dream of a far inland colony linked fast to existing coast settlements by rail and wire communication. And he lived to build Rhodesia.

First the dream, then the reality, is the rule with telephone men too, as they work to greater heights of service. But in between, they know, must come periods of careful planning and smooth coordination of many elements.

Scientific research, manufacturing, plant construction, commercial development, public relations, administration—many varied telephone activities offer a widening opportunity to practical-minded visionaries.

STATE THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

"Sunrise" comes to the State Theatre next Thursday and Friday. This remarkable picture, with the admirable work of Janet Gaynor and George O'Brien in the stellar parts, is enjoying similar successful engagements throughout the country. It is the first picture made in America by F. W. Murnau, whom William Fox brought to America from Europe.

The story, an original theme by Herman Sudermann, while of the eternal triangle, has been so ingeniously handled that it stands out as something sensational. Wherever it is shown it starts lively discussion over whether the wife should or should not have forgiven the husband after she discovered that he had planned to murder her.

The musical score of "Sunrise" is the one which S. L. Rothafel, the celebrated "Roxy," wrote for its Broadway presentation at the Times Square Theatre.

STATE, MON., TUES., WED.

There is more mystery in one Chinese standing in a shadowy Chinatown doorway than in all the mystery stories ever written. And in "Chinatown Nights," which opens its three-day run at the State Theatre Monday night, there are more than five hundred Chinese revealed in all the intriguing and little known business of their powerful tongues.

"Chinatown Nights" is a picture for every one who loves drama, excitement, and mystery. The suspense and action of the picture are excellently handled, and the revelation of the inscrutable practices of Chinese tong life are surprising.

A superior cast of screen artists enact this superb drama. Wallace Beery, Florence Vidor, Warner Oland, and Jack Oakie head the cast of noted screen players. The picture was directed by William A. Wellman, the man who made "Wings."

"Chinatown Nights" is the story of a white boss of Chinatown who wins the love of a white society woman. She sacrifices everything for him, but not until she is dragged down into the mire of the Chinese underworld does he awaken to his love for her.

Those who see "Chinatown Nights" during its run at the State Theatre will see one of the pictures which will win a leading place on the screen honor roll for this year.

Only Language Students Eligible for Membership in Local Chapter

Last Tuesday evening seventeen candidates were initiated into the local chapter of Los Hidalgos.

The initiation was one of great suspense and much surprise for the candidates. Much use was made of Professor Brown's electrical talent. The formal rituals were performed by Frank Jarman, while the initiation was in charge of Professor Ballenger.

Los Hidalgos is a local language fraternity peculiar to itself. Students who become candidates must not only be language students, but must have shown an intelligent concept of the world of affairs in general.

Those candidates being initiated were E. W. Ruggles, A. L. Weaver, A. C. Ruggles, J. G. Staunton, E. H. Roberts, W. C. Yelverton, L. T. Richardson, R. E. Brickhouse, H. R. Garis, W. G. Mendenhall, W. J. Pippin, W. R. Tighe, W. T. Magat, M. L. Woodward, G. W. Dameron, R. C. Benfield, and C. B. Turner, Jr.

Important Subjects In Aviation Discussed At Aeronautical Meeting

The Aeronautical Club held their meeting Thursday night and some very interesting topics were discussed, beginning with a talk by E. M. Cooper, a student, who lectured on "The Importance of the Diesel Engine in Regard to Aviation."

Professor Cobb gave a short talk on the complete organization of the club.

All students interested in aviation are invited to come to the meetings, which are held in Polk Hall every other week at 7 o'clock.

Professor Wooten To Teach Correspondence Course In Surveying

For the purpose of giving a new correspondence course in land surveying the extension division of North Carolina State College has just completed a series of interesting lessons in the field. Professor L. E. Wooten will be in charge of this work.

The course has been prepared by Mr. Wooten for men with practical experience in land surveying, there being about 200 surveyors in the state, in addition to several hundred college men to whom the course has an appeal.

