Joyous Wolfpackers Head For Lockerroom After Big Win Over Carolina

The Wolfpack's Season (7-3-1) In Review

RALEIGH—Quarterback Dave Buckey became State's all-time total offense leader during the opener against East Carolina, boosting his career mark to 3,354 yards while moving the Pack to a 26-3 victory.

His 99 yards gained and a sturdy defense, which set up three second-half scores and generally bottled up the Pirates' attack, were key factors.

Buckey completed 7 of 14 passes for 103 yards, four to brother Don for 68 yards. Eight State runners netted 198 on the ground.

WAKE FOREST 30, STATE 22

RALEIGH—Wake Forest took its first ACC victory in three seasons at the expense of State, 30-22, ending the Pack's 16-game unbeaten streak in Carter Stadium.

Dave Buckey connected on 13 of 26 passes for 187 yards and two State touchdowns, while rushing for a third. Full-back Johnny Evans ran for 100 yards and Don Buckey caught five passes for 94 yards, as the Pack outgained the visitors, 374-318.

STATE 8, FLORIDA 7

RALEIGH—A 38-yard scoring pass from Dave Buckey to Elijah Marshall and Johnny Evans' conversion run with 3:15 to play proved the undoing of potent Florida as the Wolfpack stopped the eventual Gator Bowl participant, 8-7.

Defensively, tackle Dan Meier recovered a fumble at the Gator 38 and State scored on the next play. Back Eddie Poole recovered a fumble on the next Florida possession to preserve the win, and middle guard Tom Higgins earned National Lineman-of-the-Week honors for his efforts.

STATE 27, INDIANA 0

RALEIGH—State unveiled a Baby Brigade of runners, three freshmen and one sophomore, and ground out 364 rushing yards and a 27-0 win over Indiana.

Freshman Ted Brown carried 17 times for 121 yards and two scores in his varsity debut, while the defense carved its first shutout in three seasons. Scott Wade (55 yards) and Tim Johnson (25 yards) scored once each, while Rickey Adams bolted for a total of 62 yards.

MARYLAND 37, STATE 22

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—Dave Buckey's pin-point passing (19 of 31 for 214 yards) and 375 yards of total offense weren't enough as State dropped a 37-22 decision to Maryland.

Ted Brown rushed for 80 yards as State drove at will on the hosts, but fumbles lost at the Pack's own 13 and 22 gave the Terps two easy fourth-quarter scores and the win.

STATE 21, UNC-CHAPEL HILL 20

RALEIGH—A pair of two-point conversions—State's made, UNC's missed—spelled the difference in the Wolfpack's heart-stopping 21-20 win over the Tar Heels.

After Ted Brown (18 carries for 106 yards) scored his second TD of the day with 3:43 to play, Johnny Evans passed to Don Buckey for two points.

The visitors scored with 0:12 left, but Tom Higgins & Co. repelled their two-pointer for the win.

STATE 15, PENN STATE 14

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.—For the second year in a row, N. C. State upset

Sugar Bowl participant Penn State, 15-14, in a bitter defensive struggle.

With the Nittany Lions leading 14-0, Dave Buckey drove State to a score with 20 seconds remaining in the first half. He took State 76 yards in eight snaps after the second-half kickoff to close to a 14-12 score.

Jay Sherrill's 24-yard field goal with 13:48 to play provided the winning points. Ted Brown rushed for 148 yards and Buckey hit on 10 of 21 tosses for 159 yards.

The Holtz family (L-R) Beth, Skip, Elizabeth, Lou, K. R. and Luanne.

The Other Side Of State Coach Lou Holtz

Lou Holtz leaned over the billiard table, sized up the difficult side-pocket shot, and groaned in mock horror as the three-ball refused to find the target. He turned to his younger son, Kevin, and said, "Dad's in a little trouble, Kev." The youngest of his four children, six-year-old Elizabeth, was philosophical: "That's the way the game goes, Dad."

It was a family scene that is repeated often in homes everywhere. Parents and children, together for a few brief hours, enjoying their games and hobbies. In the case of the family of North Carolina State's football coach, however, there was one thing that set this family scene apart from most others.

