

MORE STUDENTS LEADS TO LARGER COLLEGE FACULTY

Increase of 14 Per Cent in Enrollment Since Last Year

FEDERAL APPROPRIATION IS INCREASED BY $20,000

Committees Approve Establishment of Forestry Department With Instruction to Begin in January.

By C. K. MARSHALL, Jr.

Faced with an increase of 14 per cent in the enrollment of students since the close of the 1927-28 session, the executive and building committees of the trustees of North Carolina State College, in executive session with President E. C. Brooks, approved additions to the faculty and clerical force of the institution, and prepared recommendations to be presented to the State Advisory Commission.

Dr. Brooks told the committees, Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh and Robert N. Page of Aberdeen, respective chairmen, that the enrollment at State College for the first term was 1,751 resident students, with the total for the present scholastic year expected to reach 1,850 or more, an increase of about 230 students, or 14 per cent over 1927-28.

The committees spent most of the session, which was held in Dr. Brooks' office in Peele Hall on the college campus, going over recommendations to the budget commission about which Alfred S. Brower, college comptroller, was also consulted. These recommendations concerned maintenance and permanent equipment for the institution during the next biennium, and maintenance of the college agricultural extension department.

The committees approved recommendations for establishment of a department of forestry, with instruction to begin on January 1, 1929.

On account of the death of Allen G. Oliver, poultry extension specialist, C. F. Parrish, who has been in charge of that position temporarily, the committee made the latter's promotion permanent. Paul L. Seese, graduate of Pennsylvania State College, was elected to fill Mr. Parrish's place with—Continued on page 2.

JUNIOR ORDER OF SAINTS TAKES TEN NEW MEMBERS

Oldest Interscholastic Order Established on Campus 24 Years Ago

The Junior Order of Saints held its annual initiation on the night of November 13, and the following ten men, journeyed through the secret and mysterious portals of the order: Allie P. Baggett, Dunn; Pat Patterson, Statesville; Bud Thomas, Grove City, Pa.; Snap Welborn, Statesville; John McNair, Wilmington; Thad Russell, Jacksonville, Fla.; Stanley Allen, Norfolk, Va.; Bob McCracken, Asheville; Marshall Pemberton, Fayetteville; and James Sumney, Dallas.

The Junior Order of Saints is an inter-fraternity organization, and it functions to sponsor better feeling, better spirit, and higher ideals among the various Greek-letter fraternities at State College. Bids are extended to juniors and seniors only.

The order was founded at N. C. State in 1903, and because it is the oldest organization of its nature at this institution, it has gained much prestige. During the twenty-four years of its existence it has been active at all times in carrying out its purpose, and it is the only organization of its kind to survive at State.

The Saints' program is climaxed each year in the annual dance given in the latter part of the winter term. This is one of the most looked forward to and most enjoyable social events of the entire season, and it attracts many out-of-town visitors.

Max Gardner Elected Alumni Member Blue Key Organization

RUMORED THAT LOCAL ARMY OFFICER STARTS RAISING DUCKS HERE

A "whispering campaign" that Capt. W. R. Watson of the local staff of military instruction in the R. O. T. C. department has started raising ducks was given credence this week when there came to The Technician wind of the incident that caused the rumor.

During rifle practice behind the Frank Thompson Gymnasium a few days ago a young duck calmly flew over the firing range, to settle near the "bull's-eye," causing an immediate concentration of fire on that sector.

Despite the crack shots of the group and Captain Watson's own bead, the duck survived the ordeal and lived to face the advances of the college soldiers. Its capture caused the rumor to begin that the military department was becoming interested in fowl.

Harshaw, Mast, Stuart, Buchanan, Love, and Ray Are Also Taken Into Honor Society.

By A. LAURANCE AYDLETT

O. Max Gardner, Shelby, State College graduate and Governor-elect of the State of North Carolina, was voted as an alumni member into the North Carolina State chapter of Blue Key, national honorary fraternity, at the biweekly meeting of the local organization yesterday.

"He would have been eligible for membership in this organization had it existed on the campus when he was here," said A. F. Greaves-Walker, professor of ceramic engineering, in citing the honors and outstanding characteristics of Tech's distinguished alumnus.

New men sworn in from the present senior and junior classes here were: C. H. Harshaw, Grove City, Pa.; P. H. Mast, Valle Crucis; A. D. Stuart, Hamer, S. C.; E. W. Buchanan, Spruce Pine, and H. O. Love, Burlington. H. M. Ray, professor of public speaking, was taken in as a faculty member. Dr. E. C. Brooks, president of the college, who was to have been initiated as an honorary member of the organization, was absent because of an educational meeting at Chapel Hill.

Professor Greaves-Walker called attention of Blue Key to the fact that northern universities have established the tradition of special demeritation of members of the senior class, such as the wearing of official blazers.

On motion of C. E. Hibbard, president of the senior class, the matter was referred to Golden Chain, senior class honorary organization, which it was felt had most at stake in the matter.

J. E. Moore, Y. M. C. A. student president, mentioned the blankness of the Pullen Hall rostrum wall, and asked that Blue Key take steps to brighten the space. The matter was referred to a committee after it was learned that possible appropriations would be obtained next year for construction of a new auditorium.

Enloe Says State Men No Longer To Have Free Shows

As the result of too much enthusiasm over the State-Carolina game, State College students will no longer be allowed to enjoy the free show that has formerly been given them, according to W. G. Enloe, city manager of the Public-Savenger Theatres, in his letter to E. L. Cloyd, dean of students, a copy of which was sent to The Technician, and which follows:

"Dear Dean Cloyd:

"Following up our conversation of Saturday night in regard to the State and Carolina college boys rushing our theatres, which, of course, was beyond your control, but which I consider very unreasonable and have therefore reached the following conclusion:

"In the future when State College wins (and you know I hope they always do) we will give the band and the players only a free show at one of our local theatres, providing we do not have a road show on that day. In the event the players prefer to wait until the following day or week I will give them this privilege, for they probably do not feel like visiting a show after a game.

