1971 OUTLOOK

Added backfield speed, the return of 26 lettermen and a number of talented sophomores could blend into a formula that may see the Wolfpack recover from its frustrating ways of a year ago when the record was a less-than-pleasing 3-7-1.

Even Earle Edwards, a man who invariably follows the "wait and see" policy, voiced cautious optimism following the Red-White spring game which saw the offense dominate the intra-squad battle with 11 touchdowns and a field goal.

VERSATILE ON OFFENSE

"I think there's more talent on the squad now than we've had the last couple of years," said the adroit Wolfpack head coach. "With the material at hand, we certainly should be more versatile on offense than we were last season."

Edwards, however, qualified his enthusiastic comment with the sobering observation that "we only have ten seniors back and that means we'll be short of playing experience."

A key to how well the Wolfpack fares this fall will depend heavily on the performance at quarterback, a position that remains unsettled despite the return of both 1970 lettermen. Senior Dennis Britt, who occupied the spot at the conclusion of the season, and junior Pat Korsnick, his early season predecessor in the post, will resume their battle for starting honors in pre-season drills this fall and may wind up sharing the signal-calling role.

Pushing the two for the assignment and likely to see some action is the sophomore tandem of Joe Giles and Bruce Shaw, and junior Gary Clements.

"Giles and Shaw proved pleasant surprises in the spring game," said Edwards. "Both were impressive and threw the ball pretty well."

KENNEY LEADS RUNNERS

If Edwards and his staff can find the answer at quarterback, then the rest of the offensive backfield should present no problem. Pat Kenney, the team's leading ground gainer last season with a 4.7 average and a top nominee for all-conference honors this fall, returns to head a corps of high-stepping backs, which also includes Don Bradley.

The flashy Kenney will team with fullback Gary Moser to provide both experience and talent while the presence of Willie Burden, Mike Stultz and Charley Young, all sophomores, should give State's offense more explosive power than it's packed for several seasons.

All three possess blistering speed and are rated superior open-field runners. Burden, a blocky 195-pounder, figures to be the starter at running back while Stultz and Young will serve as understudies to Kenney and Moser.

On the offensive line, the Wolfpack will have three starters back in the persons of Bill Culbertson at center and guards Bill Yoest and John Saunderson. Heber Whitley and John Elliott are the top tackles, while Gary Saul and Steve Lester will step up to man the flanks. All four earned letters as reserves last year.

EXPERIENCED DEFENSE

The Wolfpack definitely will have more experience on defense with eight starters returning, but a lack of depth and some injury recoveries appear to be problems.

Middle guard George Smith, a rugged competitor and an all-ACC performer last year, tops the list of defensive returnees along with end Clyde Chesney and safety Van Walker. But Smith and Chesney both underwent leg operations during the winter and did not take part in spring drills. Walker, a solid candidate for all-league honors, led the secondary in 1970 with seven interceptions.

Linebacking figures to be a team strongpoint with the threesome of Bryan Wall, Stauber Wilson and Ed Hoffman returning after fine sophomore apprenticeships a year ago. Other veterans back for another season are tackle Roger McSwain and defensive backs Bill Miller and Tom Siegfried. Tackle Dan Medlin, a starter last year, missed spring practice because of academics and may not return.

SOPHS HAVE PROMISE

Most promising among the defensive sophomores are Dick Curran at tackle, Bobby Pilz, a probable starter at cornerback, linebacker Ken Sheesley, and linemen Rick Druschel and Bob Brooks.

State's improved running game, which should see the team exercising the option play more than in the past, should also perk up the passing attack. Best among the receivers are Lester, Kenney and Pete Blocklin.

The kicking assignments are still up for grabs. Korsnick and end Mark Cassidy will vie for the punting duties while Mike Charron and Sam Harrell, who alternated the job last year, are again candidates as place-kicking specialists.

COACH'S COMMENTS

“We were quite pleased with spring practice, namely because of the fine effort and attitude. Both the players and the coaches felt we made a good deal of progress. We worked very hard on some of our shortcomings that were apparent last season and I thought the results of our spring game indicated we had achieved a certain amount of success.

“Our quarterbacks (Dennis Britt and Pat Korsnick) seem to have profited from their ‘education’ of last season, which they played without previous experience. This was true in other positions, too, where we used so many new men. An example is the linebacking corps. Three men (Stauber Wilson, Bryan Wall and Ed Hoffman) started from scratch last season, handled the job pretty well, and all three will be back.

“One of the best things to come out of our spring drills was the evidence of considerable ability among some of our rising sophomores. Willie Burden and Charley Young looked good among the backs and so did Bruce Shaw, Donnie Hall and Bob Divens. A number of the linemen will also figure prominently in our plans. Included in this group are Howard Bradburn, Rick Druschel and Bob Brooks, as well as several others who have shown very good potential.

“The schedule, as usual, is a challenge since we play all of the conference teams. The outsiders won’t be any easier, particularly teams like Miami and Penn State. But we’ve always favored a strong, representative schedule and we’re glad we have one this season.

“At present, we are somewhat optimistic, a trait that is inherent in all teams starting fresh again in the fall. It would be very helpful to get off to a favorable start, but that is something we won’t know about until the actual season begins.”
