The Wolfpack Personnel

A combination of returning veterans and more new faces than in the past two or three seasons, will be the player backbone of the 1964 Wolfpack. The Pack lost 16 lettermen, but returns 13 men who earned their battle scars and letters on the 1963 Atlantic Coast Conference co-championship team.

Ray Barlow, as sound a two-way performer as there is in the ACC, and academic whiz Bill Hall head the end corps. Three veterans return at tackle, with Glenn Sasser, Rosie Amato, and Steve Parker possessing size and strength. Tackle will be a Wolfpack strong point. Bennett Williams is expected to be one of the ACC's best as he heads the list of four lettermen at guard, which include Silas Snow, Golden Simpson and Whitey Martin.

Center Lou DeAngelis, co-captain with Williams, is called by Edwards, "the best linebacker at State in my 11 years here."

Jimmy Guin, is the only veteran halfback. He'll go at wingback again, after being the number two pass receiver in 1963. Most of the teams in the ACC have been boasting about their fullbacks, but the Wolfpack's duo of Pete Falzarano and Gus Andrews will take a back seat to none. Falzarano has averaged four yards per carry in his 129 rushing attempts.

Some of the new faces expected to play a vital role in the 1964 Wolfpack fortunes include senior Ron Skosnik and sophomore Charlie Noggle at quarterback; sophs Bill Gentry, Charles Tayloe, and Gary Whitman at end; halfbacks Shelby Mansfield, Larry Brown, Gary Rowe, Don DeArment and Wendell Coleman; guards Bobby Smith and Terry Jenkins; center Dave Everett; and tackles Leland Hughes and Dave Ellis.

The potential is there, but experience isn't, in a good many cases.

1964

As Earle Edwards Sees It

"Experience, wonderful determination, and team spirit were vital factors in the makeup of last year's fine State football team which won a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference title. I feel strongly that this 1964 team will have the latter two traits. If our returning players can continue their play of last year, and if some of our new players reach their potential early, there is no reason to be pessimistic about our team in 1964.

"However, there is no substitute for experience, especially when you have to face the opposition we must meet. There aren't many teams in the nation that will play teams with the strength and reputations of our first five opponents: North Carolina, Clemson, Maryland, Alabama and Duke. Our young players must mature in a hurry. But we don't concede any games!

"We have some good football players—several that could be outstanding and gain all-star recognition—and we should be able to field one team that can hold its own in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Naturally we are counting heavily on veterans like Pete Falzarano (fb) and Jimmy Guin (wb) in our backfield, and Ray Barlow (e), Bill Hall (e), Glenn Sasser (t), Rosie Amato (t), Silas Snow (g), Whitey Martin (g), and our co-captains, Bennett Williams (g) and Lou DeAngelis (c), up front.

"Our chief concern will be a matter of depth and of inexperience in certain key positions. We must find replacements for Joe Scarpati, Merrick Barnes, Tony Koszarsky and Mike Clark in our defensive secondary, for our punter Dave Houtz, and for Jim Rossi at quarterback. As you can see, most of the losses were in our backfield.

"The two leading candidates for quarterback, senior Ron Skosnik and sophomore Charles Noggle, are almost completely void of varsity experience. This could be a significant factor in the performance of our team.

"Our strength should lie in a sound first-unit line, a good one-two punch at fullback, and the competitive battle for some of the top playing positions. We hope these factors can overcome some of our short-comings.

"We'll make every effort to be ready for the opening game as we look forward to an extremely interesting season. We hope you'll find it an exciting season following the Wolfpack in 1964."

Toss Clemson, Maryland and South Carolina (for Homecoming) into Riddick Stadium, and a spicy, colorful home schedule is brewing for Wolfpack football fans in 1964.

State's defending Atlantic Coast Conference co-champions defeated all three rivals enroute to its ACC title, so it is certain that Clemson (Sept. 26), Maryland (Oct. 3), and South Carolina (Oct. 31), will marshall all their forces against the Pack in '64.

Coach Frank Howard calls his fullback Pat Crain "the best back in the conference," and his backfield "the best we've had in a decade." Obviously the Tigers are going to make a strong run, again, for ACC honors! Colorful Maryland, a 14-6 winner over the Pack two years ago here, will be a typical wide-open styled Tom Nugent team. South Carolina returns more lettermen than any team in the ACC for 1964, with effective Deacon Dan Reeves at quarterback for Coach Marvin Bass' Gamecocks.

Meanwhile on the Road . . .

Bring your sunshades with you as the Wolfpack opens its 1964 season against the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in Chapel Hill, on Sept. 19. The Tar Heels expect another bright season, but you'll be guaranteed of your "place in the sun" when you get your ticket orders in early for this family feud. Alabama, whom the forecasters say will be one of the nation's top three teams in 1964; Duke, co-favored with UNC for ACC honors; Virginia's dark-horse Cavaliers; Bob Schweickert-led Virginia Tech; spoiler Florida State; and Wake Forest, with its new-approach coaching staff, are the formidable road opponents.