This scene was rare.

For nine months of each year, Beth

Holtz and her four children see less of their husband and father than they would prefer. The demands of his work are enormous, the travel frequent, and the pressures great. But during the summer, between the football season itself and the rigors of recruiting and spring practice, the Lou Holtz family makes up for the remainder of the year.

In the Holtz' new home in Cary's MacGregor Downs, only the plaques, trophies, and pictures on the walls—one signed by Woody Hayes of Ohio State, another by Paul Dietzel, formerly of South Carolina—suggest that this family is a football family. Otherwise, the trappings are familiar: billiards, ping-pong, and, in the outside yard, a trampoline.

"The entire family derives many benefits from Lou's being in coaching," said Beth Holtz, a tanned, attractive wife who is as active as her children. "We've had the opportunity to travel to many places when Lou speaks at clinics, and, of course, we've been to the bowl games (four years in succession for the Wolfpack), which are real pleasure trips for the wives and children."

At home, the Holtz family participates in a variety of activities. Luanne, who is 13 and in the eighth grade, enjoys ceramics, likes to swim, and has won two trophies on championship softball teams in the Cary Recreation League. She's a catcher, a position that does not particularly please her. "It's too hot with all that equipment on, but I like to hit," she said. And how is she with the bat? "Oh, I hit okay sometimes." She also admits having a boyfriend—name not revealed.

"Luanne is very interested in working with young children," Mrs. Holtz said. "She earns money babysitting, and she plans to work as a hospital volunteer in a couple of years, when she's old enough."

The older son, Skip, is an 11-year-old sixth-grader who owns five of the nine trophies on the family room mantle. His little league baseball team has been in the local world series three years in a row, winning the title once. And last season, he and brother K. R. played on the Bengals football team in Cary, although Skip, a quarterback, graduates to a team in a league for older players this fall.

"Skip also tried to be Evel Knievel one Sunday last year," Lou Holtz recalled, "and he broke his arm. A week later, he won the city punt-pass-kick competition."

Kevin, who likes to be called K. R., is nine and a fourth-grader. He's been part of a championship little league baseball team and is a football safety, cornerback, and guard. Two of the trophies on the mantle—"Where Lou's trophies used to be, until the children made room for theirs," smiled Beth—are K. R.'s.

The youngest, Liz, is a first-grader. Although only six, she holds her own with her tennis racket, plays billiards with a cue that seems custom-made for her size, and enjoys swimming.

"Liz is a great ball girl when we play tennis," her father said. Although golf has long been a favorite diversion of the coach, Beth and the three older children now take tennis lessons, and, the coach noted, "Beth is turning us into a tennis family." This fall, Liz will begin gymnastics lessons, Skip will continue to learn golf and play three sports, and Luanne might repeat as a recreation league cheerleader.

"The trophies the children have won say a great deal for the Cary Recreation Department," Mrs. Holtz said. "It's a great program, and the people who run it do a fantastic job.

"The children are serious about what they do," she added. "When they become involved in a sport or some other activity, they stick with it and are dedicated to it. All of us have found this to be a wonderful place to live."

Mrs. Holtz concentrates her activities around athletics and school. She is a volunteer in the library at Cary's Kingswood School and tries each year to serve as a grademother chairman for at least one of her children. She is also active in charitable organizations, as is her husband, who works with the North Carolina Cancer Crusade.

The coach recently read a book designed to shave strokes from golf scores, and he must have studied it well. During one stretch, he posted 10 straight rounds in the 70's, and now his associates in the NCSU Athletics Department usually run the other way when he seeks a summertime golf game.

During most of the year, the summertime activities of the coach take second place to football, although the remainder of the family stays active. Beth and the older children enjoy seeing Wolfpack games, and one year, Liz was a mascot for the Wolfpack cheerleaders.

"We sometimes entertain following a game," Beth said, "but it's mostly an informal, drop-in affair involving a small group of people. We enjoy being together as a family when a game is over. And, although Lou's schedule sometimes makes it difficult, we always try to be together for church on Sunday."

