1966 OUTLOOK

North Carolina State's young football squad of 1965 matured at mid-season and won its last five games. Thirty-one lettermen return for 1966 from that team, which finished with a 6-4 overall record and one-half game out of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference race.

Experience will be one of the Wolfpack's strongest assets with a letterman back to fill all but two starting positions—offensive center and one of the cornerback positions in the defensive secondary.

The Wolfpack lost all-ACC Tony Golmont and three-year veteran Larry Brown from the secondary, which set a new school record of 23 pass interceptions. The offensive center spot, filled ably the past two seasons by Charles Bradburn, must be manned by sophomores Carey Metts and John McDuffie.

State should have a solid defensive front, headed by all-America candidates Dennis Byrd at tackle and Pete Sokalsky at end. Both Byrd and Sokalsky gained 1965 all-ACC honors.

Middle guard Bob Smith and right-side starters Trent Holland, at tackle, and Gary Whitman, at end, return, as do regular replacements John Monago at tackle and Terry Brookshire at middle guard. Three of the four lettermen linebackers, Chuck Amato, Dave Everett and Ron Jackson, also return.

Offensively, the Wolfpack has as much depth and size in the backfield as it has had in Edwards' 13 years at State.

"While we have a balanced backfield, it will be hard to match the season Shelby Mansfield gave us last year at halfback," says Edwards in citing the Wolfpack's chief backfield loss.

Quarterback Charlie Noggle, wingbacks Gary Rowe and Wendell Coleman, and halfback Don DeArment, all are two-time letter winners. Fullback Bill Wyland, who averaged 3.5 yards per carry last year, heads the fullback corps which has standout sophomores Bobby Hall and Settle Dockery lending support. Hard-running Tony Barchuk and speedy sophomore Leon Mason are pushing DeArment for the top halfback spot, while Jim Donnan, who lettered mainly as a punter, and left-handed sophomore Jack Klebe, give solid support to Noggle at quarterback.

There are three lettermen at right end in Bill Gentry, Don Donaldson and Charlie Tayloe. Harry Martell, who caught State's only TD pass last year, is a letterman split end. Sophomore Fred Bivens backs up Martell, and like Donaldson, can play either split or tight end. Lettermen Lloyd Spangler and Steve Warren are the tentative offensive tackle starters. Four lettermen are available for guard duty with 1965 all-ACC John Stec, a candidate for further honors this year, the leader. Terry Jenkins figures to start at right guard, with juniors Flake Campbell and Norman Cates in reserve.

Earle Edwards, holding five home game tickets, indicates there are plenty of good seats to 1966 Wolfpack Football in Carter Stadium.

EARLE EDWARDS: "We have pretty good depth with the ability close at many positions. Fullback is one of our strongest positions, while we could be as well off at quarterback as we were in 1965. We have some good men returning up front, and we regard tackle Dennis Byrd and end Pete Sokalsky as ranking with the best players in the nation. We must fill holes in the secondary, and eliminate critical mistakes if we are to be a solid team in 1966. The work of our freshman in the spring drills was most encouraging, although very few are likely to break in right away. I think there are more bonafide teams regarded as conference contenders than at any time in the ACC's history. Just throw the names in a hat and draw them out. As the number of upsets increase, I don't see how you can make any pre-season choice. However, the Wolfpack will make every effort to meet head-on the challenge of our rugged 1966 schedule.