Main features in the correspondence lessons include such items as trigonometry, compass surveys, calculating areas, plotting and finishing maps, and general field work. They are so arranged in sections that students desiring to leave out part of the course may do so. Professor Wooten, who has been a member of the summer school faculty at Yale University, has prepared some special lessons in connection with the course relating to ethics of the surveying profession, laws regulating the work, legal functions of surveyors, and their rights and duties as expert witnesses in courts.

FRATERNITY SMOKER FOR PLEDGES HELD TUESDAY BY SIGMA ALPHA KAPPAS

Sigma Alpha Kappa held a smoker the last Tuesday night, to which all pledges were invited. This was the first get-together meeting that the fraternity has had this spring, and the first meeting in which the new officers were in charge.

Four professors interested in accounting were present and gave talks. Professor R. O. Moen told the history of accounting at State College. Professor C. B. Shulenberger followed with the history of the fraternity, with Professor R. W. Henniger and Mr. E. E. Goehring speaking briefly on the chances for the future.

Ten of the members were present besides those invited, which included: A. C. Little, W. P. Mast, E. A. Rutter, R. E. Singletary, G. H. Parham, A. E. Cathey, and J. W. Lewis.

SELF-HELP CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING UNDER RULE OF NEW OFFICERS

Newly-elected officers of the Self-Help Club took charge at the meeting held last Saturday night. Raymond Woodall succeeds H. C. Green as president of the self-help collegiates of State College. The program for the evening consisted of a poetical recital by Vick Yount, an interpretation of the club's motto, "Service, Fellowship, and Fidelity," and speeches by the new and the retiring presidents.

COLLEGE PHYSICISTS RETURN FROM TRIP TO WASHINGTON MEETING

The entire staff of the physics department of N. C. State College recently attended the annual Washington meeting of the American Physical Society. The trip was made by automobile, and the party included Professors Heck and Derieux and instructors Meares, Gladden, and Gardner.

This meeting, which lasted from April 18 to 20 inclusive, was attended by some five hundred physicists from all over the United States, a great number coming from as far as California. Five years ago two days were enough for the meeting, whereas now not only are three days required, but the body attending is separated into two divisions, which are run simultaneously. This is necessary because of the large amount of research work done by American physicists.

Professor Heck states that while no striking new discoveries were brought forth, numbers of advances in methods and theory were brought out as results of the researches carried on. Some little interest was aroused by the charge brought up by Professor Compton that Millicent's determination is in error. Millicent was, before Compton, the leading research physicist of Chicago; his chief contribution to the field of physics is his determination of the so-called E/M, which is nothing more than the ratio between the electricity carried and the weight of the ultimate particles of matter that shows up. Compton in his research found Millicent to be in error three-tenths of one per cent, so slight that most people would not have bothered about it, but it proved too much for Compton, and a hot debate ensued between him and Millicent.

At the Academy of Science Building, where held, the newest devices of physics research are shown, and some of the physicists were a little startled to see on a table an automatic instrument busy counting and recording on a sheet of paper, one by one, every electron being shot from an active particle of matter similar to the radiolite substance found on watch hands. The number of electrons contained in matter may be more clearly understood when one knows that there are at least a hundred electrons in an atom, a number of atoms in a molecule, and a molecule is so small that counting the number in a cubic inch of water at the rate of one million per second would take four million million years.

It has been the custom for two members of the State College physics department to go to these annual meetings, the college paying half the expenses; but this year Professor Heck, the head of the department, made a special plea to Dr. Brooks, showing that the whole staff could go in an automobile at no greater expense to the college, and therefore the whole staff was enabled to make the trip.

GRANDSONS' CLUB CALLS OFF PLANNED REUNION; BANQUET WILL BE GIVEN

and Mothers of the Grandsons' Club, which was supposed to have been held yesterday, was called off at the meeting last Tuesday night. After considering the matter it was thought best to have the reunion at some football game next fall.

Instead of beginning tradition this spring with the invitations to a baseball game, a banquet to create interest in the club will be held May 15. All members, thirty in all, whose fathers at some time attended this institution are to be invited. One or two outstanding speakers will be secured.

News note from the University of Nebraska says that a donation of $10,000 has helped the museum to acquire many fossils. That's nothing. We have them here on our campus, and they are not in the museum and they cost nothing.