One of the plaques on a wall in the family room offers the message, "Pray as though everything depends on God . . . work as though everything depends on you." To which the Lou Holtz family might add, "And when you can make the time, do something together."

The Astro-Bluebonnet In 1974

HOUSTON, Tex.—An electrifying rally by N. C. State, including a one-yard touch-down plunge by Dave Buckey and a two-point conversion by Stan Fritts, carried the Wolfpack to a 31-31 tie with Houston in the nationally-televised 1974 Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

The Wolfpack, which was playing in its third consecutive post-season bowl, took the early lead on a 37-yard field goal by John Huff in the first quarter and made it 10-3 at the half on an 11-yard touchdown run by Roland Hooks in the second period. Houston's only points in the first half came on Lennard Coplin's 21-yard field goal in the second stanza.

After accounts were squared at 17-all early in the final period, Houston jumped to a 31-17 lead on a record 73-yard touch-down pass from Bubba McGallion to Eddie Foster and a short scoring plunge by full-back John Housman. But the Wolfpack, a slight underdog, stormed back with its tying points in a 1:21 stretch.

State began its next-to-last drive with a first and 25 on its own 15-yard line. Seven plays later, sophomore running back Tommy London swept into the end zone to make it 31-23 with three minutes, 33 seconds remaining. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Then Jay Sherrill hit a wicked, twisting, sidefoot kick for an onside kick that hit a Houston player in the leg, bounced to the left, and was clawed at by hosts of huge players and at last came to rest under the stomach of State's Lou Alcamo at the Houston 47.

A couple of runs by Stan Fritts, a pass over the middle to tight end Pat Hovance and a one-yard sneak by Buckey put the ball in the end zone. And while the entire Houston team thought "pass" on the tying two-point conversion, Fritts bulled his way in on the ground.

Two Years Ago It Was the Liberty Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Fullback Stan Fritts scored two touchdowns and was the mainstay in N. C. State's ball-control offense as the Wolfpack blitzed Kansas, 31-18 in the nationally televised 1973 Liberty Bowl football game.

"We honestly believed we could run against them," said Fritts, the man voted the game's Most Outstanding Player by the news media. "We felt all season long we could run against anybody."

Fritts smashed the Jayhawk line for 83 yards on 18 carries, sparking an offense, which, along with a punishing defense, brought the Wolfpack back-to-back bowl wins. The victory also made State the first school in the Atlantic Coast Conference to win three bowls in as many trips.

Fritts opened the scoring on a two-yard run and gave the Wolfpack the lead for good at 17-10 with an eight-yard gallop in the third quarter. A 12-yard, fourth-down run by fullback Charley Young after the Wolfpack had disdained a field-goal try, and a 31-yard run with an intercepted pass by freshman defensive tackle Jim Henderson capped the scoring for the winners.

The Wolfpack victory overshadowed a fine night by Kansas' all-America quarterback Dave Jaynes, who hit 24 of 38 passes for 218 yards and one score.

"We wanted to do several things in this game," said Wolfpack coach Lou Holtz, "punish their receivers, not give the deep one, force Jaynes to go to his secondary receivers, and keep him contained."

And In 1972, The Pack Snared Peach Crown

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI)—With freshman quarterback Dave Buckey at the controls, North Carolina State's offensive machine crushed West Virginia 49-13 Friday night in the Peach Bowl.

Starting for the first time because first-string quarterback Bruce Shaw broke his arm in drills, Buckey passed for two touchdowns and ran for one.

One of his touchdown throws was to his twin brother, Don.

Dave Buckey threw 13 passes and completed eight for 139 yards. One of his throws was intercepted.

North Carolina State had other offensive stars. Fleet Willie Burden ran for 116 yards in 20 carries. Stan Fritts plowed over for three touchdowns.

In the final period, after Buckey had been taken out, senior quarterback Gary Clements guided the Wolfpack 94 yards in 11 plays with Burden barreling in from the seven. The big play in that drive was a 62-yard run by Charlie Young.

