SUPPORT THE WOLFPACK!

THE WOLFPACK MEETS NEWBERRY'S INDIANS

STATE College is happy to welcome tonight thousands of high school seniors. . . . This afternoon they inspected the campus and saw the institution's facilities for turning out engineers, farmers, teachers, and textile executives. . . . Tonight they get a chance to see one of the most important phases of extra-curricular activity—football.

State is also happy to welcome back an alumnus, Billy Laval, veteran coach of the Newberry Indians. . . . Back in 1905 he was a star member of the baseball team here. . . . He left school to take up the diamond profession and later got into coaching. . . . For a long time he coached the Furman Purple Hurricane, and he was the one who founded the famous "House of Magic" at the South Carolina college. . . . Later he coached the University of South Carolina in his native Columbia. . . . He is still active—interested in baseball and has served as a scout for several major league clubs. . . .

Newberry is a small college, but it's well known in the football world. . . . Last year the Indians had a great season, winning three championship titles—the South Carolina Little Four, the South Atlantic League, and the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. . . . That team scored 249 points to 48 for its opponents, and Don Colangelo, quarterback and co-captain, made the Little All-America team. . . . One of its outstanding performances in 1940 was a 36-0 victory over Lenoir-Rhyne. . . .

The Indians are big and have a tricky attack. . . . Coach Laval's clubs always have played a colorful brand of ball. . . . The Newberry tackles will be the largest the Wolfpack will have to face this season. . . . State is favored, but in football anything can happen. . . .

This will be the first non-conference opponent for the Wolfpack which has played Richmond, Davidson, Clemson, Furman, and Wake Forest on successive Saturdays. . . . This will also be the last night game of the season and the next-to-last contest for Riddick Stadium. . . .

There are some big attractions coming up on the schedule. . . . Next week in Chapel Hill the 'Pack will attempt to do something that a State football team hasn't been able to do since 1927. . . . That, of course, is to get a victory over the University of North Carolina Tar Heels. . . . Last year Doc Newton's boys played one of their best games of the season against Carolina and almost got a victory. . . . The Tar Heels will be ready this time and won't be caught by surprise, but the Wolfpack is getting mighty hungry for a win over its traditional foe. . . .

Tonight marks the last time this season that the Wolfpack will enter a game as the favorite. . . . After Newberry come North Carolina, Virginia Tech, Georgetown, Duke, and William and Mary in that order. . . . That's a mighty tough road. . . . The game with Virginia Tech will be played in Winston-Salem and should be one of the best of the year. . . . The Gobblers gained national attention several weeks ago by upsetting the powerful Georgetown Hoyas, 3-0. . . . D. H.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE RELIES ON SEAL-O-SAN

Give a big hand to Seal-O-San this fall when you see those spectacular basketball games in Frank Thompson Gymnasium. For with a 100% non-slippery finish on the floor, you see faster footwork . . . speedier dribbling . . . more confident shooting.

Today, more than 5,000 schools rely on slip-proof Seal-O-San for help in turning out winning teams.

Coaches and school officials are invited to write for complete details.

A vintage black and white illustration for a Coca-Cola advertisement. A man and a woman are sitting on a set of stairs. The man, on the left, is wearing a light-colored jacket and is smiling while holding a Coca-Cola bottle. The woman, on the right, is wearing a dark dress with a large white flower corsage and is also smiling, holding a Coca-Cola bottle. The background is dark, and the stairs have a simple railing. The overall mood is romantic and social.

THE NEW RULES

By EDDIE DOOLEY

THE FOOTBALL rule changes this year, like a crème de menthe frappé, are short and sweet. They are easy to remember, and while apparently insignificant, will have marked effect on the game. Usually when changes are made in the mandates covering the game, there is quite a howl from coaches whose pet ideas are not part of the innovations. This time, however, almost all the football mentors in the circuit put their stamp of approval on the work of the rules committee.

This year, a team can make as many substitutions as it wishes, and the same player may return to the game in the same period in which he was withdrawn. Off-hand, the conclusion might be that this provision will work an injustice on small teams who are short of reserves. Since they have not as many substitutes they cannot meet the influx of fresh players sent into the fray by the opposing team.

The fact of the matter is, small teams get a break by reason of this new rule. Formerly a player taken out of the game in one quarter could not go back into action in the same session. Not infrequently small teams playing elevens of size and affluence found themselves in the embarrassing predicament of being shorthanded. Having sent all their reserves in the final quarter, the coach had to sit by and watch his men take a terrific trimming even though they might scarcely have been able to stand up. But under the new arrangement, there can be more interchanges of players, and the natural result will be a constant supply of fresh men going into the game. The weary player can be relieved repeatedly.

Spectators who fear football will be ruined by too many substitutions must not forget that in close games, coaches are unwilling to send in substitutes without good reason. They believe it is poor policy to send a boy to do a man's work, and if the sub were as good as the regular, he would have started the game anyway. If the game is a rout — well, who wants to stay to see the finish?

The most important change is that which permits the ball to be handed forward to a player in the backfield. Many teams have had plays in recent years which flagrantly violated the rule prohibiting a forward pass from less than five yards back of the line of scrimmage. But officials were lax about calling infractions, and little was done about enforcing the rule.

Under the present mandate, a back can go ripping towards the line, and just before he ploughs through, he can hand the ball to a teammate going the other way. Formerly it was necessary to hand the ball laterally or backwards on such a play. Not now. Any lineman, provided he is a yard back of the line of scrimmage and facing his own goal line, may carry the ball when handed to him by a back. This does not mean that guards and tackles will be seen running around like backs. Having a lineman play as a back does not help much, and the chances are there will not be many plays involving linemen handling the ball.

Another important change has to do with the pass. Formerly a fourth down pass incomplete in the end zone resulted in a touchback. If team A was on the five yard line, and had an incomplete pass over the goal line, it meant the other team took the ball on the 20 yard line, — a loss of fifteen precious yards. Under the new rule, the incomplete pass in the end zone is regarded as any other play, and the defending team takes possession at the point where the last play started.

This will encourage passing into the end zone, especially on fourth down. It will throw a heavier burden on a team with its back to the wall, because it will not find itself in such a safe position as formerly, when a fourth down pass went bad in the end zone resulting in a touchback.

The other change has to do with a player of the kicking team illegally touching a ball inside the opponent's ten yard line. This was often done to avoid the ball rolling over for a touchback. Now the rules in such an instance say a touchback is automatically declared when a player touches the ball illegally in this ten yard zone. In other words, it's hands-off the ball when it's bouncing around near the goal line. And that means a break for the receiving team.