"It has always been my policy to cooperate with State College in every respect and I regret that it is necessary to withdraw my offer of giving a free show to the entire student body when State wins, but I am sure that most of the boys will understand.

"I want you to feel free to call on me at any time and I assure you of my full support and cooperation at all times.

"With kindest regards and best wishes, I am,

"Very truly yours,

"W. G. ENLOE."

Laughlin Is New Head Of Reorganized Textile Society For This Year

At a meeting of the textile students held Friday, Nov. 9, at 12 o'clock, in the textile school, the Tompkins Textile Society was reorganized for the school year '28-29.

Dean Thomas Nelson made a short talk, explaining to the new students something about the Tompkins Textile Society. Following a few short testimonies by some of the faculty and students as to the merits of the society, an election of officers was held.

The officers for the present year are: K. C. Laughlin, president; A. R. Marley, vice president, and A. T. Quantz, secretary.

The first regular meeting of the society was held the following Tuesday night. Thirty-two old and new members were present. A talk was made by Dean Nelson in which he urged the society to support the "better spirit movement" now going on here. This was discussed and it was unanimously agreed that every member would whole-heartedly support this movement.

An invitation committee was appointed composed of Roddey Fields, Bob Bunn, and George Howard.

CHINESE SPEAKER HOLDS AUDIENCE UNDER SPELL

Dr. Teyi Hsieh Packs Pullen Hall Monday Night

TELLS OF DESTRUCTIVE FORCES IN NATIVE LAND

Compares Existing Conditions in Orient and United States—Japan Believes in Advertising. He Says—China Now Coming Out of the Rut.

With his masterful oratory Dr. Teyi Hsieh, managing director of the Chinese board of trade at Boston, Mass., held about two hundred people in his grip for one hour and fifty minutes in Pullen Hall last Monday night.

One minute he would have the audience bubbling over with laughter while the next minute he would be leading them on an imaginary trip in far-off China.

After telling a few anecdotes, he swung into his speech. "The Chinaman is not as illogical as most people think he is," he said.

He cited the example of the Chinese way of addressing a letter. He first writes the name of the State to which the letter is going then the town, and last the name of the person to whom the letter is sent. This method is the reverse of the way letters are addressed in this country. The Chinese method facilitates a more rapid handling of mail in the postoffices because of the obviousness of the State and town to which the letter is going.

After talking a few minutes about China, the speaker displayed an old Chinese flag. There were five stripes on the flag, each representing a country in the Chinese Republic. He later displayed a new Chinese flag. This flag was marked blue and white.

China in the past has not taken advantage of publicity opportunities. This is one of the reasons why she has lost step with many of the other countries of the world, according to Mr. Hsieh.—Continued on page 2.

Early Confirms Student Appointments in College Regiment For This Year

ADA SPENCER CREATES SENSATION WHEN SHE FEEDS HOMELESS CAT

Realizing the value of food, Miss Ada Spencer, co-ed at State College, was found near the cafeteria a few days ago feeding a hungry, poor, and uncared-for kitten.

The co-ed seemed very sympathetic with the poor kitten, for she made a special trip to the cafeteria to get a glass of milk and a saucer in order that the animal might eat. The incident created a lot of interest for a great number of students and professors who gathered around the scene with great amusement.

During the time the kitten was drinking the milk the young lady was constantly caressing it, which later ended in a deep friendship with the "teline family."

College Regiment Parades Raleigh On Armistice Day

The N. C. State College regiment R. O. T. C. held its annual Armistice Day parade Monday, November 12, at 11 o'clock. The parade formed on Hillsboro Street and proceeded down Salisbury Street and Fayetteville streets. The regiment returned to the college and was addressed by Dr. E. C. Brooks, president of the college.

Much favorable comment has been received by the military department on the general appearance of the regiment, military bearing of the students, and on the efficiency of the review. Many of the witnesses stated that it was the best Armistice parade staged by the local R. O. T. C. unit.

The regiment promises to be the best State College has ever produced. Major C. C. Early, P.M.L.T., commended the entire regiment on its excellent work, and the commissioned and non-commissioned officers on their splendid training capacity.

MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS LEAVE ON TRIP MONDAY

Will Be Gone a Week, During Which Time Orchestra and Glee Club Will Appear Five Times

Thirty-three men of the State College Glee Club and Orchestra will leave Raleigh Monday aboard a special bus for a week trip through the southeastern part of the State. The towns on the itinerary are in the order of the visits: Hookerton, Benson, Chadbourne, St. Paul, and Raeford.

Every year the glee club and orchestra make two or three trips to the smaller towns of the State, and everywhere they have appeared they have made a decided hit, according to press dispatches from those towns.

Major Price has his glee club tuned up to its best key for the coming trip. Tryouts for places have been heated. This year the orchestra will spring a surprise on the towns, for instead of the usual classical presentations, with scattered jazz selections, the jazz orchestra will give several special numbers for the benefit of the jazz music loving element.

The men on the trip include: J. H. Brown, John Cole, H. Craven, E. J. Carter, T. J. Bynum, S. Brockwell, W. J. Dunning, E. M. Davis, W. P. Fowler, F. U. Fletcher, Fred Fletcher, F. A. Gellis, N. Articles in Newspapers Show Students Becoming Introspective Toward Existing Plans of Campus Government; Some Being Discarded.

Showing how the honor system and student government in general is a topic for general discussion among all college gatherings, the Richmond Times-Dispatch of November 11 carries an article by Virginia Dabney, under the caption: "The College Honor System Under Fire, But Not in Virginia."