West Virginia scored first, jumping off to a 6-0 lead when junior Frank Nester kicked field goals of 27 and 39 yards.

But Buckey put the Wolfpack into the lead with his 37-yard scoring strike to his twin brother, Don, for a touchdown. It was Dave Buckey's second touchdown of the season and the first touchdown scored by Don.

WOLFPACK COACHING STAFF

LARRY BEIGHTOL

Offensive Coordinator, Offensive Line

A native of Pittsburgh, Larry, 32, is a 1964 graduate of Catawba College. He came to N. C. State from William and Mary where he served for three seasons as an assistant to coach Holtz. At Catawba, he was a star linebacker, earning all-state and all-conference honors. Has participated in four bowl games as a coach.

BRIAN BURKE

Receivers, Administrative Assistant

Brian, 40, joined the staff from William and Mary where he worked as an assistant to coach Holtz for a year. He originally comes from Cleveland and played his collegiate football at Kent State, graduating in 1958. He was a head coach at several Ohio high schools before moving into the college ranks. Has participated in three bowl games as a coach.

CHUCK AMATO

Defensive Secondary

Chuck, 29, begins his third year as a full-time assistant. He will work with the defensive backs. The originator of the white shoe idea for the defense in 1967, he played linebacker from 1965-67 with the Wolfpack, completing his career with the Liberty Bowl win over Georgia. Has participated in four bowl games as player and coach.

DALE HAUPT

Defensive Coordinator, Defensive Line

Dale, 46, calls Manitowoc, Wisc. home. He was an outstanding performer as a guard-linebacker during his days at the University of Wyoming, where he graduated in 1955. He has put in coaching stints at Tennessee, Iowa State and Richmond, where he spend four seasons prior to coming to State. He coached two national linemen of the week while at Richmond. Has participated in three bowl games as a coach.

JERRY KIRK

Defensive Ends

Jerry, 37, was born and reared in Benham, Ky. He played at East Tennessee State, graduating in 1963. He came to the Wolfpack after four years at Ferrum Junior College where his teams went undefeated two years and won the 1968 national title with a 10-0 mark. Has participated in three bowl games as a coach.

BOB BOSWELL

Linebackers, Specialty Team

Bob, 38, joined the staff last year from High Point Andrews after 14 years of success as a N.C. high school coach. Won five conference championships in eight years as a high school head coach, including two state titles. Was four times North Carolina High School Coach-of-the-Year. Had an overall 68-17-3 record in high school coaching at Graham and High Point. A native of Burlington, N. C., Bob played end four years at Elon.

DICK KEMP

Offensive Backs

Richard, 33, came to the Wolfpack from a successful background in North Carolina's scholastic coaching ranks. At Ragsdale High in Jamestown the past three years, Kemp's charges posted a 37-2-2 record and grabbed the state title the past two years. His high school record, which includes stops at four schools, stands at 83-10-4. A 1963 graduate of Lenoir-Rhyne College, he twice led the Bears to the small college national championship as an all-America fullback.

BOB HARRISON

Tight Ends

Bob Harrison, offensive line coach last season at Cornell, will be working with tight ends primarily this season. A native of Cleveland, Harrison, 33, is a 1964 graduate of Kent State. After five years in the high school ranks, he moved to Kent State, where he coached two seasons, before joining Iowa as its pass offense coordinator prior to going to Cornell.

BRUCE MAYS

Chief Recruiter, Specialty Team Assistant

Bruce, who considers his move from Kansas State to the Wolfpack comparable to dying and going to Heaven, will be concentrating his talent in recruiting football players for State. A Cleveland native, Mays, 33, is a graduate of Ohio Northern University where he lettered in football and ice hockey. He served eight years in the Ohio high school ranks before joining the K-State staff in 1971.

State's Willis Casey

Willis Casey wouldn't say so himself, because it's not his style to indulge in self-praise. But when the NCAA held its special August convention to search for ways to shave costs in intercollegiate athletics, Casey was among the elite.

