WOLFPACK Baseball 1978

SAM ESPOSITO

Head Baseball Coach

Sam Esposito has become one of the most respected men in collegiate baseball.

In 11 seasons at the helm, the former major league has guided the Wolfpack to four Atlantic Coast Conference championships, a third-place finish in the national tournament at Omaha and has not experienced a single losing campaign. Under his direction, the Pack has had seven seasons when it won 20 or more games.

Against ACC competition, Esposito's teams have etched a 109-66-1 record, and for all games, the mark stands at 230-118-3 for a winning percentage of .661.

The apex of his 11-year N.C. State career came in 1968 when he steered the Wolfpack to the league championship, the NCAA District III title and a third-place finish in the collegiate World Series as the team ended with a 25-9 overall record. At one stretch (1973-74-75), the Pack captured three consecutive conference crowns, and, in 1975, notched its best ever record, 27-7.

A native of Chicago, Esposito cut short an outstanding collegiate career at Indiana University to join the Chicago White Sox after his sophomore season. He remained in the majors for ten seasons as an infielder and helped the Chisox reach the 1959 World Series. He later returned to Indiana to earn both an undergraduate and a graduate degree.

After six years of prep coaching in East Chicago, he joined the Wolfpack as head baseball and assistant basketball coach, a double post that he still fills.

The 46-year-old Esposito, married to the former Noreer Anderson of Chicago, has been singled out for numerous honors, including NCAA District III Coach-of-the-Year in 1968, and cowinner of the coveted Will Wynne Award, also in 1968. In October of 1972, he was inducted into the South Chicago Sports Hall of Fame, and two months later, he was tapped for similar recognition by the Illinois Basketball Hall of Fame.

The Espositos are the parents of a baby daughter, Antoinette.

JIM EDWARDS

Assistant Baseball Coach

J. B. (Jim) Edwards, who reached Triple-A ranks as a minor league shortstop, is in his 23rd season as an assistant coach at N. C. State University.

An N. C. State graduate, Jim earned an industrial arts degree in 1948. In 1951, he decided to leave his baseball career and join the staff at N. C. State. He is now an associate professor of physical education. World War II interrupted a college career that saw him voted all-State in baseball and win the 175-pound Southern Conference wrestling title.

A Lincolnton native who grew up at Wilmington, Jim spent four seasons as a Carolina League shortstop. He played with Buffalo (AAA) in 1950 while a member of the Philadelphia Athletics organization. Jim holds a Master's degree in physical education, and is married to the former Odessa Williams of Robbins. They have a daughter, Gail.

THE 1978 OUTLOOK

With voids left by graduation to be filled, the Wolfpack will use many new and different faces defensively this season while relying heavily on a strong pitching corps returning intact.

"We lost about seven guys who played a lot of ball for us last year, and we're really gonna miss them," says coach Sam Esposito, beginning his 12th season at N.C. State. "But almost the whole pitching staff is back and if last year is any indication, we'll be very strong on the mound."

State, which has authored 20 or more wins in each of the last five seasons, returns 12 lettermen, of which seven are hurlers including John Skinner, who as a freshman, led the Atlantic Coast Conference last year on the mound.

Skinner, a righthander, pitched to a perfect 7-0 mark and a sparkling 1.23 earned run average. Other hurlers returning are lefthanders Tom Willette (4-3), Doug Huffman (4-4), Doug Satterwhite (2-0) Rich Spanton (3-1) and Bob Harrison (2-1) and righthander Frank Bryant (2-1).

Other pitchers who will see duty on the mound this spring include righthanders John Walker, Mike Garrell and Dave Whitmire and lefthander John Dury.

"This may be the strongest pitching staff I've ever had at N.C. State," says Esposito. "We've got a good blend of starters, long relievers and short relievers."

Anchoring the bats will be junior second-baseman Chuck Harman who hit .374 a year ago, finishing fifth in the league just .002 out of second.

Also returning are junior third baseman-outfielder Tom Crocker (.301), senior centerfielder Roy Dixon (.273) sophomore first baseman John Isley (.278) and sophomore third baseman-shortstop Ray Tanner (.277).

A pair of sophomores, John Meloy and Pat Sheehy, are expected to share the catching duties. Both saw limited action as freshman.

Esposito plans to use different combinations through the field, searching for a working combination. "We have the potential to have a great ball club this year, especially with the fine pitching staff. We just have to put the right people in the other spots," he says.

Dixon will once again play the centerfield spot, as he has steadily done so since coming to State. Joining him in the outer gardens could include junior college transfer Rich White, Crocker, who has played infield his first two years and Isley.

The infield will see a couple of new faces along with some returnees. Isley is expected back at first base while Harman returns to second. The shortstop spot could go to another junior college transfer, Bill Maier. With Crocker moving to the outfield, third base will find Ray Tanner, who anchored shortstop last season.

"Our weakness this year will be hitting," says Esposito, who hasn't come up with a designated hitter as of yet. "We'll have to scratch for a lot of runs. We have decent team speed, and we are better defensively than we were last year.

"We'll have to rely a lot this year on pitching and defense. If we end up being just as good as we were last year then I'll be pleased."

His teams have won four NCAA and nine national individual AAU titles, as well as several AAU national team titles. He coached the American swimming team which represented the United States in Japan in 1959, and he took three Olympic champions to Paris, France, for swimming in 1969.

North Carolina State University

North Carolina State University is a large and complex state university. A leading national higher education commission has classified NCSU as a Research University, Class 1, testimony to its major role as a research institution. Its academic excellence is well represented in its 80-plus academic programs, a number of which are ranked among the top half dozen in the U.S.

N. C. State was founded under terms of the federal Land-Grant Act (the Morrill Act) of 1962 and shares the distinctive characteristic of these institutions broad academic offerings, large scale extension and research programs, and extensive responsibilities in international

Dr. Joab L. Thomas Chancellor and national affairs.

The research work spans a broad spectrum of about 700 scientific, technological and scholarly endeavors of over $20 million annually.

Its rich and varied academic programs are comprised of some 80 bachelors of arts and science, 68 masters and 46 doctoral degree fields.

Extension programs are similarly diverse and encompass such areas as urban affairs; marine sciences; environmental protection; engineering, industrial, business and textiles extension; agricultural extension and others.

The main campus of 600 acres (2500 in the Raleigh area) is valued at $150 million and has 120 buildings. There are 4,600 employees, including the 1,600 faculty and professional staff members, 1,075 of whom are graduate faculty.

The University's total enrollment is approximately 17,700, of which 2,800 are in graduate programs. Students come from all 50 states and more than 60 nations, giving the University a rich cosmopolitan atmosphere.

Chancellor Thomas has described NCSU as a 'magnet of progress,'' noting that its faculty have been attracted from more than 100 of the top universities of the nation and the world. Some 30 nations are represented. A recent study showed that the Research Triangle area has more Ph.D.'s proprotionate to population than any other in the nation. The Triangle universities, State, Duke and UNC-Chapel Hill, plus the Research Triangle Park between them, constitute an extraordinary concentration of knowledge.

Opportunity and progress for individuals and society has always been guideposts for N. C. State. They still are, but now, with N. C. State's stature, the people are benefitting from the University's achievements at an accelerating rate.