Calling attention to the fact that: "Yale, Amherst, and Other Student Bodies Have Already Dropped It," the New York Times has a lengthy discourse on "Honor System in Colleges."

According to the Richmond paper: "The honor system as applied to college examinations, which was founded in Virginia, and which subsequently spread to every section of the Union, has recently been abandoned by several large northern institutions, because it did not work. Persistent cheating on the part of undergraduates appears to have been the principal reason why these colleges and universities decided to return to the old system of faculty supervision."

"Yale College and Amherst College are the two principal institutions of higher learning which dropped the honor system during 1928. The Yale College student council convinced the faculty that enforcement of the system was 'impossible under present social and educational conditions at—Continued on page 2."

Plans Under Way For Annual Barn Warming Shortly

Since the time is drawing nearer for the Annual Agricultural Barn Warming, more definite plans are being made for the occasion. The Agricultural Club had a business meeting Tuesday night for a discussion of the business matters relating to the coming entertainment.

Various committees reported on their special assigned work, indicating that plans are being made for the largest crowd that has ever attended.

It is likely that the Shaw University Orchestra will furnish music while the farmers and their little maids are chatting under the shadow of the pine trees. The junior and senior classes of Meredith College and of Peace Institute have been invited to make Dean L. O. Schaub's farmers have a very enjoyable time.

Due to an unexpected charge of $25.00 for the use of the gymnasium, the club passed a motion kindly asking all faculty members, except deans, chaperons, and heads of the various departments, to pay $1.00 to help cover the expense.

Agricultural students were asked not to forget the treasurer and to remember the motion that was passed by the club. The motion is stated: The regular fee of $1.50 must be paid to the treasurer, Glenn M. Swicegood by November 20. From this date until November 23 an additional charge of 25 cents will be made. After November 23, an additional charge of 50 cents will be required, making the total dues $2.

PROFS AND STUDENTS TO DISCUSS HONOR SYSTEM

Result of Faculty Meeting Held Wednesday Afternoon When Professors Give Views

Monday and Tuesday of next week will be general "bull session" days for State College students, for on these days professors have been asked to discuss the honor system here with their classes. The class is to join in the discussion.

The decision is an aftermath of the general faculty meeting held Wednesday afternoon, at which time a representative number of faculty men discussed the problem pro and con for more than two and one-half hours before they could agree to adjourn.

No vote was taken and no resolutions offered, although the general consensus of opinion was one of cooperation. There seemed no desire on the part of any one to recommend that student government at this college be abolished, although there was a very distinct feeling that improvement of some kind had to be made in the near future.

According to the speeches made at this meeting, the one great defect in the student government at this institution, especially the enforcement thereof, is the lack of understanding of the principles involved, on the part of both teachers and students.

Those present at this meeting decided, unofficially, that there should be a thorough discussion between students and teachers, and in order to bring out all of the factors centered around the question. It was after this discussion that the two days were set aside for class discussion. The chief topics of discussion as announced will be: the purposes of student government, the defects in student government here, and the solution of the problems confronting student government.

The faculty will meet shortly after these class discussions, it is thought.

Japan is the greatest country for publicity. If a hen lays an egg in that country sixteen roosters will cackle, he continued.

At the present time in China various means of publicity is being resorted in order to disseminate new ideas among the people. One of the most effective ways of diffusing propaganda among the populace is by airplane. Airplanes are loaded with propaganda pamphlets, sent up over cities, where thousands of twirling bits of paper are showered on the expectant crowds below.

The speaker said there were four great forces which are responsible for the rapid changes which are being wrought in China at the present time. They are: revolution, change in government, the leadership of China, and the spiritual awakening of the people.

He gave an interesting comparison of conditions which exist in some of our institutions and industries and those that exist in his country. In the United States there are 280,000 miles of railroads, while in China there are only 7,500 miles. Lack of means for transportation is another reason why China has been unprogressive.

In his country there is only one teacher for 108,000 students. This scarcity of teachers naturally causes a teacher to be highly respected by the people. So much regard does the government have for a teacher that if one of the students meets death at the hands of the instructor, the law cannot punish the teacher.

Another hopeful sign of progress in China is condensation of the Chinese language from 50,000 characters to 1,000 characters. Mr. Hsieh thinks that within thirty years all the Chinese schools will teach the English language. He hopes Americans will also learn the Chinese tongue.

Near the close of his speech he alluded to what Napoleon said about being fearful of China when she awakes. He amended this statement by saying that China will lead the world when the awakening comes.

More Students Leads to Larger College Faculty

the department. Mr. Seese will begin his duties here on November 15.

Because of increased enrollment, Miss Grace McLeon, of Maxton, was appointed temporarily as clerical assistant in the office of Dean of Students E. L. Cloyd. M. P. Moss was added as instructor in mathematics, as the result of increased enrollment in that department.

Dr. Brooks announced that the Federal Government appropriation under the Smith-Lever Act for extension service which has been increased $20,000, had been tentatively allocated as follows: County agent work, $8,000, and home demonstration work, $12,000.

Plans of the college administration to equip a room in the basement of the college Y. M. C. A. building for broadcasting radio programs through station WPTF, Raleigh, were approved by the committees.

Members of the two committees attending the sessions were: Dr. Poe and Mr. Page, chairmen; C. W. Gold, Greensboro; J. M. Gamevell, Lexington; T. T. Thorne, Rocky Mount; Pascal S. Boyd, Mooresville, and Irvin B. Tucker, Whiteville.

Honor Systems Questioned in America

Yale College, and it was accordingly abandoned.

Where System Began
"There is no question that the Honor System originated in Virginia, but arguments sometimes arise as to whether its birthplace was the College of William and Mary or the University of Virginia. For the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with the facts, it may be of interest to set them forth briefly at this time.

"Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, president emeritus of the College of William and Mary, says in his book, 'The College of William and Mary':

"To this time (1779) is to be referred also the beginnings of what has been called the 'Honor System,' which, from its influence upon educational discipline, must be deemed worthy of especial note. . . . The principle grew up outside the rules and did not receive printed recognition until 1817, when the statutes of the visitors contain a provision requiring students to give evidence on their honor' respecting offenses. But that the Honor System had been practiced some years before is evident from the words of Judge Nathaniel Beverley Tucker, a student at the college in 1801, and who, as law professor, referred in 1834 to the system as one of 'long experience.'

"When Mr. Jefferson, founded the University of Virginia, this feature of William and Mary, together with its kindred principles, the lecture and elective systems, was transplanted to Charlottesville and successfully tried there upon a wider and more extensive field of operations. The example of that institution has, I believe, been potent in bringing about the adoption of the same principles, to some extent at least, by all the colleges and universities of the Union."

The Honor System was not adopted at the University of Virginia until 1842, but it appears to have been more comprehensive than the system in effect at the time at William and Mary. Dr. Phillip Alexander Bruce, in his "History of the University of Virginia," says in this connection:

Dr. Bruce Quoted
"When we examine the honor regulation of the old college, it seems to have occupied a position that lay somewhere between the regulation at the University of Virginia which required every matriculate at entrance to sign a pledge that he would observe the ordinances, and that other regulation, introduced by Henry St. George Tucker, which, at a later date (1842), required the same student to sign a pledge that he had neither given nor received assistance in the course of his examination.

"The pledge enforced at the College of William and Mary was really nearer, in its general character, to the pledge of the university matriculate than to the one which the university student attached to his examination papers—the only substantial difference was that the pledge at the ancient college was taken in public in order to increase its solemnity, whilst at the university, the matriculate's was taken in the privacy of the proctor's office.

"Apparently there was no evidence in operation at the College of William and Mary which exactly resembled in tenor the resolution introduced by Henry St. George Tucker. This resolution did not profess to set up a universal code of good conduct, such as was expected of the matriculate at the College of William and Mary—its single aim was to insure upright action in the examination room alone by reliance on the student's sense of honor."

Reopening of colleges this month gives the honor system in examinations its final opportunity, in some instances, to prove itself worthy of continuance. Yale College and Amherst are notable among the higher institutions of learning that have decided to do away with the system first inaugurated in the United States by William and Mary College.

In the last collegiate year, and particularly in the period leading to final examinations, the honor system was continually under fire. Idealists who abhorred the thought that students could not be trusted without supervision of proctors fought bitterly for retention of the system. But in some colleges the students themselves, dismayed by persistent instances of cheating, voted for abolition of the code.

It will be recalled that at Columbia considerable discussion revolved around a suggestion that mid-year and final examinations be done away with because numerous instances of deceit had been reported.

When your mind balks at "figurin"—

IF YOURS is a mind easily confused by interstellar distances, infinity of space, light-years, weighty statistics—forget the ponderable fact that Camels lead today by billions. Just light 'em . . . smoke 'em . . . revel in their fragrance. Watch your barometer swing to "fair and cooler"—and let your smoke-sense tell the tale of Camel supremacy!

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

Amherst dropped the honor system after having fostered it for twenty-three years. The students themselves favored a return to proctorship. Faculty and students confessed a marked attitude of indifference on the part of undergraduates toward the system.

Western Reserve College at Cleveland abolished the method in 1926, after having conducted honor system examinations since 1908, because, as the Faculty statement phrased it, "intellectual bootleggers" had caused the system to "go to pot."

Students of Rutgers eagerly adopted the self-government method of examinations in 1920. But they were so annoyed by the so-called "sneak clause," which compels undergraduates to report defections, that in 1925 they voted a return to the monitors.

Yet it is this very "sneak clause" which proponents hold up as one of the most valuable factors in promoting character development. While that may seem paradoxical, they point out that, in entering into the honor system, undergraduates pledge to replace discipline by the Faculty with discipline by themselves. The written pledge that no aid has been received or given in an examination has its force in the assumption that the student who sees another cheating must, for the good of the body in general, report the incident to the student organization empowered to investigate and inflict penalties.

On the other hand, President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University found occasion to warn against increasing violations of the regulations against drinking and of the honor system.

Taking umbrage at stories of widespread cheating, the girls of Hunter College last winter overwhelmingly voted for continuance of the honor system which had been in effect since 1929. The faculty enthusiastically supported this decision.

At Yale, however, the honor system has fallen out of favor. The Yale College Student Council convinced the faculty that enforcement of the honor system was "impossible under present social and educational conditions at Yale College." The Sheffield Scientific School Student Council has abolished the written pledge at the end of the examination as "an unnecessary detail." At Sheffield, however, there will be no return to the proctor system. Elimination of the written pledge is an unusual instance of still further placing students on their honor.

rejected a proposed adoption of the honor system. The Student Council having found no dissatisfaction with the proctor system, and therefore no demand for the proposed method. Other institutions in the past few years have given considerable thought to the subject, and in more than one instance the honor system has clung so precariously that the coming collegiate year may see its elimination in still more institutions.

GEORGE SILVER SCORES ON FORWARD PASS PLAY

Wildcats Uphold Honor by Giving Techs a Terrific Battle; Score in Second Period After Near Run by McConnell Places Ball on Five-yard Line; Flinn Goes Over With Ball; Referee's Whistle Kept 'Cats From Scoring Second Time.

By FRANCIS TRIPP

Greensboro, N. C.—The State College Wolves, under the leadership of their impetuous and fighting captain, Bob Warren, defeated a scrappy Davidson College eleven at the Memorial Stadium by a 14-7 score.

The gallant State leader time after time broke through the plucky "Cat" line for long gains and his spectacular crushing, twisting dashes kept the 6,000 fans on edge. It was "Bob" who dashed forty-two yards for a score in the second period, after a remarkable bit of broken field running, and gave the Wolfpack their second touchdown and the margin of victory.