He deserves that description because, according to a study by the American Council on Education, only 31 intercollegiate athletics departments could write their financial sheet in black ink last year, and North Carolina State University—which has benefitted from Casey's three decades of service in many ways—was one of the 31.

"We at North Carolina State are in healthy condition," said Casey, who has capped a brilliant career as a swimming coach with seven years as director of athletics—seven years during which Wolfpack teams have risen to national prominence and athletics facilities have been improved and expanded.

"I hope other schools soon will be in sound financial condition," he added. "As for how we do it, it's no secret. We run a very frugal program, and even when we are enjoying success we don't spend a lot of money."

To those who know and work with Casey, his words reflect accurately what he has practiced at N.C. State: the management of a program that is competitive both on the field and in terms of facilities, without wasteful spending.

One only needs to look at his background to understand his philosophy.

Casey grew up in Goldsboro, graduating from high school in the waning days of the Depression. At UNC-Chapel Hill, where he earned a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1945, he helped earn his way by working as freshman swimming coach for a couple of years as an undergraduate, then as varsity swimming coach for several more years.

He started the Wolfpack swimming program virtually from scratch in 1946, quickly lifting it into national prominence and, through his 22-year coaching tenure, amassing 11 conference championships, guiding 33 all-American swimmers, coaching one Olympics gold medal winner, and leading teams that won 188 dual meets while losing only 29.

For both Casey and N.C. State, there was no largesse. The athletics department and the man who has worked in it for 30 years have achieved artistic and financial stature by the sweat of their brows, as the saying goes. The process has been painstaking, but the dividends are now coming in.

The University's non-revenue sports have improved rapidly during recent years. There is a national championship basketball trophy on the campus, and the baseball team is a perennial favorite for the conference title. Wolfpack football teams have been to three bowl games in succession—they won two and tied in the other—and Carter Stadium now houses sellout audiences. And the swimming team is a genuine power.

The physical plant has also been improved. Since Casey became the director of athletics, the modern Everett N. Case Athletics Center has become a reality, the stately Reynolds Coliseum has been renovated, and Carter Stadium has had its face, which is but nine years old, lifted—to improve the stadium's first-class appearance.

Yet through this most successful period in the history of Wolfpack athletics, Casey has kept the academic-athletics relationship in its proper perspective.

"In my opinion, North Carolina State was a great service institution to the state for years, but was not recognized as such," he said. "We had the research programs, the agriculture service, and many other programs that benefitted North Carolina. As more women enrolled, and as the academic area expanded to include liberal arts, the University became more attractive to students in North Carolina as an institution of higher learning. And I would like to believe that our athletics program of the past four or five years has contributed to the success of the University by helping to create some interest and publicity that, in turn, has helped tell the University's story.

"But as for our proper relationship to the University—no, I've never confused, it," he added. "This was a great service institution long before we had these recent athletics successes. And athletics pays its own way here. We receive no state appropriations. We pay athletics salaries, matching retirement funds, utilities—everything. We do receive about twenty percent of our total budget from a non-academic student fee, but we have no state appropriations at all."

N.C. State recently added to its athletics staff the state's first female coach who is not also required to instruct classes. Kay Yow, who coached championship women's basketball teams at Elon College, is coordinating the women's athletics program in Casey's department, and is also coaching.

"We've had women's rifle and fencing teams for a long time," Casey said, "and this year we will also have women's teams in volleyball, softball, and swimming. We started women's basketball last year. If the interest warrants, we might add women's teams in track, golf, and tennis, as well. We've been committed to women's sports for several years," he added.

It was under his leadership that N.C. State became the first—and the only—ACC school to win league football, basketball, and baseball titles in the same year, and a year later, rank as the nation's 10th-best overall athletics program.

All of this was not accidental. Casey's experience in coaching and administration was acquired over a long period of time, and he is among the elite of athletics administrators because he belongs there.

THE GREAT WOLFPACK MARCHING BAND

DON ADCOCK
Marching Band Director

"Ladies and gentlemen, we proudly present, 185 strong, the great North Carolina State University Wolfpack Marching Band."