STATE DEBATERS CLOSE UNSUCCESSFUL SEASON

Victory Over Georgia Tech Team Ends Forensic Meets for This Year

The State College debaters closed the most unsuccessful season in their history by a unanimous victory over the representatives of Georgia State College of Agriculture last Friday night in the auditorium of the State College Y. M. C. A.

Advocating the abolition of trial by jury, they clearly outclassed their opponents, and deserved the vote of the three judges, who were: Rev. E. Gibson Davis, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church; Prof. A. L. Aycock, coach of debate at Wake Forest College, and Leon S. Brassfield, State Solicitor for Wake County.

The State speakers were Edgar W. Buchanan, of Spruce Pine, and John B. Litchfield, of Poplar Branch. The representatives of Georgia State College were J. P. Nicholson and J. P. Beamer. Professor A. M. Fountain served as chairman of the contest.

Conference Delegates Study Problems Of Community Service

One of the problems that held the interest of a great number of the boys in the Southern Student Conference at Blue Ridge last summer was the problem of Community Service. This problem was discussed in one of the campus group meetings, and was directed by Mr. Malcolm Guess, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at the University of Mississippi. Mr. Guess has studied many and varied community service problems and there was not a question brought up that remained unanswered or was left over for the next meeting. The study of this problem will also be a feature of this summer's conference.

There were some fifteen or twenty students in the group and each student represented some outstanding college in the South. The students in this group met once a day—in the evening—and discussed the things that were going on at the different colleges in this kind of work. Each man told of the service in the way of deputation and extension that was being rendered by his particular college, and the extent of the work at each college was also discussed. After a list had been made of all that was being done by the colleges represented each topic was taken up individually, and suggestions made as to how the work should be improved. Not only were the problems discussed that were on the list, but others were added to it.

The work that is being done along this line by men in the different colleges is that of organizing Hi-Y clubs, organizing small boys' clubs, organizing quartets and teams of picked students to go to the churches in rural communities and put on programs of an entertaining and religious nature, and in one or two cases clubs have been formed for negro boys which are somewhat similar to the Hi-Y clubs in the white schools. In another case visits had been made to penitentiaries, but prisoners are very sensitive to these services and it was decided that these visits should not be made without careful thought and preparation so that such topics as the "Prodigal Son" would be omitted from the program and the prisoners would be acquainted with the outside world and what is going on there.

In this group the interest never lagged for a moment, and the students showed that they were really interested in community service and felt regard for their fellow men.

Scabbard and Blade Dance

One of the most elaborately planned social events of the season for the younger society set was the dinner dance given Thursday night at the Carolina County Club by the Scabbard and Blade military fraternity of North Carolina State College. Members of the society had as their guests young ladies from in and out of town, and had as chaperones their commanding officers and others of the college faculty. Following the course dinner, dancing was enjoyed, the music being rendered by Jolly Leftwich and his Duke Blue Devil orchestra. As favors, each lady was presented with a beautiful silver and gold miniature scabbard and blade, bearing the fraternity's coat-of-arms.

The dance figure was led by Miss Flora McKinnon, recently voted the most beautiful student at Flora Macdonald College, and her brother, Cadet Colonel John N. McKinnon, of Red Springs. The couple was assisted by Miss Billie Hiatt, of High Point, with Cadet Major Frank P. Goodwin, of Greensboro; Miss Gwyn Lenoir, of Lenoir, with Cadet Major Joe E. Moore, of Lenoir, and Miss Edythe Holloway, of Raleigh, with Cadet Major W. V. Sawyer, of Johnston, S. C.

Jeter, agriculture editor at State College, delivered the main address at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Civitan Club of Spring Hope, held recently, when they observed "Farmers' Night." A score or more prominent farmers and a few other invited guests were present at the dinner meeting.

The address was along agricultural development lines. Declaring that farmers had almost become deafened with such "advice," Mr. Jeter said he did not come to offer that so much, but he did give an outline of the status of Eastern Carolina agriculturally, and pointed out its chief needs, which include livestock raising, more improved machinery, and a greater degree of cooperation between "the business men of the rural sections," as he termed the farmers.