The fighting "Cats" upheld tradition and gave the Wolfpack a terrific battle.

Flinn, Brock, Fraley, and Kell were outstanding in the Davidson line-up, but it must be said that the entire "Cat" team provided a worthy exhibition.

State scored several minutes after the opening whistle, when Captain Warren stepped through the Davidson line for 32 yards before being brought down on the "Cats' 18-yard mark. On the next play he tossed a neat pass to Silver, who stepped over the goal line unhindered. Sparky Adams ran the total to seven with a drop-kick.

Davidson evened the score in the second period on a freak play, when Kell attempted a pass to Flinn. Adams, the Wolfpack safety man, attempted to block it and the pigskin rolled into the arms of McConnell, who raced forty yards to State's 5-yard line before the feet Freddie Crum landed him with a beautiful tackle.

Flinn crossed the Wolf line after three successive thrusts and the Davidson stands were in an uproar. Brock scored the extra point from placement.

Davidson's hopes soon vanished, for after the kickoff Captain Warren, of State, broke through the right side of the Wildcat line on the third down, and dodged, sidestepped, and maneuvered his way 42 yards to the goal line, while the State stands poured out their tribute to him. Adams drop-kicked the extra point.

Although this ended the scoring for the afternoon the fans received their full quota of thrills. Once a Davidson back emerged from a huddle and raced 55 yards to score, but officials ruled that the whistle had blown and the ball was called back. Warren also got loose for several pretty gains. Play in this half was in the middle of the field and neither team did much threatening.

The crowd was treated to a colorful collegiate scene. The college girls, with their brilliant colors flashing together with the cheers and songs of the students, gave the game an added interest. As usual, the college bands were at it between periods, with the N. C. State band and "Diddy" Ray scintillating.

Fred Vaughn Gets Recognition For Outstanding Work

"ALL AMERICAN—Maybe, Fred Vaughn, North Carolina State Guard," reads the caption on a newspaper cut sent out this week to over 1,000 American papers by the Central Press Association, recognized leader of the news picture concerns.

The picture of Vaughn will be printed in a large number of the papers subscribing to the service. The News and Observer of Raleigh, one of the Central Press subscribers, advised THE TECHNICIAN of the prominence given Vaughn.

Vaughn, in the opinion of several sports writers in the South, is destined to be chosen for All-Southern guard in December, and possibly an honorable mention on some All-American selections.

STATE FRESHMEN BOW TO DAVIDSON FROSH ATTACK

Wild Kittens Led by Bradshaw Brothers Win a Close Contest 13-7

Davidson's black and red jerseyed eleven proved to be a big problem for the State Freshmen on Riddick Field last Friday and the Techlets were forced to take a 13-7 licking.

Led by the Bradshaw brothers, John and Dick, the Davidson machine ran first down after first down over the State defense when it failed to click right, and did not stop until two touchdowns had been shoved over, once in the first quarter and again in the third.

State opened up the scoring when Barbour, State fullback, pulled a Davidson pass out of the air and stepped seventy yards for a touchdown. H. Brown made the count seven by dropping the pigskin over the wooden bar by the dropkick route, and thus ended State's scoring. From then on the scoring was done by Davidson, Dick Bradshaw getting both touchdowns.

State's backfield stood out good, with H. Brown coming in for best honors. Although the line was somewhat weak, there were stars. Ange and Cook, two subs, played a good game, and Buffalo, regular lineman, also showed up good.

The bright lights for the Davidson eleven were the Bradshaw brothers and Goodson, in the backfield, with Scales and Arnold the main-line threats.

Pack Meets Duke Today At 2:30 In Decisive Game

Wolves Have Tied Heels and Beaten Deacons and Davidson

VICTORY WOULD KEEP STATE TEAM IN CONTEST

If Carolina Wins Over Devils, Pack and Heels Tie for Honors—If Duke Beats Both, Methodists Get Title—State Loss Coupled With University Win Would Carry the Pennant to Chapel Hill.

By FRANCIS TRIPP

Duke University's "Blue Devils" meet the N. C. State College Wolfpack on Riddick Field today at 2:30 in a game that has an important bearing on the outcome of the race for the Big Five title.

With victories over Wake Forest and Davidson, and a tie with Carolina, the Wolfpack needs today's victory to keep them at the top. If State wins, and Duke defeats Carolina later in the season, the 'Pack will retain the Big Five honors that it won last year.

If Carolina beats Duke, both State and the Tar Heels will finish in a tie. If the Blue Devils beat State today, then the outcome of the race for honors will be far from fixed in any direction.

Last season the 'Pack, with the brilliant Jack McDowall at his best, defeated the Blue Devils by a 20-17 score at Durham. State has lost McDowall, but has a great back in Captain Warren. Jankoski, Duke fullback, will be Duke's main offensive power today.

Coach Tebell expects to start his usual line-up in an effort to turn back the invaders.

Arrangements are being made to handle a large crowd of gridiron enthusiasts. The Duke student body and band will be on hand to add to the colorful classic.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAMS FROM DUKE AND STATE TO MEET TODAY AT 11

Today at 11 o'clock the Duke University harriers and the N. C. State Hill and dalers will be engaged in a dual meet over the local four-mile course.

The Duke outfit is exceptionally strong this year and the local distance men anticipate keen opposition.

The freshmen and Duke's yearlings will also lead a merry chase over the three-mile route. The State yearlings also have an exceptionally strong team this autumn.

November 10 the State Freshmen defeated Winston-Salem High School 17-45 over the local course.

Barrier finished first for State, covering the two and one-half miles in 12 minutes and 36 seconds. Brock was second, Korig third, Norris of Winston-Salem fourth, and Ryan of State was fifth.