It's halftime at Carter Stadium, and that announcement signals the beginning of another spectacular performance by the famed "Wolfpack" Marching Band. Directed by Don Adcock, the band is recognized throughout the nation as one of the truly outstanding university bands.

"We have two primary purposes," says Adcock, "to support the Wolfpack football team, and to entertain the fans." There's no doubt that the 185 N. C. State band members abundantly succeed in those objectives.

N. C. State's Past Record vs. West Virginia

The Wolfpack has met West Virginia on the football field only six times in its 83-year grid history, winning the first and the last collisions, but losing the four in between.

The most recent game—and the most memorable for the Pack—came during the 1972 Peach Bowl when Lou Holtz' first State team walloped the Mountaineers, 49-13.

But as the two teams tangle in the 1975 Peach Bowl, the series stands at 4-2 in favor of the Mountaineers.

N.C. State Football Players Invest Four Years in their Future

The value of an education extends far beyond the four years that a student-athlete is enrolled in college. It can be a stepping stone to leadership positions in business, government or private enterprise.

Since 1958 N. C. State has been honored with nine academic all-Americans. These men combined athletics and academics during their undergraduate days and have gone on to become successful in their chosen professions.

North Carolina State University

Dr. Joab L. Thomas
Chancellor

North Carolina State University is one of the major Land-Grant State Universities of the nation.

The University recognizes responsibility to help each student attain the highest possible personal development along with the perspective that comes with understanding social, scientific and philosophical traditions.

Opportunities are provided for training in scholarly, scientific and technical fields with a variety of curricula for professional development to equip students for productive careers.

A comprehensive academic program includes some 2,300 courses in 80 bachelor of arts and sciences programs, 67 masters degree and 45 doctoral degree fields.

A primary responsibility of the University is its contribution to the body of knowledge through original investigation, with a special emphasis on the problems of the State. The University encourages students and faculty to engage in research, scholarship and creative activity by providing facilities in an atmosphere conducive to achievement.

Research activities span a broad array of some 700 scientific, technical and scholarly fields with a budget of about $20 million annually. The findings of research are made available to the public through various extension services.

Diverse extension programs are carried on in urban affairs, marine sciences, engineering, forestry, agriculture and textiles.

The University also extends its services to those not regularly enrolled through extension courses, evening courses and summer sessions. By sponsoring exhibits, lectures, concerts and drama, the University seeks to contribute to the cultural life of the State.

North Carolina State University is a member of a statewide 16-member University of North Carolina System, and is one of three Research Triangle Universities along with Duke University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

In the 30-mile triangle formed by the three universities is the 5,000-acre Research Triangle Park, the Research Triangle Institute (a Universities' subsidiary) and the Triangle Universities Computation Center, a central facility for the computing centers of the three major educational institutions.

North Carolina State University's enrollment is about 17,500 with 14,700 undergraduates and 2,800 graduate students. Working adults who attend classes on a part-time basis comprise about one-fifth of the student body. Students from all 50 states and 600 international students from 50 other nations lend a cosmopolitan aura to the institution.

More than 4,600 people work at North Carolina State University. The 1,621 faculty and professional staff include a graduate faculty of 974.

The annual University budget is about $85 million, with an estimated value of $150 million in physical facilities which include 120 campus buildings. The central campus covers 596 acres with about 2,500 acres near the main campus in research farms, biological and ecological sites, and genetics, horticulture and floriculture nurseries and Carter Stadium. One research and endowment forest covers 78,000 acres.

North Carolina State University is organized in eight schools and the Graduate School. The eight schools are Agriculture and Life Sciences, Design, Education, Engineering, Forest Resources, Liberal Arts, Physical and Mathematical Sciences and Textiles. Additional divisions and programs provide a wide range of diversity in academic affairs, research and extension.

One of 118 recognized members of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, North Carolina State University is accredited by national and regional accrediting agencies applicable to the institution and its numerous professional fields.

The University is also a member of the American Council on Education, the College Entrance Examination Board, the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States, the National Commission on Accrediting, the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.