Last Saturday the second Freshman team journeyed to Winston-Salem and were defeated by the high school harriers by a 24-36 score. The team was composed of Cline, Campbell, Ketchie, Meade, Sloan, Willis, and Grover.

VERNON BOOTH RUNS WITH TECH CROSS-COUNTRY MEN

Vernon Booth, former Johns Hopkins distance star runner, and olympic contestant for the six-mile run, visited State College campus last week as the representative of a publishing company. Booth will be remembered by the members of the cross-country squad and others who became acquainted with him on his visit here last year.

While here he worked-out with the varsity cross-country squad, easily outdistancing the State harriers at the start, but soon dropped back and gave them a few pointers on running.

In the Olympic tryouts last summer for the six-mile run, Booth placed third. He did not make the trip to Amsterdam for the games, because only two men were taken for his event. Four men were taken for each other event.

From here he went to Duke, and Tebell Member of Basketball Rules Committee in U.S.

Coach G. K. ("Gus") Tebell, North Carolina State College's gridiron mentor and varsity basketball coach, is a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and Rules Revision Committee.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association is composed of six members, each from a different section of the country. This association, together with two other groups, the Amateur Athletic Union, and the Young Men's Christian Association, form the well-known Joint Basketball Committee.

This committee meets annually in New York every April, to discuss changes in rules and adoption of new rules. They set the rules for the nation.

Tebell achieved national prominence in basketball during his college days as a member of the University of Wisconsin team.

Band Struts Stuff in Greensboro At Davidson Classic

The State College band, rated as one of the best "toot organizations" in the South, added much color to the maneuvers between the halves of the State-Davidson game at Greensboro last Saturday.

Dressed in State's "red and white" and led by the resplendent Drum Major H. M. ("Diddy") Ray, State's band marched across the field and halted in front of Davidson's student body and host of supporters, where they then struck up Davidson's college song.

The band then turned about and with movements similar to a well-drilled military outfit, approached the State College stands, formed in the large "S" of State College, and struck up "State College, Keep Fighting Along!" The song was sung by hundreds of State College students.

Noon on Saturday found the streets of Greensboro crowded with State and Davidson supporters, autos "draped" in the respective college colors, and store windows displaying banners of both colleges. It was a "gala day" in that town.

Well, Davidson is out of the way. Here's hoping we go to the top of the slate.

Student government seems to be a live issue in all American colleges at present.

If you fail to get your TECHNICIAN please let the circulation manager know.

From all the noise on the floor above the remodeling of Holladay must have been started.

If things work right, this week's paper will be in the mail early Saturday morning, like last week's.

It is about time again to broadcast appeals for help on our office work. Present journalists are slowing up in their aspirations.

We just happened to note several marks of an eraser flat on the ceiling. Didn't know any of the staff were tall enough to reach that high.

We don't mean in the subsequent editorial that the cause assigned is the only factor in the student government. It is one of many contributory forces.

PROFS WHO CHEAT

We believe we can lay a finger now on exactly what is wrong with the local system of student government, and this is on the strength of what we have learned from discussions on the subject in different parts of the campus and among students.

It has recently come to our attention that certain instructors in some of the campus departments actually condone cheating to get students to register for their courses. This is shown by the report of one individual in speaking of an instructor leaving the classroom during a quiz with the admonition: "Now, boys, don't cheat TOO much."

We ask you: Can the honor system be expected to work here with such an attitude?

And some there are who say that to have the thing work best, the students must be trusted to look after it themselves. All right; what of the professors who separate their classes one seat during a quiz or those who number the rows vertically and give one set of questions to the odd numbers and another set to the even numbers? Of course, the students will take the attitude that if they can cheat and get away with it under such circumstances it is nothing out of the way. And perhaps they may be right.

Then, again, there is the instructor who remained in the classroom during the examination, but sat at his desk to peruse the morning paper. What the students were ignorant of was the fact that in the journal there was a small hole through which the professor closely watched his class for signs of dishonesty. Can this order long sustain?

There is yet to be mentioned the instructor on whose examination, it is said, all the class—13 or 14 in number—cheated, with the exception of one individual. When this individual called the attention of the teacher to the fact the latter refused to report the incident to the Student Council because "there were so many who were cheating." And when the one honest student in the class mentioned the fact to the student order, it was he who was tried and closely questioned, rather than those who had been guilty of the misdemeanor. Incidentally that student is not back in school this year.

The last incident has been mentioned as a parallel to the trial two years ago of the editor of The Waitegan, campus magazine, for the charges he had made against the Raleigh police force, instead of that organization being made accountable. And he was tried with his chief witness in another state, whence the local police could not extradite him.

The traditional cheating of one division of the college has become a source of campus amusement, and many humorous incidents have been manufactured on the subject. And the same thing goes on to a lesser degree in other parts of campus life.

We learned some time ago of two professors who, when the honor-system government was first established here, refused to leave their classrooms and leave the quizzes in the hands of the students entirely. They were afraid to trust them. And of course the students would try to get by with whatever they were able, just to show the instructors they could do it. How can student government exist under such an attitude on the part of many of the faculty members?

The instruction staff of the college has been said by some of its own members as being incapable of agreeing on any subject, of getting a unanimity on such a question especially. Then how can anything succeed?

It is our opinion that to have charge of the instruction and hence the shaping of the futures of any group of people such as college students is one of the greatest things in the modern social order. If those who are in charge and controlling the destiny of the future citizenry of a state cannot successfully carry out their commission, then it is a dastardly crime to continue in that capacity.

If the faculty of State College—meaning those individuals who can never take a social outlook on students and their problems—persist in such a thing as working contrary to all the laws of social behavior as some are now doing, there will be nothing but a terrific upheaval in the future lives of their students—an upheaval that could be traced directly back to the wrong principles and environment to which they were subjected on the campus.

God knows we have enough troubles. If some people would only learn that the laws of physics and chemistry will not apply to human beings; if they would realize that there is something else in this world except their own special field of knowledge and instruction, that often there are many things more important—then student problems would be made much simpler.

What we have set forth in this correspondence applies to other schools as well as to State College. The same thing is happening all over the country. What is needed is a change in the attitude of some of the narrowminded, bigoted, specialists, baptistic or methodistic, introspective individuals in charge of the shaping of the destinies of the race toward a broader outlook on life and the human race. God speed the day when a leader in this field shall appear. We shall give him our wholehearted support.

ANSWERING "ANONYMOUS"

There came to our desk this week an unsigned communication dealing with our editorial correspondence of last week. To "Mr. Anonymous" we extend thanks for calling to our attention the things he did. It is only by such criticism we can determine whether our opinions are based on what seems to us a firm foundation. We are grateful to him for asking us where we stand, because we possibly hadn't formulated it before.

The letter reads:
To the Editor:

I was very much surprised when I read the editorial column of THE TECHNICIAN of November 10.

There are THREE questions I would like to ask:

Is THE TECHNICIAN a Democratic political paper? If not, then: Why should ALL the slams go to the Republican party? Are you showing TRUE Americanism, spirit, and sportsmanship?

I think that when one gets in college it is his duty to lend a small part of his time to politics, but should a person take advantage of his position to slam the opposite party? That time will come when you enter politics. I am not grouchy, but I do believe in a square deal. Look into the records of the Democratic party. I am sure you will find some greasy spots. ANONYMOUS.

We are more than glad to answer the three questions:

(1) In this campaign THE TECHNICIAN was a Democratic political newspaper because it backed the Democratic nominee and the Democratic party because of the things for which they stood and because we have upheld the principles under which the party sprang into being.

(2) All the slams in last week's issue went to the Republican party because we felt the people of the United States were not being given a fair showing with all things aboveboard and squarely-met issues on the part of Republicanism and the Republican candidate. Yet one of the paragraphs certainly did not strike at the opposition, but at the Democratic senior Senator in the National Legislature.

(3) We believe we showed true "Americanism" in that we were ready to question the workings of government and political concepts, things that most people hold sacred, and which, thank God, are not. They are man-made and cannot progress if they are not examined. We do not know just how to take what he means by the abstract things of "spirit" and "sportsmanship."

The term "American" seems to us to need definition before we can take great issue with the writer of the letter on that phase. We might be arguing one way and he another. It is our opinion that the term stands for an attitude of mind toward national problems to support the best plan that would help the most people. It is a hard thing exactly to state.

If, then, one believes the class favoritism, corruption, grafting, and misdemeanors of the Republican party, as shown in the past eight years, are detrimental to the American nation, and as a consequence one upholds the principles of the other party, then is not that Americanism?

If one takes no interest in political affairs before one gets into the world of business, then can one be expected to care much whether the fortunes of the country go from bad to worse when he is out of college? No, our friend, it is our sincere belief that recognition of future partial responsibility for the affairs of the nation should be inculcated into the mind of every child before he is allowed to enter or graduate from high school.

The Republican party has seemed to us always to stand for privilege and favoritism, while the party of Jefferson has seemed to uphold the rights of the common people. One the servant of the aristocrats; the other the servant of the tillers of the soil and laborers—the middle classes.

We know very well that the Democratic party has many black blotches on its name in the past; it probably is considerably dark at present, were one to know all the facts of the matter. If the Democrats had been in power as long as the G. O. P., then they might be as corrupt as the latter are said to be; they might be even more so.

But the open misconduct of the existing order seems to us far harder to condone in its present history than what has been done in either party for times past. We mentioned last week that we should have to support the new president, although it might be distasteful to us; and probably you would have felt the same way had the Democratic nominee won the race.

Jefferson's conception of government as resting in the proletariat, the masses of the people, instead of a few capitalists, manufacturers, and property owners, seems to us to be the correct form for a democratic plan of government. Yet, we are glad the solid south was split, that the Democratic party was so broken, for out of the ruins will eventually arise a new party system, and in a few years it will be a question of whether the Liberal or the Conservative elements get hold of the reins of government. Today there is an element of each in both Republican and Democratic parties.

With Other Editors HONOR SYSTEM IN CHINA

Outbursts against the honor system, instead of being confined to this campus, seem to be world-wide, as evidenced by the uproar recently in Nanking, China, when civil examinations were disrupted by cries of "Cheat."

Speaking of Party Splits—

In defiance of the honor system, many students came to the examination room with notes hidden in their hats, shoes, socks, and even with textbooks concealed in their voluminous sleeves.

Honest students, upon spying the deceptive methods, began snatching away the papers of the cheaters and a free-for-all battle was waged in the classroom, to be quelled only by the arrival of the police.

The honor system was maintained, because the next day all students were carefully searched as they entered the room, and the supervised students resumed their examination in peace, according to an account in Times.

That Chinese methods of defying the honor system will not be adopted by the American university students is not greatly feared, since their coat sleeves will not permit concealment of texts, and they wear no hats in which to conceal their notes.

CARNEGIE developed the steel industry by first developing his men.

The Bell System is growing faster than ever before in its history and this growth, like the steel growth, is based on the development of men.

Today, in the telephone industry, men in supervisory positions must coordinate many and varied factors. For example, before locating a new central office, population trends are studied. While it is being built, telephone apparatus is planned, made, delivered and installed on orderly schedule.

But more basic than all this, the executive shows leadership by his insight into the human equation and by the sympathy and understanding with which he adapts individual to job, moulding his men first.

Porter and Monroe
Address Chemistry
Club At N. C. State

M. H. Porter, general superintendent of the gas division of the Carolina Power and Light Company, and E. F. Monroe, assistant superintendent of the Raleigh gas plant, addressed the Chemical Engineering Society Tuesday night. Mr. Porter discussed the economical and business side of gas manufacture and distribution and Mr. Monroe discussed the technical and operation phases of gas manufacture.

Monroe graduated in chemical engineering from State College in 1927 and since that time has been in charge of the gas manufacturing division of the Raleigh Gas Company. He has been so successful in his work in Raleigh that the Carolina Power and Light Company is transferring him to Asheville to take complete charge of the gas plant in that city.

The program for the evening had been arranged for a demonstration of the manufacture of artificial silk, but urgent business called Dr. Mitchell, who was to talk to New York, but he promised to address the society at a later date.

STUDENTS AND Y CABINET
ON NOVEMBER 17 AND 18

O. R. Magill, executive secretary of the student division of the national Y. M. C. A. for the southern region will visit State College November 17 and 18.

While here Mr. Magill will meet with the discussion group leaders and the Y Cabinet, and will talk with the cabinet members personally. His visit will bring inspiration to those who are responsible for the work of the local "Y," and will be a great help to the officers in planning the work of the "Y" for the next term.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock he will address the State-Meredith Sunday school class of the West Raleigh Presbyterian Church. The class extends a cordial invitation to all students to attend the meeting, which will be held in Pullen Hall.

This is Magill's second year in the southern region as executive secretary. He has had wide experience in student work, both in this country and in China. Under his leadership the student "Y" work in this region is making marked progress.

FRESHMEN PREPARING

Athletic Director J. F. Miller had his freshman gym classes running around the State College track during the past week in preparation for the freshman annual cross-country run of two and one-fourth miles.

Although the exact date has not been set for this race, all sophomores are anxiously awaiting the sound of the word "go." Well do they remember their race of last year. Fifteen of these sophomores are also wondering who will carry over the medals they won last year.

Horticulture Men To Organize New Society At State

At a meeting Monday afternoon, an interested group of juniors and seniors majoring in horticulture decided to organize a new campus club. It was suggested that it be called the State College Horticultural Society.

The object of such an organization would be to stimulate greater interest in and foster a better understanding of the educational value, research, professional possibilities, and ideals of horticulture and to carry these ideals to the student body and general public as far as possible. It was thought the society would afford an excellent opportunity for its members to become acquainted with and to know the outstanding leaders in the various branches of horticulture by inviting them to address the club at intervals during the school year. It was also suggested that the society offer opportunities for members to gain profit and experience in the art and practice of horticulture.

L. M. Stone, of the senior class, was elected temporary chairman. It was decided to extend invitations to all members of the college who are interested in the various branches of horticulture to attend a similar meet-

MORE SOCIETIES BOOST MOVEMENT STARTED BY SOCIAL FRATS RECENTLY

With the Thompkins Textile Society, the Junior Order of Saints, and the White Spades endorsing their recent action, the social fraternities of State College held a meeting Tuesday night at the Chi Tau house, when the better spirit movement was carried forward.

The most important plans discussed at the meeting was the sendoff which is being planned for the football players when they leave for Michigan next week. It was planned to have the band and the student body accompany the players to the station, thereby giving them a big sendoff to show them the entire school is behind the squad. Not only were plans made to give the team a sendoff, but on their return, conquerors or conquered, a warm reception was planned to await them.

It was also discussed pro and con of having fraternity men notify students in the dormitories of pep meetings and urge them to attend. In this connection it was planned to see Dean E. L. Cloyd in an effort to have him in his daily bulletins add the announcements of the pep meetings. In this it was aimed to get the faculty interested in this better spirit movement.

After various discussions it was decided to add various unique entertainments for the Duke-State clash Saturday on Riddick field.

The meeting Tuesday night was the second gathering of representatives of every social order at State College. The better spirit movement which is being sponsored by the Chi Tau fraternity and carried out by all the fraternities has attracted the attention of everyone connected with State College. Since its beginning alarming results have been noticed. In the State-Carolina clash the efforts of the fraternities began to materialize and it is said that in a short time this better movement will have accomplished great results.

Suggestions for improvement of the spirit on the campus will be gladly received, and it is requested that every State College man help put across this movement.

WOULD FOUND FRESHMAN HONOR SOCIETY AS AN AID TO LOCAL SCHOLARSHIP

An honor society for the freshman class was discussed Wednesday morning at chapel by Dean E. L. Cloyd. Its purposes are to get together the men of the freshman class who are interested in scholarship and leadership. The society is strictly honorary. There is nothing whatever in the way of social life. The requirements of this society are that the student must average A on one-half of his subjects and B on the other half. A society of this kind for freshmen who have three-fourths of their college life before them would mean a great deal for themselves and State College.

The training that they would get this early in their college life in the way of leadership and scholarship would mean much to them when they become juniors and seniors, it was mentioned.

What Shakespeare says about Coca-Cola

MEASURE FOR MEASURE Act 1, Scene 2

8 million a day - IT HAD TO BE GOOD TO GET WHERE IT IS

"Ever precise in promise keeping"

The point of Lucio's remark is not what he said it about, but what he said. It surely describes Coca-Cola, for consider these facts:

Pure as Sunlight

And the proof of its purity is in the testing. Twenty-two scientific tests, covering every step in its preparation, safeguard this pure drink of natural flavors.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield!"

It is considered the height of bad form, they say, to carry your own sandwiches to a tea—or to pack your own blanket for the week-end—but luckily, no such outlandish conventions surround the smoking of your own cigarette.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield," fortunately, is a phrase which not only remains "good cricker" in polite circles—but at the same time brands the smoker as a person of rare discernment and excellent discrimination. And small wonder, considering all the remark implies. Good taste, top quality, the rare sparkle of tobacco goodness—all these combine to justify the choice of that man who thus shows his keen judgment.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield"—a neat line, that—the mark of a real connoisseur and the password of six million smokers.
